expiration of the term of ninety six years last mentioned, shall, after the expiration of the said several terms so granted therein, have further continuance, and be also paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever: and that such of the duties upon vellum, parchment, and paper, as by the said act of the fifth year of her late Majesty's reign were continued for the term of ninety six years, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and by the said act of the sixth year of her late Majesty's reign were continued for one year, to take effect after the expiration of the term of ninety six years last mentioned, shall, after the expiration of the said several terms so granted therein, have further continuance, and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever: and that the duties upon sweets made for sale, which by the said act of the fifth year of her said late Majesty's reign were granted for the term of ninety nine years, from the four and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and six, and by the said act of the sixth year of her late Majesty's reign were continued for two years, to take effect after the expiration of the term of ninety nine years last mentioned, shall, after the expiration of the said several terms so granted therein, have further continuance, and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever: and that the several rates and duties of excise, which by the said act of the fourth year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, were granted for the term of ninety nine years, from the five and twentieth day of January, one thousand six hundred ninety two, and were by the said act of the sixth year of her late Majesty's reign continued for the term of fifteen years, to take effect after the said ninety nine years last mentioned, shall, after the expiration of the several terms so granted therein, have further continuance, and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever: and that the said several subsidies, rates, and duties by this act made perpetual, as aforesaid, when and as the same respectively shall take effect, by virtue of this act, shall be raised and levied by such rules and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such distribution of the same penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such power of mitigation, and with such respective drawbacks, allowances, and repayments, and in such manner and form, as the like duties granted or continued by the said former acts now in being respectively are prescribed, enacted, or appointed to be raised or levied.

IX. And it is hereby declared, That where any of the above mentioned duties now in being, or any proportions thereof, do extend to that part of Great Britain called Scotland, by virtue of any of the acts which granted the same, or by virtue of the late act of union, in all such cases the same respective duties hereby intended to be made perpetual, shall be understood to extend to Scotland in like manner.

X. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That in all cases where any further or other provision or alteration is made by any other act or acts of parliament now in being, touching or concerning any the subsidies, rates, and duties, which were granted for certain terms, as aforesaid, such other provisions and alterations shall be observed and take place, in relation to the subsidies, rates, and duties, by this act intended to be made perpetual.

XI. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies arise by the said subsidies, rates, and duties, by this act made perpetual, as aforesaid, when and as the same respectively (after the expiration of the respective terms formerly granted, as aforesaid) shall take effect, by virtue of this present act, (the necessary charges of raising the same excepted) shall likewise, from time to time, be brought into the said receipt of Exchequer for the uses and purposes in this act expressed; nevertheless, the said duties and revenues hereby made perpetual, and the application thereof to the uses and purposes by this act intended, shall be subject and liable to such redemption as is herein-after prescribed in that behalf.

XIII. A

XIII. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all other publick monies which, from and after the said feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, shall come and be brought into the said receipt of Exchequer, not being appropriated or appointed to any use or uses, by any act or acts of parliament made or to be made, and not being monies arising from any branch or branches of revenue, appointed or to be appointed for the service of his Majesty's civil government, or the expences thereunto belonging, shall likewise be set apart, issued, and applied, to and for the uses and services in and by this present act declared and intended, and to no other use or purpose whatsoever.

All publick monies not appropriated shall be applied to the uses of this act.

XIV. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this act contained shall hinder or obstruct, or be construed to hinder or obstruct, the making good any deficiency or deficiencies, which at any time or times shall happen of or in the yearly fund of one hundred and sixteen thousand five hundred seventy three pounds, twelve shillings, mentioned in an act of parliament of the first year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for rectifying mistakes in the names of the commissioners for the land-tax for the year one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; and for raising so much as is wanting to make up the sum of fourteen hundred thousand pounds, intended to be raised by a lottery for the publick service in the said year, but that every such deficiency shall and may be made good and satisfied out of any publick unappropriated monies, as if this act had never been made; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XV. And be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all the said subsidies, duties, and revenues, which by the said act of the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, were appropriated for paying of interest and allowances relating to the Exchequer bills, issued upon that and the said former acts in that behalf, or towards cancelling the same, and all arrears thereof, and the several additional revenues and incomes by this act granted or continued, for the uses and purposes hereafter in and by this act expressed or intended, and all surplus monies, arrears, and other monies whatsoever by this act directed to be brought into the receipt of Exchequer, or to be set apart or applied to or for the same uses and purposes as aforesaid, and likewise the overplus monies of the yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds herein-after mentioned, from time to time arising, are and shall be the general or aggregate fund and security for satisfying and paying all monies which are, and from time to time shall be incurred and grown due or payable for interest, after the rates of two pence per centum per diem, and for the said allowance of three pounds per centum per annum, for all the Exchequer bills above mentioned, or such of them as shall from time to time be uncanceled or undischarged; and all the monies which are or shall be grown due, from time to time, upon the said sums of forty five thousand pounds per annum, and eight thousand pounds per annum, for so long time as those yearly sums are to continue or be payable; and for supplying to his Majesty, during his life, (which God long preserve) the yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds, from the feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, by quarterly payments, at the four most usual feasts of the year, by equal portions, or within ten days after every such feast day, for the service of his Majesty's household and family, and other his necessary expences and occasions; and also for supplying the further yearly sum of fifty four thousand hundred pounds for ever, by like quarterly payments, to commence from the said feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, in order to raise any sum or sums of money thereupon, not exceeding nine hundred and ten thousand pounds, for publick services, and for making good any such deficiencies as shall or may happen, as aforesaid, and likewise for or towards furnishing the said yearly sum

XVIII. And it is hereby enacted, That after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay and satisfy, from time to time, so much as is or shall be grown due or demandable for the said allowance of three pounds per centum per annum, and interest of two pence per centum per diem, and the said allowances of forty five thousand pounds per annum, and eight thousand pounds per annum, then the said yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds for the service of his Majesty's household and family, and other his necessary expenses and occasions, shall grow due and be payable to his Majesty quarterly, from the said feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, at the four most usual feasts in the year, by equal portions, during his Majesty's natural life, as aforesaid, out of the monies of the said general or aggregate fund, arising or to arise by the said duties or revenues already commenced, or hereafter to come in, as aforesaid; and that the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, or lord treasurer, and under-treasurer of the Exchequer for the time being, shall and may, and they are hereby authorized and required, to cause the said yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds to be issued and applied, weekly, or as soon as the same can be satisfied, in the order and course aforesaid, for the same services, out of the said monies of the said general or aggregate fund, or any of them, so as by such weekly or other payments, the sum of thirty thousand pounds to be due thereupon at the end of each quarter be not exceeded.

After that, the yearly sum of 54,600l. shall perpetual annuities:

XIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay and satisfy, from time to time, so much as is or shall be grown due or demandable for the said allowance of three pounds per centum per annum, and the interest of two pence per centum per diem, and the said allowances of forty five thousand pounds per annum, and eight thousand pounds per annum, and for or upon the said sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds per annum, then the said sum of fifty four thousand six hundred pounds per annum, from the feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, for ever, shall at the said four usual feasts in the year, by equal portions, without any deduction or abatement, be separated and set apart in the said receipt of Exchequer, out of the monies of the said general or aggregate fund, arising and to arise by the said duties or revenues already commenced, or hereafter to come in, as aforesaid, and shall, from time to time, be issued and applied to answer and satisfy such perpetual annuities as shall be purchased thereupon, after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, subject nevertheless to redemption by parliament, according to the true intent and meaning of such act or acts of parliament as is, are, or shall be passed, for raising thereupon any sum or sums of money not exceeding the said sum of nine hundred and ten thousand pounds, for the service of the public.

The several preferences.

XX. And it is hereby declared to be the true intent and meaning of this act, That the said allowance after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, and the said payments for interest, shall from time to time, take place, and be preferred in point of payment, out of the said general or aggregate fund hereby established, before the said yearly sums of forty five thousand and eight thousand pounds, or either of them; and that the said

yearly sums of forty five thousand pounds; and eight thousand pounds, shall from time to time take place, and be preferred in point of payment, before the said yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds; and that the said yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds shall from time to time take place; and be preferred in point of payment, out of the said general fund, before the said yearly sum of fifty four thousand six hundred pounds; and that the said yearly sum of fifty four thousand six hundred pounds shall from time to time take place, and be preferred before any sums herein-after mentioned, for making good deficiencies (when any such shall happen) of or in other funds of the said governor and company, and before the yearly sum herein-after mentioned, for cancelling and discharging the said Exchequer bills.

XXI. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay and satisfy, from time to time, so much as is or shall be grown due or demandable for the said allowance of three pounds per centum per annum, and interest of two pence per centum per diem, and the said allowances of forty five thousand pounds per annum, and eight thousand pounds per annum, and for and upon the said yearly sums of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds per annum, and fifty four thousand six hundred pounds per annum, then the said deficiency and deficiencies for making good the payments, to be from time to time incurred and grown due, for or upon the said yearly sums of one hundred thousand pounds, and one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds, thirteen shillings, and five pence, and either of them; (when and as often as any such shall happen) shall from time to time be satisfied and answered out of the monies of the said general or aggregate fund, arising or to arise by the said duties or revenues already commenced, or hereafter to come in, as aforesaid; and the commissioners of the treasury, or the lord treasurer, and under treasurer of the Exchequer for the time being, are hereby authorized and required to use every such deficiency or deficiencies so happening, to be satisfied and paid accordingly, with preference to any issues then to be made for cancelling the said bills, which deficiencies (if any such be) shall be annually computed at the Exchequer, from the produce of the said respective revenues there, (so as) the deficiency of the said original fund on the first day of June yearly, and the deficiency of the annuity last mentioned at Michaelmas yearly.

How the deficiencies shall be made good

XXII. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted, That after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay and satisfy, from time to time, so much as is or shall be grown due or demandable for the said allowance of three pounds per annum, and interest of two pence per centum per diem, and the said sums of forty five thousand pounds per annum, eight thousand pounds per annum, one hundred and twenty thousand pounds per annum, and fifty four thousand six hundred pounds per annum, and so much as shall be demanded by virtue of this act, to make good such deficiency and deficiencies aforesaid, (all which are always to be preferred, as aforesaid) then the said annual yearly sum of two hundred and seventy thousand nine hundred and ninety nine pounds, seven shillings, or so much thereof as the remainder of the monies of the said general or aggregate fund, arising or to arise by the duties or revenues already commenced, or hereafter to come in, as aforesaid, shall from time to time produce for that purpose, shall be, and is by this act appropriated for paying off all the principal money contained in all and by the said Exchequer bills made forth upon the acts aforesaid, or any of them, and for cancelling the same, until all the said bills shall be discharged, cancelled, and shall be issued and applied to and for that use and purpose in such manner as the commissioners of the treasury, or lord treasurer for the time being, shall from time to time direct and appoint in that behalf, and that the issues thereof shall be made quarterly, or often, so as the payments within any quarter, the fourth part of the yearly sum last mentioned for that quarter be not exceeded.

XXIII. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the produce of the said general or aggregate fund, to arise by all or any the subsidies, duties, and revenues hereby appropriated for all the purposes aforesaid, shall at the end of any year, reckoning from the said feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, exceed all the money due at the end of every such year for all the purposes aforesaid, so that there shall be an excess or surplus of the said general fund, such excess or surplus shall be disposable, from time to time, for the publick use and service by authority of parliament, and not otherwise; any thing herein, or in any other act or act of parliament contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXIV. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the produce of the said general or aggregate fund, to arise by all or any the subsidies, duties, and revenues, hereby appropriated for all the purposes aforesaid, shall at any time or times appear to be so deficient, that within any one year, reckoning from the said feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, the same shall not be sufficient to answer and satisfy the said several and respective purposes to which the same is hereby intended to be applied, then, and in every such case, and as often as any such deficiency of the said general fund shall happen, the same shall be provided for, answered, and made good, by and out of the next aids to be granted in parliament.

XXV. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the revenues settled or appointed for the service of his Majesty's household, and of the honour and dignity of his crown, by the late act of parliament of the first year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the better support of his Majesty's household, and of the honour and dignity of the crown of Great Britain, together with the said additional revenue of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds per annum, intended by this act to be supplied, as aforesaid, shall from the said feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, at any time during his Majesty's life, produce in clear money more than the yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds, that then the overplus of such produce (being more than the said yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds) shall go to, and be deemed and taken to be part of the general or aggregate fund by this act intended to be established for the several purposes aforesaid, and be appropriated, issued, and applied accordingly to all the said Exchequer bills shall be paid off and cancelled; and from and after the cancelling and discharging of all the said Exchequer bills, the said overplus which from thenceforth shall arise, exceeding the said yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds, shall not be issued, disposed, made use of, or applied to any use or purpose, or upon any pretext whatsoever, without the authority of parliament; and that all grants and dispositions whatsoever hereafter to be made by his Majesty of such overplus, or any part thereof, from time to time, without authority of parliament, shall be utterly void and of none effect; and the grantees, or other persons to whom such grants or dispositions, or any of them, shall be made of such overplus, or any part thereof, shall be adjudged incapable in law to take, hold, keep, detain, or enjoy the same; any law, custom, or usage, to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXVI. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the said revenues settled or appointed for the service of his Majesty's household, and of the honour and dignity of the crown, by the said act of the first year of his Majesty's reign, and the said additional revenue of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds per annum, taken together, shall at the end of any year successively during his Majesty's life, reckoning the first year from the said feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, appear to be producing produced in clear money, less than the said sum of seven hundred thousand pounds for that year respectively, then, and in every such case, as often as any such deficiency shall happen, the same shall be provided for, answered, and made good, by and out of the next aids to be granted in parliament.

XXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said former acts above recited or mentioned, and every of them, and all the powers, authorities, privileges, advantages, and exemptions, and all rules, directions, and precepts, and all pains of death, and other penalties and forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things in them, or any of them contained, (being now in force) touching or concerning the said Exchequer bills, issued as aforesaid, or the circulating or exchanging the said bills, or any of them, or touching or concerning any the subsidies, duties, or funds in the said acts, or any of them mentioned, or any way relating thereunto, (such alterations as are therein made by this act only excepted) shall continue, and be used, exercised, inflicted, raised, levied, applied, and put in practice and execution, in relation to all and every the said Exchequer bills, and in relation to the subsidies, duties, and funds, settled by this and the said former acts, as fully as if the said powers, authorities, privileges, advantages, exemptions, rules, directions, precepts, pains of death, and other penalties and forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, (except as aforesaid) were repeated and again enacted in the body of this present act; and that the said governor and company, or any the members thereof, shall not incur any disability for or by reason of their doing any matter or thing in pursuance of this act.

All the powers in the recited acts to be in force during this act.

XXIX. And it is hereby enacted and declared, That the governor and company of the bank of England, and their successors, shall continue a corporation, with all the powers, privileges, and advantages thereunto belonging, until all the said Exchequer bills, issued by virtue of the said acts, or any of them, shall be discharged and cancelled; notwithstanding the redemption of their other funds, in pursuance of the acts by which the same are established, or any of them; any thing in this or the said other acts contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

The bank established.

XXX. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the complete paying off and discharging all the principal and interest which shall be due upon all the said Exchequer bills, issued as aforesaid, and cancelling the same, and full payment made of all arrearages, (if any shall be then due) as well for and upon the allowance after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, and for and upon the said yearly sums of forty five thousand pounds, eight thousand pounds, one hundred and twenty thousand pounds, and fifty four thousand six hundred pounds; and every of them, as also of such deficiency or deficiencies as shall then appear to be unsatisfied (if any such be) for or upon the said original fund of one hundred thousand pounds per annum; and for and upon the said annuity of one hundred and six thousand five hundred one pounds, thirteen shillings, and five pence per annum, then, and not then, the said general or aggregate fund by this act established, or intended to be established, for the several purposes aforesaid, and the said subsidies, duties, and revenues contained, or to be contained therein, and every of them, shall be understood to be redeemed by parliament, and shall be issued, paid, or applied to any use, intent, or purpose whatsoever, without the authority of parliament, other than and except the said duties, and The two thirds of a subsidy of tonnage and poundage upon goods and merchandizes imported, and other than and except the said duties upon coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, maces, and muslins, and other than and except the said increased duties upon coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, mace, and pictures, and other than and except the said farther rates and duties upon all white calicoes, porcelain, called China ware; and drugs; all

When the aggregate fund shall be understood to be redeemed by parliament.

Exception.

all which said subsidies and duties so excepted, are intended to be continued, and are hereby enacted to be continued, for answering and paying out of the same all the payments which shall after such redemption grow due for and upon the said yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds, by quarterly payments, for the service of his Majesty's household and family, and other his necessary occasions, during his Majesty's life, and also for answering and paying out of the same excepted subsidies, and other duties, all the payments which shall after such redemption grow due for or upon the said yearly sum of fifty four thousand six hundred pounds, for payment of the said annuities to be purchased, as aforesaid, which annuities are to continue for ever, unless the same be redeemed by parliament, according to the tenor and true meaning of the said other act or acts of parliament passed or to be passed in that behalf; and the said excepted subsidies and duties so to be continued for answering the payments of the said yearly sums of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds, and fifty four thousand six hundred pounds, or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to pay the same, are and shall be appropriated, issued, and applied thereunto, during the continuance of the same yearly sums respectively; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

This fund may be redeemed without redeeming the original bank fund.

XXXI. And it is hereby declared to be the true intent and meaning of this act, That the said general fund by this act established for the several purposes aforesaid, and all the said subsidies, duties, and revenues comprehended, or intended to be comprehended therein, (except before excepted) may be redeemed in the manner and form prescribed in and by the foregoing proviso and condition, without redeeming the said original fund of one hundred thousand pounds per annum of the said governor and company, or their said annuity of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds, thirteen shillings, and five pence per annum, which original fund and annuity respectively shall and may be redeemed upon such notices, and in such manner and form, and upon such terms and conditions, as are prescribed by the respective acts of parliament now in force concerning the same, and not otherwise; any thing herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

After redemption of the original fund, &c. bank to cease.

XXXII. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted, That from and after the redemption of the said original fund of one hundred thousand pounds per annum, and of the said annuity of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds, thirteen shillings, and five pence per annum, and from and after redemption shall likewise be made of the general fund established by this act for the several purposes aforesaid, (except before excepted) then, and not till then, the said corporation of the governor and company of the bank of England shall cease and determine; but till then the said governor and company shall continue a corporation, and shall have and enjoy all the powers and privileges they are entitled to, as aforesaid.

Deficiency on the hop act to be made good.

XXXIII. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted, That so much of the sum of one hundred and eighty thousand pounds, which was borrowed on the said former act, which laid a duty on hops for four years, and the interest thereof, as is deficient and remains unpaid, shall be satisfied out of the said sum, not exceeding nine hundred and ten thousand pounds, to be raised as aforesaid.

GEORGE I. Regis.

STAT. II. CAP. XIII.

An act for the further security of his Majesty's person and government, and the succession of the crown in the heirs of the late Princess Sophia, being protestants; and for extinguishing the hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and his open and secret abettors.

WHEREAS by an act made in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King William, of glorious and immortal memory, intituled, An act for the further limitation of the crown, and better securing the rights and liberties of the subject; it was enacted, That the crown and regal government of the kingdoms of England, France, and Ireland, and the dominions thereunto belonging, with the royal state and dignity of the said realms, and all honours, styles, titles, regalities, prerogatives, powers, jurisdictions and authorities, to the same belonging and appertaining, after the decease of his said Majesty, and of the princess Anne of Denmark, and in default of issue of the said princess Anne of Denmark, and of his said Majesty respectively, should be, remain, and continue to the most excellent princess Sophia, electress and dutchess dowager of Hanover, daughter of the most excellent princess Elizabeth, late Queen of Bohemia, daughter of our late sovereign lord King James the First, and the heirs of the body of the said princess Sophia, being protestants; and whereas also an act was made in England in the thirteenth and fourteenth years of the reign of the said King William, intituled, An act for the further security of his Majesty's person, and the succession of the crown in the protestant line; and for extinguishing the hopes of the pretended prince of Wales, and all other pretenders, and their open and secret abettors; whereby, among other things, it was provided, That all and every person and persons, mentioned in the said last recited act, should take the oath therein mentioned, and subscribe the same, in the manner, at the times and places, and under the pains and penalties therein expressed; and upon the demise of his late majesty King William, there was another act made in the first year of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act to declare the alterations in the oath appointed to be taken by the act, intituled, "An act for the further security of his Majesty's person, and the succession of the crown in the protestant line; and for extinguishing the hopes of the pretended prince of Wales, and all other pretenders, and their open and secret abettors;" and for declaring the association to be determined; and for the same end there was another act passed in the fourth year of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for the better security of her Majesty's person and government, and of the succession to the crown of England in the protestant line; and whereas by the treaty of union, and second article thereof, it is provided, That the succession to the monarchy of the united kingdom of Great Britain, and the dominions thereunto belonging, after her said late most sacred majesty Queen Anne, and in default of issue of her said Majesty, should be, remain, and continue to the most excellent princess Sophia, electress and dutchess dowager of Hanover, and the heirs of her body, being protestants, upon whom the crown of England stood settled by the aforesaid act, made in England in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King William; pursuant to which treaty and state of union, there were sundry acts made in the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, for taking certain oaths and declarations for security of her Majesty's person and government, and settling the crown in the protestant line:

line: and whereas the said pretended prince of Wales both assumed the stile and title of James the Third, King of England, Scotland, and Ireland, in open defiance of the provisions made for the establishment of the title and succession of the crown by the said acts of parliament, on which said acts the safety of your Majesty's royal person and government, the continuance of the monarchy of Great Britain, the preservation of the protestant religion, the maintenance of the churches of England and Scotland, as by law established, the security of the ancient and undoubted rights and liberties, and the future peace and tranquillity of this kingdom, do (under God) entirely depend: and whereas the said pretended prince of Wales, since the demise of the late Queen, in prejudice of your Majesty's just rights and title to the imperial crown of these realms, has continued to assume the said name and title of James the Third, King of England, Scotland, and Ireland, in manifest violation of your Majesty's most lawful and rightful title to the crown, and of the acts and treaty above-mentioned, made for settling, and further security of the same, and for extinguishing the hopes of him the said pretender, and of all other pretenders, and their open and secret abettors: and whereas also several wicked and evil-minded persons have, even since your Majesty's happy accession to the throne, in riotous, seditious, and treasonable manner, taken upon them to give to the said pretended prince of Wales the aforesaid name and title: to the intent therefore the said acts may be for ever inviolably preserved, and that all future questions and divisions, by reason of any pretended titles to the crown, may be prevented, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, do humbly beseech your most excellent Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That all and every person and persons, as well peers as commons, that shall bear any office or offices, civil or military, or shall receive any pay, salary, fee or wages, by reason of any patent or grant from his Majesty, or shall have command or place of trust from or under his Majesty, or from any of his Majesty's predecessors, or by his, her, or their authority, or by authority derived from him, her, or them, within Great Britain, or in his Majesty's navy, or in the several islands of Jersey and Guernsey, or shall be of the household, or in the service or employment of his Majesty, or of his royal highness George prince of Wales, or her royal highness the princess of Wales, or their issue; and all ecclesiastical persons, heads of governors, of what denomination soever, and all other members of colleges and halls in any university, that are or shall be of the foundation, or that do or shall enjoy any exhibition, (being of the age of eighteen years); and all persons teaching or reading to pupils in any university, or elsewhere, and all schoolmasters and ushers, and all preachers and teachers of separate congregations, all constables, and every person that shall act as a serjeant at law, counsellor at law, barrister, advocate, attorney, solicitor, writer in Scotland, proctor, clerk, or notary, by practising in any manner as such in any court whatsoever, who shall inhabit, reside, or be within the cities of London or Westminster, or within thirty miles distant from the same, on the first day of Michaelmas term next, at any time during the said term, shall personally appear before the end of the said term in his Majesty's court of chancery, king's bench, common pleas, or Exchequer, and there in publick and open court, between the hours of nine of the clock and twelve in the forenoon, take the oaths herein after mentioned: that is to say,

I A. B. do sincerely promise and swear, That I will be faithful, and bear true allegiance to his majesty King George.

So help me God.

I A.B. do swear, That I do from my heart abhor, detest and abjure, as impious and heretical, that damnable doctrine and position, That princes excommunicated or deprived by the Pope, or any authority of the See of Rome, may be deposed or murdered by their subjects, or any other whatsoever. And I do declare, that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state or potentate, hath or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this realm.

So help me God.

I A.B. do truly and sincerely acknowledge, profess, testify and declare, in my conscience, before God and the world, That our sovereign Lord King George is lawful and rightful King of this realm, and all other his Majesty's dominions and countries thereunto belonging. And I do solemnly and sincerely declare, That I do believe in my conscience, that the person pretended to be prince of Wales, during the life of the late King James, and since his decease pretending to be, and taking upon himself the stile and title of King of England, by the name of James the Third, or of Scotland, by the name of James the Eighth, or the stile and title of King of Great Britain, hath not any right or title whatsoever to the crown of this realm, or any other the dominions thereunto belonging; and I do renounce, refuse, and abjure any allegiance or obedience to him. And I do swear, That I will bear faith and true allegiance to his majesty King George, and him will defend to the utmost of my power, against all traiterous conspiracies and attempts whatsoever, which shall be made against his person, crown or dignity. And I will do my utmost endeavour to disclose and make known to his Majesty, and his successors, all treasons and traiterous conspiracies which I shall know to be against him, or any of them. And I do faithfully promise, to the utmost of my power, to support, maintain and defend the succession of the crown against him the said James, and all other persons whatsoever, which succession, by an act, intituled, An act for the further limitation of the crown, and better securing the rights and liberties of the subject, is and stands limited to the princess Sophia, electress and dutchess dowager of Hanover, and the heirs of her body, being protestants. And all these things I do plainly and sincerely acknowledge and swear, according to these express words by me spoken, and according to the plain and common sense and understanding of the same words, without any equivocation, mental evasion, or secret reservation whatsoever. And I do make this recognition, acknowledgment, renunciation and promise, heartily, willingly and truly, upon the true faith of a christian.

So help me God.

Unto which oaths so taken, every such person so taking the same, shall subscribe his name, or, if he cannot write, shall make his mark, and during the time of taking the said oaths, all pleas and proceedings in the said respective courts shall cease; and all and every the said respective persons and officers, not having taken the said oaths, and subscribed the same, as aforesaid, shall on or before the twenty-third day of January next, at the general or quarter-sessions for that county, riding, liberty, city, borough, town-corporate or place, where he or they shall be, inhabit or reside, on the first day of December next, take the said oaths in open court, between the said hours of nine and twelve of the clock in the forenoon, and subscribe his name, or, if he cannot write, make his mark under the same.

And subscribe the same.

c. 29. s. 6.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person or persons, as well peers as commoners, who by virtue of any act or acts made since the union of the two kingdoms, were bound to take and subscribe the oath of allegiance, subscribe the assurance, and to take and sign the oath of abjuration, for or on account of any office, civil or military, or any other cause or occasion, within Scotland, shall on or before the first day of December, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, take and subscribe the oath of abjuration above-mentioned, and shall take and subscribe the said oath of allegiance, and subscribe the assurance in the words following, videlicet;

I A. B. do sincerely promise and swear, That I will be faithful, and bear true allegiance to his Majesty King George.

So help me God.

The assurance.

I A. B. do, in the sincerity of my heart, assert, acknowledge and declare, That his majesty King George is the only lawful and undoubted sovereign of the realm, as well de jure, that is, of right, King, as de facto, that is, in the possession and exercise of the government; and therefore I do sincerely and faithfully promise and engage, That I will, with heart and hand, life and goods, maintain and defend his Majesty's title and government, against the person pretended to be prince of Wales, during the life of the late King James, and since his decease, pretending to be, and taking upon himself the stile and title of King of England, by the name of James the Third, or of Scotland, by the name of James the Eighth, or the stile and title of King of Great Britain, and his adherents, and all other enemies, who either by open or secret attempts, shall disturb or disquiet his Majesty in the possession and exercise thereof.

And that in such courts, and within such times limited, before such judges, in such manner, and to be certified as in and by the several acts generally above-mentioned is directed.

Not to extend to persons beyond sea, who take the oaths in 3 months after they return.

VI. Provided, That nothing in this act contained shall extend to any person now beyond the seas, who by virtue of this act ought to take the said oaths; so as such person do, within three months after his return to Great Britain, take the said oaths, and subscribe thereunto, according to the appointment of this act.

VII. And

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the person and persons aforesaid, that do or shall neglect or refuse to take the said oaths, and subscribe thereto, as aforesaid, in the said courts and places, and at the respective times aforesaid, shall be ipso facto adjudged incapable, and disabled in law, to all intents and purposes whatsoever, to have, occupy or enjoy the said office or offices, employment or employments, or any part of them, or any matter or thing aforesaid, or any profit or advantage appertaining to them, or any of them; and every such office or place, employment or employments, shall be void, and is hereby adjudged void.

Penalty of refusing the oaths.

VIII. And be it further enacted, That all and every such person and persons who shall neglect and refuse to take the said oaths, within the times, and at the places aforesaid, and yet after such neglect or refusal shall, by himself or themselves, his or their deputy or trustee, execute any of the said offices or employments after the said time is expired, wherein he or they ought to have taken the said oaths according to the true intent and meaning of this act, and being thereof lawfully convicted in or upon any information, presentment or indictment, in any of the King's courts at Westminster, or at the assizes, upon prosecution before the court of justiciary, or circuits in Scotland, every such person or persons shall be disabled from thenceforth to sue or use any action, bill, plaint or information in any court of law, or to prosecute any suit in any court of equity, or to be guardian of any child, or executor or administrator of any person, or capable of any legacy or deed of gift, or to be in any office within this realm of Great Britain, or to vote at any election for members to serve in parliament, and shall forfeit the sum of five hundred pounds, to be recovered by him or them that shall sue for the same, to be prosecuted by any action of debt, suit, bill, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be, or any more than one imparlance, and by way of summar complaint before the court of sessions, or prosecution before the court of justiciary in Scotland.

Penalty of acting as officers, &c. not having taken the oaths.

IX. And be it further enacted, That it shall and may be lawful, to and for the respective courts aforesaid, to give and administer the oaths aforesaid, to the person and persons aforesaid, and upon due tender of any person or persons to take the said oaths, the said courts are hereby required and enjoined to administer the same; for the taking and subscribing the said oaths the proper officer shall have, take and receive, of every person, so taking and subscribing the said oaths, the sum of two shillings, and no more; of the taking and subscribing whereof a register shall be kept in a book to be provided for that purpose, by the proper officer, where the names of all such persons, who shall take and subscribe the said oaths, shall be fairly written, and when they took and subscribed the same, to which register any person may resort, and inspect the same without fee or reward.

Persons taking the oaths to pay 2s. and a register to be kept to enter their names.

X. And be it further enacted, That it shall and may be lawful to and for two or more justices of peace, or any other person or persons who shall be by his Majesty for that purpose specially appointed, by order in the privy council, or by commission under the great seal, to administer and tender the oaths herein before appointed to be taken, to any person or persons whatsoever, whom they shall or may suspect to be dangerous or affected to his Majesty or his government; and if any person or persons whom the said oaths shall be so tendered, shall neglect or refuse to take the same, such justices, or any other person or persons specially to be appointed, aforesaid, tendering the said oaths, shall certify the refusal thereof to the next quarter-sessions of the county, riding, liberty, city, borough, town or place in which such refusal shall be made; and the said refusal shall be recorded amongst the rolls of that sessions, and shall be from thence thence certified by the clerk of the peace of such county, riding, liberty, city, borough, town corporate or place, into his Majesty's court of chancery or king's bench, court of sessions, or court of justiciary in Scotland, there to be recorded amongst the rolls of the said courts, in a roll or rolls there to be provided and kept for that purpose only; and that every person so neglecting or refusing to take the said oaths, shall be from the time of his neglect or refusal, taken, esteemed, and adjudged a popish recusant convict, and as such to forfeit and be proceeded against.

XIV. Provided always, That any person who, by any neglect or refusal according to this act, shall lose or forfeit any office, may be capable of a new grant of the said office, or of any other, and have and hold the same again, such person taking the said oaths in such manner as aforesaid, so as such office be not granted to, or actually enjoyed by some person at the time of regranting thereof.

XVIII. Provided, That neither this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend, be judged, or interpreted to take away or make void any office of inheritance, so as such person or persons having an office of inheritance, do or shall substitute and appoint his or their deputy or deputies, and such deputy or deputies shall qualify him or themselves, according to a proviso in the act made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for preventing dangers which may happen from popish recusants, and so as such deputy or deputies do likewise take and subscribe the oaths in and by this present act required and expressed, and so as such deputy or deputies be, from time to time, approved of by the King's majesty under his privy signet.

XXI. Provided always, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend to any person who hath, since his Majesty's happy accession to the throne, taken the oaths of allegiance and supremacy, and the abjuration oath, in any of the said courts at Westminster, or at the general quarter-sessions of the peace, or in either houses of parliament, unless by reason of such person's having some new office or employment, or his coming hereafter under some of the qualifications which require the taking the oaths before-mentioned, by virtue of this act, or any other law now in being.

XXII. Provided always, and be it declared and enacted, That all persons whatsoever, who, by virtue of any law now in being, are or would be obliged, if this act was not had or made, to receive the sacrament according to the usage of the church of England, and to make and subscribe the declaration against transubstantiation, or either of them, on any occasion whatsoever, shall continue obliged, in all such cases, to receive the said sacrament, and make and subscribe the said declaration, together with the oaths appointed by this act, in such manner, and under such penalties in case of neglect, as is required by any former law.

XXV. Provided always, That no person or persons, who by reason of any such neglect or omission hath or have left or forfeited any office, benefice, place, dignity, or employment whatsoever, to which any other person or persons hath or have been preferred or promoted, shall be restored to such office, benefice, place, dignity, or employment; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXVII. Provided always, That the oath of abjuration, and the assurance in this act contained, shall in all cases be taken to be in lieu of the oath of abjuration, and the assurance formerly appointed.

An act for the better preventing fresh fish taken by foreigners being imported into this kingdom; and for the preservation of the fry of fish; and for the giving leave to import lobsters and turbot in foreign bottoms, and for the better preservation of salmon within several rivers in that part of this kingdom called England.

WHEREAS notwithstanding the many good laws made for the preservation and improvement of the fishery in that part of this kingdom called England, particularly an act of parliament made in the fifteenth year of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouragement of trade; and one other act made in the eighteenth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, intituled, An act against importing cattle from Ireland, and other parts beyond the seas, and fish taken by foreigners, many evasions have of late years been invented and practised, whereby that useful design has been very much obstructed, and more especially by the fraudulent practices of divers persons trading in English smacks, and other vessels, who, when they are off at sea, buy great quantities of fish caught by foreigners, and import and market the same in this kingdom, to the great discouragement and impoverishment of his Majesty's subjects, and manifest detriment of the fishery and navigation; for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That, from and after the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, no herring, codd, pilchards, salmon, or ling, fresh or salted, dried or bloated, nor any gril, mackarel, whiting, maddock, sprats, coal-fish, gull-fish, congers, nor any sort of flat-fish, nor any other sort of fresh fish whatsoever, shall be imported into, sold or exposed to sale, in that part of this kingdom called England, which shall be taken by, bought of, or received from any foreigner or foreigners, or out of any stranger or strangers bottom, except protestant strangers inhabiting within this kingdom, nor shall any person or persons give or exchange any goods or other things in exchange for any sort of fish so taken as aforesaid.

After 29 Sept. 1715, no fish taken by foreigners, except protestants inhabiting in England, shall be imported into this kingdom.

II. And be it further enacted, That every master or commander for the time being, of any smack, hoy, yager, boat, ship, or other vessel, in which any fish shall be imported or brought to shore, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, being thereof lawfully convicted upon his appearance, or default made after due summons, before one or more justice or justices of the peace of the county, city or place where the offender shall reside or be found, by the oath of two or more credible witnesses, which with such justice or justices are hereby impowered and required to administer, shall forfeit for every offence the sum of twenty pounds of lawful money of Great Britain, to be levied by distress and sale of the offender's goods and chattels, by warrant under the hand and seal, or hands and seals of such justice or justices, rendering to the party the overplus, if any be; and in default of payment of the said twenty pounds, or sufficient distress, the same justice or justices shall commit every such offender to the common goal of such county, city or place, there to suffer imprisonment during the space of twelve months.

Every master, &c. of any smack, &c. in which any fish shall be imported, shall forfeit 20 l. to be levied by distress; or suffer 12 months imprisonment.

This act shall not extend to prevent the importing of eels, &c.

Prosecution in one month.

Lobsters and turbets may be imported as they might have been before the act 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 24.

Appeal to sessions, whose determination shall be final.

III. Provided, That nothing herein contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to prevent the importing, buying or exposing to sale any eels, stock-fish, anchovies, sturgeon, botarge, or cavear.

IX. Provided also, That no person shall suffer any punishment for any offence committed against this act, unless the prosecution for the same be commenced within one month after such offence committed; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

X. And whereas by an act, made in the tenth and eleventh years of King William the Third, intitled, An act for making Billingsgate a free market for sale of fish, the importation of lobsters and turbets in foreign vessels is prohibited: and whereas the said prohibition has made lobsters and turbets much dearer than they were before the passing the said act: for remedy whereof, and for the better supplying this kingdom with lobsters and turbets at reasonable rates, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person whatsoever, as well foreigners as British, freely to import, bring into, and sell in the kingdom of Great Britain, in any ship or vessel whatsoever, any quantity of lobsters or turbets, whether they be of foreign or British catching, in the same manner they might have done before the said recited act of the tenth and eleventh years of the reign of his late majesty King William was made; any thing in the said act, or any other act since made, or usage, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

XVII. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted, That all persons who shall think themselves aggrieved by any judgment of any justice or justices of the peace, in any of the cases aforesaid, may appeal to the justices of the peace of the county, city, or place, where such judgement shall be given, at their next general quarter session, who are hereby empowered to hear and finally determine the same.

STAT. II. CAP. XXI.

An act for enlarging the capital stock and yearly fund of the South Sea company, and for supplying thereby eight hundred twenty-two thousand thirty-two pounds four shillings and eight pence to publick uses; and for raising one hundred ninety thousand pounds for the like uses, by sale of annuities upon drivers engagements therein mentioned; and for appropriating several supplies granted to his Majesty.

At Christmas 1715, an account to be made up of all monies arising by the duties on salt, candles, &c. of 9 Annæ, c. 21. that year, &c.

SECT. PROVIDED always, and it is hereby declared to be the intent and meaning of this present act, That the said governor and company, or their cashier for their use, shall and may (notwithstanding any provision made by this act) proceed to receive so much of the money arising by the particular duties on salt, rock-salt, and candles, and by the several rates on monies given with clerks, apprentices, and servants, mentioned in the said act of the ninth year of her late Majesty's reign, as they might have received if this act had not been made; but that within ten days after the feast of the birth of our Lord Christ one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, an exact account shall be made up by the auditor of the receipts of his Majesty's Exchequer, of all the monies, which, within the whole year ending at the same feast, shall have been received by the said governor and company, or their cashier, of those particular duties or rates, and the sum total of the monies so received or to be received by them within the said year, shall shall go and be reckoned and accounted as part of the said increased fund, which shall first grow due to the said governor and company, after the said feast of the birth of our Lord Christ in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, and shall be deducted out of the same increased fund accordingly; any thing in this or any former act or acts of parliament to the contrary notwithstanding.

V. And it is hereby enacted, That all the several duties, revenues, and surplus monies, which, by the said act of the ninth year of her late majesty's reign, were settled, appropriated, appointed, or intended, for answering the yearly fund which was to be adjusted by that act, and the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, that is to say, such of the same duties, revenues, and surplus monies as are already come into possession, and the rest of them as they shall severally take effect, are hereby appropriated, and shall be applied to and for the answering and making good all the payments which, after the said feast of the birth of our Lord Christ one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, shall grow due, for or upon the said increased fund, amounting to six hundred thousand pounds per annum, as aforesaid, and the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds for or towards charges of management, as aforesaid, and to none other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever, under such and the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities to be incurred and inflicted for diverting, misapplying, or detaining any the monies applicable to the payments by this act directed, as by the said act of the ninth year of her late Majesty's reign, or by any other act or acts relating thereunto, were in the like case intended to be inflicted or incurred for diverting, misapplying, or detaining any the monies which were to be paid in pursuance thereof.

All the duties &c. 9 Annæ, c. 21. appropriated to make good the increased fund.

VI. And to the end there may be no failure in the payment of the said increased fund of six hundred thousand pounds per annum, and the said sum of eight thousand pounds per annum, from or after the said feast of the birth of our Lord Christ one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, until the redemption thereof by parliament, according to the proviso herein after contained; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury now being, or the high treasurer or commissioners of the treasury for the time being, shall, from and after the said feast of the birth of our Lord Christ one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, quarterly, at the four most usual feasts in every year, that is to say, the feasts of the annunciation of the blessed virgin Mary, the nativity of Saint John Baptist, Saint Michael the Archangel, and the birth of our Lord Christ, or within twenty days next after every of the said feasts, cause a true and exact account to be made of all the monies which, on or before the said respective quarter-days within the quarter then ended, shall have come, or was brought into the receipt of Exchequer, of the said duties and revenues, and surplus monies; or any of them, for or towards payment of the said increased fund, and the said yearly sum for charges; and if upon making every or any such account, the monies so come or brought in shall appear to fall short of one fourth part of the said yearly sum of six hundred thousand pounds, and eight thousand pounds, for the preceding quarter of a year, then, and so often, and in every such case, all and every sum and sums of money so deficient, shall, upon demand to be made by the said governor and company, or their cashier, by writing under the common seal of the said governor and company, or signed by the said cashier, and to be left with or to the treasurer of the navy of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, for the time being, at or in the house or place used by such treasurer of the navy for the time being, for making payments for the use of the navy, or within thirty days after such demand, be answered, made good, and satisfied by the treasurer of the navy, for the time being, of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, out of any monies then in his hands or power, or first coming to his hands or power, for the service of the navy, or the victualling thereof; which monies are hereby charged to make good the said payments which shall be incurred and grown due to the said governor and company from time

A quarterly account to be taken in the Exchequer of monies arising to pay the fund.

Deficiency to be made good by the treasurer of the navy, &c.

time to time, with preference to any other payments to be made out of the same for any use or service whatsoever; and the said payments to the said governor and company, or their cashier for their use, shall be made without fee or charge, and without any further or other warrant to be sued for, had, or obtained; from his Majesty, his heirs or successors, or any other person or persons whatsoever; and the said treasurer of the navy for the time being, is hereby authorized and required (in default of specific money to answer the payment of any such deficiency or deficiencies, as aforesaid) forthwith to dispose so much of any tallies, orders, annuities, or other parliamentary securities, which then or afterwards shall or may be in his hands or power, for the service of the navy, or the victualling thereof, as will be sufficient to enable him to discharge the deficiency then due to the said governor and company; and within twenty days after such demand, as aforesaid, to pay the same in money without any deduction, discount, or abatement, to be borne or sustained by them; and such treasurer of the navy, from time to time, shall be allowed upon his account in the Exchequer all such payments so made by him; and the said treasurer of the navy shall also be allowed all such loss as shall happen by disposing such securities, upon the oath of the said treasurer (which the proper auditor hath hereby power to administer) verifying the truth thereof.

On one year's notice and repayment, duties to cease.

See 3 Geo. 1. c. 9. s. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 10, 19, 21, 22. 9 Ann. c. 21.

IX. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That at any time upon one year's notice, after the twenty-fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, upon repayment by parliament of the said sum of ten millions, and of all arrears of the said yearly sums of six hundred thousand pounds, and eight thousand pounds, or upon payment thereof by and out of the surplus monies of the said duties and revenues settled for payment of the said yearly sums; then, and not till then, all the impositions and duties by the said act of the ninth year of her late Majesty's reign, or by this present act appropriated, shall and may be disposed of by parliament; and the said yearly fund of six hundred thousand pounds, and all annuities out of the same, and the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds shall cease and determine; but that the said corporation by the name aforesaid, after such redemption of the said yearly sums, shall continue for ever, and have perpetual succession, and shall hold and enjoy all such forts, factories, acquisitions, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and all such benefits of trade, and other benefits, profits, powers, privileges, and advantages, whatsoever, whereunto they would be entitled by the said act of the tenth year of her late Majesty's reign, in case the redemption of their yearly fund were made pursuant to that act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

But corporation to continue for ever, &c.

Acts of 9 Ann. c. 12. & 10 Ann. c. 30. confirmed.

Bank to continue a corporation till the annuities are redeemed, &c.

X. And it is hereby enacted, That the said several former acts of the ninth and tenth years of her late Majesty's reign, and all the powers, privileges, advantages, exemptions, rules, directions, penalties, forfeitures, clauses, matters and things therein contained, (being now in force) touching or concerning the said corporation, or the said duties and revenues by the said acts, or either of them, settled, and the said yearly or other sums to be paid out of the same, or any of them (such alterations as are made therein by this act always excepted) shall continue and be put in execution in relation to the said corporation, and the said duties or revenues appropriated by this act, and the yearly or other sums hereby charged thereupon, as fully as if the said powers, privileges, advantages, exemptions, rules, directions, penalties, forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, (except as aforesaid) were repeated and re-enacted in the body of this act.

XXIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said governor and company of the bank of England, and their successors (notwithstanding the redemption of all or any their own funds, pursuant of the acts for establishing the same, or any of them) shall continue a corporation, with all the powers, privileges, and advantages thereunto belonging.

belonging, for the purposes in this act expressed, till all the annuities, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, to be purchased on this act, shall be redeemed by parliament, according to the proviso herein after contained in that behalf; and that the said governor and company, or any members thereof, shall not incur any disability for or by reason of their doing any matter or thing in pursuance of this act.

XXV. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That at any time, upon one year's notice, and repayment by parliament of the sum of one hundred sixty-nine thousand pounds, or so much thereof as shall be advanced upon this act, unto the respective contributors of the same, or to such person and persons as by, from or under them, shall be then entitled to the said annuities to be purchased on this act, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, in respect of the money so advanced, according to such interest as they respectively shall then have in the same annuities, and also upon full payment and satisfaction of all arrears of the same annuities, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, if any shall be then due, then, and not till then, the said annuities, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, to be purchased on this act, shall cease and determine, and from thenceforth so much of the general or aggregate fund in the said recited act mentioned or referred unto, and of the said particular duties chargeable with these annuities, as aforesaid, as the same annuities shall amount unto, shall be understood to be redeemed by parliament, but without prejudicing any other of the yearly sums or payments by this or any other act charged, or intended to be charged on the said general or aggregate fund, or upon the said particular duties which shall then remain to be satisfied out of the same; any thing herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

STAT. II. CAP. XXIII.

An act for making provision for the ministers of the fifty new churches, which are to be built in and about the cities of London and Westminster, and suburbs thereof; and for rebuilding and finishing the parish-church of Saint Mary Woolnoth, in the said city of London.

MOST gracious Sovereign, Whereas by an act of parliament, made in the ninth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty several duties upon coals, for building fifty new churches in and about the cities of London and Westminster, and suburbs thereof, and other purposes therein mentioned, it was enacted, That for all sorts of coals and culm, which from and after the fourteenth day of May, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and before the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, should be imported and brought into the port of the city of London, or the river of Thames, within the liberty of the said city upon the same river, there should be paid to her said Majesty, her heirs and successors, by way of imposition thereupon, over and besides all other impositions and duties, according to the rates therein and herein-
9 Ann. c. 221
 after mentioned; that is to say, From and after the said fourteenth day of May, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and before the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, for all such sorts of coals and culm as are usually sold by the chaldet, for every chaldet thereof, containing forty-six bushels Winchester measure, the sum of two shillings; and for such sorts of coals as are sold by the tun, for every tun thereof, containing twenty hundred

dred weight, the sum of two shillings; and from and after the eight and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and before the eight and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty-four, there should be paid for every such said chaldre of coals and culm, and tun of coals, the sum of three shillings, the same to be raised, levied, collected, and paid to her said late Majesty, her heirs and successors, as therein is mentioned: and it is thereby further enacted, That all and every such sum and sums of money, which should be raised, collected, and levied, by virtue of that act (the necessary charges of raising, managing, and accounting for the same, excepted) should, from time to time, be brought and paid into the receipt of Exchequer, and by force and virtue of that act were and should be appropriated, issued, applied, and disposed, for the building of fifty new churches of stone and other proper materials, with towers or steeples to each of them; whereof one was by the said act directed to be erected in the parish of East Greenwich, in the county of Kent; and for purchasing of sites of churches, and church-yards, and burying-places, in or near the cities of London and Westminster, or the suburbs thereof; and for making such chapels, as were then already built and capable thereof, parish churches, and for purchasing houses for the habitations of the ministers of the said churches; and for applying the sum of four thousand pounds per annum, out of the said duties and impositions, towards the repairing and finishing the collegiate church of Saint Peter, Westminster, and the chapels of the same; and also for applying the sum of six thousand pounds per annum, out of the said duties and impositions arising by that act, towards the finishing Greenwich Hospital, and the chapels thereunto belonging, and to and for none other use, intent or purpose whatsoever; and it was thereby further enacted, That it should and might be lawful to and for her said late Majesty, by letters patent under the great seal of Great Britain, to nominate, constitute, and appoint such persons as her said late Majesty should think fit to be commissioners for the purposes in that act mentioned; which said commissioners, or so many of them as should by the said commission be authorized, are by the said act directed to enquire and inform themselves, in what parishes the said new churches (except that for Greenwich) were most necessary to be built, and of proper places for the sites of the said respective new churches, and also a cemetery or church-yard for each of the said churches, for the burial of christian people, to be purchased; and also which of the said chapels were fit to be made parish-churches; and to ascertain the several houses, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and the bounds and limits which in their judgments or opinions might be fit to be made distinct parishes; and to enquire and inform themselves, by the best means they could, of the value of such houses, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and of the respective estates and interests therein, which they should think necessary to be purchased for the said sites and cemeteries, and for houses for the habitations of the respective ministers; and the said commissioners were by the said act required, on or before the four and twentieth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, to report or certify to her said late Majesty in writing, under their hands and seals, such matters and things as should appear to them upon their enquiries aforesaid, with their opinions thereupon, and present a duplicate of such report or certificate to each of the two houses of parliament, to the end such further directions might be given thereupon, as might be pursuant to her said late Majesty's pious intentions in the premises: and whereas by one other act of parliament, made in the tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for enlarging the time given to the commissioners appointed by her Majesty, pursuant to an act for granting to her Majesty several duties on coals, for building fifty new churches in and about the cities of London and Westminster, and suburbs thereof, and other purposes therein mentioned; and also for giving the said commissioners further powers for the better effecting the same; and for appointing money for rebuilding the parish-church of Saint Mary Woolnoth, in the city of London; reciting therein in part the said recited act, and that in pursuance thereof her said late Majesty, by letters patent under the great seal of Great Britain,

Britain, did nominate, constitute, and appoint several commissioners for the purposes in the said first recited act mentioned, with such powers and authorities as in the same act are expressed; and further reciting, that the said commissioners did apply themselves to the execution of the powers therein mentioned, but could not perfect within the time limited what was by the said act intended; it was therefore enacted by the said act of the tenth year of the reign of her said late Majesty, That notwithstanding the time limited by the said letters patent was expired, it should and might be lawful to and for the said commissioners, so appointed by the said letters patent, or any five or more of them, and they were thereby authorized and required to meet, from time to time, as often as there should be occasion, either with or without adjournments, and to enquire and inform themselves of all and every the matters and things therein committed to them, or any five or more of them, in or by the said first recited act, or by that present act intended to be by them performed, until they should have completed and finished the same; and it was thereby further provided and enacted, That it should and might be lawful to and for her said late Majesty, her heirs and successors, at any time before the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, by letters patent under the great seal of Great Britain, to nominate, constitute, and appoint such persons to be commissioners to execute all and every the powers in the said several acts mentioned, as her said late Majesty should think fit; and from such appointment so made, the powers granted by the said act of the tenth year of the reign of her said late Majesty, to the commissioners in the former letters patent, should determine: and whereas her said late Majesty did, in pursuance of the said last recited act, by letters patent under the great seal of Great Britain, bearing date on or about the seven and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, nominate, constitute, and appoint several persons to be commissioners for the purposes in the said recited acts mentioned; and that they, or any five or more of them, should do, perform, and execute all and every the powers, matters, and things, in and by the said recited acts, and either of them, appointed to be done and performed: we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the commons of Great Britain, in parliament assembled, being zealous to provide such supplies as may enable your Majesty to pursue your pious and gracious intentions, to provide for the maintenance of the ministers who are to attend the service of God in the new churches to be erected, pursuant to the said recited acts of parliament, in or about the cities of London and Westminster, and suburbs thereof, for the honour of the church of England, and the advancement of our holy religion, do most humbly present to your Majesty the several impositions, rates, and duties herein after mentioned, and do beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That for all sort of coals and culm, which, from and after the twenty-seventh day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty-four, and before the twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty-five, shall be imported and brought into the port of the city of London, or the river of Thames, within the liberty of the said city upon the same river, there shall be paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by way of imposition thereupon, over and besides all other impositions and duties, according to the rates hereafter mentioned; that is to say, For all such sorts of coals and culm as are usually sold by the chalders, for every chalders thereof, containing thirty-six bushels, Winchester measure, the sum of three shillings; and for such sort of coals as are sold by the tun, for every tun thereof, containing twenty hundred weight, the sum of three shillings: which said respective sums of three shillings for every chalders of coals and culm, and tun of coals, shall, from time to time, during the term before-mentioned, be levied, collected, and paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in the same manner, method, and form, and at such places, and by such means, ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures as are mentioned,

GEORGE II. I. Regis.

STAT. II. CAP. XLVI.

An act to prevent the mischiefs by manufacturing leaves or other things to resemble tobacco, and the abuses in making and mixing of snuff.

WHEREAS tobacco is one of the chief products of Virginia and Maryland, upon which their welfare and subsistence doth much depend; and by the importation thereof the navigation and trade of this kingdom, and the publick revenues of the same, are very much increased: and whereas it is by experience, that of late several evil persons have cut, cured, manufacand sold walnut-tree leaves, hop leaves, sycamore leaves, or other leaves, herbs, plants, or materials, resembling tobacco of the growth or product of the British plantations, to the prejudice of his Majesty's plantations in America, and of the navigation and trade of this kingdom, and of the publick revenues arising upon tobacco: for remedy whereof for the future, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same; That all and every person and persons whatsoever, who, at any time or times after the twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, shall cut, or cause or procure to be cut, any walnut-tree leaves, hop-leaves, sycamore leaves, or any other leaves, herbs, plants, or materials whatsoever, (not being tobacco leaves or plants) into the form or in imitation of any the usual sizes or cuts which tobacco has been or shall be cut into, for sale, or shall colour or cure, or cause or procure to be coloured or cured, any such leaves, herbs, plants, or materials, to make the same resemble tobacco, for sale, or shall sell, or cause or procure to be sold, or agree or offer to sell knowingly, any such leaves, herbs, plants, or materials, mixed or unmixed with tobacco; as if the same were tobacco, shall, for every pound weight of such leaves, herbs, plants, or materials, so cut, coloured, cured, sold or agreed for, or knowingly offered to sale, and for every pound weight of such mixture as aforesaid, forfeit and lose the sum of five shillings, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; that is to say, one moiety or half part thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, (he or they bearing the charge of prosecution out of the moiety so accruing to the crown, and not otherwise) and the other moiety or half part thereof to the use of such person or persons as will inform or sue for the same, to be recovered (with full costs of suit) by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the Exchequer of Scotland, wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be allowed.

After June 20, 1716, walnut-tree leaves, &c. shall not be cut with tobacco.

Penalty of 5s. for every pound offered to sale, to King and prosecutor.

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons whatsoever, who at any time or times after the said twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, shall export, or cause to be exported, or shall lade or put on board, or cause or procure to be laden or put on board, for exportation, any such leaves, herbs, plants, or materials, or such mixture as aforesaid, or endeavour to obtain a drawback for the same, as if the same were tobacco which had paid or secured his Majesty's duties thereupon, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and lose the sum of five shillings for every pound weight, and proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity, over and above all other penalties which may be inflicted for such offence by any law now in force, to be recovered and distributed in such manner as aforesaid.

Like penalty for exportation.

III. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the leaves, herbs, plants, and materials, so cut, coloured, cured, or manufactured, sold, contracted for, or knowingly offered to sale as aforesaid, and all such mixtures as aforesaid, and all engines, utensils, and tools, made use of in the cutting, colouring, curing, or manufacturing the same, or prepared for such use, shall and may be searched for and seized by any officer of the customs, or by any person or persons thereunto specially authorized, by writing under the hands and seals of the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or of the lord treasurer for the time being, or of the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland respectively, or any three or more of them for the time being.

Such leaves, &c. may be searched for and seized.

IV. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That no house or warehouse whatsoever shall be opened to search for or seize such leaves, herbs, plants, materials, or mixtures, or such engines, utensils, or tools, but at reasonable hours, and not without a special warrant first had and obtained from

Search to be made at reasonable hours, and not without warrant from two justices.

The leaves, &c. seized, to be brought to the custom-house, or secured by order of the justices.

The cause of seizure to be determined by quarter-sessions; and leaves, &c. to be burnt.

Punishment of servants, &c. employed in cutting or selling such leaves.

Persons sued may plead the general issue, and shall recover treble costs.

from two or more justices of the peace of the county or place where such search is to be made; and that the leaves, herbs, plants, and materials, and the said mixtures, engines, utensils, and tools, which shall, at any time or times, be found and seized within the limits of any port, or within six miles of the same, shall be brought to the next custom-house warehouse; and if found and seized at any greater distance from any port, shall be secured by order of any two justices of peace of the county or place where they shall be found, at the King's charge, till the cause of such seizure shall be determined by the justices of the peace in their quarter sessions; and that the cause of every such seizure shall be heard and determined at the next quarter-sessions, or (at farthest) at the second quarter-sessions after such seizure made; and all such leaves, herbs, plants, materials, mixtures, engines, utensils, and tools, (after condemnation or recovery by judgment of such sessions) shall be openly burnt or destroyed by order of the same at his Majesty's charge.

V. And it is hereby further enacted, That all servants and labourers which shall be employed in the cutting, colouring, curing, or manufacturing any such leaves, herbs, plants, or materials, to resemble tobacco, or in the making any such mixture as aforesaid, or in knowingly vending the same, and shall be convicted thereof by the oath of any one or more credible persons, before any two justices of the peace of the county or place where the offence shall be committed, shall or may, by order of such justices, be committed to the common gaol or house of correction, there to remain and be kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding six months, without bail or mainprize.

VI. And be it likewise enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be sued or prosecuted for what he or they shall do in pursuance or execution of this act, such person or persons may plead the general issue (not guilty) and after issue joined may give this act and the special matter in evidence; and if the plaintiff or prosecutor shall be nonsuit, or forbear further prosecution, or suffer discontinuance, or if a verdict pass against him, the defendant shall recover treble costs, for which he shall have the like remedy as in cases where costs by law are given to defendants.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall, at any time after the said twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, make, mix, or colour, or cause to be made, mixed, or coloured, any sort of snuff with any sort of oakers, umber or any other kind of colouring, except with water tinged with the colouring commonly called Venetian Red only, or shall mix, or cause to be mixed, with any sort of snuff, any fustick or yellow ebony, touchwood, or any other sort of wood, or any dirt, or distilled from tobacco; or shall knowingly sell, or expose to sale, any snuff so made, mixed, or coloured as aforesaid, every such person so offending shall, for every pound weight of snuff so made, mixed, or coloured, forfeit the said snuff, and likewise the sum of three pounds, and proportionably for any greater or lesser quantity, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in his Majesty's court of Exchequer in Scotland, wherein no estate, privilege, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance; one moiety of which forfeitures shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the use of such person or persons who shall seize, inform, or sue for the same.

An act for continuing the duties on malt, mum, cyder, and perry, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and seventeen; and to authorize allowances to be made to certain receivers; and to obviate a doubt concerning goods imported from the islands of Jerley, Guernsey, Sark, and Alderney; and to ascertain the duties upon sheep skins and lamb skins; and to prevent frauds in the duties upon starch; and for making forth duplicates of Exchequer bills, lottery tickets, and orders, lost, burnt, or destroyed, and for enlarging the time for adjusting claims in several lotteries; and for preventing frauds in the duties on low wines and spirits carried coastwise.

SECT. V. AND whereas the inhabitants of the islands of Jerley, Guernsey, Sark, and Alderney, have always been permitted and allowed to import into England, any goods, wares, and merchandizes, of the growth, produce, or manufacture of those respective isles, upon certificates from the respective governors, lieutenant or deputy governors, or commanders in chief, for the time being, and oaths before the magistrates of the said islands of Jerley and Guernsey respectively, that the same were of the growth, produce, or manufacture of the said islands, or either of them, without paying any customs, subsidies, or duties for or in respect thereof: and whereas some doubt hath of late arisen, whether, according to some late laws now in force, the same may be still continued: now for removing the said doubt, and encouraging the said inhabitants to continue that steady and firm loyalty and fidelity to the crown of Great Britain, which they have formerly and constantly shewn to the crown of England, and for their better support; be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said inhabitants shall and may (with and under such certificates and oaths as aforesaid) import into any lawful port of Great Britain, any goods, wares, and merchandizes, of the growth, produce, and manufacture of the said islands, or either of them, without paying any customs, subsidies, or duties, for or in respect thereof, (except such excise or other duty as is now, or shall hereafter, for the time being, be due and payable for the like goods of the growth, produce, and manufacture of Great Britain); any law or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Goods of the produce of Jerley, &c. to be imported duty free. By 5 Geo. I. c. 18. s. 11. salt imported from these islands shall pay as other foreign salt.

VII. Provided always, and it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this act contained shall exempt, or be construed to exempt, any goods or commodities of the growth, product, or manufacture of any foreign nation or country, which may lawfully be imported into the said islands, or such foreign goods or commodities as shall may be in part or fully manufactured in the said islands by the people thereof, from payment of such customs, duties, or other impositions, on the importation of the same, from any of the said islands into Great Britain, where are or shall be due and payable for goods and commodities of the like kind imported into Great Britain, from such foreign nation or country of which the said goods are of the growth, product, or manufacture; any law, custom, or usage, to the contrary notwithstanding.

But foreign goods, &c. to pay duty.

XIV. And whereas starch made beyond the seas, and imported into this kingdom, is by law subject to the payment of custom and other duties, and starch made in this kingdom is made liable to the payment of several duties by way of excise, to evade the payment whereof several considerable quantities of starch ground into powder have of late been fraudulently imported from parts beyond the seas, under the denomination of hair-powder, to the great prejudice of the revenue, and the ruin of the starch-makers of this kingdom; and such powder being not liable to pay on the importation thereof much above one twentieth part of the custom and duties which starch is liable unto, for preventing whereof for the future, be it declared by the authority aforesaid, That all hair-powder made of starch, or other powder that will serve for the same uses as starch, shall, on the importation thereof, after the twenty seventh day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, be subject and liable to the same or the like several and respective duties, as foreign starch on the importation thereof is liable unto; and such powder so to be imported shall be entitled to the like drawback upon exportation, and be collected or levied with such allowances, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as is directed and prescribed by the laws now in force relating to the collection of his Majesty's customs and other duties upon starch.

Clause for preventing frauds in the duties on low wines and spirits carried coastwise.

XVII. And whereas several persons, who privately brew, make, and distil, great quantities of low wines and spirits, of which no entries are made with the proper officers of excise of the respective divisions and places where the same are so brewed, made, or distilled, nor any duties paid for the same, do privately carry the same on board ships or other vessels in several parts of this kingdom, and there sell the same whereby his Majesty is very much defrauded in his duties on the said commodities, and the fair dealers in the said commodities very much prejudiced in their trade, for remedy whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the fifth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, all low wines or spirits, which shall be brought by sea coastwise from any port or place in this kingdom to any other port or place in this kingdom, without a certificate from the proper officer of excise of the respective divisions and places where the same were brewed, made, or distilled, that the duty of such low wines or spirits so brewed, made, or distilled, has been paid (which certificate shall be given on demand, without fee or reward) shall be forfeited and lost, and shall and may be seized by any of the officers of the customs or excise of the port or place where the same shall be so brought in; the said forfeiture to be sued for, recovered, determined, and mitigated, by the same ways, means, and methods, as any penalty or forfeiture may be sued for, recovered, determined, and mitigated by any of the laws of excise, and to be distributed, one moiety to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the person or persons that shall sue or inform for the same.

CAP. VII.

An act for redeeming the yearly fund of the South-Sea company (being after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum) and settling on the said company a yearly fund after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, redeemable by parliament, and to raise for an annuity or annuities, at five pounds per centum per annum, any sum not exceeding two millions, to be employed in lessening the national debts and incumbrances, and for making the said new yearly fund and annuities to be hereafter redeemable in the time and manner thereby prescribed.

MOST gracious Sovereign, Whereas the capital or joint stock of the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, trading to the South-seas, and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, being adjusted and settled pursuant to several acts of parliament in that behalf, doth amount to the sum of ten millions; and in respect thereof a yearly fund of six hundred thousand pounds hath been, and is payable to the said governor and company, after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, besides a yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, for or towards the charges of the said governor and company for management, subject nevertheless to a proviso contained in one act of parliament of the first year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for enlarging the capital stock and yearly fund of the South-Sea company, and for supplying thereby the hundred twenty two thousand thirty two pounds four shillings and eight pence to publick uses; and for raising one hundred sixty nine thousand pounds for the like uses, by sale of annuities upon divers encouragements therein mentioned; and for appropriating several supplies granted to your Majesty, whereby the said yearly sums of six hundred thousand pounds, and the thousand pounds were redeemable upon one year's notice, which was to be done after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and upon payment as well of the said sum of ten millions, as of all arrears of the said yearly sums, in such manner and form as in the said proviso of redemption are prescribed: and whereas the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain are willing and contented, in regard the common rate of interest for money is very much lessened under your Majesty's most auspicious government, to accept, from and after the feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, one annuity or yearly fund of six hundred thousand pounds, being after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum for the said ten millions, together with the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds to be continued to them for management, so as they may be satisfied the said yearly sums of six hundred thousand pounds and eight thousand pounds, until and for the quarter, to end at the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, and so as the future payments of the said yearly sums of five hundred thousand pounds, and eight thousand pounds, may be secured to them from the said feast day, until the redemption thereof, according to the tenor and true meaning of this present act: now we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being desirous to ease the present burden of debts and incumbrances, and in due time the heavy taxes lying upon this kingdom, so far as is consistent with honour, justice, and equity, do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by your King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled,

XVIII. And it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors for ever, shall remain, continue, and be one body corporate and politick, by the name above mentioned, and shall have, hold, receive, and enjoy the said yearly sum of six hundred thousand pounds, until and to the quarter to end at the feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, as aforesaid, and the said yearly sum of five hundred thousand pounds, and eight thousand pounds, and said annuity or annuities after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, until the same respectively shall be redeemed according to this act; and shall have, hold, and enjoy all their forts, factories, acquisitions, lands, tenements, hereditaments, sole benefit and trade in and to the South Seas, and elsewhere, with a perpetual succession, and all abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, franchises, exemptions, privileges, profits, and advantages whatsoever, whereunto the said governor and company are, or, before the making of this act, were entitled by any act or acts of parliament, grant or charter now in force; all which are by this act ratified and confirmed to them and their successors, (the said former fund of six hundred thousand pounds per annum, which by this act is to determine at the feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, as aforesaid, only excepted) freed and discharged of and from all former provisos, powers, acts, matters, and things whatsoever, for redeeming, determining, or making void the same, or any of them, subject nevertheless to the several and respective provisos and powers of redemption hereafter in this act contained.

XXIII. And it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, exemptions, franchises, privileges, profits, and advantages whatsoever, and all pains of death, and other penalties, forfeitures and disabilities, and all rules, directions, methods, articles, matters, and things whatsoever, which by any former act or acts of parliament, or any clause or clauses therein, or any charter or charters under the great seal of Great Britain, are enacted, granted, or established, to, for, touching, or concerning the said corporation of the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, trading to the South Seas and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, or the members of the same, (being in force at or until the time of making this act, and not hereby determined or altered) shall for ever continue and be practised, and be put in execution for securing and paying the yearly fund, annuities, and payments by this act directed, subject to the provisos for redemption thereof in this act contained, and also (as well after such redemption as before) for securing the possessions, trade, and business of the said corporation, and for their advantage in all respects, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if the said abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, exemptions, franchises, privileges, profits, and advantages, and the said pains of death, and other penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and the said benefit of trade, rules, directions, methods, articles, matters, and things, were severally repeated, and at large re-enacted in the body of this present act.

All things by any former acts or charters granted, to continue for ever.

XXXVIII. And whereas by the act of tonnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, and the book of rates thereto annexed, and by other acts of parliament since made, and now in force, several duties are payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and upon linseed imported; and it having been found by experience, that these duties are a discouragement to the importation thereof, and that should they be discontinued and taken off, the same would tend to the service of the woollen and other manufactures, and to the improvement of tillage in this kingdom: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons, to import linseed into this kingdom, without paying to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, any custom, subsidy, or other duties for the same; any thing in the act of tonnage and poundage, or any other act or acts of parliament, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

An act for redeeming several funds of the governor and company of the bank of England, pursuant to former provisos of redemption; and for securing to them several new funds and allowances redeemable by parliament; and for obliging them to advance further sums not exceeding two millions five hundred thousand pounds, at five pounds per centum, as shall be found necessary to be employed in lessening the national debts and incumbrances; and for continuing certain provisions formerly made for the expences of his Majesty's civil government; and for payment of annuities formerly purchased at the rate of five pounds per centum; and for other purposes in this act mentioned.

MOST gracious Sovereign, Whereas by an act of parliament made and passed in the seventh year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, of blessed memory, intituled, An act for enlarging the capital stock of the bank of England, and for raising a further supply to her Majesty for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and nine, the governor and company of the bank of England were obliged, in the manner therein mentioned, to deliver up to be cancelled certain Exchequer-bills which had been made forth by a former act of parliament in that behalf, which bills, with interest thereupon, were computed to amount to seventeen hundred seventy five thousand twenty seven pounds seventeen shillings ten pence halfpenny; and to the end the said governor and company of the bank of England, and their successors, might have a competent recompence and consideration for so doing, and for all their demands relating thereto, it was by the said act of the seventh year of her late Majesty's reign enacted, That, from and after the said feast of Saint Michael the Archangel in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, the said governor and company of the bank of England, and their successors for ever, shall have, receive and enjoy one annuity or yearly sum of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds thirteen shillings and four pence out of such duties on houses as are therein mentioned: but it was thereby provided and enacted, That at any time, upon one year's notice to the said governor governor and company of the bank of England, or their successors, and upon full payment to them of the said sum of one million seven hundred seventy five thousand and twenty seven pounds seventeen shillings and ten pence halfpenny, and of all arrears of the said annuity of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds thirteen shillings and five pence per annum (if any shall be then due); then, and not till then, the said annuity of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds thirteen shillings and five pence per annum should cease and determine, and then also the said duties on houses should be understood to be redeemed by parliament, and should not be issued, paid or applied to any use or purpose whatsoever, but by authority of parliament. And whereas in pursuance of the said act of the seventh year of her said late Majesty's reign, several other bills, commonly called Exchequer bills, were made forth, amounting to two millions five hundred thousand pounds principal money; and in pursuance of another act of the same year, and of certain clauses contained in an act of the eighth year of her reign, there were issued several such bills, amounting to four hundred thousand pounds more in principal money; and pursuant to an act made in the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, there were issued such bills, amounting to twelve hundred thousand pounds more in principal money: and it was provided by the said acts respectively, That all the bills thereby made forth should bear an interest after the rate of two pence per centum per diem (saving such interest as therein is mentioned;) and that the said governor and company of the bank of England should have an allowance after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum for circulating the said bills, abating the said allowance proportionally as the bills should be cancelled: and by an act made in the ninth year of her said late Majesty's reign, for better enabling the said governor and company of the bank of England to exchange for ready money upon demand any of the bills made forth upon the said several acts of the seventh and eighth years of her Majesty's reign, it was enacted, That the full sum of forty five thousand pounds per annum should be paid to and for the use of the said governor and company of the bank of England, by the ways and means therein specified, for and during such time only, as in that act was limited: and by the said act made in the twelfth year of her Majesty's reign, for better enabling the said governor and company of the bank of England to circulate all Exchequer-bills made forth, and to be made forth on that and the said former acts, by exchanging the same from time to time, for ready money, upon demand, it was enacted, That the entire yearly sum of eight thousand pounds (over and above the said yearly sum of forty five thousand pounds) should be paid to and for the use of the said governor and company of the bank of England by quarterly payments, until such time as no more than nineteen hundred thousand pounds of all the bills issued and to be issued in pursuance of that and the said former acts (taken all together) should be standing out uncanceled in the whole: and for making good as well the said interest of two pence per centum per diem, and the said allowance after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, as also the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, until the subsidies, duties, surplus monies and arrears composing the general fund and security by the said former acts, or some of them, intended to be established, or so many of them as should be sufficient for those purposes, should have taken effect, it was by the said several acts of the seventh, eighth, and twelfth years of her late Majesty's reign, or some of them, enacted, That the lord treasurer, or three or more of the commissioners of the treasury for the time being, should make out or cause to be made out other Exchequer-bills for so much as should be computed to be due at the respective quarter-days therein mentioned (over and above what should have been applied of the subsidies, duties and other sums of money aforesaid) for such interest for such allowance of three pounds per centum per annum, and for the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds respectively; and that such quarterly bills should bear the like interest of two pence per centum per diem; and that the said governor and company of the bank of England should have the like allowance of three pounds per centum per annum for circulation thereof. whereas in an act of parliament, made and passed in the first year of your Majesty's reign, reciting, That the Exchequer-bills standing out and remaining unsatisfied and undischarged upon the eleventh day of July, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, did amount to the sum of four millions five hundred sixty one thousand twenty and five pounds, or thereabouts; it was thereby enacted and declared, That several subsidies, duties, revenues, additional revenues, incomes, surplus monies, arrears, overplus monies and other monies therein particularly described or mentioned, were and should be one general and aggregate fund and security for satisfying and paying all monies which then were and from time to time should be incurred and grown due or payable for interest, at the rate of two pence per centum per diem, and for the said allowance of three pounds per centum per annum for all the Exchequer-bills above-mentioned, or such of them as should from time to time be uncanceled or undischarged; and all the monies which were or should be grown due from time to time upon the said sums of forty five thousand pounds per annum and eight thousand pounds per annum, for so long time as those yearly sums were to continue or be payable; and for supplying to your Majesty, during your life, the yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds, for the service of your Majesty's household and family, and other your necessary expences and occasions; and also for supplying the further yearly sum of fifty four thousand six hundred pounds for ever, to raise money for publick services, and for making good such deficiencies as are therein expressed; and likewise for and towards furnishing the yearly sum of two hundred and seventy thousand nine hundred ninety nine pounds and seven shillings, for paying off and cancelling the said bills; all which was to be done in such order, manner and form, and with such preferences, as in the same act are prescribed: and it was thereby provided and enacted, That from and after the complete paying off and discharging all the principal and interest which should be due upon all the said Exchequer-bills issued as aforesaid, and cancelling the same, and full payment made of all arrearages (if any should be then due) as well for or upon the said allowance, after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, as for or upon the said yearly sums of forty five thousand pounds, eight thousand pounds, one hundred and twenty thousand pounds, and fifty four thousand six hundred pounds, and every of them, as also of such deficiency or deficiencies as should then appear to be unsatisfied (if any such be) for or upon the original fund of one hundred thousand pounds per annum, payable to the said government and company of the bank of England, and for and upon their aforesaid annuity of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds thirteen shillings and five pence per annum; then, and not till then, the said general or aggregate fund, and the said subsidies, duties and revenues contained therein, and every of them, should be understood to be redeemed by parliament, and should not be issued, paid or applied to any use, intent or purpose whatsoever without authority of parliament, other than and except such duties (part of the said aggregate fund) therein particularly described, which are thereby enacted to be continued for answering and paying all the payments which should after such redemption grow due for and upon the said yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds quarterly, for the service of your Majesty's household and family, and other your necessary occasions, during your Majesty's life, and for answering and paying all the payments which should after such redemption grow due for or upon the said yearly sum of fifty four thousand six hundred pounds, for payment of annuities for ever, unless the same be redeemed by parliament, as by the said several acts, relation being thereunto respectively had, may more fully appear. And whereas the bills made forth upon the said several acts of the second, eighth, and twelfth years of her late Majesty's reign, standing out and remaining uncanceled and undischarged upon the two and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, do still, by computation, amount to the sum of four millions five hundred sixty one thousand twenty and five pounds principal money; and the present charge to the publick of circulating the same, as well for the said interest of two pence per centum per diem, as the said allowance ances of three pounds per centum per annum, forty five thousand pounds per annum, and eight thousand pounds per annum, doth, by computation, amount to three hundred twenty eight thousand three hundred sixty one pounds seventeen shillings and ten pence per annum, or thereabouts, except so much thereof as may be abated for bills, from time to time, in the Exchequer, or in the hands of receivers or collectors of any taxes, aids or revenues payable to your Majesty. And whereas the said governor and company of the bank of England, in regard the common rate of interest for money is very much lessened under your Majesty's most auspicious government, and their several funds before-mentioned are redeemable at such times, and in such manner, as aforesaid, are willing and contented to accept one annuity of eighty eight thousand seven hundred fifty one pounds seven shillings and ten pence halfpenny, being after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, on the said principal sum of one million seven hundred seventy five thousand twenty seven pounds seventeen shillings and ten pence halfpenny, in lieu of their said present annuity or sum of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds thirteen shillings and five pence per annum, so as they may be satisfied the said yearly sum of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds thirteen shillings and five pence, until and for the quarter to end at the feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighteen inclusively, and so as the future payments of the said sum of eighty eight thousand seven hundred fifty one pounds seven shillings and ten pence halfpenny per annum may be secured to them from the said feast-day, until the redemption thereof; and so as the said yearly sum of eighty eight thousand seven hundred and fifty one pounds seven shillings and ten pence halfpenny be made redeemable upon one year's notice to be given at the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, or at any quarterly feast day after the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, and upon full payment to them of the said sum of one million seven hundred seventy five thousand twenty seven pounds seventeen shillings and ten pence halfpenny, and of all arrears of the said yearly sum of eighty eight thousand seven hundred fifty one pounds seven shillings and ten pence halfpenny, if any shall be due at the time of such payment; and the said governor and company of the bank of England, are also willing and contented to discharge and deliver up to be cancelled, as many of the Exchequer-bills formerly made forth, as aforesaid, as amount to two millions in principal money, and to accept an annuity or sum of one hundred thousand pounds per annum, being after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, for the same two millions, to commence from the feast of the birth of our Lord Christ in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, subject to redemption by parliament, upon one year's notice to be given at the said feast of the birth of our Lord Christ one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, or at any quarterly feast-day after the said feast of the birth of our Lord Christ one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, and repayment of the said two millions, and arrears of the annuity last mentioned; and to continue the circulating and exchanging for money at demand, the remainder (amounting by computation to two millions five hundred sixty one thousand twenty and five pounds in principal money) of the said Exchequer-bills now standing out and uncanceled, at the present allowance of three pounds per centum per annum; and are also contented that the interest now payable on such remainder of the said bills be reduced to one penny per centum per diem, from and after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen; and that such interest running on any the same bills, during the time they shall lie in the Exchequer, or in the hands of any receivers or collectors of his Majesty's taxes, aids or revenues, be saved to the publick; so as the said Exchequer-bills so to be circulated and exchanged made redeemable by parliament, upon a year's notice to be given at the feast of Saint Michael the archangel in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, or at any quarterly feast-day after the feast of Saint Michael the archangel in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventeen;

and upon full payment of the principal and interest payable upon the said remaining bills, and of all arrears of the said allowance of three pounds per centum per annum which shall be due to them at the time of such redemption; and so as all the present allowances to the said governor and company of the bank of England, payable to them for circulating and exchanging for ready money the said bills, amounting to four millions five hundred sixty one thousand seven hundred pounds, or thereabouts, now standing out or uncanceled, as aforesaid, be continued to them until and for the quarter to end at the feast of the birth of our Lord Christ one thousand seven hundred and seventeen; and the said governor and company are also willing to advance to your Majesty, to be employed for or towards discharging or lessening the national debts and incumbrances, any further sum or sums of money, not exceeding in the whole two millions five hundred thousand pounds, as the commissioners of the treasury, or high treasurer for the time being, shall call for, at any time or times before the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, at an interest of five pounds per centum per annum, redeemable by parliament: now we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being desirous to ease the present burthen of national debts and incumbrances, and in due time the heavy taxes lying upon this kingdom, so far as it is consistent with honour, justice and equity, do most humbly beseech your Majesty, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That the said governor and company of the bank of England, or their successors, shall be fully satisfied, contented and paid all such monies as are due and unpaid, or at any time or times, on or before the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and eighteen inclusively, shall grow due and remain unpaid, or be in arrear to them for or upon the said annuity or sum of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds thirteen shillings and five pence per annum, out of the money arisen or to arise at the receipt of Exchequer, of or for the said particular duties on houses, and of or for the said duties and revenues called the aggregate fund, or any of them; and that from and after the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, all payments of or upon the said annuity or sum of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds thirteen shillings and five pence per annum, which from thenceforth should and might grow due and payable, shall cease and determine.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said governor and company of the bank of England, and their successors, (subject nevertheless to the proviso and power of redemption hereafter in this act contained in this behalf, and none other) shall have, receive and enjoy, and be entitled, by virtue of this act, to have, receive and enjoy, the said annuity or yearly sum of eighty-eight thousand seven hundred fifty-one pounds seven shillings and ten pence half-penny, in respect of the said principal sum of one million seven hundred seventy-five thousand twenty-seven pounds seventeen shillings and ten pence half-penny, which annual or yearly sum of eighty-eight thousand seven hundred and fifty-one pounds seven shillings and ten pence half-penny shall be and is hereby charged upon and shall be paid and payable, from time to time, out of all the monies arisen or to arise at the said receipt of the Exchequer, of or for the said particular duties on houses, and of or for the said duties and revenues called the aggregate fund, and every or any of them; and shall be paid and payable to the said governor and company of the bank of England, and their successors for ever, from the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, at the four usual feasts or days of payment in the year before-mentioned, by even and equal portions; all which payments shall also be made in such manner and form, and with such preference, as are herein after prescribed in that behalf.

III. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That at any time upon one year's notice to be given at the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, or at any quarterly feast-day after the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, and not before; and upon repayment by parliament to the said governor and company of the bank of England, or their successors, of the said sum of one million seven hundred seventy-five thousand twenty-seven pounds seventeen shillings and ten pence half-penny, without deduction, discount, or abatement whatsoever to be made out of the same, or any part thereof, and of all arrears of the said annuity of eighty-eight thousand seven hundred fifty-one pounds seven shillings and ten pence half-penny per annum, if any such shall be then due; then, and not till then, the said annuity of eighty-eight thousand seven hundred fifty-one pounds seven shillings and ten pence half-penny per annum shall from thenceforth cease and determine; any former act or acts of parliament, or any provisos, matters or things therein contained, or other matter or thing whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

Redeemable
on one year's notice after 24
June, 1718,

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said feast of the birth of our Lord Christ one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, the said governor and company of the bank of England, and their successors for ever, (subject nevertheless to the proviso and power of redemption hereafter in this act contained in this behalf, and none other) shall have, receive and enjoy, and be intitled by virtue of this act to have, receive and enjoy, one annuity or yearly sum of one hundred thousand pounds, being after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, computed upon the said principal sum of two millions; which yearly sum of one hundred thousand pounds shall be, and is hereby charged upon, and shall be paid and payable, from time to time, out of all the monies arising or to arise at the said receipt of Exchequer, as well of or for the said several duties, revenues and incomes called the aggregate fund, as aforesaid, as of or for the said particular duties on houses, and every or any of them; and shall be paid and payable to the said governor and company of the bank of England, and their successors for ever, at the four most usual feasts or days of payment in the year before-mentioned, by even and equal portions, without any deduction, defalcation or abatement whatsoever; and that all the payments thereof shall be made in such manner and form, and with such preference as are hereafter in this act prescribed in that behalf.

Nevertheless for the purposes in the act contained, and entered in books in the Exchequer.

Till all the bills be paid off, no other to be issued.

Bank not obliged to pay for interest to a lesser sum than a penny.

XVII. And for the better securing all the several and respective payments prescribed or intended to be made by or in pursuance of this act, it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That as well the said particular duties on houses, and the said duties, revenues and incomes composing the said aggregate fund (which latter are particularly described or referred unto in the said act of the first year of his Majesty's reign) and all other duties which were settled for payment of the said former yearly sums of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds thirteen shillings and five pence, and of the said interest and allowances relating to the said former Exchequer-bills, and every of them, are and shall be continued, and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for ever; and shall be raised, levied, collected and brought into the Exchequer in England, by and according to such rules, methods and directions, and with such drawbacks, repayments and allowances, and under such penalties, forfeitures and disabilities, as are prescribed in and by the respective act and acts of parliament now in force, or any articles, clauses, matters or things therein contained, or thereby referred unto, for raising, levying or bringing in of the same, as fully and effectually as if the same acts, articles, clauses, matters and things, and every of them, were repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act; nevertheless all the monies arising thereby into the said receipt, from and after the feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, and all the monies then remaining in the said receipt, of the same rates, duties, revenues or incomes, shall be disposable to and for the several and respective uses and purposes by this act appointed, and subject to the several provisos of redemption herein contained; any former law, statute, provision, restriction, clauses of appropriation, or other clauses, matter or thing whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding; and that all the monies of the said particular rates and duties on houses, and of the said aggregate fund, or other duties by this act required to be brought into the Exchequer as aforesaid, shall be duly and fairly entered in one or more book or books to be kept in the offices of the auditor of the receipt and clerk of the pells, for that purpose; to which all persons concerned, at all seasonable times, shall have free access without fee or charge.

XLII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That until all the Exchequer-bills to be circulated upon this act shall be paid off, discharged and cancelled, no more or other Exchequer-bills or bills of the like nature, though by another name, shall or may be made out and issued at the receipt of the Exchequer, either with or without the authority of parliament, unless by consent of the said governor and company of the bank of England, or their successors.

XLVI. Provided, and it is hereby enacted, That as often as any interest upon the said Exchequer bills, hereby continued to be circulated, shall be demanded to be paid by the said governor and company of the bank of England, they shall not be obliged to pay for such interest to any lesser sum than one penny upon such bill, in case a single bill be produced for payment, or for the total of the interest of such bills where two or more shall be offered at one time by the same person; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XLVII. Provided

XLVII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the redemption of all the said several annuities or sums of eighty eight thousand seven hundred fifty one pounds seven shillings and ten pence halfpenny; one hundred thousand pounds; and seventy six thousand eight hundred and thirty pounds and fifteen shillings per annum; and the said other annuity or annuities after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, by payments to be made according to the several and respective provisos or conditions of redemption in this act contained of or concerning the same; and full payment of all arrearages (if any shall then be due) for and upon the said yearly sums of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds; and fifty four thousand six hundred pounds per annum; and for the deficiency (if any shall then be) of the said original fund of the said governor and company of one hundred thousand pounds per annum, and every of them, then, and not till then, the said general or aggregate fund by this act continued and established, and the said subsidies, duties, revenues and incomes, contained therein, and every of them, and also the said particular duties on houses, shall be understood to be redeemed by parliament, and shall not be issued, paid, or applied to any use, intent, or purpose whatsoever, without authority of parliament; other than and except the duties called the two thirds of a subsidy of tonnage and poundage upon goods and merchandizes imported, and other than and except the duties upon coffee, cocoa-nuts, chocolate, cocoa-paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, pictures, and muslins, and other than and except the increased duties upon coffee, cocoa-nuts, chocolate, cocoa-paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, and other than and except the further rates and duties upon all white calicoes, porcelain called china-ware, and drugs; all which said subsidies and duties so excepted are part of the said aggregate fund, and are intended to be continued, and they are hereby enacted to be continued, for answering and paying out of the same, all the payments which shall after such redemption grow due for and upon the said yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds, as aforesaid, for the service of his Majesty's household and family, and other his necessary occasions, during his Majesty's life; and also for answering and paying out of the same excepted subsidies and other duties, all the payments which shall after such redemption grow due for or upon the said yearly sum of fifty four thousand six hundred pounds; or payment of annuities, as aforesaid; and also for answering and paying out of the same excepted subsidies and other duties; all the payments which shall after such redemption grow due for or upon the said yearly sum of four thousand pounds to be issued to sheriffs, as aforesaid; which annuities or yearly sums are to continue for ever, except such of them as shall be deemed by parliament according to other acts in that behalf; and the said excepted subsidies and duties so to be continued for answering the payments of the said yearly sums of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds; and fifty four thousand six hundred pounds, and four thousand pounds per annum, or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to pay the same, are and shall be hereby appropriated, issued and applied thereunto; during the continuance of the same yearly sums respectively; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

After redemption of all the annuities, &c.
the aggregate fund and duties on houses shall be understood to be redeemed by parliament.

XLVIII. Provided nevertheless, That nothing in this act contained, for concerning the redemption of any of the said annuities or yearly sums thereby payable to the said governor and company of the bank of England, shall in any ways prevent or hinder the redemption of any other of the same annuities or yearly sums to them payable by this act, but that every one of the said annuities or yearly sums may separately be redeemed at the time and in the manner by this act prescribed, according to the respective proviso therein contained for redemption of the same; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Not to obstruct the making good the deficiencies which may happen in the yearly fund of £16,573 l. 13 s. 1 Geo. 1. stat. 1. c. 2.

LIV. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this act contained shall hinder or obstruct, or be construed to hinder or obstruct, the making good any deficiency or deficiencies, which at any time or times shall happen of or in the yearly fund of one hundred and sixteen thousand five hundred seventy-three pounds twelve shillings, mentioned in an act of parliament of the first year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for rectifying mistakes in the names of the commissioners for the land-tax for the year one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; and for raising so much as is wanting to make up the sum of fourteen hundred thousand pounds, intended to be raised by a lottery for the publick service in the said year, but that every such deficiency shall and may be made good and satisfied out of any the publick unappropriated monies, as if this act had never been made; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Vote of the house of commons, signified by their speaker, a sufficient notice:

LV. And it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any vote or resolution of the house of commons, signified by the speaker of the said house in writing, and delivered at the publick office of the said governor and company, or their successors, shall be deemed and adjudged to be a sufficient notice within the words and meaning of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

An act for redeeming the duties and revenues which were settled to pay off principal and interest on the orders made forth on four lottery acts, passed in the ninth and tenth years of her late Majesty's reign; and for redeeming certain annuities payable on orders out of the hereditary excise, according to a former act in that behalf; and for establishing a general yearly fund, not only for the future payment of annuities at several rates to be payable and transferrable at the bank of England, and redeemable by parliament, but also to raise monies for such proprietors of the said orders, as shall choose to be paid their principal and arrears of interest in ready money; and for making good such other deficiencies and payments as in this act are mentioned; and for taking off the duties on linseed imported, and British linen exported.

6 Ann. c. 6. Farther provisions for the funds settled by this act are made by 5 Geo. 1. c. 3. & 6 Geo. 1. c. 4, and 10.

MOST gracious Sovereign, Whereas by an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, (of blessed memory) several customs, subsidies, or duties, were revived, continued, and made payable, for and upon certain goods and merchandises which should be exported from Great Britain from and after the eighth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, during the term of thirty-two years from thence next ensuing, (except as therein is excepted) and a duty of twopence per hundred weight was thereby imposed upon the exportation of leather, sheep skins, and calve skins, tanned, tawed, or dressed, which were thereby permitted to be bought and exported during the same term; and it was thereby enacted, That several duties therein mentioned (and none other) should be payable for all coals, which during the said term should be exported, or shipped to be exported, beyond the seas; and that during the said term there should be raised and paid for and upon all coals, culm, and cynders (except as therein is excepted) which should be shipped or waterborn, and carried from any port or place in Great Britain, to any other port or place within the same; and for all coals (if any be) which should be imported into Great Britain from any foreign parts, the respective duties therein mentioned; and that there should be raised and paid for and upon all candles, which during the term of thirty two years, to be reckoned reckoned from the twenty-fifth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eleven, should be imported or brought into Great Britain, or made within the same, the further duties therein mentioned: and it was thereby also enacted and declared, That the several duties imposed by the said act, and all the monies, which during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the said eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten, should arise of or for an hereditary duty of one per centum chargeable upon goods exported in certain ships to the Mediterranean sea, and of or for another hereditary duty formerly imposed on white woollen cloths, should be liable, and they are thereby appropriated for or towards making good a certain fund of one hundred thirty-five thousand pounds per annum, thereby settled, or intended to be settled, during the term of thirty-two years (which commenced from the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eleven) for answering and paying all and every the principal sums therein after mentioned, amounting in the whole to nine hundred twenty-eight thousand five hundred and seventy pounds, together with interest for the same, after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum; to such persons as should contribute or advance the sum of fifteen hundred thousand pounds; for carrying on the then war, or to those claiming from or under them, in the manner hereby prescribed: and it was thereby enacted, That any surplus or remainder of the monies arising by the rates and duties granted or appropriated by that act yearly over and above the said yearly sum of one hundred thirty-five thousand pounds) should be applied for or towards the discharging the said principal monies payable by virtue of that act. And whereas by an act made and passed in the said ninth year of her late Majesty's reign, for establishing a general post-office, it was enacted, That from and after the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, during the term of thirty-two years from thence next ensuing, the weekly sum of seven hundred pounds, out of the duties and revenues arising by that act, should be brought and paid into the receipt of the Exchequer, as is therein mentioned: and by another act of the said ninth year of her Majesty's reign, several duties were laid upon such hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, vellum and parchment as are therein specified, for the term of thirty-two years, reckoned from the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven: and by another act of the same year a power was given for licensing such persons as, after the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, any time or times within the term of thirty-two years, should drive or keep any hackney-coach or coach-horses in London, Westminster, or the suburbs of the same, or within the parishes comprized within the weekly bills of mortality, not exceeding the number therein limited, reserving upon every such licence the weekly sum of five shillings to be paid monthly after its commencement, during the continuance thereof respectively; and a power was thereby given for licensing all such hackney-chairs, which after the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, at any time or times within the term of thirty-two years from thence next ensuing, should be kept and used for hire in London and Westminster, and the suburbs thereof, and within all the parishes and places comprized within the weekly bills of mortality, reserving upon every such licence the annual sum of ten shillings to be paid quarterly during the continuance of every such licence for a chair: and it was thereby enacted, That there should be throughout the kingdom of Great Britain, raised, levied, and paid, several duties for vellum, parchment, and paper, whereupon several things should be ingrossed, written, or printed, or whereby several matters should be done (as is therein expressed) within or during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and eleven; and that from and after the eleventh day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, during the term of thirty-two years from thence next ensuing, there should be raised, levied, and paid, for all playing cards and dice, which within or during the term last mentioned should be made for sale or use in Great Britain, or imported into the same, the duties therein mentioned; and that during the like term there should be paid a certain duty upon salt which should be put on board any ship or vessel in Great Britain, and exported

And whereas by certain clauses contained in an act of the tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign, a power was given to licence an additional number not exceeding one hundred hackney chairs, which after the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, at any time or times within or during the term of thirty-two years from thence next ensuing, should be kept and used for hire within the cities and limits aforesaid, reserving upon every such licence the like yearly rent of ten shillings, payable quarterly, which rents are thereby added to the said fund for or towards payment of the principal and interest last mentioned. And whereas by an act of parliament made and passed in the tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign, it was enacted, That there should be raised and paid for and upon all soap, which during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the tenth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be imported into or made in Great Britain, the respective duties therein specified; and for and upon all paper of what kind soever, and all pastboards, mildboards, and scaleboards; and all books, prints, and maps, which during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be imported into Great Britain, several duties therein particularly expressed; and for and upon all paper of what kind soever, and upon all pastboards, mildboards, and scaleboards, which during the term last mentioned should be made in Great Britain, several duties therein particularly expressed; and for and upon all chequered and striped linens, and upon all linens printed, painted, stained, or dyed, in any foreign parts, which during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be imported into Great Britain, and might lawfully be used or worn there, a duty after the rate of fifteen pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value thereof; and for and upon all silks, calicoes, linens and stuffs, which during the term last-mentioned should be printed, stained, painted, or dyed in Great Britain (except as therein is excepted) several duties therein expressed; and for the several and respective things therein particularly mentioned, which at any time or times within or during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be ingrossed, printed, or written, the several and respective duties therein particularly specified: and it was thereby enacted, That yearly and every year, during the term of thirty-two years (which commenced from the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twelve) the sum of one hundred sixty-eight thousand and three pounds, by and out of the monies of the several duties by that act granted, or to be made good, as is therein mentioned, should be a yearly fund for or towards answering and paying off all and every the principal sums therein mentioned, amounting in the whole to two millions three hundred forty one thousand seven hundred and forty pounds, with interest
- 9 Ann. c. 11. and by or out of all the monies to arise of or for the said duties on hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, vellum and parchment, by virtue of the said other acts, or either of them, and by the said licences for hackney-coaches and chairs, and by the said particular duties upon stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, and upon cards and dice, and upon the exportation of rock-salt for Ireland, granted as aforesaid, or to be made good by such ways and means as are therein mentioned, should be a yearly fund for answering and paying all and every the principal sums thereby appointed to be paid, amounting in the whole to two millions six hundred and two thousand two hundred pounds, together with interest for the same after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, to such persons as should contribute or advance the sum of two millions for the service of the then war, and other her Majesty's occasions, or to those claiming from or under them in the manner thereby prescribed. And whereas by an act of parliament made and passed in the tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign, it was enacted, That there should be raised and paid for and upon all soap, which during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the tenth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be imported into or made in Great Britain, the respective duties therein specified; and for and upon all paper of what kind soever, and all pastboards, mildboards, and scaleboards; and all books, prints, and maps, which during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be imported into Great Britain, several duties therein particularly expressed; and for and upon all paper of what kind soever, and upon all pastboards, mildboards, and scaleboards, which during the term last mentioned should be made in Great Britain, several duties therein particularly expressed; and for and upon all chequered and striped linens, and upon all linens printed, painted, stained, or dyed, in any foreign parts, which during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be imported into Great Britain, and might lawfully be used or worn there, a duty after the rate of fifteen pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value thereof; and for and upon all silks, calicoes, linens and stuffs, which during the term last-mentioned should be printed, stained, painted, or dyed in Great Britain (except as therein is excepted) several duties therein expressed; and for the several and respective things therein particularly mentioned, which at any time or times within or during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be ingrossed, printed, or written, the several and respective duties therein particularly specified: and it was thereby enacted, That yearly and every year, during the term of thirty-two years (which commenced from the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twelve) the sum of one hundred sixty-eight thousand and three pounds, by and out of the monies of the several duties by that act granted, or to be made good, as is therein mentioned, should be a yearly fund for or towards answering and paying off all and every the principal sums therein mentioned, amounting in the whole to two millions three hundred forty one thousand seven hundred and forty pounds, with interest after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, to such persons as should contribute or advance the sum of eighteen hundred thousand pounds for carrying on the then war, or to those claiming from or under them in the manner thereby prescribed. And whereas by an act made and passed in the said tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign, it was enacted, That there should be raised and paid for and upon such skins and hides, and pieces of skins and hides, and for and upon such made wares therein described, as during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be imported into Great Britain, the additional rates or new duties therein particularly expressed; and for and upon all such skins and hides, and pieces of skins and hides therein described, as during the same term should be tanned, tawed, or dressed, in Great Britain, the additional rates or new duties therein also particularly expressed; and for and upon all vellum and parchment, which during the same term should be made in Great Britain, or imported into the same, such additional rates or new duties as are therein specified; and for and upon all starch, which during the same term should be imported into or made in Great Britain, the respective duties therein mentioned; and for and upon all coffee, tea and drugs (except as therein is excepted) which within or during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the sixteenth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be imported into Great Britain, the new duties therein expressed; and for and upon all gilt and silver wire, which during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the first day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be imported into or made in Great Britain, the respective duties therein mentioned; and for and upon every policy of assurance, which during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be made or entered into within the cities of London and Westminster, or elsewhere within the limits of the weekly bills of mortality, an additional duty therein expressed: and it was thereby enacted, That yearly and every year, during the term of thirty-two years, which commenced from the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, the sum of one hundred and sixty-eight thousand and three pounds, by and out of the monies of the several duties by that act granted, or to be made good, as is therein mentioned, should be a yearly fund for or towards answering or paying off all and every the principal sums therein mentioned, amounting in the whole to two millions three hundred forty-one thousand nine hundred and ninety pounds, with interest after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, to such persons as should contribute or advance the sum of one million eight hundred thousand pounds for her Majesty's supply, or to those claiming from or under them, in the manner thereby prescribed. And whereas by the several acts before recited, it was provided, That if the several duties by them respectively granted or appropriated, for raising the several yearly funds by them established, or intended to be established, should at the end of any one year appear to be deficient for answering the said yearly funds respectively, that then such deficiencies should be made good out of the next aids to be granted in parliament, or otherwise, as by the same acts respectively is prescribed: and her said late Majesty, by the same acts respectively, was authorized to appoint managers or directors, who, or some of them, were thereby respectively directed to prepare lottery tickets, and to cause the said lottery tickets to be drawn in such several manners as were thereby appointed, and to transmit into the office of the auditor of the receipt of the Exchequer, books containing the names, surnames, and places of abode, of the persons, which upon such drawings should be intitled to such fortunate or beneficial lots as are therein set down; and that the same persons, their executors, administrators, and assigns respectively, should have, receive, and enjoy, out of the said respective funds, the principal monies which should be entered in such books for them respectively, in course or courses, and the interest thereof by such payments as in the said acts are severally prescribed; and that the other contributors or adventurers, upon the said several acts (not having fortunate lots) their executors, administrators, and assigns respectively, should have, receive, and enjoy, out of the said respective funds, such principal monies, in course or courses, and such interest, as in and by the said lottery acts respectively were prescribed for them severally to have, receive and enjoy; and by the same acts it was severally directed, that the said tickets should be exchanged for standing orders, and that such orders should be registred, and be assignable; and that during the several terms therein mentioned, (unless the principal and interest directed to be paid by the said several acts, should be sooner paid off) the said duties should be severally applied for answering the said principal and interest, and other purposes therein mentioned: and in the several acts for the said lotteries are contained several provisoes or clauses, importing, that if before the end of the respective terms of thirty-two years therein mentioned, all the principal and interest monies payable by virtue of the same acts respectively, should be fully paid and discharged, or sufficient money should be reserved in the Exchequer for payment thereof, that then and in such case, and from thenceforth the duties by the same acts respectively granted or charged therewith, should cease, or be disposeable by authority of parliament, and not otherwise, as by the said several acts, relation being thereunto severally had, doth and may more fully and at large appear. And whereas the said several sums of one million five hundred thousand pounds, two millions, one million eight hundred thousand pounds, and one million eight hundred thousand pounds, were advanced for the publick service, upon the several acts before-mentioned, and the tickets thereby directed were made forth and drawn, and books were transmitted, or are to be transmitted into the Exchequer by the said managers or directors, or by some other persons appointed thereunto, in pursuance of acts of parliament in that behalf; and the said several sums of one million nine hundred twenty-eight thousand five hundred and seventy pounds, two millions six hundred and two thousand two hundred pounds, two millions three hundred forty-one thousand seven hundred and forty pounds, and two millions three hundred forty-one thousand nine hundred and ninety pounds, became payable as principal monies, with interest, after the said rate of six pounds per centum per annum, to the several contributors or adventurers, or to claimants from or under them, according to their several shares therein, and standing orders have been or are to be made forth for the same. And whereas several sums, amounting to one million six hundred sixty-six thousand and seventy pounds, or thereabouts, (part of the said principal sum of one million nine hundred twenty-eight thousand five hundred and seventy pounds) and two millions five hundred twenty-five thousand nine hundred and seventy pounds, or thereabouts, (part of the said principal sum of two millions six hundred and two thousand two hundred pounds) and two millions two hundred fifty thousand five hundred and twenty pounds, or thereabouts, (part of the said principal sum of two millions three hundred forty-one thousand seven hundred and forty pounds) and two millions three hundred and twelve thousand and sixty-five pounds, or thereabouts, (part of the said principal sum of two millions three hundred forty-one thousand nine hundred and ninety pounds) do upon the fourth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, remain unsatisfied; which principal sums so remaining unsatisfied, do amount in the whole to eight millions five hundred sixty-two thousand six hundred twenty-five pounds, or thereabouts, carrying interest after the said rate of six pounds per centum per annum. And whereas in and by an act of parliament made and passed in the twelfth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William, it was (amongst other things) provided and enacted, That in lieu and discharge of certain perpetual annual payments, of all arrears thereof granted by his late majesty King Charles the Second, by letters patents, out of the hereditary revenue of excise, in satisfaction of certain principal sums mentioned in the said letters patents to be then due from his said Majesty, to the respective patentees therein named, the said hereditary revenue of excise should, from and after the twenty-sixth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and five, be and stand charged and chargeable for ever with the payment of annual sums after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum for the principal sums mentioned in the said respective letters patents, to be paid and paid out of the said revenue by quarterly payments out of the receipt of the Exchequer by the officers of the same, unto the respective owners and proprietors the said annual sums, and to their heirs and assigns for ever, without any fee or charge; the said annual payments, after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, to be subject nevertheless to be redeemed upon payment of a moiety of the principal sums mentioned in the said respective letters patents: and by or in pursuance of an act made in the second year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, the respective proprietors have or ought to have standing orders for payment of the annuities last mentioned, quarterly, until the same shall be redeemed, as aforesaid, free from all taxes and impositions whatsoever. And whereas the whole of all the sums mentioned in the said letters patents, did amount to one million three hundred twenty eight thousand five hundred and twenty-six pounds, and the moiety thereof, for which the said annual sums are redeemable, doth amount to six hundred sixty-four thousand two hundred sixty-three pounds, and the said annual sums, after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, where-with the said hereditary revenue is now charged, or liable to be charged, till such redemption, doth amount to thirty-nine thousand eight hundred fifty-five pounds fifteen shillings seven pence and one fifth part of a penny per annum, (which is equal to a rate of six pounds per centum per annum for the said sum of six hundred sixty-four thousand two hundred sixty-three pounds.) And whereas since the making of the several acts herein above recited, the common rate of interest for money is very much lessened, so that it is become just and reasonable for the publick to have and enjoy as well the benefit of redeeming the said several duties and revenues charged or chargeable with the said lottery-orders so remaining unsatisfied, as also the benefit of redeeming the said annual sums now payable out of the hereditary excise. And whereas the proprietors of the said lottery-orders, or several of them, are or may be willing and desirous to accept (in lieu and discharge thereof) an annuity or annuities after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, redeemable by parliament, and the proprietors of the said annual sums now charged or chargeable upon the said hereditary excise, or several of them, are or may be also willing and desirous to accept (in lieu and discharge thereof) an annuity or annuities after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, redeemable by parliament, and to be computed only upon one moiety of their respective principal sums (by the payment of which moieties, their annual payments, after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, were formerly made redeemable, as aforesaid:) and several of the proprietors of the said lottery-orders are or may be willing and desirous to have their principal and interest due thereupon, paid and satisfied to them in ready money; and several of the proprietors of the said annual sums payable out of the hereditary excise, are or may be also willing and desirous to have the moiety of the principal monies (for which the same are redeemable as aforesaid) paid and satisfied to them in ready money; and several persons or corporations are or may be willing to advance ready monies for the purposes aforesaid, and for other the purposes in this act particularly mentioned, so that they respectively, for their monies so to be advanced, may have such annuities as are herein after expressed, secured to them respectively, until redemption thereof by parliament, according to the true meaning of this act: now in the end a good, sure, and sufficient fund and security may be settled and established for the due, regular, and constant payment of all the annuities which shall be payable by or in pursuance of this act, until such general and respective redemptions, as aforesaid, we your Majesty's most faithful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do most humbly pray your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That all such or the like customs, subsidies, impositions, additional impositions, rates, duties, additional rates and duties, and all proportional parts of any duties, and all annuities and weekly or other payments out of any duties or revenues which have been or shall be granted, imposed, appropriated, or directed by the said several recited acts and every of them, or by any other act or acts of parliament now in force, for

for such several and respective terms of years as are therein mentioned, for or towards the answering, paying, securing, or making good the said several and respective funds of one hundred thirty-five thousand pounds per annum, one hundred eighty-six thousand six hundred and seventy pounds per annum, one hundred sixty-eight thousand and three pounds per annum, and one hundred sixty-eight thousand and three pounds per annum, or for or towards payment of the principal and interest monies on the said lottery orders, and for or towards answering or paying the said annual sums amounting to thirty-nine thousand eight hundred fifty-five pounds fifteen shillings seven pence and one fifth part of a penny per annum, (except as in the said several acts or any of them is excepted, and except such of the said duties or revenues as are since taken away by any other act or acts of parliament in that behalf) shall continue and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever, for the purposes in this act prescribed and directed; and that such of the hereditary duties mentioned in the said former acts of parliament, or any of them, as during the respective terms of years therein expressed were appropriated or directed to be applied, for or towards the payment of the said yearly funds or sums, or any of them, shall also continue and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever, for the purposes in this act prescribed and directed; and that all and every the powers, which, in and by the said former acts, or any of them, were vested, or intended to be vested in her said late Majesty, or such commissioners or others as she should appoint, for granting licences, or doing any other matters or things in order to raise any of the duties or revenues hereby intended to be continued and made perpetual, shall be and are, by force and virtue of this act, revived and vested in his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and his and their commissioners, in the same manner, for raising the same duties or revenues respectively for the purposes in and by this act prescribed and directed; and that all other powers, authorities, rules, directions, penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, clauses, matters, and things whatsoever, contained in the said former acts of parliament, and every or any of them, now being in force, for raising, collecting, levying, recovering, answering, paying, and accounting for the said customs, subsidies, impositions, rates, duties, additional rates and duties, and proportional parts of duties, and the said revenues, and weekly or other payments out of any duties or revenues granted, imposed, appropriated, or directed for such several and respective terms of years, as aforesaid, (except as is before excepted) shall be revived, and be for ever continued, practised, and put in execution, for raising, collecting, levying, recovering, answering, paying, and accounting for the said customs, subsidies, impositions, rates, and duties, additional rates and duties, proportional parts, and the said weekly and other payments out of any duties or revenues by this act intended to be continued and made perpetual, for the purposes in and by this act prescribed and directed, as fully and effectually as if the same powers, authorities, rules, directions, penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, clauses, matters, and things, were at large repeated and particularly re-enacted in the body of this present act; the said former acts, or any of them, or any thing therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding: nevertheless the said customs, subsidies, impositions, rates, additional duties, proportional parts, weekly and other payments, and every of them, by this act intended to be continued and made perpetual, as aforesaid, shall be subject to such provisos and powers of redemption as are hereafter in and by this act contained and prescribed of and concerning the same.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies arising of or for the said customs, subsidies, impositions, rates, additional duties, proportional parts, weekly and other payments, hereby intended to be continued and made perpetual, subject to such redemption as aforesaid, (except the necessary charges of raising, collecting, levying, recovering, answering, paying, and accounting for the same) shall, from time time, be brought into the receipt of the Exchequer for the uses and purposes in this act prescribed; and shall, from time to time, be fairly and distinctly entered and registered in one or more book or books to be kept in the offices of the auditor of the receipt and clerk of the pells, severally for that purpose, to which all persons concerned, at all seasonable times, shall have free access, without fee or charge.

III. And it is hereby also enacted, That all the monies, which, from and after the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, shall be brought into the Exchequer, or shall be then remaining there, of or for the said customs, subsidies, impositions, rates, duties, additional duties, proportional parts, weekly and other payments, by this and the said former acts, or any of them, granted or continued, as aforesaid, (except the necessary charges of issuing and applying the said monies to the same uses and purposes, and rendering the accounts thereof) shall be and are hereby appropriated, and shall be issued and applied to and for the payment and satisfaction of such annuities as shall be payable by virtue of this act, and making such other payments as are hereby directed, in their due order, method, and form, and with such preferences, and subject to such redemptions, as are in and by this act prescribed of and concerning the same respectively, and without any fee or charge whatsoever to be demanded of or paid by the respective persons or corporations, who are to receive the said monies, and that the respective officers of the Exchequer, who shall make any delay in issuing or paying the same, or shall be guilty of diverting or misapplying any of the said monies, contrary to this act, for any such offence shall be forejudged from their respective offices or places, and be rendered incapable to serve his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in any office or employment of trust or profit whatsoever, and shall also be liable to pay double the value of any sum or sums of money so delayed, diverted, or misapplied, to the party aggrieved, to be recovered by action of debt, or upon the case, bill, suit, or information, in any his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be granted and allowed.

The monies arising after 29 Sept. 1717, appropriated for payment of annuities payable by this act, &c.

IX. And it is hereby enacted and declared, That all executors, administrators, guardians, and trustees, shall and may make, or cause to be made, subscriptions in the said books, either to have annuities or ready money, as aforesaid, for and on the behalf of their respective testators, intestates, or of infants, minors, femmes covert, or others, for whom they are or shall be respectively intrusted; and are and shall be by virtue of this act indemnified in and for doing the same.

Executors, &c. may subscribe for those for whom they are entrusted.

X. And it is hereby also enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said managers or directors shall, on or before the last day of October, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, deliver, or cause to be delivered the said book or books which shall be opened, as aforesaid, with all the subscriptions therein, (such book or books being first attested under the hands and seals of two or more of the said managers or directors) to the auditor of the receipt of the Exchequer, to remain in his office for ever; and shall also, on or before the last day of November, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, deliver, or cause to be delivered, one duplicate (attested as aforesaid) of so much of the said book or books as shall contain the subscriptions of those who shall choose the said annuities of five pounds per centum per annum, to the chief cashier of the governor and company of the bank of England, and a like duplicate to their accountant general; and the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, shall, before the twenty-fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, cause the proper officers to transmit lists (attested by such officers) to the said chief cashier and accountant general of the bank of England respectively, of all such of the said lottery-orders, and all such of the said annual sums, charged or chargeable on the excise, for which

By 4 Geo. 2. c. 30. s. 1. these annuities are payable half-yearly.

XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said accountant general for the time being shall, upon reasonable demand, deliver gratis to every proprietor of the said lottery-orders, or any of them, and of the said annual payments charged on the hereditary excise, or any of them, being comprehended or specified in the said duplicates or lists, by this act required to be transmitted into his office as aforesaid, or to the respective assigns of such proprietors, a certificate thereof, to be grounded on the said duplicates and lists, or some of them, so as the lottery-order, or the order charged on the excise (specified in such duplicates or lists) be at the same time delivered up to the said accountant general to be cancelled and made void; nevertheless all the said lottery-orders so cancelled shall be preserved by the said accountant general; and that any person or persons may have recourse to the same without fee or reward; and the same, or attested copies thereof, may be given in evidence in any court of law or equity.

XII. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the proprietors of the said lottery-orders, or any of them, and of the said annuities charged or chargeable on the excise, or any of them, by or from whom such subscriptions shall be made within the time herein before limited, signifying his, her, or their option or willingness to accept such annuities in lieu thereof, and all and every other the proprietor and proprietors of the said lottery-orders charged on the yearly funds before-mentioned, or any of them, and all and every the proprietors of the said annual sum chargeable on the hereditary excise, or any of them, and the executors, administrators, successors, and assigns, of all and every the said proprietors respectively, (such proprietors of the said lottery-orders and annual sums of three pounds per centum per annum, or any of them, who, by such subscriptions as aforesaid, to be made within the time before limited, shall choose to be paid in ready money, only and always excepted and foreprized) shall have, receive, and enjoy, and be entitled, by virtue of this act, to have, receive, and enjoy, an annuity or annuities after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, of lawful money of Great Britain, in lieu and discharge of such their several and respective lottery-orders, and annual payments, charged or chargeable as aforesaid; which annuities, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, shall be computed upon the said lottery-orders, for so much as shall be due and unpaid for principal or interest at and until Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen inclusively, and shall be computed upon the said orders charged or chargeable on the hereditary excise for so much as the said moiety of the said principal sums (for which they were made redeemable) and the arrears of the said annual sums of three pounds per centum per annum, (if any such arrears be) shall, at and until Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, amount unto; and that all the said annuities, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, shall be and are hereby charged upon, and shall be paid and payable out of the monies of the said general fund of seven hundred twenty-four thousand eight hundred forty-nine pounds six shillings and ten pence and one part of a penny per annum, by this act established, or intended to be established as aforesaid, by quarterly payments, at the four most usual feasts in the year, that is to say, the feasts of the birth of our Lord Christ, the annunciation of the blessed virgin Mary, the nativity of Saint John baptist, and Saint Michael the archangel, by even and equal portions, or within six days after every of the said feast-days, for ever, or until redemption or redemptions thereof shall be made according to the provisos herein after contained in that behalf.

XIII. And whereas it may happen that some of the said subscribers for annuities, at the time of making their subscriptions, may have arrears of the said interest, after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, due to them upon computations to be made until and for the quarter ending at the feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist one thousand seven hundred and seventeen inclusively, it is hereby provided, declared, and enacted, by the authority aforesaid, That all such arrears of interest, to be computed until and for the quarter to end at the said feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, (although some of them are payable at other feast-days) shall be paid and satisfied out of the monies of the said yearly funds, or any of them, arisen or to arise at any time before Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, without being converted into an annuity after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, as aforesaid.

Arrears of interest to be computed till 24 June, 1717.

XIV. And whereas the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, trading to the South Seas and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, are obliged, in and by an act of this session of parliament, to advance and pay into the receipt of his Majesty's Exchequer such sum and sums of money, not exceeding in the whole the sum of two millions, at such times, and by such proportions at a time, as the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, shall call for, in the manner therein mentioned, on or before the twenty-fourth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen: now it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the said sum of two millions, or so much thereof as shall be called for, and be actually advanced and paid by the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain into the receipt of his Majesty's Exchequer, in pursuance of that act, shall, by the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or by the high treasurer and under treasurer of the Exchequer for the time being, without any further or other warrant to be sued for, had or obtained in that behalf, be issued and applied for or towards the several uses and purposes herein after limited and appointed of or concerning the same; that is to say, for or towards the paying off and discharging the principal monies charged or chargeable on the said lottery-funds, every or any of them, and the interest payable for the same, until the payment of the said principal to the respective proprietors thereof, who shall choose to be paid in ready money as aforesaid; and for or towards the paying off and discharging the said moiety of the said principal sums upon payment whereof the said sums, after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, were formerly made redeemable as aforesaid) and all arrears which shall or may be due for or upon the said yearly sums, after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, computing the same by the day until the said moieties respectively shall be so paid off unto the respective proprietors thereof, who shall also choose to be paid in ready money as aforesaid; or for or towards some of the said uses and purposes which shall require payment in ready money as aforesaid; and to and for none other intent, or purpose whatsoever: and that the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors, for all and every sum and sums of money so to be called for, and by them to be actually advanced at the Exchequer, shall have, receive, and enjoy, and be entitled to have, receive, and enjoy, such annuity and annuities, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, redeemable by parliament, out of such duties and revenues, or by such other ways and means, and in such manner and form, as in and by the said other act of this session of parliament are directed and prescribed for securing and paying the same.

So much of the 2,000,000l. which the South Sea company is to advance, as shall actually be called for, shall be applied to discharge the lottery-orders, &c.
3 Geo. 1. c. 9.

Company to have annuities of 5l. per cent. for the same.

XVIII. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where the principal and interest payable on the said lottery orders, or any of them, or the said moieties of the said principal sums for which the annual payments are charged on the hereditary excise, or any of them, or the arrears of the same annual payments respectively, shall be converted

Where lottery orders, &c. are converted into annuities, or paid off in ready money, the duties shall be able to make good the general fund, be converted into annuities, or be paid off in ready money, pursuant to this act, the customs, subsidies, impositions, additional and other duties, proportional parts, weekly and other payments, formerly charged therewith as aforesaid, shall be and are hereby freed, exonerated, and discharged of, from, and against the same, and shall be liable for or towards making good the said general yearly fund by this act intended to be established as aforesaid.

XXII. And whereas the sum of twenty four thousand one hundred and ninety five pounds, eighteen shillings, and two pence, rests unsatisfied upon several bills of exchange drawn for the service of the late expedition to Canada: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer of Great Britain for the time being, to issue their warrant or warrants to the proper officers in the receipt of the Exchequer, for receiving and taking in at the said receipt such further sum or sums of money, not exceeding twenty four thousand one hundred ninety five pounds, eighteen shillings, and two pence, as any person or persons, natives or foreigners, bodies politick or corporate, will advance and pay for purchasing an annuity or annuities, after a rate not exceeding four pounds per centum per annum; which annuity or annuities shall also be paid out of the said general fund by this act established or intended to be established, and shall likewise be redeemable by parliament according to this act; and the said commissioners of the treasury, or high treasurer and under treasurer of the Exchequer for the time being, are hereby authorized and required to issue, or cause to be issued, all the said monies, not exceeding twenty four thousand one hundred ninety five pounds, eighteen shillings, and two pence, so to be advanced, by way of imprest and upon account, for satisfying the said bills of exchange; and the proper officers in the respective offices for paying the same bills are hereby enjoined and required to take especial care that the drawers of the said bills be duly charged with the monies for which they were drawn, or such of the said monies as are not or shall not be duly accounted for, before such payment of the said bills.

XXV. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in the office of the accountant general of the governor and company of the bank of England for the time being, there shall be provided and kept a book or books, in which shall be fairly entered the names of all and every person and persons, corporation and corporations whatsoever, who shall be entitled to the said annuities after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, in lieu and discharge of any such lottery orders and annual payments out of the excise as aforesaid; and the names of all such persons and corporations who, upon producing to the said comptroller the said tallies of Sol respectively, shall appear to be entitled to the said annuities to be purchased at the several rates aforesaid, for monies to be by them advanced and paid into the Exchequer, pursuant to this act; and the several and respective annuities whereunto the aforesaid persons and corporations respectively shall be entitled, to which book it shall be lawful for all persons concerned from time to time, at all seasonable times, to have free access, and to inspect the same, without fee or charge; and the said accountant general for the time being shall, on or before the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, transmit an attested duplicate or duplicates, fairly written on paper, of the book or books last mentioned, unto the office of the auditor of the receipt of his Majesty's Exchequer, there to remain for ever.

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. XXI.

An act for continuing the liberty of exporting Irish linen cloth to the British plantations in America duty free; and for the more effectual discovery of, and prosecuting such as shall unlawfully export wool and woollen manufactures from Ireland; and for relief of John Fletcher, in respect of the duty by him paid for a quantity of salt lost in the exportation for Ireland.

WHEREAS by an act passed in the third and fourth years of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act to permit the exportation of Irish linen cloth to the plantations, and to prohibit the importation of Scotch linen into Ireland; it was enacted, for the support of the protestant interest in Ireland, and for the encouragement of the linen manufacture of that kingdom, That it should and might be lawful to export from Ireland directly to the British plantations, all sorts of white and brown linen cloths, being the proper manufacture of the said kingdom, under certain restrictions and conditions in the said act mentioned, for the term of eleven years; which act hath been since continued for one year, and to the end of this present session of parliament, by an act passed in the first year of the reign of his present majesty King George, intituled, An act for continuing several laws therein mentioned relating to coals, hemp, and flax, Irish and Scots linen, and the assize of bread, and for giving power to adjourn the quarter sessions for the county of Anglesea, for the purposes therein mentioned: and whereas it hath been found by experience, that the continuance of the said act is and may be beneficial to both the kingdoms of Great Britain and Ireland: be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said recited act of the third and fourth years of Queen Anne, so far forth as the same relates to the exportation of Irish linen cloths to the British plantations, shall be, and the same is hereby continued in full force so long as the merchants and other persons of Great Britain are or shall be permitted to import into Ireland, free of all duties, such white and brown British linen cloth as is or shall be made and manufactured in Great Britain.

lates to the exportation of Irish linen to the plantations, shall continue in force so long

After June 24, 1717, Irish linen imported into this kingdom may be exported to the plantations without paying any duty.

II. And whereas some doubt has arisen, whether linens imported into this kingdom from Ireland, and not subject to pay any duties upon the said importation, should, when being exported again for any of the British plantations in America, become liable to pay a duty ad valorem: be it declared and enacted, That all linens made in Ireland, and imported from thence into this kingdom, may, from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and seven, be shipped off again and exported for any of his Majesty's plantations in America, without being liable or subject to pay any duty whatsoever.

IV. And whereas by an act made in the tenth and eleventh years of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act to prevent the exportation of wool out of the kingdoms of Ireland and England into foreign parts, and for the encouragement of the woollen manufactures in the kingdom of England, one moiety of the penalties and forfeitures thereby inflicted for preventing the exportation of wool and other woollen goods therein mentioned out of the said kingdom of Ireland, other than into the kingdom of England, or the dominion of Wales, is given to the encouragement of setting up the linen manufactures in Ireland, to be disposed of by the court of Exchequer there for their use only; which disposition of the said moiety has been found of very little advantage advantage to the said linen manufactures, but has tended very much to the discouragement of prosecutions made in pursuance of the said act: for the more effectually putting the said act in execution, be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, the said moiety of all such penalties and forfeitures (after a deduction made out of the said moiety of the charges of prosecution and condemnation) shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors.

After the said 29th of Sept. actions commenced in Ireland relating to the exportation of wool, &c. shall be tried by a jury of any other county than where the fact was committed.

The first three discoverers exempted from punishment.

V. And for the better and more impartial trials of all such actions and informations which shall be commenced or prosecuted by virtue of any act now in being made for the preventing the unlawful exportation of wool or woollen manufactures from the kingdom of Ireland: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, such actions and informations shall be tried in any of his Majesty's four courts at Dublin, by a jury of good and lawful freeholders to be summoned out of any other county than that wherein the fact shall be committed: and to encourage persons to discover the said crime, the first three persons who have been aiding, abetting, or assisting, in carrying out or exporting of wool, or any other of the commodities as aforesaid, that shall inform thereof any of his Majesty's justices of the peace, whereby the punishment and penalties appointed by this act may be inflicted and recovered, the party or parties so discovering (not being owner or part owners of the said wool, or other commodities aforesaid) shall not suffer any of the said penalties or punishment to be inflicted by this or any other act.

Cyder or perry that have paid the duties may be exported on security not to be re-landed.

SECT. VIII. AND be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons who shall have actually paid his Majesty's duties by this act payable for any cyder or perry made in Great Britain, and to or for any other person or persons who shall buy or be lawfully entitled to any such cyder or perry, for or in respect whereof the said duties to his said Majesty hereby granted have been duly paid, to export such cyder and perry for any foreign parts by way of merchandize, giving sufficient security before the shipping thereof for exportation, that the particular quantity of cyder or perry which shall be intended to be exported as aforesaid, and every part thereof, shall be shipped and exported, and that the same, or any part thereof, shall not be re-landed or brought again into any part or parts of Great Britain; which security of customer or collector of the respective port from whence such exportation is to be, (without any fee or reward) is hereby directed and authorized to take in his Majesty's name, and to his Majesty's use.

Re-landed, forfeited, and the bond.

IX. Provided always, That if after the shipping of any such cyder or perry to be exported as aforesaid, and the giving or tendering such security as aforesaid, in order to obtain the allowance or drawback herein-after mentioned, the cyder or perry so shipped to be exported, or any part thereof, shall be re-landed in any part of Great Britain, that then, and in every case, over and above the penalty of the bond, which shall be levied and recovered to his Majesty's use, all the cyder and perry which shall be so re-landed, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons who shall export any cyder or perry into foreign parts by way of merchandize, shall produce a certificate or certificates from the collector or officer who received the duty of such cyder or perry, that the duty imposed thereon by this act hath been paid, (which certificate the collector or officer is hereby required to give gratis) and making oath before the officer or collector of the port where the same shall be so exported, that the cyder or perry so exported is the same as is mentioned in such certificate, then the collector or chief officers of the port where such cyder or perry shall be exported, shall give to the exporter thereof a certificate or debenture expressing the true quantity of the cyder or perry so exported or shipped for exportation; which certificate or debenture being produced to the collector or other officer appointed to receive the said duty in the county, shire, stuartry, or place where such cyder or perry was exported, he is hereby required to pay the said duty of four shillings per hoghead to the persons or their agents so exporting the same; and in case the collector or other officer shall not have any money in their hands arising by the said duties on cyder and perry to pay the same, then the respective commissioners, appointed for executing this act, are hereby required to pay the same out of the duties arising by the said act; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

On certificate that the duties have been paid, &c. collector to give a debenture thereof, and the duty to be repaid to the exporter.

XII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all fines, penalties, and forfeitures by this act imposed, shall be sued for, levied, recovered, or mitigated, by such ways, means, and methods, as any fine, penalty, or forfeiture is or may be recovered or mitigated by any law or laws of excise, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of session, court of justiciary, or court of Exchequer in Scotland respectively; and that one moiety of every such fine, penalty, and forfeiture shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall discover, inform, or sue for the same.

C A P. III.

An act for applying certain overplus monies, and further sums to be raised, as well by way of a lottery as by loans, towards paying off and cancelling exchequer bills, and for lessening the present great charge in relation to those bills; and for circulating and exchanging for ready money the residue of the same bills for the future.

MAY it please your most excellent Majesty, Whereas by an act of parliament of the third year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for redeeming several funds of the governor and company of the bank of England, pursuant to former provisos of redemption; and for securing to them several new funds and allowances redeemable by parliament; and for obliging them to advance further sums not exceeding two millions five hundred thousand pounds, at five pounds per centum, as shall be found necessary to be employed in lessening the national debts and incumbrances; and for continuing certain provisions formerly made for the expences of his Majesty's civil government; and for payment of annuities formerly purchased at the rate of five pounds per centum; and for other purposes in this act mentioned; the said governor and company of the bank of England, and their successors, for circulating certain bills, commonly called Exchequer bills, therein mentioned, amounting to two millions five hundred sixty one thousand and twenty five pounds, or thereabouts, in principal money, and for exchanging the same for ready money on demand, are entitled to an annuity or yearly sum of seventy six thousand eight hundred and thirty pounds, fifteen shillings, (being an allowance after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, computed upon the said sum of two millions five hundred sixty one thousand and twenty five pounds) subject nevertheless to a proviso of redemption in that act contained, upon such notice as is thereby prescribed; which annuity or yearly allowance is by the same act charged upon and made payable out of the monies arisen or to arise at the receipt of the Exchequer, of or for certain particular duties on houses, and of or for several other duties and revenues, called The aggregate fund, in that act, and in former acts relating to the said fund, more particularly mentioned and described, in the order and course, and with such preference as is thereby directed; and by the act first above-mentioned it is enacted and declared, That as well the said particular duties on houses, and the duties, revenues, and incomes composing the said aggregate fund, and all other duties which were settled for payment of a former yearly sum of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds, thirteen shillings, and five pence, and the interest and allowances relating to former Exchequer bills therein mentioned, should be continued, but be disposable to and for the several and respective uses and purposes appointed by that act, and subject to the several provisos of redemption therein contained; and that all the monies of the said duties, revenues, and incomes, which should or ought to be brought into the receipt of the Exchequer, (except the necessary charges for raising, collecting, levying, issuing, paying, and accounting for the same) should be and are thereby appropriated, and should be issued and applied to and for the payment and satisfaction of several yearly and other sums in the said act particularly expressed, in their due course, and with such preferences as are thereby appointed: amongst which payments and sums provision is made for payment of the said annuity or allowance of seventy thousand eight hundred and thirty pounds, fifteen shillings per annum, and for answering all demands of interest due and to be due upon the said Exchequer bills as is therein mentioned: and by the same act it was declared and enacted,

That the excess or surplus which, at the end of every or any quarter of a year (reckoning the quarters to end at the usual feast-days) should or might be produced by the said several rates, duties, ~~revenues~~, and incomes thereby appropriated, and should remain in the Exchequer, (over and above the money then due or demandable for or upon the several annuities, allowances, and other payments therein before-mentioned, or any arrears of the same) should attend the disposition of parliament, and be applied according to act or acts of parliament in that behalf, and not otherwise: and it was thereby declared and enacted, That any vote or resolution of the house of commons, signified by the speaker of the said house in writing, and delivered at the publick office of the said governor and company, should be deemed and adjudged to be a sufficient notice within the words and meaning of the said act for redeeming the said annuity or allowance of seventy thousand eight hundred and thirty pounds, fifteen shillings per annum, as by the same act, relation being thereunto had, (amongst many other matters and things therein contained) may more fully appear. And whereas by another act of parliament of the said third year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for redeeming the yearly fund of the South Sea company, being after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, and settling on the said company a yearly fund after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, redeemable by parliament; and to raise for an annuity or annuities at five pounds per centum per annum, any sum not exceeding two millions, to be employed in lessening the national debts and incumbrances; and for making the said new yearly fund and annuities to be hereafter redeemable in the time and manner therein by prescribed; several other subsidies, impositions, duties, revenues, and proportional parts of duties and revenues therein mentioned, or thereby referred unto, were continued for the several and respective uses and purposes in that act: and it was thereby enacted, That all the monies thereof which should or ought to be brought into the Exchequer for those purposes, (except the necessary charges of raising, collecting, levying, issuing, and accounting for the same; and except such part thereof, as by any former act or acts of parliament was applicable to the repayment of loans then remaining unsatisfied, and to pay the interest of the same) should be and are thereby appropriated, and should be issued and applied for the payment of the yearly and other sums in the same act particularly expressed, in their due method and order, and subject to such redemption as is thereby prescribed. And by the same act it was provided and enacted, That at any time at the end of any quarter of a year (reckoning the quarters to end at the usual feasts) there should be an excess or surplus of the monies brought into the Exchequer of the said subsidies, impositions, duties, revenues, and proportional parts, and such excess or surplus should remain there, over and above the money then or before that time grown due, by or in pursuance of that act, as is therein mentioned, then such excess or surplus should from time to time attend the disposition of parliament, and be applied according to act or acts of parliament, and not otherwise, as by the act last mentioned (relation being thereunto had) may also more fully appear. And whereas by another act of parliament of the said third year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for redeeming the duties and revenues which were settled to pay off principal and interest on the orders made forth on four lottery acts passed in the ninth and tenth years of her late Majesty's reign, and for redeeming certain annuities payable on orders out of the hereditary excise, according to a former act in that behalf, and for establishing a general yearly fund, not only for the future payment of annuities at several rates, to be payable and transferrable at the bank of England, and redeemable by parliament, but also to raise monies for such proprietors of the said orders as shall chuse to be paid their principal and arrears of interest in ready money; and for making good such other deficiencies and payments as in this act are mentioned; and for taking off the duties on linseed imported, and British linen exported; several other customs, subsidies, impositions, additional impositions, rates, duties, additional rates and duties, proportional parts of duties, revenues, and weekly and other payments of duties and revenues therein specified, or thereby referred unto, were continued for the purposes in that act: and it was thereby enacted, That yearly and every year, reckoning the first year to begin from the feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, and from thenceforth for ever, (subject nevertheless to such provisoes and power of redemption as are in that act contained) the full sum of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds, six shillings, ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny per annum, by or out of the monies arising of or for the said customs, subsidies, impositions, rates, additional duties, proportional parts, weekly and other payments by that act appropriated and directed to be brought, from time to time, into the Exchequer, in case the same should extend to the said sum of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds, six shillings, ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny, should be computed and reckoned to be a general fund; and in case all the monies so arising into the Exchequer of or for the said customs, subsidies, impositions, rates, duties, additional duties, proportional parts, weekly and other payments, should not amount to seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds, six shillings, ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny per annum, then the monies so arising, so far as the same would extend, should be part of the said general yearly fund of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds, six shillings, ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny per annum, for and towards the answering and paying all the annuities and payments by that act charged or chargeable thereupon; and in case all the monies by that act appointed or appropriated, as aforesaid, should at any time or times appear to be so deficient or low in the produce of the same, as that within any one year, to be reckoned as aforesaid, the said monies so arising in the Exchequer, of or for all the said customs, subsidies, impositions, rates, duties, additional duties, proportional parts, weekly and other payments, should not amount to so much as seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds, six shillings, ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny, that then and so often, and in every such case, so much as should be wanting to make up the said general fund or sum of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds, six shillings, ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny, for every or any such year, should be supplied and made good, from time to time, by or out of the first aid or supply to be granted in parliament next after such deficiency should appear, and should from time to time be transferred thereunto, as soon as the same should be granted: and it was thereby enacted, That the excess or surplus, which at the end of every or any quarter of a year (reckoning the quarters to end at the four most usual feast days) should or might be produced by the customs, subsidies, impositions, additional and other duties, proportional parts of duties, and by the said weekly and other payments, by that act appropriated or charged to make good the said general yearly fund of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds, six shillings, ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny, over and above so much as shall be sufficient to make good the same; and so much of the said general yearly fund as at the end of any quarter of a year shall remain in the receipt of the Exchequer, over and above all the monies then due or payable, to discharge the several annuities and other payments by that act directed to be satisfied out of the same, and all arrears thereof (if any such were) should likewise from time to time attend the disposition of parliament, and be applied according to act or acts of parliament, and not otherwise: and by the act last recited, it was further declared and enacted, That all the monies to arise from time to time, as well of or for the excess or surplus by virtue of the said act made for redeeming the funds of the governor and company of the bank of England, and of or for the said excess or surplus by virtue of the said act made for redeeming the funds of the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South Seas and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery; as also of and for the said excess or surplus of the said duties and revenues by the said other act of the third year of your Majesty's reign, appropriated to make good the said general yearly yearly fund as aforesaid, and the overplus monies of the same general yearly fund thereby established, or intended to be established as aforesaid, should be appropriated, reserved, and employed, to and for the discharging the principal and interest of such national debts and incumbrances as were contracted before the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and were declared to be national debts, and were provided for by acts of parliament, in such manner and form, as should be directed or appointed by any future act or acts of parliament to be discharged therewith or out of the same, and to and for none other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever, as by the act last before recited (relation being thereunto had) may likewise more fully appear. And whereas the said sum, not exceeding two millions five hundred thousand pounds, in the said first recited act mentioned, or any part thereof, was not advanced by the said governor and company of the bank of England, or called for or required by the commissioners of your Majesty's treasury, so that the said duties, revenues, and incomes, called The aggregate fund, are not charged or chargeable with any annuity or other payment whatsoever in respect of the same, by the said first recited act or otherwise howsoever; and the said sum, not exceeding two millions, mentioned in the

3 Geo. 1. c. 3. said act relating to the South Sea company, or any part thereof, was not advanced by that company, or called for or required by the commissioners of your Majesty's treasury, so that the said duties, revenues, and incomes, comprehended in the fund of that company, are not charged or chargeable with any annuity or other payment whatsoever in respect of the same, by virtue of the said act relating to that company, or otherwise howsoever. And whereas we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, (pursuant to the clauses contained in the act first above recited) did on the tenth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, resolve, That notice should be given to the said governor and company of the bank of England, that the house of commons would at Lady-day, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, redeem the said annuity of seventy six thousand eight hundred and thirty pounds, fifteen shillings; and ordered the speaker of the said house, on or before Lady-day, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, to signify the said resolution in writing to the said governor and company, which was signified accordingly: and whereas by computation as many of the said Exchequer bills as do amount to the said sum of two millions five hundred sixty one thousand twenty five pounds in principal money, made forth by the said former acts of parliament, do on the fourteenth day of January, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, remain undischarged and uncanceled, and the present cost and expence to the publick for circulating and exchanging the same doth, by the said allowance of three pounds per centum per annum, and by the said growing interest of one penny per centum per diem, amount in the whole to one hundred and fifteen thousand seven hundred seventy nine pounds, thirteen shillings, and four pence per annum, or thereabouts, except so much thereof as is saved and may be abated for bills, from time to time, in the Exchequer, or in the hands of receivers or collectors of any taxes, aids, or revenues payable to your Majesty: and it being apparently just and necessary with regard to the publick, that the said present cost and expence, and the said national debts and incumbrances be lessened as far as conveniently may be; we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, for that end and purpose have resolved, That the surplus monies hereafter particularly directed and appointed, and a further sum not exceeding five hundred thousand pounds, to be raised by way of a lottery, and another further sum, not exceeding five hundred and twenty thousand pounds, to be raised by way of loan, be applied towards paying off the principal and interest borne upon the said bills, and for cancelling the bills whereof the principal and interest shall be so paid off; and that so many of the said Exchequer bills as shall remain undischarged and uncanceled by or with the money so to be applied, shall be circulated and exchanged in the manner hereafter in this act appointed in that behalf: now we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, for the better and effectual accomplishment fulfillment of their desires and intentions in the premises, and that your Majesty and your subjects may be eased of the burden of the said national debts and incumbrances as fast as is consistent with honour and justice, do most humbly pray your Majesty, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That the sum of one hundred ninety thousand four hundred forty four pounds, eighteen shillings, three-pence halfpenny, which remained in the Exchequer at Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, for the overplus of the said particular duties on houses, and other duties and revenues comprehended in the said fund, commonly called The aggregate fund, appointed to be reserved for disposition of parliament as aforesaid, being over and above the excess of the civil list fund for three years, ended at the same feast day; and that all the overplus monies of the civil list fund for three years ended at Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, which overplus is also appointed to be reserved for disposition of parliament as aforesaid; and the sum of nineteen thousand five hundred seventy seven pounds, and ten shillings, which remained in the Exchequer at Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, for the surplus or overplus of the fund, commonly called The fund of the South Sea Company, appointed to be reserved for disposition of parliament as aforesaid; and the sum of one hundred ninety thousand four hundred thirty six pounds, fifteen shillings, eleven pence, and nine twentieth parts of a penny, being the excess or surplus for the year ended at Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, upon the yearly fund of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds, six shillings, ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny, commonly called The general fund, likewise appointed, as aforesaid, to be reserved for the disposition of parliament, (over and above the sum of one hundred and thirty thousand pounds, which is hereafter in and by this act directed to be reserved towards making good the half-yearly payment on the annuities charged on the said general fund for the half year ending at Christmas, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen) and all the excess or overplus monies, which within and for the half year to end at Lady-day, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall arise upon the several rates, duties, revenues, and incomes, commonly called The aggregate fund, The South Sea company's fund, and The general fund, before mentioned, every or any of them, which by the said acts of the third year of his Majesty's reign, were severally reserved and intended to be reserved for disposition of parliament, shall by force and virtue of this act be applied (so far as the monies of all the said several surplusses, excesses, or overplusses will extend) towards redeeming the said annuity or allowance of seventy six thousand eight hundred and thirty pounds, fifteen shillings per annum, and to and for the satisfying and discharging so much as the same will extend to satisfy and discharge of the principal monies contained in the said Exchequer bills, and the interest due or to be due upon the same, according to the direction and true meaning of this act herein-after specified.

such preferences as by the said former act, and this present act, are appointed in that behalf; it is hereby further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all the said particular duties on houses, and all the said other rates, duties, revenues, and incomes, which by the said first recited act of the third year of his Majesty's reign, were settled for answering the respective payments therein mentioned, (all which are by this act denominated to be the aggregate fund, as aforesaid) and every of them, are and shall be continued, and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever, and shall be raised, levied, collected, and brought into the Exchequer of England, by and according to such rules, methods, and directions, and with such drawbacks, repayments, and allowances, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are prescribed in and by the respective act and acts of parliament now in force, or any articles, clauses, matters, or things therein contained, or thereby referred unto, for raising, levying, or bringing in the same, as fully and effectually as if the same acts, articles, clauses, matters, and things, and every of them, were repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act; nevertheless, all the monies arising thereby into the said receipt of Exchequer from and after the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and all the monies then remaining in the said receipt, of the same rates, duties, revenues, and incomes, shall be disposeable to and for the several and respective uses and purposes by this or the said first recited act appointed or intended, (other than and except, as aforesaid) and subject to the several provisos of redemption herein contained; any former law, statute, provision, restriction, clause or clauses, matters or things whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

C A P. IX.

An act for continuing certain duties upon coals and culm, and for establishing certain funds to raise money, as well to proceed in the building of new churches, as also to compleat the supply granted to his Majesty; and to reserve the overplus monies of the said duties for the disposition of parliament; and for more effectual suppressing private lotteries.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of her late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty several duties upon coals, for building fifty new churches in and about the cities of London and Westminster, and suburbs thereof, and other purposes therein mentioned, it was enacted, That for all sorts of coals and culm, which from and after the fourteenth day of May, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and before the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, should be imported and brought into the port of the city of London, or the river of Thames within the liberty of the said city, upon the same river, there should be paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, by way of imposition thereupon, (over and besides all other impositions and duties) according to the rates therein-after mentioned; that is to say, from and after the said fourteenth day of May, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and before the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, for all such sorts of coals and culm as are usually sold by the chalders, for every chalders thereof, containing thirty six bushels Winchester measure, the sum of two shillings; and for such sort of coals as are sold by the tun, for every tun thereof, containing twenty hundred weight, the sum of two shillings; and from and after the eight and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and before the eight and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, there should be paid for every such said chalders of coals and culm, and tun of coals, the sum of three shillings; and that all the monies which should be raised by virtue of that act, (the necessary charges of raising, managing, and accounting for the same excepted) should be brought into the receipt of the Exchequer, and should be appropriated and disposed for the building of fifty new churches of stone, and other proper materials, with towers or steeples to each of them, and for purchasing scites of churches, church-yards, and burying-places, in or near the cities of London and Westminster, or the suburbs thereof; and for making such chapels churches as were already built, and capable thereof, parish churches; and for purchasing houses for the habitations of the ministers of the said churches; and for applying the sum of four thousand pounds per annum out of the said duties and impositions towards the repairing and finishing the collegiate church of Saint Peter, Westminster, and the chapels of the same; and also for applying the sum of six thousand pounds per annum out of the said duties and impositions arising by that act, towards the finishing Greenwich Hospital, and the chapel thereunto belonging; and for none other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever: and it was thereby enacted, That there should be erected and built of stone, and other materials, fifty churches, with towers or steeples to each of them, whereof one should be erected in the parish of East Greenwich, in the county of Kent. And whereas in the tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign, another act was made and passed in parliament for-enlarging the time given to the commissioners appointed pointed by her Majesty, pursuant to the said former act for granting the said duties for building the said new churches, and other purposes therein mentioned, and for giving to the said commissioners further powers for better effecting the same, and for appointing monies for rebuilding the parish church of Saint Mary Woolnoth in the said city of London. And whereas by an act of parliament made and passed in the first year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for making provision for the ministers of the fifty new churches which are to be built in and about the cities of London and Westminster, and suburbs thereof, and for rebuilding and finishing the parish church of Saint Mary Woolnoth, in the said city of London, it was enacted, That for all sorts of coals and culm, which, from and after the twenty seventh day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, and before the twenty eighth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, shall be imported and brought into the port of the city of London, or the river of Thames, within the liberty of the said city upon the same river, there should be paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by way of imposition thereupon, (over and besides all other impositions and duties, according to the rates therein after mentioned; that is to say,) For all such sorts of coals and culm as are usually sold by the chalders, for every chalders thereof, containing thirty six bushels Winchester measure, the sum of three shillings; and for such sort of coals as are sold by the tun, for every tun thereof, containing two hundred weight, the sum of three shillings; and that all the monies which should be raised by virtue of that act, (the necessary charges of raising, managing, and accounting for the same, excepted) should be brought into the receipt of Exchequer, and should be appropriated for and towards the providing due maintenance for the ministers to attend the service of God in the said new churches, and should for that purpose be issued, applied, and disposed, in such manner as should thereafter be directed by parliament: and it was thereby enacted, That the parish church of Saint Mary Woolnoth, and the tower thereof, should be repaired and finished out of the duties granted by the said recited act of the ninth year of the said late Majesty's reign; and that the monies to be imployed for that purpose should be replaced and made good out of and by the monies applicable by virtue of the said act of the tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign, to the rebuilding and finishing the said church, and the tower thereof, as by the said several relations being thereunto respectively had, may more fully appear: and whereas of the said duties of coals and culm, or out of monies lent upon credit of the said several considerable sums, amounting in the whole to one hundred sixty one thousand one hundred seventy and five pounds, sixteen shillings, and seven pence, have been already raised and issued for the buildings, repairs, and other purposes prescribed in or by the said recited acts, and the building of some of the new churches thereby appointed to be built, hath been begun, and several repairs which are thereby directed, have been entered upon, and some scites, cemeteries, burying places and ministers houses have been purchased or contracted for, and other charges have been borne, and payments made, pursuant to the orders of the several commissioners, who from time to time have been intrusted in and for the execution of the powers in the said several acts contained; but the charge of the said buildings and repairs already begun or performed, hath been so excessive, that, over and above the application of the said monies already issued, a great debt is now owing to workmen and others for the same; and it evidently appears, that in case the expence of the said buildings and repairs should proceed and be carried on at or near the same excessive rates, the whole produce of the said duties, during the said time or times to come therein by the said former acts, (though such produce far exceeds the original estimates made for building the said new churches and repairs) will be very deficient for those purposes, and may probably at the end of the said present terms leave a great debt for work and materials, unpaid for: and whereas it is computed or estimated, that the said duties laid by the former acts on coals and culm to be imported, as aforesaid, between Lady Day one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and the said twenty eighth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, may amount in the

to the sum of three hundred and sixty thousand pounds; and in case the present terms in the said duties be enlarged, so as to make up thirty two years, from Lady-day, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, the said sum of three hundred and sixty thousand pounds may be raised for the purposes before mentioned, as in this act is afterwards provided, upon a particular yearly fund or security in that behalf; and that the sum of five hundred twenty eight thousand three hundred and twenty pounds, one shilling, and nine pence, may be raised by establishing another particular yearly fund, and by such other ways and means as are hereafter in this act provided, for making good the supply granted to his Majesty in this session of parliament in the manner herein-after mentioned; and that the surplusses which shall or may, from time to time, arise by the said duties on coals and culm, over and above so much as shall be sufficient to discharge the payments by this act intended to be charged thereupon, may be reserved for the use of the publick: therefore, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being desirous to pursue your Majesty's pious and gracious intentions for the honour and benefit of the church of England, and advancement of our holy religion, by making provision for raising the said sum of three hundred and sixty thousand pounds in such proportions at a time as shall be needed to be employed, (so far as the same will extend) for or towards the building and finishing of churches, purchasing scites, church-yards, burying places; and houses for ministers, repairing the said collegiate church of Saint Peter, Westminster, and the chapels of the same, finishing Greenwich Hospital, and the chapel thereunto belonging, and making provisions for ministers, according to the true intention of the said former acts of parliament; and being also desirous to make good the supply granted to your Majesty in this session of parliament, by making provision to raise a sum, not exceeding the said sum of five hundred twenty eight thousand three hundred and twenty pounds; one shilling, and nine pence; and being also desirous to have the said surplusses reserved for the use of the publick as aforesaid, do most humbly present to your Majesty the several impositions, rates, and duties herein-after mentioned, and do most humbly pray that it may be, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That for all sorts of coals and culm which, from and after the twenty seventh day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five; and before the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty one, shall be imported and brought into the port of the city of London, or the river of Thames within the liberty of the said city upon the same river, there shall be paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by way of imposition thereupon, (over and above all other impositions and duties) according to the rates hereafter mentioned; (that is to say) For such sort of coals and culm as are usually sold by the chalders, for every chalders thereof, containing thirty six bushels Winchester measure, the sum of three shillings; and for such sort of coals as are sold by the tun, for every tun thereof, containing twenty hundred weight, the sum of three shillings.

And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said respective sums of three shillings for every chalders of coals and culm, and of coals, which from time to time, from and after the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and before the said feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty one, shall be imported or brought into the said port or river within the liberty of the said city, as aforesaid, and payable by virtue of the said acts of the ninth year of her late Majesty's reign, and the first year of this Majesty's reign, and by virtue of this present act, every or any of them,

Coals and culm imported into the port of London, after 27 Sept. 1725, and before 25 March, 1751, to pay, viz. 3 s. per chalders and tun. These duties are made perpetual by 6 Geo. 1. c. 4. sect. 1.

them, shall from time to time be under the management of the commissioners and officers of his Majesty's customs for the time being, according to such orders and directions as are or shall from time to time be given by the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them now being, or by the high treasurer, or any three or more of the commissioners of the treasury for the time being; and shall or may from time to time be raised, levied, collected, and paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in such manner, method, and form, and at such places, and by such rules, ways, and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as are mentioned, expressed, and referred unto in and by any act, law, or statute, acts, laws, or statutes now in force, for raising, levying, collecting, or answering any other duty or duties now payable to his Majesty for or upon any coals or culm whatsoever imported or brought coastwise into the said port of London; and that all and every the powers, authorities, penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, articles, rules, and clauses in the same acts, laws, and statutes, or any of them, mentioned or contained, (except such and so much of them, for and concerning which it is otherwise provided in this and the said recited acts, or any of them) shall be of such force and effect, to all intents and purposes, for the raising, levying, collecting, and answering the impositions hereby granted, for and during the said term or time herein-before limited, as if the same were particularly and at large set down and enacted by this act; any former law, custom, or usage whatsoever to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

III. Provided, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend, or be construed to extend, to charge or lay any of the duties or impositions hereby imposed upon such coals (not exceeding one hundred chalders by the year) as shall be brought into the port of London, from Newcastle upon Tyne, or any other place, for the only use and service of the royal hospital at Chelsea; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every such sum and sums of money as shall be raised, collected, or levied by virtue of the said recited act of the ninth year of her said late Majesty's reign, and by virtue of the said recited act of the first year of his Majesty's reign, and by virtue of this present act, every or any of them, of or for the said duties on coals and culm to be imported and brought into the said port of the city of London, or the river of Thames within the liberty of the said city upon the same river, at any time or times, from and after the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and before the said feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, one thousand seven hundred and fifty one, (the necessary charges of raising, managing, and accounting for the same always excepted) shall from time to time be brought and paid into the receipt of Exchequer; and the same monies (other than such surplus monies as are to be reserved for future disposition by parliament as aforesaid) are and shall be, by force and virtue of this act, appropriated, issued, applied, and disposed to and for the several and respective uses and purposes in and by this present act prescribed and directed, and concerning the same, and to and for none other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever; any former act or acts of parliament, or any appropriation, direction, clause or clauses, matter or thing whatsoever, therein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

V. And to the end a good and sufficient fund and security may be established for raising the said sum of three hundred and sixty thousand pounds, in such proportions at a time as shall be needed, for the purposes in this act particularly expressed, of and concerning the same; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That yearly and every year, from and after the said feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, for and during the term of thirty two years from thence next ensuing, the full sum of twenty and one thousand pounds, by or out of the monies of or for the said several duties on coals and culm by this act appropriated as aforesaid, shall be and is by this act declared and enacted to be a particular fund and security for answering and paying, as well the principal as the interest of the said sum of three hundred and sixty thousand pounds, in such course, manner, and form, as are hereafter in this act prescribed in that behalf: and the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury now being, and the treasurer and under treasurer of the Exchequer, and commissioners of the treasury of his Majesty, his heirs and successors for the time being, are hereby strictly enjoined and required to cause the said yearly sum of twenty and one thousand pounds to be applied according to this act, out of the duties arising as aforesaid, with preference to any other payments to be made out of the same; any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, or any three or more of them now being, and the treasurer and under treasurer of the Exchequer, or any three or more of the commissioners of the treasury for the time being, (without any further or other warrant or authority to be sued for, had or obtained in that behalf) from time to time to direct the officers at the receipt of the Exchequer to receive, by way of loan, from any person or persons, natives or foreigners, bodies politick or corporate, willing to make such loan or loans upon credit of the said particular fund of twenty and one thousand pounds per annum by this act established as aforesaid, such sum and sums of money as any five or more of the persons appointed, or to be appointed by commission or letters patents under the great seal of Great Britain, shall from time to time, or at any time or times, think necessary, and shall, by writing under the hands of them, or any five or more of them, desire to be raised by way of loan for the buildings, repairs, and other purposes by the said recited acts intended; and to allow interest, not exceeding the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, for the forbearance thereof; and that the monies so lent shall not be taxed or assessed by any act of parliament whatsoever; and that such lenders shall have tallies of loan and orders for their repayment, with such interest as aforesaid, out of the said particular fund of twenty and one thousand pounds per annum, the principal to be paid in course according to the respective dates of the tallies, and the interest every three months, until the repayment of the principal, so that at the end of every quarter of a year the said interest then due shall be paid, or money sufficient shall be reserved for payment thereof; and the rest of the money of the same particular fund then remaining in the Exchequer shall be issued and applied, from time to time, towards satisfaction of the said principal in course as aforesaid; and so as care be taken, that as the principal be paid off, the interest be proportionably sunk and paid; and that no fee, reward, or gratuity shall be demanded or taken in or for the payment thereof; and that the money of the said particular fund of twenty and one thousand pounds per annum shall be liable to satisfy such orders accordingly, without being diverted from the same to any other use, intent, or purpose, upon pain of forfeiting treble damages, with full costs of suit, to the party grieved by the party offending; and that such orders shall be assignable by endorsements thereupon, according to the course in such cases used in the Exchequer; any law or statute whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

VII. And it is hereby enacted, That all the monies to arise by way of loan upon credit of the said particular fund of twenty and one thousand pounds per annum, and all the monies of the same fund (except so much thereof as is to be applied for repayment of the principal and satisfaction of the interest of the loans which shall be made thereupon, as aforesaid) are hereby appropriated, and shall be applied for or towards the building and finishing

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, or any three or more of them now being, and the high treasurer and under treasurer of the Exchequer, or any three or more of the commissioners of the treasury for the time being, and they are hereby directed and authorized (without any further or other warrant or authority to be sued for, had or obtained, in that behalf) from time to time to issue and pay, or cause to be issued and paid, out of the monies to arise by way of loan upon credit of the said particular fund of twenty and one thousand pounds per annum, and out of the monies of the said particular fund of twenty and one thousand pounds per annum, (except so much of the same particular yearly fund as is to be applied for the payment of principal and satisfaction of the interest of the loans to be made upon the same as aforesaid) such sum and sums of money as shall be thought meet and necessary by the said commissioners appointed or to be appointed to take care of the said buildings as aforesaid, or any five or more of them, for the buildings, repairs, and other the services last before mentioned; which monies so to be issued as aforesaid shall be paid unto such person or persons, (not being of the number of the said commissioners) for the ends and purposes aforesaid, as his Majesty, his heirs or successors, shall from time to time direct and appoint to be the treasurer or treasurers in this behalf; and shall be received by him or them by way of imprest, and be accounted for only by such treasurer or treasurers; and shall be disbursed, expended, and applied by such treasurer and treasurers respectively, according to such orders and warrants as he or they shall receive from time to time from the said commissioners for the said buildings and repairs, or any five or more of them, for all or any the uses and services before by this or the said former acts prescribed or allowed in that behalf, and not otherwise, or to any other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever; which said treasurer and treasurers respectively shall be accountable in the Exchequer for the same, and shall give such sufficient security as shall be approved by the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them now being, or by the treasurer and under treasurer of the exchequer, or any three or more of the commissioners of the treasury for the time being, before he or they enter upon his or their office, for making such accounts.

X. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the produce of the said duties which shall come or be brought into the receipt of Exchequer for such coals or culm, as aforesaid, imported or to be imported before the said feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall be issued and applied in such manner as the same ought to have been issued and applied by or in pursuance of the said former acts, or any of them, if this present act had not been made; and if it shall appear, after the application thereof, that any money shall remain unsatisfied for principal or interest upon the register of loans kept at the Exchequer, by virtue or in pursuance of the said act of the ninth and tenth years of her late Majesty's reign, or either of them, then such remainder so unsatisfied shall be paid and discharged out of the first monies to be raised or paid in part of the said sum of three hundred and sixty thousand pounds; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XI. And it is hereby enacted, That all such powers, provisos, directions, and clauses contained in the said recited acts of the ninth and tenth years of her said late Majesty's reign, and in the said act of the first year of his Majesty's reign, or in any other act or acts of parliament touching the building and repairing of the said churches, and any other matters and things therein specified, as are now in force, and are not taken away or altered by this present act, shall continue and be in force, to all intents and purposes, as if the same powers, directions, provisos and clauses were repeated and re-enacted in the body of this act.

The powers, &c. in the former acts continued. 1 Geo. 1. stat. 2. c. 23.

XIII. And to the end a good and sufficient fund and security may be settled and established for raising the sum of five hundred and five thousand nine hundred ninety and five pounds, part of the said sum of five hundred twenty eight thousand three hundred and twenty pounds, one shilling, and nine pence, for making good the supply granted to his Majesty in this session of parliament; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That yearly and every year, from and after the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, for and during the term of thirty two years from thence next immediately ensuing, the full sum of thirty thousand five hundred fifty and nine pounds, and fourteen shillings per annum, by or out of the monies of or for the said several duties on coals and culm by this act appropriated, or intended to be appropriated as aforesaid, shall be and by this act is declared and enacted to be a particular fund and security for answering and paying, as well the principal as the interest of the fortunate lots or chances herein-after mentioned, in such course, manner, and form, as are hereafter in this act prescribed in that behalf: and the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury now being, and the high treasurer and under treasurer of the Exchequer, and the commissioners of the treasury of his Majesty, his heirs and successors for the time being, are hereby strictly enjoined and required to cause the said yearly sum of thirty thousand five hundred fifty nine pounds, and fourteen shillings, to be from time to time set apart, issued, and applied according to this act, out of the duties arising as aforesaid; any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

After Lady-day, 1717, for 32 years, 30,559 l. 14 s. per ann. to be the fund for the fortunate lots.

Anno quinto

GEORGE II. I. Regis.

C A P. XI.

An act against clandestine running of uncustomed goods, and for the more effectual preventing of frauds relating to the customs.

WHEREAS the laws already made for preventing the unlawful importing and clandestine running and landing of customable and prohibited goods and merchandizes, have by experience been found to be ineffectual to prevent such illegal practices, whereby his Majesty is greatly defrauded of and in duties, and fair traders, who duly pay duties, are very much discouraged and injured in their trades: and whereas for the better carrying on such private and clandestine trade, divers small vessels, under the burthen of fifteen tons, are generally employed in the undue importing, running, and landing foreign brandy, strong waters, and spirits, contrary to the laws already made and in force: for remedy thereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That if any foreign brandy, arrack, rum, strong waters, or spirits of any kind whatsoever,

After 25 March, 1719, brandy, &c. imported in any ship under 15 tons, such ship forfeited, soever, shall, from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, be imported or brought into Great Britain, or into any port, harbour, haven, or creek thereof, in any ship, vessel, or boat, under the burthen of fifteen tons, (except only for the use of the seamen then belonging to and on board such ship, vessel, or boat, not exceeding one gallon for each such seamen) every such ship, vessel, or boat, with all her tackle, furniture, and apparel, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized by any officer or officers of the customs, and shall and may be proceeded against and recovered in the manner herein-after mentioned; and after the seizure and condemnation of such ship, vessel, or boat, the principal officers of his Majesty's customs in the port or place where the same shall be at the time of condemnation, are hereby directed to cause such ship, vessel, or boat, to be entirely broke up, and the materials to be publicly sold to the best advantage, together with the tackle, furniture, and apparel thereunto belonging, the produce whereof to be divided as herein-after mentioned.

II. And whereas rum is now imported in much greater proportions than formerly: and whereas the importing thereof in small casks or vessels is many times done with design that the same may more easily, privately, and clandestinely be carried off and conveyed without paying the duties: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, any rum shall be imported or brought into Great Britain, or into any port, harbour, haven, or creek thereof, in any cask or vessel not containing twenty gallons at the least, (excepting only for the use of the seamen then belonging to and on board such ship or vessel) all such rum, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited; nevertheless if it shall be made appear, to the satisfaction of the principal officers of the customs at the port of importation, that such rum is imported in small casks was for the use of the master or seamen belonging to the ship or vessel in the voyage, or imported by merchants or traders, without fraud or concealment, that then, and in every such case, the said officers are hereby empowered and directed to admit such rum to an entry, and cause the duties thereof to be accepted, instead of the forfeiture thereof before mentioned; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any foreign goods, wares, or merchandizes, shall, after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, by any collier, fisher-boat, or other coasting vessel or boat, be taken in at sea, or out of any ship or vessel whatsoever, in order to be landed or put into any other ship, vessel, or boat, within the limits of any port, without payment of the customs and other duties due and payable for the same, such goods, wares, and merchandizes shall be forfeited, and the master of such collier, fisher-boat, or other coasting vessel or boat, shall forfeit treble the value of such goods, unless in case of necessity, which such master shall immediately give notice of, and make proof before the chief officers of the customs of the first port of the kingdom where he shall arrive; and the master, purser, or other person taking charge of the ship or vessel, out of which such goods shall be taken at sea, unless in case of necessity, as aforesaid, shall forfeit treble the value of such goods so unshipt; one moiety of which forfeiture to be for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him, her, or them, who will inform or sue for the same, and shall and may be recovered in like manner as is herein-after mentioned.

IV. And whereas in ships from foreign parts, goods are often found at clearing such ships concealed in false bulk heads between the linings and false knees, in concealed lockers, in order to their being landed without payment of duties, that it is almost impossible for officers of the customs to discover them without having some previous information: for prevention of which fraudulent practices, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the

and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, all goods not reported, and found after the clearing the ship by the proper officer or officers of the customs, shall be liable to forfeiture, and such goods shall and may be seized and prosecuted in the manner herein-after mentioned; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

V. And whereas by an act made in the tenth year of the late Queen's reign, for laying additional duties on hides and skins, vellum and parchment, and new duties on starch, coffee, tea, drugs, and other things, certificates for the discharge of bonds given at the custom-house upon the exportation of coffee or tea, that the same shall not be reloaded in any part of Great Britain, are to be under the common seal of the chief magistrate in such place or places in parts beyond the seas, or under the hands and seals of two known British merchants then being at such place or places, that such coffee, tea, or drugs was there landed; which provision is found insufficient for the security of the revenue of customs against any secret reloading such coffee, tea, or drugs, in some part of this kingdom: and in regard a better provision may be made with respect to such goods exported to Ireland, as is made in the case of tobacco, by an act made in the eighth year of her said late Majesty's reign; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, no such bond given for the exportation of coffee, tea, or other certificate goods exported to Ireland, shall be delivered up, or any drawback allowed for any goods entitled thereto, until a certificate shall be produced under the hands and seals of the collector, controller, and surveyor of the customs of some port in Ireland, or any two of them, where such goods shall be landed, testifying the landing thereof; and for the future the condition of all such bonds, required by law to be given for the exportation of any of the said goods to Ireland, shall be, to produce such certificate in six months from the date thereof (the danger of the seas and enemies excepted;) and in case no such certificate shall be produced within the said time of six months, it shall and may be lawful for the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland respectively to cause such bonds to be put in suit, unless they shall find sufficient cause to forbear the same; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

VI. And whereas the remedies already provided by law, to prevent the reloading goods prohibited to be worn in this kingdom, and foreign goods shipped out for parts beyond the seas, have not been sufficient to put a stop to the fraudulent reloading such goods, to the prejudice of the revenue and the fair traders; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, if any such goods shall be unshipped, or put on shore, (unless in case of distress to save the ship from perishing, or in the presence of an officer of the customs) the said goods shall be forfeited; and if the master, purser, or other person, taking care of any ship wherein the said goods shall be laden, shall suffer or permit any of the said goods to be landed or unshipped, (unless as aforesaid) the said master, purser, or other person, taking care of such ship, shall forfeit the value of such goods so unshipped or landed; and the person or persons to whose hands or possession the said goods shall come, after the unshipping or landing thereof, he or they knowing the same to be so unshipped, shall forfeit double the value of the said goods, unless he or they shall make discovery thereof to the principal officers of the customs in six days after the said goods shall so come to his or their hands; provided the said goods shall not have been seized by, or information given thereof to any officer of the customs before such discovery.

VII. And whereas the persons concerned in carrying on the said fraudulent practices do frequently cause the package of such goods to be opened on board the ship, during the time she continues in port, whereby they have a better opportunity to reload the said goods: for the prevention whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the package of any such goods shall, shall, with the privity or consent of the master, purser, or other persons taking care of such ship or vessel, be opened on board any ship or vessel, or put into other form or package, during the time the said ship or vessel remains in port, without leave of one or more of the principal officers of the port, the said master, purser, or other person, taking care of such ship or vessel, shall forfeit one hundred pounds; and if the said master, purser, or other person taking care of such ship or vessel, shall permit or suffer any of the said goods to be unshipped or landed, or the package of any such goods to be opened, or put into any other form, without leave, as aforesaid, then such master, purser, or other person shall also suffer six months imprisonment, without bail or mainprize.

VIII. And whereas divers ships and vessels of the burthen of fifty tons, or under, laden with coffee, tea, cocoa nuts, French wrought silks, East India goods, prohibited to be worn in this kingdom, pepper, and other spices, brandy, spirits, and other customable and prohibited goods, pretending to be bound for foreign parts, do frequently lie hovering on the coasts of this kingdom, with intention to run the same privately on shore as opportunity offers, to the great diminution and loss of the revenue, and ruin of fair traders; and by reason of the said vessels so hovering, frequent opportunities are found for carrying on the clandestine trade of exporting wool, and other staple commodities of this kingdom prohibited to be transported: for the better preventing whereof, be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, where any ship or vessel of the burthen of fifty tuns, or under, laden with customable or prohibited goods, shall be found hovering on the coasts of this kingdom, within the limits of any port, and not proceeding on her voyage for foreign parts, or to some other port of this kingdom, wind and weather permitting, it shall and may be lawful to and for any officer or officers of his Majesty's customs to go on board every such ship or vessel, and to take an account of the lading, and to demand and take security from the master or other person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel in that voyage, by his own bond by him to be entered into unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in such sum or sums of money as shall be treble the value of such foreign goods then on board, with condition that such ship or vessel (as soon as wind and weather, and the state and condition of such ship or vessel doth permit) shall and will proceed regularly on such voyage, and shall land such foreign goods in and at some foreign port or ports; and if such master or other person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel, shall upon such demand refuse to enter into such bond, or having entered into such bond, shall not depart or proceed regularly on such voyage, (as soon as wind, weather, and the state and condition of such ship or vessel shall permit) unless otherwise suffered to make a longer stay by the collector (or other principal officer in his absence, of such port where such ship or vessel shall be, not exceeding twenty days) then, and in either of the said cases, all the foreign goods so on board such ship or vessel shall and may, by any officer or officers of the customs, by direction of the collector or other principal officer as aforesaid, be taken out of and from such ship or vessel, and forthwith brought on shore and secured; and in case the said goods are customable, the customs and other duties shall be paid for the same; and as concerning wool or any prohibited goods, or other goods liable to forfeiture, which may be found on board such ships or vessels at the time of their unlading, as aforesaid, the same are hereby declared to be subject to forfeiture, and the officers of the customs shall and may prosecute the same, as also the ship or vessel in case she shall be liable to condemnation, as in the manner herein-after mentioned.

IX. Provided always, That after such goods are so taken out of such ship or vessel, and brought on shore and secured by such officer or officers, bonds so to be given, as aforesaid, shall be void and delivered up within any fee or reward for taking or delivering up the same; and such bond not being otherwise discharged, shall on a proper certificate returned under the common seal of the chief magistrate in any place or places beyond the seas, or under the hands and seals of two known British merchants upon the place, that such goods were there landed, or upon proof by credible persons that such goods were taken by enemies or perished in the seas, (the examination and proof thereof being left to the judgment of the commissioners of the customs) shall be vacated and discharged.

How bonds not otherwise discharged, shall be vacated.

X. And whereas altering the package of coffee for exportation hath been found to be prejudicial to his Majesty's customs: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, no coffee shall be exported but such only as shall be contained in the original bale or package, or in some bale or package containing the same quantity therein, or in some bale or package containing not less than four hundred weight, and the same marks and numbers thereon with which it was first entered at his Majesty's custom-house; excepting only such coffee as shall be exported to his Majesty's plantations or Ireland.

Coffee to be exported in the original bale, or in some bale containing the same quantity, or not less than 400lb. &c.

Continuation of the several parts of this act.

Further continued by 20 Geo. 2. c. 47.

XI. Provided, and be it further enacted, That so much of this act as relates to the importation of foreign brandy, arrack, rum, strong waters, or spirits, in any ship, vessel, or boat under the burthen of fifteen tun; and so much of this act as relates to such foreign goods, wares, and merchandizes as shall be taken in at sea, and out of any ship or vessel, in order to be landed or put into any other ship, vessel, or boat; and so much of this act as relates to goods not reported, and found after clearing ships; and so much of this act as provides further remedies against relanding goods prohibited to be worn in this kingdom, and foreign goods shipped out for parts beyond the seas; and so much of this act as relates to the opening or altering the package of goods on board ships outward bound; and so much of this act as relates to hovering ships or vessels of the burthen of fifty tuns, or under; and so much of this act as concerns the bales or package in which coffee shall be exported; shall continue and be in force for three years, from the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer: and so much of this act as relates to rum imported in casks or vessels not containing twenty gallons at the least, shall continue and be in force from the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, for three years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer; and so much of this act as relates to certificate goods entered in order to be exported for Ireland, shall continue and be in force for three years from the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer.

XII. And whereas great quantities of wrought silks, bengals, and stuffs mixed with silk and herba, as also muslins, and other calicoes, of the manufacture of India, China, or East India, are, notwithstanding the laws already made to the contrary, frequently imported from foreign parts, and landed in Ireland, to the prejudice of fair traders: for the better preventing the same for the future, be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That none of the before mentioned goods shall, from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, be imported into the said kingdom of Ireland, from any place or places whatsoever, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this and the former acts, (other than from Great Britain) under penalty and forfeiture of all such of the aforesaid goods so imported, or value thereof, as also of the ship or vessel importing the same, with all guns, furniture, ammunition, tackle, and apparel; one moiety to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall seize, inform, or sue for the same, in any of his Majesty's courts of record record in Dublin, in the said kingdom of Ireland; and if any officer of officers of the customs in Ireland shall willingly or knowingly connive at the fraudulent importation of any of the goods afore-mentioned, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or if any such officer or officers shall take upon him or them to seize any of the said goods, and shall by fraud or collusion desist or delay the prosecution thereof to condemnation, he or they so conniving, desisting, or delaying, shall forfeit and lose the sum of five hundred pounds, to be sued for and divided in the manner aforesaid; and such officer or officers shall also be incapable of holding any office or employment under his Majesty, his heirs and successors.

XIII. *And whereas an act was made in the twelfth year of the late Queen, intituled, An act for the preserving all such ships and goods thereof which shall happen to be forced on shore, or stranded upon the coasts of this kingdom, or any other of her Majesty's dominions; wherein is recited, (among other things) That many ships of trade, after all their dangers at sea escaped, have unfortunately near home run on shore, or been stranded on the coasts thereof, and been barbarously plundered by his Majesty's subjects, and their cargoes imbrued; and when any part has been saved, it has been swallowed up by the exorbitant demands for salvage, to the great loss of his Majesty's revenue, and damage of his Majesty's trading subjects; and therefore it is by the said act (among other things) enacted, That such ships, vessels, or goods so to be saved, as therein is mentioned, shall remain in the custody of the officer of the customs or his deputy for the purposes of the said act; and if such goods shall not be legally claimed by the rightful owner within the time therein limited, that then publick sale shall be made thereof, (and if perishable goods, forthwith to be sold) and, after all charges deducted, the residue of the monies arising by such sale, with a fair and just account of the whole, shall be transmitted to his Majesty's exchequer, there to remain for the benefit of the owner; which act was made perpetual by another act of the fourth year of his Majesty's reign made in that behalf: and whereas from the want of express words whereby to subject stranded goods so saved to the payment of customs and other duties, a doubt has arisen, whether such goods are liable to pay the same, to the great loss of his Majesty's revenue, and contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said acts: be it therefore enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all goods, wares, and merchandizes, which, from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall be salvaged out of any ship or vessel that shall happen to be forced on shore, or stranded upon the coasts of this kingdom, (not being wrecked goods, or Jetsham, Flotsham, or Lagan) shall, after charges of salvage and other charges paid as aforesaid, be subject and liable to the payments of the like customs and other duties, with such drawbacks upon exportation, and the like allowances and abatements, as such goods, wares, or merchandizes would, by any law or laws now in force, be liable unto and entitled to have, in case the same were regularly imported; any thing in the aforesaid acts or any other act to the contrary notwithstanding.*

Sess. 1. c. 32.

XIV. *And whereas in the preamble of the act made in the first year of King William and Queen Mary, for the better preventing the exportation of wool, and encouraging the woollen manufactures of this kingdom, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shortlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth, fulling-clay, and tobacco pipe-clay, are enumerated; but in the enacting part thereof, which relates to the carrying wool coastwise, wool only is mentioned, and the other enumerated goods left out, whereby frequent opportunities are given for the exportation of them, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said act: it is therefore hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, the provision made for preventing the exportation of wool in and by the act before mentioned, is hereby directed and appointed to extend to wool-fells, mortlings, shortlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth, fulling-clay, &c.*

XV. And whereas great quantities of silks, callicoes, linens, or stuffs, printed, painted, stained, or dyed, in Great Britain, are exposed to sale without having a mark or stamp to denote the payment of the duties: and whereas such as have been so marked or stamped are frequently shipped off in order to be exported into parts beyond the seas, whereby the person or persons exporting the said goods are entitled to a great drawback; and it hath been found by experience, that great quantities of such goods, after they have been shipped for exportation, have been privately relanded in this realm; and the remedies already provided by law have not been sufficient to obviate a practice so prejudicial to his Majesty, and all fair and honest traders in such goods: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, during the continuance of the said duties, in case any silks, callicoes, linens, or stuffs, printed, painted, stained, or dyed, in Great Britain, shall be found in any place whatsoever, on land or water, without being marked or sealed with a stamp or seal, denoting that the duties have been duly paid or charged, (except on board such ships or vessels on which such goods have been shipped for exportation) the same shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized by any officer of the customs or excise; and the person or persons in whose custody or possession the goods so seized shall be found, shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of fifty pounds; one moiety of which forfeitures and penalties shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall seize, inform, or sue for the same in his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland, wherein no protection or wager of law shall be allowed: provided always, that the goods so recovered shall not be delivered out of the custom-house-warehouse until the same shall be marked or sealed with a proper mark or stamp, to be provided by the commissioners of the customs for that purpose: and they are hereby directed and authorized to provide the same, and to cause the said goods to be stamped therewith accordingly; any law to the contrary notwithstanding.

After 1 May, 1719, painted silks, callicoes, &c. unmarked, forfeited.

Penalty on possessor.

XVI. And whereas in and by an act made in the third and fourth years of her late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for encouraging the importation of naval stores from her Majesty's plantations in America, it was amongst other things declared and enacted, That every person or persons who should import, or cause to be imported, tar or pitch into this kingdom, directly from any of his Majesty's plantations in America, within the time therein mentioned, he or they importing the same should have and enjoy a reward or premium of four pounds for every tun containing eight (a) barrels, and each barrel gauging thirty one gallons and one half of good and merchantable tar; and the like reward or premium for every tun of good and merchantable pitch, each tun containing twenty gross hundreds, (nett pitch) to be brought in eight barrels; and by another act made the twelfth year of the reign of her said late Majesty, intituled, An act for continuing an act made in the third and fourth years of the reign of her said late Majesty, intituled, An act for encouraging the importation of naval stores from her Majesty's plantations in America; and for the encouraging the importation of naval stores from that part of Great Britain called Scotland to that part of Great Britain called England, the first mentioned act, and every thing therein contained, is continued from the time of the expiration of the same for and during the term of eleven years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament: and it is thereby enacted, That the like rewards or premiums shall be allowed on the importation of good and merchantable tar and pitch from North America into any part of South Britain, in such manner as is therein mentioned: and whereas complaints have been made by the commissioners or principal officers of his Majesty's navy, that tar brought from the said plantations is frequently mixed with dross or water, and that dirt or dross is often found in the pitch, whereby the same are unfit for the service of his Majesty's navy: be it therefore fore declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, no certificate shall be made out in order to allow the premium or reward for any such pitch, until the same be freed from dirt or drofs, or for any such tar that is not fitting to be used for making cordage, and that shall not be freed from drofs and water, and unless such pitch and tar be clean, good, merchantable, and well-conditioned.

XVII. And whereas by the said last-mentioned acts the person or persons importing such pitch and tar are entitled to the said premium or reward, upon a certificate from the officers of the customs where such pitch and tar is imported: and whereas the said officers have not sufficient authority by the said acts to examine the said pitch and tar so strictly as they ought to do, to enable them in judgment to certify whether the same is good and merchantable: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the officers of the customs, before they make any such certificate, to examine the said pitch by opening the heads of the barrels wherein it is imported, sawing of the staves in the middle and breaking the barrel, or so many of them as they find sufficient to make a proof, or by such other means as they shall think proper, to find out and discover whether the said pitch is good and merchantable, not mixed with dirt or drofs; and also it shall and may be lawful to and for the said officers to examine and search the said tar, to find out and discover whether the same is clean, good, merchantable, well-conditioned, and clear of drofs or water, and fit for making cordage.

XVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no fee, gratuity, or reward shall be demanded, taken, or received by any officers of the customs for the examining, viewing, or delivering such pitch, tar, or other naval stores, with respect to the premium or reward allowed by the acts afore-mentioned, or for the making or signing a certificate in order to the receiving such premium or reward, under the penalty of the loss of his office; and such officer shall be also incapable of serving his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds to such person or persons as will inform and sue for the same, by action of debt, or of the case, bill, suit, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be granted or allowed.

XIX. And whereas an act made in the twenty second year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act to prevent the planting of tobacco in England, and regulating the plantation trade, was by several subsequent acts continued, and by an act made in the eleventh year of the reign of King William the Third, was to have continuance for the space of seven years from the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, which act has been by experience found beneficial to the trade of this kingdom, and the dominions and plantations therein belonging: but some doubt hath arisen, whether the same hath had continuance by the acts for continuing the acts of tunnage and poundage: for obviating which doubt, be it hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said act of the twenty second year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and every clause therein contained, hath and shall have continuance for and during such time as the act of tunnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of the said King Charles the Second, is continued, and no longer.

XXI. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the tenth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act to prevent the exportation of wool out of the kingdoms of Ireland and England into foreign parts, and for the encouragement of the woollen manufactures in the kingdom of England, it was enacted, That no person or persons whatsoever from and after the four and twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, should directly or indirectly export, trans-

ship off, carry or convey, or cause or procure to be exported, transported, shipped off, carried or conveyed out of or from the said kingdom of Ireland into any foreign realm, states or dominions, or into any parts or places whatsoever, other than the parts within the kingdom of England or the dominion of Wales, any the wool, wool-fells, shortlings, mortlings, wool-flocks, worsted, hay or woollen yarn, cloth, serge, bays, kerseys, says, frizes, druggets, cloth-serges, shalloons, or any other drapery stuffs or woollen manufactures whatsoever, made up or mixt with wool or wool-flocks, or should directly or indirectly load or cause to be laden upon any horse, cart, or other carriage, or load or lay on board, or cause to be laden or laid on board, in any ship or vessel in any place or part within or belonging to the said kingdom of Ireland, any such wool or other the matters aforesaid, to the intent or purpose to export, transport, ship off, carry or convey the same, or cause the same to be exported, transported, shipped off, carried or conveyed, out of the said kingdom of Ireland, or out of any port or place belonging to the same, or with intent or purpose that any person or persons whatsoever should so export, transport, ship off, carry or convey the same out of the said kingdom of Ireland into any ports or places, (except as aforesaid) upon pain of forfeiting the said wool and other matters aforesaid so exported, transported, shipped off or carried, conveyed or laden, contrary to the true intent and meaning of that act, and under other the penalties therein mentioned: and whereas it is further enacted by the said act, That it should and might be lawful to and for any person or persons to seize, take, secure and convey to his Majesty's next warehouse all such wool and other the matters aforesaid, as he or they should happen to see, find, know or discover to be laid on board in any ship, vessel, or boat, or to be brought, carried or laid on shore at or near the sea or any navigable river or water, to the intent or purpose to be exported or conveyed out of the said kingdom of Ireland, contrary to the true meaning of that act; and that such person or persons who should happen so to seize, take or secure any of the commodities aforesaid, should be indemnified for so doing to all intents and purposes: but it is not provided by the said act, That the said wool and other the commodities aforesaid, which should be brought, carried or laid on shore at or near the sea, or any navigable river or water, to the intent or purpose to be exported or conveyed out of the said kingdom of Ireland, contrary to the meaning of that act, should be forfeited: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the four and twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, all such wool, and other the commodities aforesaid, which shall be brought, carried or laid on shore at or near the sea, or any navigable river or water, to the intent or purpose to be exported or conveyed out of the said kingdom of Ireland, contrary to the true meaning of that act, shall be forfeited, and the offender and offenders therein shall be subject and liable to the like forfeitures, pains and penalties, as persons by that act are subject unto for exporting, transporting or shipping of wool, or other the commodities aforesaid, contrary to the true intent and meaning of that act; and that such forfeitures, pains and penalties shall be recovered and distributed as other the pains, penalties and forfeitures in that act are by any law now in force to be recovered and distributed.

After 24 June, 1719, wool laid on shore near the sea to be conveyed out of Ireland into foreign parts, forfeited.

XXII. And whereas an act passed in the first year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act to prevent the mischiefs by manufacturing leaves or other things to resemble tobacco, and the abuses in making and mixing of snuff; and whereas the provisions made by the said act, so far as relates to snuff, have proved ineffectual by reason of some doubts which have arisen, whether the powers granted by the said act to prevent the mischiefs by manufacturing leaves or other things to resemble tobacco, can be extended to such persons who commit abuses in making and mixing of snuff: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said recited act made in the first year of the reign of his present Majesty, and all the clauses, rules, directions, powers, matters and things therein contained, shall extend and be in full force against any person or persons who shall, after the five and twentieth day

XXIV. And whereas by reason of the great duties which are payable on several foreign goods and merchandizes, fraudulent practices and combinations may be carried on between the importers and owners of such goods, by themselves or their agents, and the officers of the revenue, in pursuance whereof such goods are seized, and after condemnation, on payment of the King's share of the value at which the same shall be appraised (which value is very often less than the duties) such goods are returned to the importers and owners, or their agents, upon their giving a moderate gratification to the officer, according to the agreement made, whereby his Majesty may be greatly defrauded of his duties: for prevention whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any officer of the revenue shall, directly or indirectly, make any collusive seizure of foreign goods, to the intent that the same may escape payment of the duties, he shall not only forfeit the sum of five hundred pounds, but be incapable of serving his Majesty in any office or employment in the revenue; as also the importer and owner of the goods so collusively seized, shall forfeit treble the value thereof; one moiety of which penalties and forfeitures shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them who shall inform or sue for the same by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, or any more than one imparlance, shall be allowed.

XXV. Provided nevertheless, That if the officer or importer and owner of the goods shall discover such his offence to the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland respectively, within two months after the same shall have been committed, so as his accomplice or accomplices in such collusive seizure be convicted thereof, the offender so discovering shall be clearly acquitted and discharged of such his offence.

XXVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any person, other than the officer of the revenue making such collusive seizure, or the importer and owner of the goods so seized, shall within three months after such seizure discover to the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland respectively, any person or persons who shall have been guilty of such fraud, so as such person or persons be convicted thereof, the person so discovering shall receive to his own use one half part of his Majesty's share of what shall be recovered on the conviction of such offender or offenders.

XXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all cases touching which no special distribution is provided by this act, one moiety of the several penalties and forfeitures in this act mentioned shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to such person or persons as shall sue for and prosecute the same by bill, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or the court of Exchequer in Scotland, (except where it is in this act otherwise directed) wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

GEORGE II. I. Regis.

C A P. XVIII.

An act for recovering the credit of the British Fishery in foreign parts; and better securing the duties on salt.

SECT. VI. AND for the better encouragement of the fishing trade of Great Britain, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for all such fish hereafter mentioned as shall be exported from any port or place in Great Britain into parts beyond the seas, by any person or persons whatsoever, the rates or sums of money hereafter expressed; that is to say, For every cask or vessel of pilchards or scads, containing fifty gallons, seven shillings; for every hundred of codfish, ling, or hake, (except dried codfish, ling, or hake, commonly called haberdines) which shall contain in length fourteen inches, or upwards, from the bone in the fin to the third joint in the tail of every such fish, five shillings; for every barrel of wet codfish, ling, or hake, containing thirty two gallons, two shillings; for every hundred weight of dried codfish, ling, or hake, commonly called haberdines, three shillings; for every barrel of salmon, containing forty two gallons, four shillings and six pence; for every barrel of white herrings, containing thirty two gallons, two shillings and eight pence; for every barrel of full red herrings, containing thirty two gallons, one shilling and nine pence; for every barrel of clean shotten red herrings, containing thirty two gallons, one shilling; for every last of dried red sprats, one shilling; and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity of all and every the said kinds of fish, shall be paid by the officer appointed to collect the duties on salt in the same port from whence any such fish shall be exported, within thirty days after demand thereof, on a debenture to be prepared by the collector of the customs in the port where such fish shall be entered out for exportation, and verified by the person executing the office of searcher in such port, as to the quantity of fish actually shipped; and that the oath of the exporter or agent be first taken before the principal officers of the said port before the debenture be allowed, (who are hereby required and impowered to give the said oath) that the fish in such debenture mentioned were British taken, and actually exported to or for parts beyond the seas, and not relanded, or intended to be relanded in Great Britain, for which debenture no fee or reward shall be taken; and in case the officer hereby directed to pay such debenture shall not have sufficient money in his hands to pay the same, then upon certificate hereof by him made, (which certificate he is hereby required to give the party gratis, and without delay) the principal commissioners for managing His Majesty's revenue of excise upon salt for the time being, shall be chargeable with the said payment, to be made in course out of the first money in their hands arising out of the said duties upon salt; and the said debentures for fish exported from Scotland, shall be paid by the commissioners of the customs or excise in Scotland at the option of the merchant, in the same manner as debentures for fish exported are now by law made payable; and any officer neglecting or refusing to pay the said money, or to give such certificate as is here directed, shall forfeit double the sum so to be paid to the partyrieved, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed; and that it shall and may be lawful for the officers for the said duties on salt, upon the exportation of any codfish, ling, or hake, and before the same shall be laid on board for exportation, to cut off part of the tail of every such codfish, ling, or hake, to the intent it may be known that such codfish, ling, or hake hath been exported; and allowances obtained on exportation thereof, in case the same shall be re-landed or re-imported; and also that it shall be lawful, upon the exportation of any pilchards, scads, white herrings, red herrings, salmon, or dried red sprats, and before the same shall be laid on board for exportation, to mark any cask, barrel, or other vessel, wherein any such pilchards, scads, white herrings, red herrings, salmon, or dried red sprats, shall be exported, to the intent it may be known that such pilchard, scads, white herrings, red herrings, salmon, or dried red sprats, have been exported, and allowance obtained on exportation of the same, in case the same be re-landed or re-imported; and that in case any codfish, ling, or hake, or any pilchards, scads, white herrings, red herrings, salmon, or dried red sprats, shall (after the same shall be exported) be fraudulently re-landed in Great Britain, or re-imported, all the said fish so re-landed or re-imported shall be forfeited and lost, and double the value thereof, to be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; and that no allowance shall be paid out of the said duties on salt for or on account of the exportation of any fish that shall not be well cured, or shall be unmerchantable.

VIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That where any fish, entitled by law to any premium or allowance upon exportation thereof, shall be laden for exportation, and duly entered and past by the proper officer, at any time after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and the said fish shall be lost or spoiled before the ship's proceeding on her voyage, as aforesaid, then the proper officer of the port or ports where the said fish so lost or spoiled was or shall be entered, shall be obliged, upon due proof thereof made upon oath before any of the chief officers of such port, who have hereby power to administer the same, by the proprietor or proprietors of the said fish, or his or their agents, to make out debentures for the premium or bounty of the said fish, as if the said fish had been actually exported to parts beyond the seas; provided the said fish was sunk in the sea or port where the said ship was lost, or destroyed in the sight of the proper officer where any of the said fish shall come on shore, and that no use be made of the said fish by the proprietor or proprietors, or his or their agents; and that the said officer is hereby required to cause such fish to be burnt, or otherwise destroyed; any thing in this or any other act to the contrary notwithstanding.

3 Geo. 1. c. 4.

XI. And whereas by an act made in the third year of the reign of his present majesty King George, intituled, An act for continuing the duties on malmsey, cyder, and perry, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and seventeen; and to authorize allowanees to be made to certain receivers; and to obviate a doubt concerning goods imported from the islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Sark, and Alderney; and to ascertain the duties upon sheep-skins and lamb-skins; and to prevent frauds in the duties upon starch, and for making forth duplicates of Exchequer bills, lottery tickets, and orders, lost and burnt, or destroyed; and for enlarging the time for adjusting claims in several lotteries; and for preventing frauds in the duties on low wines and spirits carried coastwise, it is enacted, That the inhabitants of the islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Sark, and Alderney, shall and may, with or without such certificates and oaths as are therein mentioned, import into any port of Great Britain any goods, wares, or merchandizes of the growth, produce, and manufacture of the said islands, or any of them, without paying any customs, subsidies, or duties for or in respect thereof, except such excise or other duties as are now or shall hereafter, for the time being, be due and payable for the goods of the growth, produce, and manufacture of Great Britain: and whereas it is found by experience, that the indulgence and bounty given by the said act, has been an occasion of tempting many evil-disposed persons to bring in great quantities of French salt from Guernsey, under a pretence that the same was of the produce of that island, by certificates, which are since discovered to be forged, the great prejudice of the revenue, and the diminution of the trade of the makers of salt in Great Britain: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, all salt imported from any of the said islands shall be liable to the same duties upon the importation thereof as any other foreign salt whatsoever.

XVIII. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the second and third years of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for the better securing and regulating the duties upon salt, it is provided, That in case any ship or vessel should come into any port of England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, from Ireland, or any other foreign part, having on board any quantity of salt, which was taken in only for the necessary provisions of the ship for such voyage, or for curing of fish, it should be lawful for the master of such ship or vessel to land the salt, so as an entry should be made thereof within ten days after his first coming into such port, and the duties paid down or secured for the same before the same or any part thereof should be landed or taken out of any ship or vessel; nevertheless, for want of sufficient penalties to enforce obedience thereto, several masters of vessels, who since the making the said act have imported such salt, have refused or neglected to enter and pay the duties for the salt by them so imported as aforesaid, within the time limited by the said act: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any master of any ship or vessel, who shall, after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, import or bring into any port or place of Great Britain, from Ireland or any other foreign part, any quantity of salt which was taken in only for the necessary provisions of the ship for such voyage, or for curing of fish as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to enter and pay, or secure the duty for the same, within ten days after his first coming into any such port or place, and before the same or any part thereof shall be landed or taken out of any such ship or vessel, all the salt so imported shall be forfeited and lost, and the master or other person, commander of the ship or vessel wherein any such salt shall be imported, or the owner or importer of such salt, shall likewise forfeit double the value thereof.

XX. And be it further enacted, That all and every master and commander of any ship or vessel whatsoever, that, from and after the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall transport or carry any foreign salt from Scotland, or any of the islands thereunto belonging, into England, or from any one place or port to any other port or place within the kingdom of Great Britain, shall, before he or they land or deliver such salt on shore, (by him so transported or carried) deliver to the officers for collecting the duties on salt in the said port or place appointed to receive the same, a true particular of the quantity so transported and carried as aforesaid, signed by the officers for collecting the said duties on salt, by the officers of the customs for the port or place from whence the ship or vessel came; and then the master or his mate, or the boatswain of such ship or vessel shall make oath before the commissioners for collecting the said duties on salt, or their officers, some or one of them, (who are by law empowered to administer the same without fee or reward) that to his knowledge there hath not been laid on board or taken into the said ship or vessel any salt since he or they came from such port as aforesaid; and in case a ship or vessel be to deliver one part of her salt at one port, and another at another port or ports, that then the officers for collecting the said duties, and officers of the customs where such salt shall be delivered, shall signify on the backside of the cocquet, Transire, or other warrant, or else by certificate only under the hands and seals of the officers, how much and what quantity of the salt mentioned in the cocquet, Transire, or other warrant, in the port from whence such ship or vessel came, hath been there landed or delivered, upon the penalty of forfeiting double the value of the salt which shall be otherwise delivered, and ten shillings per bushel.

After May 1, 1719, Salt imported from Jersey, &c. shall be liable to the same duties as other foreign salt. 2 & 3 Ann. c. 14.

Foreign salt imported, taken in for necessary provision for the voyage, or for curing of fish, not entered in ten days, forfeited, and double the value.

XXII. And whereas the importers of foreign salt do, after they come into port, and before they enter and land the same, or proceed further on their voyage to some other port, frequently run salt in boats and other small vessels in the night time; and if the officers discover the same, the persons on board such boats or other vessels not only refuse to suffer the officers to come on board to see if they have any salt in their vessels, but frequently beat and abuse them: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, it shall and may be lawful to and for the officers of the customs, or the officers of the duties on salt, and every of them, to go on board any boat, lighter, or other vessel, lying in any port or place or riding upon the sea coasts, and to search the same, and to see if there be any salt on board, and to seize such salt, in case the same be found in any other vessel than that wherein such salt was imported or brought into the said port or place, unless the same had been duly entred, or the duties paid or secured; and all such salt shall be forfeited and lost, or the value thereof, to be recovered of the master or owner of such boat or vessel, who shall likewise be liable to all other penalties and forfeitures, as if the same had been landed without entring or payment of the duty; and every person or persons who shall obstruct or hinder any officer or officers in going on board any such boat or vessel and searching the same, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and lose the sum of forty pounds.

XXIV. And whereas the importers of foreign salt do frequently run the same on shore without entry or payment of duty; which evil practice might in a great measure be prevented, if more suitable penalties were provided for discouraging the same: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any foreign salt shall be landed or put on shore before due entry be made thereof with the collector or officer appointed for the said duties on salt in the port or place where the same shall be imported, or before the duty thereon be fully satisfied and paid, or without a warrant for the landing thereof, every person who shall land or put the same on shore, or convey the same from the shore when landed, or be aiding or assisting therein, shall, over and above the penalties already given by law for such offence, forfeit and lose the sum of one hundred pounds.

XXVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all penalties and forfeitures given by this act, or any other law relating to the duties upon salt, (except where it is otherwise directed by this act) shall be distributed in manner following; (that is to say) one moiety thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the officer and officers who shall seize, sue, or inform for the same, to be sued for, recovered, and levied in such manner and form, and with such power of mitigation, as any fine, penalty, or forfeiture may be sued for, recovered, levied, and mitigated by any law of excise, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster; and all and every officer and officers for the said duties on salt, are hereby authorized and impowered to seize all salt and other things which by this or any other act or law relating to the duties on salt, are declared to be forfeited.

XXVII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall at any time be sued or prosecuted for any thing by him or them done or executed, in pursuance of this or any other statute relating to the duties upon salt, or the powers thereby given, he or they shall or may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence for his defence; and if upon trial a verdict pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs become nonsuit, discontinue, or forbear prosecuting the said actions, then such defendant or defendants shall have double costs to him or them awarded against such plaintiff or plaintiffs, which costs he shall have remedy, as in other cases where costs are by law given to defendants.

GEORGE II. I. Regis.

C A P. XIX.

An act for redeeming the fund appropriated for payment of the lottery tickets which were made forth for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, by a voluntary subscription of the proprietors into the capital stock of the South Sea company; and for raising a sum of money to pay off such debts and incumbrances as are therein mentioned; and for appropriating the supplies granted in this session of parliament; and to limit times for prosecutions upon bonds for exporting cards and dice.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made and passed in the eighth year 8 Ann. c. 4. of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, of blessed memory, intituled, An act for continuing part of the duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, and granting new duties upon houses having twenty windows or more, to raise the sum of fifteen hundred thousand pounds, by way of a lottery, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, it was enacted, That, for and during the term of thirty two years, which commenced from the twenty ninth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, there should be raised, levied, collected, and paid to her said Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all coals, culm, and cynders therein expressed, (except charcoal made of wood) the several and respective additional or new impositions, rates, duties, and sums of money in that act particularly mentioned; and for and upon every dwelling house inhabited, that then was, and thereafter should be erected or built within the kingdom of Great Britain, having twenty windows or more, the several new duties in that act expressed: and it was thereby enacted, That yearly and every year, during the said term, the sum of one hundred thirty five thousand pounds by or out of the monies to arise from the said several and respective duties, and to be brought into the receipt of the Exchequer, in case the same should extend thereunto, should be the whole and entire yearly fund; and in case all the monies arising into the Exchequer of or for the said duties, should not amount to one hundred and thirty five thousand pounds per annum, then the monies so arising, so far as the same would extend, should be paid out of the yearly fund for and towards answering or paying the annuities therein after mentioned; and in case the said duties should at any time or times appear to be so deficient or low in the produce of the same, as that within any year the said monies arising into the Exchequer for or upon account of the said duties, should not amount to so much as one hundred thirty five thousand pounds, or to so much as should be sufficient to discharge and satisfy all the annuities by that act appointed or intended to be paid, within or for the same year respectively, That then and so often, and in every such case, so much as should be wanting to make up the said fund for every year or any such year, should be supplied and made good, from time to time, out of the first aid to be granted by parliament next after such deficiencies should appear, and should from time to time be transferred thereunto as soon as the same should be granted: and it was thereby enacted, That it should and might be lawful for any person or persons, natives or foreigners, bodies politick or corporate, to contribute for or towards advancing the sum of fifteen hundred thousand pounds therein mentioned, by paying at or before the first day of September, one thousand seven hundred and ten, to the receiver or receivers to be appointed for that purpose, the sum of ten pounds, or divers entire sums of ten pounds upon that act, for which he, she,

or they, for thirty two years, should be entitled to receive a share or dividend of the said yearly fund; and that lottery tickets should be prepared and drawn, and the shares of the adventurers in the said fund should be determined and ascertained in the manner thereby prescribed, as by the said act, relation being thereunto had, may more largely appear: and whereas the sum of fifteen hundred thousand pounds was contributed upon the said act, and the annuities payable out of the said fund by virtue thereof, do amount as is herein-after mentioned; (that is to say,) to the sum of thirty two thousand six hundred twenty five pounds per annum, payable half-yearly, to wit, at Lady-day and Michaelmas, by equal portions, or within twenty days after every such feast day, in respect of the fortunate tickets; and to the sum of one hundred and two thousand three hundred seventy three pounds, and twelve shillings per annum, payable at Michaelmas yearly, or within twenty days after the same feast day, in respect of the tickets which did not prove to be fortunate upon drawing of the said lottery, pursuant to the said act: and whereas other tickets, commonly called pay tickets, directed by the said act, have been made forth for payment of the said respective annuities at the respective times before mentioned, and all the said annuities payable out of the said fund are satisfied until and for the feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, and no further; and the sum of one hundred sixty eight thousand seven hundred forty eight pounds, and five shillings, is due and in arrear thereupon, by computing the same annuities for one year and a quarter of a year from the said feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, until and for the feast of the birth of our Lord Christ, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen: and whereas the capital or joint stock of the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, trading to the South Seas and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, doth now amount to the sum of ten millions, and in respect thereof a yearly fund of five hundred thousand pounds is payable to the said governor and company, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, besides a yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, for or towards the charges of the said governor and company for management, subject nevertheless to such provisos and powers of redemption, as are contained in one act of parliament of the third year of your Majesty's reign, made (amongst other things) for redeeming the yearly fund of the South Sea company, being then after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, and settling on the said company a yearly fund after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, redeemable by parliament, as by the several acts of parliament, whereupon the said capital or joint stock, and the said yearly fund of five hundred thousand pounds, and the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, and the said powers of redemption, are grounded, relation being thereunto severally had, may more fully appear: and whereas the corporation of the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, is willing (upon such terms, conditions and encouragements, as are hereafter in and by this act provided and enacted) to permit and every or any such persons as are, or at any time before the twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall be the proprietors of the said lottery annuities, or any of them, for the residue of the said term of thirty two years; (that is to say,) for twenty three years and three quarters of a year, to be reckoned from the feast of the birth of our Lord Christ, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, (in case such proprietors, or any of them, do think fit) to subscribe his, her, or their right, property and interest, for and during all such remaining time or term of, and in every or any such annuity annuities, and of and in all his, her, or their said pay tickets for the same, during such residual time or term, into a book or books to be provided, as hereafter in this act is directed, at the rate of eleven years purchase and a half, that he, she, or they so subscribing, for every twenty shillings per annum so subscribed for the said time or term of twenty three years and three quarters of a year, shall have and be entitled to eleven pounds and ten shillings in the capital joint stock of the said company, when the said capital or joint stock shall increased, according to the purport and true meaning of this act, and proportionally for any greater or lesser annuities which shall be so subscribed; and the said corporation is also willing (upon the said terms, conditions, and encouragements herein-after mentioned) to permit all and every, or any such persons as are, or at any time before the said twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall be proprietors of the said sum of one hundred sixty eight thousand seven hundred forty eight pounds and five shillings, computed to be in arrear, as aforesaid, or any part thereof, to subscribe the same into the said book or books, so that every such subscriber, for the sum so subscribed in part of the said sum of one hundred sixty eight thousand seven hundred forty eight pounds, and five shillings, shall have and be entitled to the like sum in the said increased capital stock of the said company, according to the purport and true meaning of this act: and, in order to raise money to be applied towards discharging the principal and interest of such national debts and incumbrances as were incurred before the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, declared to be national debts, and provided for by acts of parliament, the said corporation is also willing to advance and pay the sum of seven hundred seventy eight thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds, or so much thereof as is herein-after limited and appointed, at such times, and by such proportions at a time, as are herein-after mentioned, subject nevertheless to such deductions, defalcations, and abatements to be made out of the same, as are herein-after in and by this act allowed: now we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being desirous that the proprietors of the said lottery annuities, and the said arrearages thereof, (if they or any of them so think fit) may be permitted voluntarily to subscribe the same into the stock and increased stock of the said company, as aforesaid; and that the said sum of seven hundred seventy eight thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds, or so much thereof as shall be payable by the said company in pursuance of this act, may be applied towards discharging the principal and interest of such national debts and incumbrances as were incurred before the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, declared to be national debts, and provided for by acts of parliament; and being willing to give suitable encouragements to the said corporation in consideration thereof, do most humbly present to your Majesty the several impositions, rates, and duties herein-after mentioned, and do humbly pray your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all such several and respective impositions, rates, and duties for and upon all coals, culm, and cynders, and for and upon every dwelling house inhabited, that now is or hereafter shall be erected or built within the kingdom of Great Britain, having twenty windows or more, as were granted, imposed, continued, or directed by the said act of the eighth year of her said Majesty's reign for the term or terms of years therein mentioned (except as herein is excepted) shall continue, and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for ever, for the purposes in this act prescribed and directed; and shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in the same manner, and method and form, and at such places, and by such rules, ways, and means, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are mentioned, expressed, or referred unto, in the said recited act of the eighth year of her said late Majesty's reign; and that all the powers, authorities, rules, directions, penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, clauses, matters and things whatsoever, contained in the said act of the eighth year of her said late Majesty's reign, or thereby referred unto, now being in force for raising, collecting, levying, recovering, answering, paying, and accounting for the said several impositions, rates, duties, and sums of money, as well upon coals, culm, and cynders, as upon houses having ing twenty windows or more, during the term or terms aforesaid; (except as is before excepted) shall be revived, and be for ever continued, practised, and put in execution, for raising, collecting, levying, recovering, answering, paying, and accounting for the said several impositions, rates, and duties, by this act intended to be continued and made perpetual, for the purposes in and by this act prescribed and directed, in the same manner, and as fully and effectually, as if the same powers, authorities, rules, directions, penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, clauses, matters, and things, were particularly and at large set down and re-enacted in this act; the said act of the eighth year of her late Majesty's reign, or any other law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding; nevertheless, the said several impositions, rates, duties, and sums of money by this act intended to be continued and made perpetual, as aforesaid, shall be subject to such provisos and powers of redemption, as are hereafter in and by this act contained and prescribed of and concerning the same.

The money to be paid into the Exchequer.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies arising of or for the said impositions, rates, and duties hereby intended to be continued and made perpetual, subject to such redemption as aforesaid, (except the necessary charges of raising, collecting, levying, recovering, answering, paying, and accounting for the same) shall, from time to time, be brought into the receipt of the Exchequer for the uses and purposes in this act prescribed; and shall, from time to time, be fairly and distinctly entred and registred in one or more book or books to be kept in the offices of the auditor of the receipt, and clerk of the pells, severally, for that purpose, to which all persons concerned, at all seasonable times, shall have free access without fee or charge.

III. And it is hereby also enacted, That all the monies which, from and after the said feast of the birth of our Lord Christ, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, shall be brought into the Exchequer, or shall be then remaining there, of or for the said several impositions, rates, and duties, by this and the said former act of the eighth year of her late Majesty's reign, or either of them, granted or continued, as aforesaid, (except the necessary charges of issuing and applying the said monies to the uses and purposes by this act intended and directed, and rendering the accounts thereof, and after paying, or reserving in the Exchequer monies sufficient to pay, all arrears of the said pay tickets due, at and for or before the feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen) shall be and are hereby appropriated, and shall be issued and applied to and for the satisfaction of such several and respective payments as are by this act directed, in their due order, method, and form, and with such preferences, and subject to such redemptions, as are in and by this act prescribed of and concerning the same respectively, and without any fee or charge whatsoever to be demanded of, or paid by the respective persons or corporations who are to receive the said monies; and that the respective officers of the Exchequer who shall make any delay in issuing or paying of the same, or shall be guilty of diverting or misapplying any of the said monies, contrary to this act, for any such offence shall be forejudged from their respective offices or places, and be rendered incapable to serve his Majesty, his heirs or successors in any office or employment of trust or profit whatsoever, and shall also be liable to pay double the value of any sum or sums of money so delayed, diverted, or misapplied, to the party grieved; to be recovered by action of debt, or upon the case, bill, suit, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be granted or allowed.

XIII. Provided always, and it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if all the said lottery-annuities for the said term of twenty three years and three quarters of a year, and all the said arrearages, computed to amount to one hundred sixty eight thousand seven hundred forty eight pounds, and five shillings, as aforesaid, shall not, or before the said twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, be subscribed as aforesaid, to be converted into stock at the respective rates aforesaid, pursuant to the purport and true meaning of this act, then the said corporation shall be obliged, by virtue of this act, to advance and pay into the said receipt of Exchequer so much of the said sum of seven hundred seventy eight thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds, for the purpose last mentioned, as shall bear proportion to the lottery annuities and arrearages so to be subscribed at the respective rates aforesaid, and no more; (that is to say,) as the sum of one million seven hundred twenty one thousand two hundred and fifty pounds, being the computed value of all the said lottery annuities and arrearages, is to the said sum of seven hundred seventy eight thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds, so the value of the said lottery annuities and arrearages which shall be actually subscribed, being computed at the rates aforesaid, shall be to the sum which the said corporation shall advance, for and towards paying off the said debts and incumbrances; and that such of the said lottery annuities and arrearages as shall not be subscribed to be converted into stock as aforesaid on or before the said twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall be paid and payable out of the produce of the said duties, at such times and in such manner and course of payment, as the same ought to have been paid, if this act had not been made.

Annuities not subscribed to be paid out of the produce of the duties.

XV. And whereas by the said act of the third year of his Majesty's reign for redeeming the then fund of the said corporation, it is enacted, That if at any time or times the produce of the duties and revenues therein mentioned should be so low or deficient, as that the money arising thereby at the Exchequer should not extend or be sufficient, according to that act, to pay and discharge, or to complete the payment at the end of any quarter of a year, of all the money which should be then due, as well for or upon the above mentioned yearly fund of five hundred thousand pounds and the above mentioned yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, then and so often, and in every such case, the deficiency of any such quarter should and might be supplied out of the overplus monies of the said duties and revenues arising in any subsequent quarter; and in default thereof by the space of half a year, then all and every such deficiency and deficiencies should be supplied and made good, from time to time, by or out of the general yearly fund by another act of that session of parliament established, or intended to be established, for redeeming the duties and revenues then charged or chargeable in and by several lottery acts of the ninth and tenth years of her said late Majesty's reign, and certain annual payments out of the hereditary excise in the said act of that session mentioned, or out of money to be raised at the Exchequer for purchasing an annuity or annuities after a rate not exceeding five pounds per centum per annum, for every such deficiency; which annuity or annuities should, by virtue of the said act, be charged on the said general yearly fund, and be payable and transferrable at the bank of England, as other annuities payable out of the said general yearly fund were intended by the said other act of the said session to be payable and transferrable until the redemption thereof by parliament, as by the said act of the third year of his Majesty's reign for redeeming the then fund of the said corporation may more fully appear: now it is hereby further provided, declared, and enacted, That, out of the first payment of the said sum of seven hundred seventy eight thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds, or of the said proportional part thereof, to be paid by way of advance into the Exchequer as aforesaid, so much as at the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall be deficient to make good the sums then incurred and grown due for or upon the said yearly fund of five hundred thousand pounds, and for or upon the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, mentioned in the said former act, and for and upon the additional or increased yearly fund and yearly sum by this act intended to be paid to the said company, or such part of the same deficiencies as shall bear proportion to the value of the lottery annuities and arrearages which shall shall be actually subscribed as aforesaid, at the rates before mentioned, pursuant to this act, shall and may be deducted, defalked, and recouped for or towards satisfying and making good the said deficiencies of the said yearly funds and yearly sums so growing due at or before the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen; and that out of each subsequent payment of the said sum of seven hundred seventy eight thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds, or of or for the said proportional part thereof, to be paid by way of advance into the Exchequer as aforesaid, so much as at and for the quarter day next preceding the respective times hereby limited, for making those subsequent payments respectively, shall be deficient to make good the sums then incurred and grown due for or upon the said yearly funds and yearly sums by this and the said former act payable to the said corporation, such part of the same deficiencies as shall bear proportion to the value of the lottery annuities and arrearages which shall be actually subscribed as aforesaid, at the rates before mentioned, pursuant to this act, shall and may be deducted, defalked, and recouped for or towards satisfying and making good the said deficiencies of the said yearly funds and yearly sums so growing due at or upon the quarter day next preceding the respective times by this act prescribed for making each subsequent payment by the said corporation as aforesaid.

The additional annuity, &c. to be charged on the duties on coals and houses.

XXI. And it is hereby enacted, That as well the said additional annuity or yearly fund, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, to be computed upon the said additional stock, to be adjusted and determined, as aforesaid, as also the said additional yearly sum of two thousand pounds, or such lesser proportional sum, to be allowed to the said corporation for charges of management, as aforesaid, shall be, and the same by force and virtue of this act are charged and chargeable upon, and made payable out of the monies from time to time arising at the receipt of the Exchequer of or for the said duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, and of and for the said duties on houses, at such times, and in such course, method, and form, as are before in this act prescribed in that behalf.

How the deficiency of any quarter shall be supplied, &c.

8 Ann. c. 4.

XXIII. And it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if at any time or times after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, the produce of all the duties and revenues by the said act of the third year of his Majesty's reign, for redeeming the then yearly fund of the said corporation, and the proportion of the duties and revenues by the said act of the eighth year of her said late Majesty's reign, granted and continued, and by the said acts, and this act, or any of them, appropriated or intended for payment of the whole united yearly fund and yearly sums intended by this and the said last mentioned act of the third year of his Majesty's reign, to be paid to the said governors and company, and their successors, shall be so low or deficient in the payment thereof into the Exchequer, as that the same shall not be sufficient to pay and discharge, or to compleat the payment at the end of any quarter of a year, of all the monies which shall be then due and payable to the said corporation, as well for and upon the said present yearly fund of five hundred thousand pounds, and the said yearly fund of eight thousand pounds as upon the said increased yearly fund of the said corporation, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, for their additional stock as aforesaid, and for and upon the increased yearly sum of two thousand pounds, or such lesser proportional part thereof, as aforesaid, to be paid for charges of management, shall not extend or be sufficient for those purposes, then and so often as in every such case, the deficiency of any such quarter shall and may be supplied out of the overplus monies of the said duties and revenues, or any of them, arising in any subsequent quarter; and in default thereof by the space of half a year, then all and every such deficiency and deficiencies shall be supplied and made good, from time to time, by or out of the said general yearly fund by the said other act of the third year of his Majesty's reign.

Majesty's reign, established or intended to be established, as aforesaid, of out of money to be raised at the Exchequer for purchasing an annuity or annuities after a rate not exceeding five pounds per centum per annum, for every such deficiency; which annuity or annuities shall, by virtue of this act, be charged on the said general yearly fund, and be payable and transferrable at the bank of England, as other annuities payable out of the said general yearly fund are intended by the said other act of the third year of his Majesty's reign to be payable and transferrable, until the redemption thereof by parliament; and if at any time or times any such deficiency shall be paid to the said corporation by such annuity or annuities charged on the said general yearly fund, the discount of such annuity or annuities which shall be necessary for converting the same into ready money, (if any such discount shall happen) shall, by order of the commissioners of the treasury, or three or more of them, or high treasurer for the time being, be satisfied to the said corporation out of the same general yearly fund, or out of money to be raised at the Exchequer for purchasing a like annuity or annuities at the same rate, to be charged on the same general yearly fund, and to be payable and transferrable as aforesaid, until the redemption thereof by parliament: and for the better and more regular payment of all monies intended by the said act of the third year of his Majesty's reign, for redemption of the then yearly fund of the said corporation, to be paid to the same, subject nevertheless to such redemption, as aforesaid, the commissioners of the treasury, or the high treasurer for the time being, are hereby empowered and required to sign and issue out such order and orders for payment of all such sum and sums of money as by this or the said last mentioned act are or shall become due and payable to the said corporation, and also for raising out of and upon the said general yearly fund established by the said recited act of the third year of his Majesty's reign, so much as shall be requisite and necessary to pay to the said corporation all such deficiency and deficiencies as are in and by this act directed to be paid to them; and after signing such order or orders the same shall be firm, good, valid, and effectual in law, according to the purport and true meaning thereof, and of this act, and shall not be determinable by or upon the death and removal of any commissioner or commissioners of the treasury, or high treasurer, or under treasurer for the time being, or by or upon the determination of the power, office, and offices of them, or any of them; nor shall any commissioner of the treasury, or high treasurer for the time being, have any power to revoke, countermand, or make void such order or orders so signed, as aforesaid.

3 Geo. 1. c. 7.

XXIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if at any time or times the produce of the said duties on coals, culm, and cynders, and of the said duties on houses, shall be so low and deficient as that at the end of any year (reckoning the same to end at Michaelmas yearly) the proportion of the said yearly fund of one hundred thirty five thousand pounds, applicable by this act for or towards the discharging of the said subscribed pay tickets then payable, shall not be sufficient for that purpose, then every such deficiency shall be supplied and made good, from time to time, out of the first aid to be granted in parliament, next after such deficiency shall appear, and shall, from time to time, be transferred thereunto, as soon as the same shall be granted, according to the purport and true meaning of the said former act in that behalf.

How the deficiency of any year shall be supplied.

XXV. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That in case there shall be any surplus or remainder of the monies arising by the said duties on coals, culm, and cynders, and the said duties on houses, at the end of any year, (reckoning the same to end at Michaelmas yearly) after all the said yearly and other sums directed or authorized by this act, and then or before the time incurred and become due or in arrear, shall be fully satisfied, and discharged, or money sufficient shall be reserved for that purpose, such XXXI. And it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors for ever, shall remain, continue, and be one body corporate and politick, by the name of The governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South Seas, and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, and shall have, hold, receive, and enjoy the said yearly fund of five hundred thousand pounds, and the said additional yearly fund, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, to be added thereunto (by way of increase) as aforesaid; and the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, and the yearly annuity of two thousand pounds, or such proportional part thereof as aforesaid, to be added thereunto, (by way of increase for management) pursuant to this act, until the said yearly funds and yearly sums shall respectively be redeemed according to this act; and shall have, hold, and enjoy all their forts, factories, acquisitions, lands, tenements, hereditaments, sole benefit of trade in and to the South Seas and elsewhere, with a perpetual succession, and all abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, franchises, exemptions, privileges, profits, and advantages whatsoever, whereunto the said governor and company are or before the making of this act were entitled by any act or acts of parliament, grant, or charter now in force, (all which are by this act ratified, confirmed, and made effectual to them and their successors) freed and discharged of and from all former provisos, powers, acts, matters, and things whatsoever for redeeming, determining, or making void the same, or any of them; subject nevertheless to the several and respective provisos and powers of redemption of the said yearly funds and yearly sums hereafter in this act contained.

XXXII. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon one year's notice to be given by authority of parliament at the feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, or at any of the said quarterly feast-days after the said feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, and upon repayment by parliament to the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, of the whole sum whereof the said capital stock of ten millions, with the said stock to be added thereunto, (by way of increase as aforesaid) shall then consist, according to such notice, without deduction, discount, or abatement whatsoever to be made out of the same, or any part thereof, and upon payment of all arrears of the said yearly fund of five hundred thousand pounds, and of the said additional fund, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, to be added thereunto by way of increase as aforesaid, and of the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, and of the said yearly annuity of two thousand pounds, or such proportional part thereof as aforesaid, for management, to be added thereunto pursuant to this act (if any such arrears or arrears shall be then due) then the said yearly fund of five hundred thousand pounds, and the said additional yearly fund after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, and the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, and the yearly annuity to be added thereunto by way of increase for management as aforesaid, shall from thenceforth cease and determine.

XXXIII. And in regard it is intended, That after the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty-three, the principal or sum of the said capital or increased stock of the said company, consisting of ten millions, and the addition to be made thereunto as aforesaid, may be satisfied to the said governor and company by any payments (not being less than one million of pounds of Great Britain at a time) and that as the same principal monies shall be paid off, the said yearly sum of five hundred thousand pounds, and the said additional proportional yearly fund, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, to be added thereunto as aforesaid, shall from time to time proportionally sink and be abated: be it therefore further provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if at any time or times, at or after the said twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty-three, notice shall be given by authority of parliament for redemption of the said yearly fund of five hundred thousand pounds, and the yearly fund which shall be added thereunto as aforesaid, and the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, and the additional annuity which shall be added thereunto as aforesaid; and if payment, according to such notice, be made by parliament to the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, or their successors, of any sum or sums of money (not being less than one million at a time) in part of the principal monies whereunto the said sum of ten millions and the stock to be added thereunto, by virtue of this act, shall jointly amount; and also if payment be made of all the arrearages then due to them of the increased yearly fund and increased yearly sum, or so much of those arrearages as shall bear a proportion to the principal monies from time to time remaining unsatisfied, being computed by the day, until the time of every such payment of part of the principal respectively, then, from and after every such payment so made to the said governor and company, and their successors, so much of the said increased yearly fund (consisting of five hundred thousand pounds, with such addition as aforesaid) as shall bear proportion to the monies so paid in part of the said principal, shall cease, and determine, and be abated; any thing in this or any former act or acts of parliament contained, or other matter or thing whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXXIV. Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the redemption of all the said yearly fund of five hundred thousand pounds and of the additional yearly fund which is to be joined to the same as aforesaid, and of the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, and the yearly sum which is to be added thereunto for management aforesaid, by payments to be made according to the several and respective provisions or conditions of redemption in this act contained of or concerning the same, then, and not till then, the several duties, impositions, additional impositions, and revenues, and all proportional parts of them, or any of them, which are chargeable therewith, shall be understood to be redeemed by parliament, and shall not be issued, paid, or applied, to any use, intent, or purpose whatsoever without authority of parliament; nevertheless the said corporation, by the name aforesaid, shall for ever remain, continue, and be a body corporate and politick, and shall have, hold, and enjoy, all their rights, factories, acquisitions, lands, tenements, hereditaments, sole benefit of trade in and to the South Seas and elsewhere, and also all the lands, tenements, and hereditaments, that are or shall be by them purchased in Great Britain, not exceeding one thousand pounds per annum, with perpetual succession, and all abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, franchises, exemptions, privileges, profits, and advantages whatsoever, whereunto the said governor and company are, or before the making this act were entitled by any act or acts of parliament, grants or charters now in force; all which by this act ratified, confirmed, and made effectual to them and their successors; and the said governor and company and the members thereof, without having any share or interest in the said yearly funds, payments, or annuities, or any of them, after the same shall be redeemed, shall have and be entitled to the sole benefit of trade in and to the South Seas, and elsewhere, such power of trade in the fishery, as by any act or acts of parliament in force is directed, and all other benefits, privileges, and advantages, the said respective annuities to them issuing or payable after such redemption (the said only excepted) as if no such redemption were had or made; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

After redemption the several duties, impositions, &c. shall be understood to be redeemed by parliament.

But the corporation shall continue for ever.

XXXVI. And it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any vote or resolution of the house of commons, signified by their speaker, in writing, to be delivered at the publick office of the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South Seas, shall be deemed and adjudged to be sufficient notice within the words and meaning of this act, for redeeming the said yearly funds or annuities pursuant to the proviso or provisos of redemption in this act contained, and at the respective time or times therein mentioned; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XLII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies lent and to be lent to his Majesty upon one act of this session of parliament, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an aid by a land-tax, to be raised in Great Britain, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and so much money (if any such be) of the tax thereby granted as shall arise and remain after all the loans made or to be made on that act, and the interest thereof, and the charges thereby allowable for raising the said tax, shall be satisfied, or monies sufficient shall be reserved to discharge the same; and all the monies lent and to be lent to his Majesty upon an act of this session of parliament, intituled, An act for continuing the duties upon malt, mum, cyder, and perry, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and nineteen; and for enlarging the time for entring at the Exchequer such assignments of reversionary annuities as are therein mentioned; and for better securing the duties on hides and skins, vellum and parchment; and so much of the duties on malt, mum, cyder, and perry, thereby granted or continued, as shall arise and remain (if any such be) after all the loans made, or to be made, on the same act, or thereby transferred, or directed to be transferred thereunto, and the interest thereof, and the charges thereby allowed for raising the same duties shall be satisfied, or monies sufficient shall be reserved to discharge the same; and the sum of five hundred and five thousand nine hundred ninety five pounds, raised, or intended to be raised, by way of a lottery, by virtue of an act of this session of parliament, intituled, An act for continuing certain duties upon coals and culm, and for establishing certain funds to raise money, as well to proceed in the building of new churches, as also to complete the supply granted to his Majesty, and to reserve the overplus monies of the said duties for the disposition of parliament; and for more effectual suppressing private lotteries; and the sum of twenty two thousand three hundred twenty five pounds one shilling and nine pence, intended to be supplied out of the surplus monies specified in the act last before-mentioned, shall be appropriated and applied, and are hereby appropriated for or towards the several uses, intents, and purposes herein expressed, subject nevertheless to such restrictions as are herein-after prescribed: that is to say, it is hereby enacted and declared, That out of all or any the aids or supplies provided as aforesaid, there shall and may be issued and applied any sum not exceeding five hundred and two thousand seven hundred and nineteen pounds ten shillings and ten pence three farthings, to make good the deficiencies of the grants in parliament for the year one thousand seven hundred and eighteen; and any sum not exceeding one hundred and two thousand ninety two pounds thirteen shillings and one fifth part of a penny, to make good the deficiency of the fund commonly called the general fund, for raising seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds six shillings ten pence and one fifth part of a penny per annum, for the year ended at Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen: and it is hereby enacted and declared, That out of all or any of the aids or supplies provided as aforesaid, there shall or may be issued or applied any further sum or sums of money not exceeding nine hundred and fourteen thousand six hundred thirty eight pounds seven shillings and six-pence halfpenny, for or towards the naval services following that is to say, for or towards defraying the charges of the ordinary of his Majesty's navy, and for half-pay to sea-officers; and for or towards victualling wages, wear and tear of the navy and victualling thereof performed and to be performed; and for or towards sea-service in the office of ordnance performed and to be performed, and other services of the navy performed and to be performed: and any further sum or sums of money not exceeding eighty eight thousand four hundred ninety four pounds, for or towards repairs of his Majesty's navy performed and to be performed: and any sum or sums of money, not exceeding seventy one thousand five hundred twenty seven pounds twelve shillings and eleven pence for the charge of the office of ordnance, and for or towards land-service performed and to be performed: and any sum or sums of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of eight hundred and nine thousand six hundred thirty six pounds seventeen shillings and six pence halfpenny, for or towards maintaining his Majesty's land-forces, and other services herein-after more particularly expressed; that is to say, any sum not exceeding five hundred twenty six thousand nine hundred sixty four pounds eleven shillings and eight pence, for defraying the charge of twelve thousand four hundred thirty five effective men, (commissioned and non-commissioned officers included) for guards and garrisons and other his Majesty's land-forces in Great Britain, Jersey, and Guernsey, and other services relating to the forces, for the year one thousand seven hundred and nineteen: and any sum or sums of money not exceeding one hundred forty seven thousand six hundred seventy two pounds five shillings and ten pence halfpenny, for maintaining his Majesty's forces and garrisons in the plantations, Minorca and Gibraltar, and for provisions for the garrisons at Annapolis Royal and Placentia, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and nineteen: and any sum not exceeding twenty five thousand pounds for the extraordinary charge of the royal hospital at Chelsea and the out-pensioners, for the year one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, over and above the poundage and day's pay: and any sum or sums not exceeding the sum of one hundred and ten thousand pounds upon account of half-pay, for the year one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, to be paid to the reduced officers of his Majesty's land-forces and marines; subject nevertheless to such rules to be observed in the application of the said half-pay, as are herein after prescribed in that behalf: and that the said aids or supplies provided as aforesaid, shall not be issued or applied to any use, intent, or purpose whatever, other than towards the uses and purposes before-mentioned.

Anno quinto

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. XX.

for settling certain yearly funds payable out of the revenue of Scotland, to satisfy public debts in Scotland, and other uses mentioned in the treaty of union; and to discharge the equivalents claimed on behalf of Scotland, in the terms of the same treaty; and for obviating all future disputes, charges, and expenses concerning those equivalents.

MAY it please your most excellent Majesty; Whereas in and by the sixth article of the treaty for the union of the two kingdoms of England and Scotland, (which treaty was ratified by acts of parliament passed in either kingdom, and particularly by an act made in England in the fifth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, of blessed memory) it was provided that the customs and duties on import and export, settled in England when the union commenced, should, from and after the union, take place throughout the whole united kingdom, excepting and reserving, as in the said article is particularly expressed; and in and by the seventh article of the said treaty it was provided, That all parts of the united kingdom should for ever, from and after the union,

union, be liable to the same excises (excepting only that such beer or ale as are therein described, should not after the union be liable, upon account of the then present excise upon exciseable liquors in England, to any higher imposition than two shillings sterling upon thirty four gallons English barrel, being twelve gallons of the then present Scots measure;) and it was by the article last mentioned provided, That the excise then settled in England upon all other liquors should, when the union commenced, take place throughout the whole united kingdom: and in and by the fourteenth article of the said treaty of union, it was provided, That Scotland should not be charged with any duties laid on by the parliament of England before the said union (except such as were consented to in the said treaty) in regard it was agreed, That all necessary provision should be made by the then parliament of Scotland for the public charge and service of that kingdom, for the year one thousand seven hundred and seven; providing nevertheless, That if the parliament of England should think fit to lay any further impositions, by way of customs, or such excises with which, by virtue of the said treaty, Scotland was to be charged equal with England, in such case Scotland should be liable to the same customs and excises, and have an equivalent to be settled by the parliament of Great Britain: and whereas by the terms of the said treaty, the subjects of Scotland, for preserving an equality of trade throughout the united kingdom, would be liable to several customs and excises then payable in England, which would be applicable towards payment of the debts of England, contracted before the union: it was by the fifteenth article of the said treaty agreed, That Scotland should have an equivalent for what the subjects thereof should be so charged, towards payment of the said debts of England in all particulars whatsoever, in manner therein expressed, (viz.) That before the union of the said kingdoms the sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, should be granted to her said Majesty by the parliament of England, for the uses after mentioned, being the equivalent to be answered to Scotland, for such parts of the said customs and excises upon all exciseable liquors with which that kingdom was to be charged upon the union, as would be applicable to the payment of the said debts of England, according to the proportions therein specified: and in regard that after the union, Scotland becoming liable to the same customs and duties payable on import and export, and to the same excises on all exciseable liquors as in England, as well upon that account, as upon the account of increase of trade and people, the said revenues would much improve beyond the annual values thereof set down in the said article, whereof no present estimate could then be made; yet nevertheless for the reasons aforesaid, it was thereby declared, That there ought to be a proportionable equivalent answered to Scotland: and it was agreed, That after the union there should be an account kept of the said duties arising in Scotland, to the end that it might appear what ought to be answered to Scotland, as an equivalent for such proportion of the said increase as should be applicable to the payment of the debts of England: and for the further and more effectual answering the several ends after mentioned, it was agreed, That from and after the union, the whole increase of the revenues of customs and duties on import and export, and excises upon exciseable liquors in Scotland, over and above the annual produce of the said respective duties as therein stated, should go and be applied for the term of seven years to the uses after mentioned; and that upon the said account there should be answered to Scotland annually, from the end of seven years after the union, an equivalent in proportion to such part of the said increase as should be applicable to the debts of England, and generally that an equivalent should be answered to Scotland for such parts of the English debts as Scotland might thereafter become liable to pay by reason of the union, other than such for which appropriations had been made by parliament in England, of the customs or other duties on export and import, and excises on all exciseable liquors, in respect of which debts the equivalent were therein before provided; and as to the uses to which the said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, and all other monies which were to be answered or allowed in Scotland, as aforesaid, were to be applied, it was by the said treaty agreed, That in the first place, out of the aforesaid sum, what consideration should be found necessary to be had for any losses which private persons might sustain by reducing the coin of Scotland to the standard and value of the coin of England, should be made good; in the next place, that the capital stock or fund of the then African and Indian company of Scotland advanced, together with the interest for the said capital stock, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, from the respective times of the payment thereof, should be paid; upon payment of which capital stock and interest, it was agreed the said company should be dissolved and cease; and as to the overplus of the said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings (after payment of what consideration should be had for losses in repairing the coin, and paying the said capital stock and interest) and also the whole increase of the said revenues of customs, duties, and excises, above the then present value, which should arise in Scotland, during the said term of seven years, together with the equivalent which should become due upon the improvement thereof in Scotland, after the said term, and also as to all other sums which, according to the agreements aforesaid, might become payable to Scotland, by way of equivalent for what that kingdom should thereafter become liable towards payment of the debts of England, it was by the said article agreed, That the same should be applied in manner following, viz. That all the publick debts of the kingdom of Scotland, as should be adjusted by the then present parliament, should be paid, and that two thousand pounds per annum, for the space of seven years, should be applied towards encouraging and promoting the manufacture of coarse wool within those shires which produced the wool, and afterwards the same should be wholly employed towards encouraging and promoting the fisheries and such other manufactures and improvements in Scotland, as might most conduce to the general good of the united kingdom; and it was agreed, That her Majesty should be empowered to appoint commissioners, who should be accountable to the parliament of Great Britain, for disposing the said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, and all other monies which should arise in Scotland, upon the agreements aforesaid, to the purposes before-mentioned, who should keep their office within the limits of Scotland, with such powers, and be subject to such directions for keeping accounts and performing other matters and things, as in the said fifteenth article were prescribed. And whereas, for preventing all mistakes or abuses which might hinder the ready application of the aforesaid money to the proprietors, and others concerned in the stock of the African and Indian company of Scotland, conform to the said article, there was an act made in the last session of the last parliament of Scotland, intituled, Act concerning the payment of the sums out of the equivalent to the African company, wherein it was enacted, That the directors of the said African and Indian company of Scotland, should make up accounts of the sums advanced by the proprietors of the said company, and debts due to (a) the said company, on the first day of May next, as therein was prescribed; and in like manner by another act of the said parliament of Scotland, intituled, Act concerning the publick debts, the payments to be made on account of the publick debts of Scotland were adjusted; and by the said treaty of union, and several acts before recited or mentioned (amongst other things therein contained) relation being thereunto severally had, may more fully appear. And whereas the said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, was paid for and on the part of England to the commissioners of the equivalent in Scotland, pursuant to the aforesaid articles, and considerable sums were by them issued out according to the same, and above recited acts of parliament in Scotland, but by experience it was found some further direction was yet necessary for the better application of what remained of the said sum unapplied, and all other sums which were or might be due by virtue of the agreements aforesaid, and for the more effectual attaining the ends mentioned in the said fifteenth article of the treaty and acts above recited; and therefore an act was made and passed in the parliament of Great Britain in the sixth year of her said late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the further directing the payment of the equivalent money, containing powers powers and directions, as by the same, relation being thereunto also had, may more fully appear. And whereas by an act of parliament of Great Britain, made in the tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign, (amongst other things) for obviating doubts concerning certain payments in Scotland, it was enacted, That the fees, salaries, and other charges allowed, or to be allowed by her Majesty, her heirs or successors, for keeping up the courts of session and justiciary, and exchequer-court of Scotland, were and might be chargeable upon any part of the revenues of customs and excise of Scotland, preferable to all other payments whatsoever, (the charges of management excepted) but so as not any way to prevent any application of the excrescence out of the said customs and excise appointed by any former law, as by the same act (relation being thereunto had) may also more fully appear. And whereas an act of parliament of Great Britain was made in the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act to discharge and acquit the commissioners of equivalent for the sum of three hundred eighty one thousand five hundred and nine pounds fifteen shillings and ten pence halfpenny, by them duly issued out of the sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, which they received, reciting, That the commissioners for disposing the said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, and all other monies which should arise to Scotland, upon the agreements in the said treaty of union, or the major part of them, pursuant to several commissions from her Majesty, had well and duly issued and paid the sum of three hundred eighty one thousand five hundred and nine pounds fifteen shillings and ten pence halfpenny, as directed by the laws in that behalf, in manner therein set down; (videlicet) towards the loss which private persons sustained by reducing the English money then in Scotland to the current rate in England, the sum of three thousand and seventeen pounds eighteen shillings and nine pence; for recoining the Scots and foreign money, and reducing it to the standard of the coin of England, the sum of forty nine thousand eight hundred eighty eight pounds fourteen shillings and eleven pence one sixth part of a penny; towards payment of the stock, interest, and debts of the Indian and African company, the sum of two hundred twenty nine thousand six hundred and eleven pounds four shillings and eight pence; towards the charges of the commissioners, secretaries, and accountants of the two treaties of union, the sum of thirty thousand four hundred ninety eight pounds twelve shillings and two pence; towards payment of the first class of the civil list, the sum of twenty seven thousand five hundred and fifty three pounds seventeen shillings and nine pence one third of a penny; towards payment of the second class of the civil list, the sum of four thousand six hundred fifty five pounds and six shillings; towards payment of the first class of the military list, the sum of fourteen thousand one hundred and eighty eight pounds and eight pence; towards payment of the second class of the military list, the sum of fourteen thousand four hundred fifty eight pounds two shillings and eight pence and five sixths of a penny; for the fees and salaries of the servants of the commission till the fourteenth of March and thirtieth of April then past, the sum of five thousand four hundred and thirteen pounds eleven shillings and four pence; for the necessary charges of the commission, and for defending of suits where the titles of parties were not clear (those charges preceding the fourteenth day of March then last past) the sum of two thousand two hundred twenty four pounds six shillings and ten pence one sixth of a penny: and was thereby declared, That the said commissioners of the equivalent should be acquitted of the several sums above set down, amounting in the whole to the sum of three hundred eighty one thousand five hundred and nine pounds fifteen shillings and ten pence halfpenny; providing nevertheless, That nothing therein contained should free them from applying the sum of sixteen thousand five hundred and seventy five pounds fourteen shillings and one penny halfpenny, being the balance of the said three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings then remaining in their hands, together with what other sums were or might be due and payable to them, to such uses, and for such purposes, as the former act therein mentioned did appoint and direct: and it appearing, That the other debts of Scotland then unsatisfied, which were adjusted and certified, pursuant to the directions of the several acts therein recited, did then amount to the sum of two hundred and thirty thousand three hundred and eight pounds nine shillings and ten pence five sixths of a penny, including the interest of such parts thereof as bore interest from the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eight, to the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; it was thereby enacted, That it might and should be lawful for the commissioners of equivalent for the time being, or any three or more of them, and they were thereby directed and required forthwith to call for and receive all the certificates and other warrants, and receive and cancel all the debentures for which the debt aforesaid, amounting to the sum of two hundred and thirty thousand three hundred and eight pounds nine shillings and ten pence five sixths of a penny, was constituted and established, and issue out new debentures deviseable and transferrable, as the former debentures were, for the said sum, to the several persons proportionally and respectively entitled thereunto, which new debentures are thereby enacted to bear interest from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum; and that such interest shall be paid out of the first and readiest of the monies which either were or should become due to Scotland by way of equivalent, according to the agreements in the treaty of union above recited, and the principal according to the order and preferences mentioned in the fifteenth article of the said treaty, and several laws and acts therein mentioned, as by the said act of the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, relation being thereunto had, may also more fully appear. And whereas by an act of parliament of Great Britain, made and passed in the first year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for taking and stating the debts due and growing due to Scotland, by way of equivalent in the terms of the union; and for relief of the creditors of the publick in Scotland, and the commissioners of the equivalent, your Majesty was impowered to appoint commissioners for taking, examining, and stating the debts due and growing due to Scotland by way of equivalent, and provision was thereby made for payment of a sum not exceeding fifteen thousand eight hundred twenty two pounds eight shillings and seven pence three farthings, to the commissioners of equivalent in Scotland, or any persons appointed by them, or any two of them, out of the monies arisen or to arise by the said revenues of customs and excise of Scotland, or either of them, for the payment of one year's interest, (videlicet) from the twenty third of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, to the twenty fourth of June, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, of the capital sum of two hundred and thirty thousand three hundred and eight pounds nine shillings and ten pence and five sixths of a penny, stated due to the creditors of the publick in Scotland, on the twenty fourth of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, pursuant to the said act of the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, and for payment of the salaries of the said commissioners of equivalent, and of the fees and salaries of their servants, and necessary charges, from the said twenty third of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, to the twenty fourth of June, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen; and by an act of parliament of Great Britain, made in the third year of your Majesty's reign, for continuing the last before recited, the powers given to your Majesty, for appointing commissioners for taking and stating the debts due and growing due to Scotland, by way of equivalent in the terms of the union, were continued for the term therein mentioned; and by the act last mentioned, the commissioners of your Majesty's treasury were impowered (after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay, the civil establishment in Scotland, authorized by the said act of the tenth year of her said Majesty's reign) to cause payment of a sum not exceeding thirty one thousand five hundred sixty five pounds two shillings and five pence halfpenny, to the commissioners of the equivalent in Scotland, out of the monies arisen or to arise out of the customs, duties, excises, or revenues, under the management of the commissioners of the customs and commissioners of excise in Scotland, or either of them, for payment of two years interest of the said capital sum of two hundred and thirty thirty thousand three hundred and eight pounds nine shillings and ten pence and five sixths of a penny, and of eighteen thousand two hundred forty one pounds ten shillings and ten pence and two thirds of a penny, stated due to William Paterson, esq; by an act of the first year of your Majesty's reign, from the twenty third of June, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, to the twenty fourth of June, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, and for payment of the salaries of the commissioners of equivalent, and of the fees and salaries of their servants, and the necessary charges of the office for the said two years; providing nevertheless, That the commissioners of the equivalent of Scotland for the time being, should secure and retain in their hands the sum of fourteen thousand pounds sterling, appointed by the said fifteenth article of the union, for the encouragement of the manufacture of coarse wool, in such shires where the same was or should be produced, to be applied for the benefit of the said manufacture, and the wool-masters, and to no other use or purpose whatsoever, as by the two acts last before recited may also more fully appear; which several sums for payment of interest, salaries, and charges, were issued to the said commissioners of equivalent accordingly. And whereas by reason of many doubts arising in the construction of the said fifteenth article of the said treaty, and other laws relating to the excrescence of the said equivalent, and to the growing equivalent due and becoming due to Scotland, and by reason of the many difficulties which attend separating and distinguishing between debts incurred before the union, and debts incurred for service of the united kingdom, (both which have, without distinction, been provided for since the union) the commissioners for taking and stating the debts due and growing due to Scotland, by way of equivalent, have not been able to adjust the accounts thereof for the time past, and are like to meet with insuperable difficulties therein for the future, during so long time as the same is to continue in the terms of the said treaty, although the making or endeavouring to make, such accounts is attended with an excessive charge to the publick, and may occasion great vexations and discontents in the united kingdom: for obviating whereof, we, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, as we think it just and reasonable, so we also judge it to be most conducive to the publick quiet and tranquillity, That in lieu and full discharge of all equivalents whatsoever, that might hereafter be demanded from England, or the united kingdom, upon the foot of the said treaty, such certain annuities or yearly funds and other provisions may be settled and established for the satisfaction of those interested or concerned in the monies which were expected to arise from the said equivalents, as are hereafter in this act expressed; and do therefore humbly pray your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That yearly and every year, reckoning the first year to begin from the feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, the full sum of ten thousand pounds of lawful money of Great Britain shall be one yearly fund, and the full sum of two thousand pounds of like money shall be another yearly fund, for the several purposes in this act expressed concerning the same yearly funds, respectively; and that the said yearly funds shall continue and be payable for ever, subject nevertheless to redemption by parliament, according to the respective provisions herein after contained in that behalf; and that the said several annuities or yearly funds, during the continuance thereof respectively, shall be charged and chargeable upon, and be payable and paid out of the monies arising and to arise, from time to time, of or for any the customs, duties, excises, or revenues, that are or shall be under the management of the commissioners of the customs and commissioners of the excise in Scotland, or either of them, or of any commissioners, farmers, or managers, of those revenues, or any of them, for the time being, which shall from time to time remain after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay the charges of managing the said revenues, and of keeping up the said three courts, and other charges of the said

From June 24, 1719, 10,000*l.* and 2,000*l.* shall be yearly funds for the purposes in this act, and payable for ever, but subject to redemption by parliament. Farther provision is made concerning this annuity of 2,000*l.* by 13 Geo. 1. c. 30. Payable out of the duties under the management of the commissioners of customs and excise in Scotland.

civil government in Scotland, pursuant to such establishment or establishments as are or shall be made in that behalf, and with preference to all payments whatsoever, other than those charges, and other than such drawbacks and allowances, as are or shall be settled by any act or acts of parliament to be made out of the said revenues, or any of them.

II. And it is hereby enacted, That in case the produce of the said duties, customs, excises, or revenues, shall at any time or times appear to be so low or deficient, as that there should not be sufficient thereof to satisfy the said annuities or yearly funds of ten thousand pounds and two thousand pounds, or either of them, when the same shall become due, then, and so often and in every such case, the deficiencies thereof shall and may be satisfied and made good by or out of any other revenues in Scotland, which were introduced by virtue of the said treaty of union, or to which the subjects of Scotland are or shall be liable, other than such revenues as are expressly appropriated to any particular use or uses by any act or acts of parliament of Great Britain made since the said act for confirming the said treaty of union.

In case of deficiency the said sums to be made good out of any other revenue in Scotland, introduced by virtue of the union, except such as are otherwise appropriated.

III. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said several annuities or funds of ten thousand pounds and two thousand pounds per annum, shall be paid and payable at the four most usual feasts in the year, that is to say, the feast of Saint Michael the archangel, the birth of our Lord Christ, the annunciation of the blessed virgin Mary, and the feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, by even and equal portions, until the redemption of the same respectively, according to the respective provisos herein-after contained in that behalf; the first payment thereof to be due, and accounted due and payable at the feast of Saint Michael the archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and nineteen; and that the said several annuities or yearly funds, and every part thereof, shall be free from all taxes or publick charges and impositions whatsoever, laid or to be laid hereupon by authority of parliament.

The said funds shall be paid at the four most usual feasts.

IV. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury now being, and the high treasurer of Great Britain, and the commissioners of the treasury of his Majesty, his heirs and successors for the time being, shall, and they respectively are hereby empowered and strictly enjoined and required to issue their warrants and orders for making the payments of the said annuities or yearly funds from time to time, according to the true intent and meaning of this act; and that the payments thereof shall be made by the proper commissioners or officers from time to time, without any fees or charges whatsoever to be demanded or taken for paying the same; and if any commissioner, receiver general, officer, or other person or persons, who shall have in his or their hands any the monies which, in pursuance of this act, shall be ordered or appointed for payment of the said annuities or yearly funds, or either of them, shall divert or misapply the same or any part thereof, contrary to the tenor and meaning of this act, then every such commissioner, receiver general, officer, or person, for such offence shall be rendered incapable to serve his Majesty, his heirs or successors, in any office or employment of trust or profit, and be liable to pay double the value of the money so diverted or misapplied to the use of the corporation which shall be erected in pursuance of this act, for the benefit of the creditors of Scotland; and to be recovered in action of debt or of the case, bill, suit, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the said court of exchequer in Scotland, wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one reprieve, shall be granted or allowed.

First payment to begin at Michaelmas, 1719.

The funds free from taxes.

The treasury to issue warrants for payment of the said yearly funds.

To be made without fee or charge.

Penalty of diverting or misapplying the same.

X. And it being just and reasonable that interest due on the said debts, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, from the three and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and seventeen, until the said feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, together with

Out of the monies arising by the said customs, &c. the treasury shall cause payment to be made to such persons as the King under his sign manual shall direct, of 30,823l. 7s. 2d. for interest of the capital sums, &c.

with the charges of the commission of the equivalent in Scotland, should be provided for: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of the treasury, or lord high treasurer of Great Britain for the time being, shall and may, and they are hereby impowered and directed, out of the monies arisen and to arise of or for the said customs, duties, excises, and other revenues, charged with the said annuities or yearly funds as aforesaid, which shall from time to time remain next after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay, as well the charges of managing the same revenues and keeping up the three courts, and the said other charges of the civil government in Scotland, as also the sums which shall be grown due and in arrear from time to time for or upon the said annuities or funds of ten thousand pounds and two thousand pounds per annum, or either of them, to cause payment to be made unto such persons as his Majesty, by any warrant or warrants under his royal sign manual, counter-signed by the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer of Great Britain for the time being, shall intrust to receive the same, of the full sum of thirty thousand eight hundred twenty three pounds seven shillings and two pence for payment of the interest, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, of the said capital sums amounting to two hundred forty eight thousand five hundred and fifty nine pounds and nine pence halfpenny, and for payment of the salaries of the said commissioners for disposing the equivalent, and of the fees and salaries of their servants and the necessary charges of their office for two years, ended at the said feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen; from which time all salaries and other charges relating to that commission shall cease and determine.

The fund of 2000l. per ann. to be applied towards promoting the fisheries, &c. in Scotland.

XIV. And as to, for, and concerning the said annuity or fund of two thousand pounds per annum, by this act settled until the redemption thereof by parliament; it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the same shall be wholly applied towards the encouraging and promoting the fisheries and such other manufactures and improvements in Scotland, as may most conduce to the general good of the united kingdom, according to the tenor and true meaning of the said fifteenth article of the said treaty of union, and to none other use, intent, or purpose, whatsoever.

The said funds to be personal estates, and not liable to any arrestment.

XV. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said annuities or funds of ten thousand pounds and two thousand pounds per annum, and the several shares and interests of the creditors, proprietors, or members, that are or shall be entitled thereunto, shall be deemed and taken to be personal or moveable estates, and upon deaths shall go to executors or administrators, and not be descendable to heirs; and such shares or interests in the capital stock of the said corporation, or in the hands of their cashier for the time being, or in the hands of any trustees appointed or to be appointed to receive the same as aforesaid, shall not be liable to any arrestment or attachment that shall be laid thereupon; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

None shall incur any incapacity, &c. for putting this act in execution, &c.

XVI. And it is hereby also enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That no person whatsoever shall incur any incapacity, disability, penalty, or forfeiture whatsoever, only for putting this act in execution, for accepting or exercising any office or trust whatsoever, in pursuance of this act, or of any charter, letters patents, or warrant to be granted by his Majesty in pursuance thereof; any former law, or statute, or provision, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Upon payment of 40,000l. and all arrears, the said yearly fund of 2000l. shall cease.

XVII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That at any time upon payment by the parliament of Great Britain of the full sum of four thousand pounds sterling, without any deduction or abatement whatsoever to be made out of the same or any part thereof, and all arrears (if any there be) of the said annuity or yearly sum of two thousand pounds then due and payable, the said fund of 2000l. shall cease.

computing the same quarterly, to the end of the then next preceding quarter of a year, and from thenceforth by the day, until the day of such payment made, then, and not till then, and from thenceforth the said annuity or yearly fund of two thousand pounds shall cease and determine; this present act, or any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XVIII. And it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said annuities or funds of ten thousand pounds per annum, and two thousand pounds per annum, and other payments by this act directed and appointed, shall be in lieu and full discharge of all equivalents whatsoever, which shall or may be claimed or demanded by Scotland or on the behalf of Scotland, by reason of the said treaty or otherwise in regard of the said union; and that the united kingdom of Great Britain, or any the revenues thereof, shall not be liable to any further or future demands of or for any such equivalents, or to the expence or charge of keeping or rendering any further or future accounts thereof (the said yearly funds and other payments by this act established or appointed always excepted).

The said annuities to be in full discharge of all equivalents.

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. XXI.

An act for the better securing the lawful trade of his Majesty's subjects to and from the East Indies; and for the more effectual preventing all his Majesty's subjects trading thither under foreign commissions.

WHEREAS it is of great importance to the welfare of this kingdom, that the trade and traffick to and from the East Indies in the countries and parts of Asia and Africa, and to and from such places of Asia, Africa, and America, or any of them, beyond the cape of Bona Esperanza to the streights of Magellan, where any trade or traffick of merchandize is or may be used or had, be regulated according to the acts of parliament relating thereto, and the royal charters or grants made in pursuance thereof: and whereas in and by an act of parliament of the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, of glorious memory, it is enacted and provided, That the said East Indies, or the islands, havens, forts, cities, towns or places within the limits aforesaid, should not be visited, frequented, or haunted by any of the subjects of his Majesty, other than such as might lawfully go and trade there; and that if any of the subjects of his said late Majesty, his heirs or successors, of what degree or quality soever, other than such as might or may lawfully go and trade to the East Indies, or other the parts in the same act mentioned, by virtue thereof, should directly or indirectly visit, haunt, frequent, trade, traffick, or adventure into or from the said East Indies, or other the parts aforesaid, all and every such offender and offenders should incur such forfeitures and losses, as in the said act is and are for that purpose appointed: and it is also provided by the same act, and by subsequent laws, That all the goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities to be laden upon any ship or ships bound from the said East Indies, or parts within the limits aforesaid, should be brought, without breaking bulk, to some port of Great Britain, and there be unladen and put on land; notwithstanding which just and reasonable provisions and restrictions, several of his Majesty's subjects, not entitled under the said acts of parliament, have presumed to trade to and visit the said East Indies, and other the places aforesaid, in foreign and other ships, intending there to load goods and to bring them into Europe, and to send them in foreign parts out of his Majesty's dominions, to the great prejudice of the trade of this kingdom, and the diminution of his Majesty's customs and other other duties: all which practices being considered, his royal highness George prince of Wales, then guardian of the realm of Great Britain, and his Majesty's lieutenant within the same, was pleased, on the eighteenth day of October, which was in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, to issue forth a proclamation, (amongst other things) strictly charging and commanding all his Majesty's subjects not to serve on board any foreign or other ships, with foreign commissions and colours, bound to or from the East Indies, or any the parts aforesaid; or directly or indirectly to visit, haunt, frequent, trade, traffick, or adventure into or from the said East Indies, or other the parts before mentioned, contrary to law; but notwithstanding the prohibitions contained in the said acts of parliament and proclamation, and in defiance of the same, several evil-disposed persons have gone on to procure and obtain several foreign commissions or passes, and under colour thereof or otherwise have fitted out and manned several English and other ships or vessels, and have sailed with or sent out the same to trade and traffick in the East Indies, or other the parts aforesaid: now, to the intent that such collusive, fraudulent, and illegal trade and practices may be prevented, and that so considerable and beneficial a branch of trade may be secured to this kingdom; be it enacted and declared by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if any of his Majesty's subjects shall, from and after the twentieth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, sail, go, or repair to, or be in the East Indies or parts afore mentioned, or any of them, contrary to the laws now in being, or contrary to the tenor of this act, every such person and persons so offending shall be liable to such punishment, as by any law or laws now in being may be inflicted for such offence.

After Feb. 20, 1718, none shall go to the East Indies, &c. contrary to the laws now in being.

The East India company may seize such persons, and send them to England, there to answer for the offence.

II. And to the intent that such offender and offenders may be brought to justice, it is hereby enacted, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, and their successors, to take, arrest, and seize, or cause to be taken, arrested, and seized, such person or persons, being a subject or subjects of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, at any place or places, or where he or they shall be found within the limits or places aforesaid; and the person and persons so taken, arrested, and seized, to send and remit to England, there to answer for the offence aforesaid, according to due course of law.

After Feb. 5, 1718, persons procuring, &c. any commission from any foreign prince, &c. to trade to the East Indies, &c. shall forfeit 500 l.

III. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons who, from and after the fifth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and eighteen, shall procure, solicit for, obtain or act under any commission, authority, or pass, from any foreign prince, state or potentate whatsoever, to sail or go, or trade in or to the East Indies, or any the parts aforesaid, every such person or persons so offending herein shall incur and forfeit, for every such offence, the sum of five hundred pounds.

Forfeitures how to be recovered and disposed.

IV. And it is hereby enacted, That all the said penalties and forfeitures shall or may be sued for and recovered in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, by bill, plaint, information, or otherwise, wherein essoin, wager of law, or protection shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance; one half part of which said penalties and forfeitures shall be to the use of such person or persons as will inform or sue for the same; and the other half part to his Majesty, his heirs and successors.

Not to prejudice the South Sea company.

V. Provided always, That this act, or any thing herein contained, shall not extend, or be construed, deemed, or taken to extend, to restrain or prejudice such trade or right of trade, or navigation, within any part of the limits aforesaid, as the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South Seas, and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, now are entitled unto; any thing herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

VI. Provided

VI. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby enacted, That this act shall continue in force for five years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer. Continued by 9 Geo. 1. c. 26. sect. 10. for seven years, from March, one thousand seven hundred twenty three; and further continued by 5 Geo. 2. c. 29. for seven years, from May, one thousand seven hundred thirty two; and by 20 Geo. 2. c. 47. to 25 March, one thousand seven hundred and eighty.

An act for enabling the South Sea company to increase their present capital stock and fund, by redeeming such publick debts and incumbrances as are therein mentioned; and for raising money to be applied for lessening several of the publick debts and incumbrances; and for calling in the present Exchequer bills remaining uncanceled; and for making forth new bills in lieu thereof, to be circulated and exchanged upon demand at or near the Exchequer.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WHEREAS as well within or during the respective reigns of several of your Majesty's royal predecessors, as also since your Majesty's happy accession to the throne of this realm, divers acts of parliament now in force have been made and passed, whereby several publick duties, revenues, and incomes, have been granted or continued in perpetuity, or for some estate, term, or interest now being; and all or most of the said publick duties, revenues, and incomes, are now stand clogged and incumbered by authority of parliament with sundry annuities, yearly funds, debts, or payments charged thereupon respectively, and payable out of the same, either in perpetuity, or for term or terms of life, lives or years, in some cases absolutely, and in other cases subject to a power of redemption by parliament, as hereafter in and by this act is more particularly expressed: It is to say, by one act of the fourth year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors,

The several publick debts and incumbrances to be redeemed.

For farther provisions concerning the matters in this act, see 6 Geo. 1. c. 10. 8 Geo. 1. c. 20. 1 Geo. 2. stat. 2. c. 3.

for securing certain recompences and advantages in the said act mentioned, to such persons as shall voluntarily advance the sum of ten hundred thousand pounds towards carrying on the war against France, certain rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, were granted to the crown for the term of ninety nine years, which commenced from the twenty fifth day of January, one thousand six hundred ninety two; and by virtue of the same act, and divers subsequent acts relating thereunto, the said rates and duties of excise, so granted by the said act of the fourth year of their late Majesties reign, do now stand charged (amongst other things) with several annuities amounting to one hundred twenty four thousand four hundred and nine pounds, one shilling, and nine pence per annum; part of which annuities were purchased upon a term of ninety six years, which commenced from the twenty fifth day of January, one thousand six hundred ninety five; and another part thereof upon a term of eighty nine years, which commenced from the twenty fifth day of January, one thousand seven hundred and two; and during the respective remainders of the said respective terms are payable to the respective proprietors thereof, according to the nature of their several and respective estates and interests therein, whereof some are in possession, and others to take effect in reversion, or by way of future interest: and the said rates and duties of excise, originally granted for the said term of ninety nine years, have been continued and made perpetual by several acts of parliament since made and passed, for several uses and purposes therein expressed. And by one act of the fifth year of the reign of their said late majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties several rates and duties upon tunnage of ships and vessels, and upon beer, ale, and other liquors, for securing certain recompences and advantages in the said act mentioned, to such persons as shall voluntarily advance the sum of fifteen hundred thousand pounds towards carrying on the war against France, several rates and duties upon tunnage of ships and vessels were laid for four years, which commenced from the first day of June, one thousand six hundred and ninety four; and several additional rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, commencing from the seventeenth day of May, one thousand six hundred and ninety seven, were granted to their said Majesties, their heirs and successors, and by virtue of the act last mentioned, and of divers subsequent acts relating thereunto, towards raising the sum of three hundred thousand pounds therein mentioned, the said rates and duties upon tunnage of ships and vessels, and the said additional rates and duties of excise, granted by the said act of the fifth year of their said late Majesties reign, or two seventh parts of the said additional excise do now stand charged (amongst other things) with several annuities amounting to fifteen thousand two hundred thirty six pounds, and twelve shillings per annum; part of which annuities last mentioned were purchased upon the term of ninety six years, which commenced from the twenty fifth day of January, one thousand six hundred and ninety five; and another part thereof, upon the term of eighty nine years, which commenced from the twenty fifth day of January, one thousand seven hundred and two; and during the respective remainders of the said terms are payable to the respective proprietors thereof, according to the nature of their several and respective estates and interests therein, whereof some are in possession, and others to take effect in reversion, or by way of future interest. And by one act of the twelfth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William intituled, An act for appropriating three thousand seven hundred pounds weekly, out of certain branches of excise, for publick uses, and for making provision for the service of his Majesty's household and family, and other necessary occasions, it was enacted, That from and after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred, for and during the term of five years the next ensuing, the full, clear, and intire weekly sum of three thousand seven hundred pounds, out of the hereditary duties of excise, and other duties of excise therein mentioned, and every or any of them, should be brought and paid into the treasury of Exchequer, for the purposes in that act expressed. And by an act made in the first year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for better support of her Majesty's household; and the honour and dignity of the crown, the duties of excise thereby granted during her Majesty's life, together with the said hereditary duties of excise, were subjected to the said weekly payment of three thousand seven hundred pounds, during the said term of five years; and after the expiration thereof, so much money as, together with certain payments, after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, should make up a sum of three thousand seven hundred pounds for every week during her Majesty's life, was thereby appointed to be taken out of the said hereditary and other duties of excise therein mentioned, or any of them; and the said payments of three pounds per centum per annum being deducted out of the hereditary part thereof, the residue of the said three thousand seven hundred pounds per week was thereby directed to be applied and disposed for the publick use and service. And by an act of the second year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for granting an aid to her Majesty for carrying on the war, and other her Majesty's occasions, by selling annuities at several rates, and for such respective terms and estates as are therein mentioned, it was enacted, That from and after the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and five, the said full, clear, and entire weekly sum of three thousand and seven hundred pounds, out of the said hereditary duties of excise, and other duties of excise therein mentioned, or any of them, should from time to time for ever be brought and paid into the receipt of Exchequer; and by virtue of the same act, and divers subsequent acts relating thereunto, the said weekly payments do now stand charged (among divers other things) with several annuities amounting to one hundred four thousand seven hundred forty five pounds, ten shillings, and six pence halfpenny per annum, (over and above twelve hundred pounds per annum, for charges of paying the same annuities) which annuities last mentioned were purchased upon a term of ninety and nine years, reckoned from the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and four, and during the remainder of that term are payable to the several proprietors thereof, according to the nature of their several and respective estates and interests therein, whereof some are in possession, others to take effect in reversion, or by way of future interest. And by an act of the third year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for raising monies by sale of several annuities, for carrying on the present war, several annuities, amounting to forty six thousand pounds per annum, were purchased for a term of ninety and nine years, reckoned from the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and five, at the rate of fifteen years purchase, and during the remainder of that term are payable to the several proprietors thereof out of the monies arising by the said weekly payment of three thousand seven hundred pounds, or some part thereof, according to the tenor of the act last mentioned, and other acts of parliament in that behalf. And by an act of the fourth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for continuing an additional subsidy of tannage and poundage, and certain duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, and additional duties of excise; and for settling and establishing a fund whereby, and by other ways and means, for payment of annuities to be sold for raising a further supply to her Majesty for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and six, and other uses therein mentioned, several annuities, amounting to one hundred eighty four thousand two hundred forty two pounds, fourteen shillings per annum, were purchased for a term of ninety nine years, reckoned from the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and six, at the rate of fifteen years and an half's purchase; and during the remainder of that term, are payable to the several and respective proprietors thereof, out of the monies arising of or for the several subsidies of tannage and poundage, and of or for the duties on coals, culm, and cynders, and the several duties and duties of excise, by that act appointed to be paid into the Exchequer, from time to time, in such manner and form as by that act are prescribed in that behalf: and the said additional subsidy of tannage and poundage, (commonly called the one third subsidy) and the said additional duties of excise, have severally been continued, and made perpetual by several acts of parliament since made and passed, for several uses and purposes therein expressed. And by an act of the fifth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for continuing the duties on low wines and spirits of the first extraction, and the duties payable by hawkers, pedlars, and petty chapmen, and part of the duties on stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, and the late duties on sweets, and the one third subsidy of tunnage and poundage; and for settling and establishing a fund thereby, and by the application of certain overplus monies, and otherwise, for payment of annuities, to be sold for raising a further supply to her Majesty, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and seven, and other uses therein expressed, several annuities, amounting to seventy two thousand one hundred eighty seven pounds, ten shillings per annum, were purchased for a term of ninety nine years, reckoned from the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and seven, at the rate of sixteen years purchase; and during the remainder of that term are payable to the several and respective proprietors thereof, out of the monies arising by the several rates and duties upon low wines and spirits of the first extraction, and the duties payable by hawkers, pedlars, and petty chapmen, and the duties upon sweets, and the duties upon stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, and an additional subsidy thereby granted or continued, for such respective terms as are therein mentioned, and out of the respective overplus monies of other annuity funds, and other monies by the same act chargeable with the payment thereof, in such manner and form as are thereby prescribed in that behalf; and the said several duties on low wines and spirits of the first extraction, and upon hawkers, pedlars, and petty chapmen, and the said part of the duties on stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, and the said late duties on sweets, have severally been continued and made perpetual by sundry acts of parliament since made and passed for several uses and purposes therein expressed. And by an act of the sixth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for raising a further supply to her Majesty for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and eight, and other uses, by sale of annuities charged on a fund not exceeding forty thousand pounds per annum, to arise by appropriating several surplusses, and by granting further terms in the duties on low wines, and on hawkers, pedlars, and petty chapmen, the stamp duties, the one third subsidy, the duty on sweets, and one of the branches of the excise, and by making other provision in this act mentioned, several annuities, amounting to forty thousand pounds per annum, were purchased for a term of ninety nine years, reckoned from the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eight, at the like rate of sixteen years purchase, and during the remainder of the term are payable to the several and respective proprietors thereof out of a year fund or sum of forty thousand pounds per annum, by that act established and charged upon such surplusses or overplus monies, and further grants of several duties and other provisions as are therein mentioned for answering the same.

by another act of the said sixth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for continuing one half part of the subsidies of tunnage and poundage, and other duties upon wines, goods, and merchandise imported, which were granted to the crown in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and for settling a fund thereby, and by other ways and means, for payment of annuities not exceeding eighty thousand pounds per annum, to be sold for raising a further supply to her Majesty, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and eight, and other uses therein expressed; several annuities, amounting to eighty thousand pounds per annum, were purchased for a term of ninety nine years, reckoned from the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eight, at the rate of sixteen years purchase, and during the remainder of that term are payable to the several and respective proprietors thereof; and are by the same act charged upon the monies arising from time to time of or for the half subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and other duties thereby granted or continued for a term of therein mentioned, and other monies thereby appointed, for payment of the same annuities in the manner and form thereby prescribed; and the said half subsidy of tunnage and poundage hath since been continued and made perpetual by an act of parliament since made and passed, for several uses and purposes therein expressed; all which annuities herein before mentioned to be payable during the respective remainders of the said several and respective terms of ninety six years, eighty nine years, and ninety nine years, do by computation amount in the whole to six hundred sixty six thousand eight hundred twenty one pounds, eight shillings, and three pence halfpenny per annum, or thereabouts. And whereas by an act of parliament made and passed in the eighth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty new duties of excise, and upon several imported commodities; and for establishing a yearly fund thereby, and by other ways and means, to raise nine hundred thousand pounds by sale of annuities, and (in default thereof) by another lottery, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, several annuities amounting to eighty one thousand pounds per annum, were purchased for a term of thirty two years, reckoned from the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and ten, at the rate of nine pounds per annum for every one hundred pounds, and proportionably for any greater sum advanced or paid; and during the remainder of the said term of thirty two years the same annuities are payable to the several and respective proprietors thereof, out of a yearly fund or sum of eighty one thousand pounds by that act established, and charged upon new rates and duties of excise, and new duties upon pepper, raisins, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and snuffs, thereby granted, and other provisions thereby made, for answering the same yearly fund in the manner therein mentioned. And whereas by another act of parliament made in the eighth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for continuing part of the duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, and granting new duties upon houses having twenty windows, or more, to raise the sum of fifteen hundred thousand pounds by way of a lottery for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, certain additional or new duties were imposed upon coals, culm, and cynders, and upon dwelling houses, for the term of thirty two years, reckoned from the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and a yearly fund of one hundred and thirty five thousand pounds was thereby established, during that term, for payment of such lottery annuities as should be founded upon that act, and be payable upon such tickets as were thereby prescribed. And pursuant to an act of the fifth year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for redeeming the fund appropriated for payment of the lottery tickets, which were made forth for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, by a voluntary subscription of the proprietors into the capital stock of the South Sea company; and for raising a sum of money to pay off such debts and incumbrances as are therein mentioned; and for appropriating the supplies granted in this session of parliament; and to limit times for prosecutions upon bonds for exporting cards and dice; the yearly sum of eighty seven thousand three hundred forty two pounds, four shillings, and five pence, (part of the said yearly fund of one hundred and thirty five thousand pounds) hath already been purchased by the corporation of the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South Seas and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery; and the same eighty seven thousand three hundred forty two pounds, four shillings, and five pence per annum, together with one thousand three hundred ninety seven pounds, nine shillings, and six pence per annum more, for charges of management, is already added to the yearly fund or annuity of the same corporation; and the yearly sum of forty six thousand two hundred sixty pounds, six shillings, and one penny, (being the residue of the said yearly fund of one hundred and thirty five thousand pounds) is, during the remainder of the last mentioned term of thirty two years, payable in several lottery annuities, and upon pay-tickets for the same, which were not subscribed upon the said act of the fifth year of your Majesty's reign; which yearly sums herein before mentioned mentioned to be payable during the respective remainders of the said several terms of thirty two years, do together, by computation, amount to the sum of one hundred twenty seven thousand two hundred sixty pounds, six shillings, and one penny per annum, or thereabouts. And whereas several principal sums, amounting in the whole to sixteen millions five hundred forty six thousand four hundred eighty two pounds, seven shillings, and one penny farthing, or thereabouts, are secured by several acts of parliament, for which interest monies or annuities at several rates are payable at the publick charge, till the satisfying of the said principal sums, or redemption of the funds charged with the payment of such interest monies or annuities, according to the tenor of the respective acts of parliament in that behalf; that is to say, the sum of five hundred sixty three thousand three hundred pounds doth, on the nineteenth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, remain unsatisfied to complete the sum of six hundred thirty three thousand and ten pounds principal money, which by virtue of letters patents of her late majesty Queen Anne, bearing date the thirteenth day of October, one thousand seven hundred and thirteen, grounded upon an act of parliament of the twelfth year of her reign, intituled, An act to raise twelve hundred thousand pounds for publick uses, by circulating a further sum in Exchequer bills; and for enabling her Majesty to raise five hundred thousand pounds on the revenues appointed for uses of her civil government, to be applied for or towards payment of such debts and arrears owing to her servants, tradesmen, and others, as are therein mentioned, was charged with an interest after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, upon a yearly fund of thirty five thousand pounds, payable at the Exchequer during the term of thirty two years, from Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and thirteen, out of the revenues in the same letters patents mentioned; which yearly fund is redeemable upon paying off all the principal and interest charged thereupon; the sum of one million fifty seven thousand nine hundred and ninety pounds doth, on the two and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, remain unsatisfied to complete the sum of one million one hundred fifty seven thousand three hundred and sixty pounds; which in respect only of the tickets, commonly called The blank tickets, drawn in the lottery for raising fourteen hundred thousand pounds for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, was charged with an interest after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, upon the yearly fund of one hundred sixteen thousand five hundred seventy three pounds, and twelve shillings, payable at the Exchequer out of certain duties on soap, paper, linens, silks, calicoes, stuffs, starch, exported coals, and upon stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, granted for thirty two years, from the second day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, by two acts; one of the twelfth year of her late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for laying additional duties on soap and paper, and upon certain linens, silks, calicoes, and stuffs, and upon starch, exported coals, and upon stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, for raising one million four hundred thousand pounds by way of a lottery for her Majesty's supply; and for allowances on exporting made wares of leather, sheep-skins, and lamb-skins; and for distribution of four thousand pounds due to the officers and seamen for gun-money; and to adjust the property of tickets in former lotteries; and touching certain shares of stock in the capital of the South Sea company; and for appropriating the monies granted to her Majesty; and the other of the first year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for rectifying mistakes in the names of the commissioners of the land-tax for the year one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; and for raising so much as is wanting to make up the sum of fourteen hundred thousand pounds, intended to be raised by a lottery for the publick service in the said year, or by one of the acts last mentioned; and the sum of six hundred fifty two thousand and twenty pounds doth, on the two and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, remain unsatisfied, to complete the sum of seven hundred nineteen thousand and forty pounds, which in respect only of the tickets, commonly called The prize tickets, drawn in the lottery mentioned mentioned, was charged upon the said yearly fund of one hundred sixteen thousand five hundred seventy three pounds, and twelve shillings, with an interest after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum; which yearly fund last mentioned is also redeemable upon paying off all the principal sums and arrears of interest due thereupon. And several sums, amounting to one million seventy nine thousand pounds principal monies, were advanced for the use of the publick, pursuant to two several acts of parliament of the first year of your Majesty's reign, the one for raising nine hundred and ten thousand pounds upon a fund of forty five thousand five hundred pounds per annum, and the other for raising one hundred and sixty nine thousand pounds upon a fund of eight thousand four hundred and fifty pounds per annum, charged upon the aggregate fund, and other provisions therein mentioned; for all which sums so amounting to one million seventy nine thousand pounds, the contributors, and those claiming under them, are intitled to several annuities at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, payable by the cashier of the bank of England for the time being; and the same annuities at that rate amount to fifty three thousand nine hundred and fifty pounds per annum, (over and above six hundred and fifty pounds per annum allowed for charges of management) but are subject to redemption at any time upon one year's notice, and repayment by parliament of the respective principal sums last mentioned, and of all arrears of the same annuities (if any be then due). And by or in pursuance of an act of parliament made in the third year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for redeeming the duties and revenues which were settled to pay off principal and interest on the orders made forth on four lottery acts passed in the ninth and tenth years of her late Majesty's reign, and for redeeming certain annuities payable on orders out of the hereditary excise, according to a former act in that behalf; and for establishing a general yearly fund, not only for the future payment of annuities at several rates, to be payable and transferrable at the bank of England, and redeemable by parliament; but also to raise monies for such proprietors of the said orders, as shall chuse to be paid their principal and arrears of interest in ready money; and for making good such other deficiencies and payments, as in this act are mentioned; and for taking off the duties on linseed imported, and British linen exported; several annuities or yearly sums, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, amounting in the whole to the sum of four hundred seventy six thousand seven hundred seventeen pounds, seventeen shillings, and eight pence per annum, or thereabouts, are payable by the cashier of the bank of England for the time being for several principal sums which remained due and unsatisfied on the said four lottery acts, and for one moiety of the debt which was due to certain bankers and others, and for interest made principal pursuant to the act last mentioned, amounting in the whole to nine millions five hundred thirty four thousand three hundred fifty seven pounds, thirteen shillings, and eleven pence three farthings; that is to say, on the act for the ten pounds lottery for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and eleven, the sum of one million six hundred seventy two thousand eight hundred twenty one pounds, and ten shillings; on the act for the class lottery of the same year the sum of two millions five hundred sixty three thousand seven hundred sixty eight pounds, and four shillings; and on the act for the ten pounds lottery for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and twelve, the sum of two millions five hundred ninety two thousand three hundred sixty seven pounds, and seven shillings; and on the act for the class lottery of the same year the sum of two millions three hundred forty six thousand seven hundred forty five pounds, nineteen shillings, and six pence; and for the said moiety of the debt which was due to the bankers and others the sum of six hundred fifty eight thousand six hundred and forty four pounds, thirteen shillings, and five pence three farthings. And by or in pursuance of the said act of the third year of your Majesty's reign several annuities or yearly sums, after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, amounting to the sum of one hundred two thousand thirty six pounds, thirteen shillings, and two pence per annum, or thereabouts, are payable by the cashier of the

the bank of England for the time being for several principal sums amounting to two millions five hundred fifty thousand nine hundred and sixteen pounds, eight shillings, and eight pence halfpenny, or thereabouts; that is to say, two thousand six hundred seventy two pounds, and ten shillings per annum, or thereabouts, for monies contributed by tallies of sol to satisfy the principal and interest, amounting to sixty six thousand eight hundred and twelve pounds, nine shillings, and two pence, which remained unsatisfied upon the register of loans founded upon the act of parliament for the duties on low wines, and other things therein mentioned, which expired on or about the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; thirteen thousand eight hundred seventy one pounds, fourteen shillings, and eight pence per annum, or thereabouts, for monies contributed by tallies of sol to satisfy the principal and interest, amounting to three hundred forty six thousand seven hundred ninety three pounds, seven shillings, and ten pence, which remained unsatisfied upon the register of loans founded on the act of parliament for the duty on candles, which expired on or about the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen; twenty thousand three hundred sixty five pounds, one shilling and ten pence per annum, or thereabouts, for monies contributed by tallies of sol to satisfy a deficiency, which (when adjusted) appeared to amount to five hundred nine thousand one hundred twenty seven pounds, five shillings, and six pence, to make good your Majesty's supply for the year one thousand seven hundred and sixteen; nine hundred sixty seven pounds, sixteen shillings, and nine pence per annum, or thereabouts, for monies contributed by tallies of sol to satisfy several bills of exchange, amounting to twenty four thousand one hundred ninety five pounds, eighteen shillings, and one penny, drawn for the service of the expedition to Canada: sixty four thousand one hundred fifty nine pounds, nine shillings, and eleven pence per annum, or thereabouts, for the principal sums, amounting to one million six hundred three thousand nine hundred eighty seven pounds, eight shillings, and one penny halfpenny, contained in army debentures certified on or before the one and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, by the proper officer appointed to make forth such debentures pursuant to the several acts of parliament in that behalf: all which annuities or yearly sums, computed or to be computed after the said respective rates of five pounds per centum per annum, and four pounds per centum per annum, by virtue or in pursuance of the said act of the third year of your Majesty's reign, are payable out of a certain yearly fund of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds, six shillings, and ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny per annum, commonly called The general fund, established by the same act: the payments whereof, and making good all deficiencies thereupon, are secured by the several duties and revenues by that act granted and made perpetual, and by several appropriations and other provisions therein specified; and the same annuities are redeemable upon such notice or notices and such payment or payments to be made, as in and by the said act of the third year of your Majesty's reign are prescribed. And by or in pursuance of a certain clause contained in the act for the land-tax passed in the fifth year of your Majesty's reign, one or more annuity or annuities amounting to the sum of five thousand five hundred fifteen pounds, and twelve shillings per annum, or thereabouts, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, were made payable by the said cashier of the bank of England for the time being out of the said general fund of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds, six shillings, and ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny per annum, to the treasurer of your Majesty's navy for the service of the navy and victualling thereof, to make good a deficiency of one hundred ten thousand three hundred and twelve pounds, seventeen shillings, and four pence, in the same act expressed; which annuity or annuities last mentioned are also charged on the said general or yearly fund, and be payable at the bank of England as other annuities payable out of that fund until the redemption thereof by parliament. And by or in pursuance of another act of the fifth year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the relief of Edward Glent esquire, executor of lieutenant colonel Thomas Glent, for an army army debenture lost in the pay office, one or more annuity or annuities amounting to twenty three pounds, eight shillings, and three pence farthing per annum, or thereabouts, after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, became payable by the said cashier of the bank of England for the time being, out of the said general fund of seven hundred twenty four thousand eight hundred forty nine pounds, six shillings, and ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny per annum, for the principal sum of five hundred eighty five pounds, seven shillings, and one penny, stated to be due on a lost debenture mentioned in the same act; which annuity or annuities were also thereby made payable until the redemption thereof by parliament. And by or in pursuance of another act of parliament made in the fifth year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for applying certain 5 Geo. 1. c. 3. overplus monies and further sums, to be raised as well by way of a lottery as by loans, towards paying off and cancelling Exchequer bills, and for lessening the present great charge in relation to those bills; and for circulating and exchanging for ready money the residue of the same bills for the future, several annuities, amounting in the whole to the yearly sum of twenty thousand pounds, after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, for the principal sums, amounting to five hundred thousand pounds contributed to a lottery founded upon that act, are payable by the cashier of the bank of England for the time being out of a yearly fund of twenty thousand pounds thereby charged (amongst other things) upon the duties and revenues thereby denominated the aggregate fund, subject nevertheless to a proviso of redemption upon such notice and payments as by the act last mentioned are prescribed. And by or in pursuance of another act made in the said fifth year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act 5 Geo. 1. c. 9. for continuing certain duties upon coals and culm, and for establishing certain funds to raise money, as well to proceed in the building of new churches, as also to complete the supply granted to his Majesty, and to reserve the overplus monies of the said duties for the disposition of parliament; and for more effectually suppressing private lotteries, the sum of five hundred thousand pounds therein mentioned, towards your Majesty's supply, was raised by a lottery; which sum, together with interest for the same, after the rate of four 1 Geo. 2. c. 2. pounds per centum per annum, till repayment of the principal, is thereby secured to be paid at the Exchequer in the course therein mentioned, by and out of a yearly fund of thirty thousand five hundred fifty nine pounds, and fourteen shillings, thereby settled for thirty two years, reckoned from the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and charged (amongst other things) upon certain duties on coals and culm thereby granted or appropriated: so that all the principal sums for which interest monies are payable out of the said redeemable funds or securities carrying interest at the said rate of five pounds per centum per annum, till satisfaction of the same principal sums, do amount to one million fifty five thousand nine hundred and ninety pounds, or thereabouts; and all the principal sums for which interest monies are payable out of the said redeemable funds or securities carrying interest at the said rate of four pounds per centum per annum, till satisfaction of the same principal sums, do amount to one million seven hundred fifteen thousand three hundred and twenty pounds, or thereabouts; and all the principal sums for which the said annuities are payable out of the said redeemable funds or securities at the said rate of five pounds per centum for every one hundred pounds, do amount to ten millions seven hundred and thirty three thousand six hundred seventy pounds, eleven shillings, and three pence farthings, or thereabouts; and the annuities, payable for the same at the last mentioned, do amount to five hundred thirty six thousand one hundred eighty pounds, ten shillings, and six pence three farthings per annum, or thereabouts, to be redemption thereof; and all the principal sums for which the said annuities are payable out of the said redeemable funds or securities at the said rate of five pounds per annum for every one hundred pounds, do amount to three millions one thousand five hundred and one pounds, fifteen shillings, and nine pence farthings, or thereabouts; and the annuities payable for the same at the said rate of five pounds per centum per annum, do amount to one hundred twenty two thousand

And whereas the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South Seas, and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, are willing, at such time or times as they shall find convenient, before the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, to take in, either by purchase or subscriptions, all or any the above mentioned annuities, payable during the respective remainders of the above mentioned terms of ninety six years, eighty nine years, and ninety nine years, (in this act before computed to amount in the whole to six hundred sixty six thousand eight hundred twenty one pounds, eight shillings, and three pence halfpenny per annum, or thereabouts) from the respective proprietors thereof, (and without any compulsion on any of the said proprietors) at such price and prices as shall be agreed between the said company and the respective proprietors of those annuities; and where any of the annuities so payable during the remainder of any of the said long terms of ninety six years, eighty nine years, and ninety nine years, do or shall belong to several persons or corporations having particular estates or interest therein, (in possession, reversion, or by way of future interest) who will voluntarily agree together to depart with such their particular estates or interests, that so the said governor and company may lawfully take in such annuity or annuities during the whole remainder of the said respective terms of ninety six years, eighty nine years, or ninety nine years, the said governor and company, in all such cases, are willing, at such time or times as they shall find convenient before the said first of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, to take in, either by purchase or subscriptions, such particular estates or interests, whereby the said annuities for the whole remainder of the said long terms respectively may effectually be taken in, according to the true meaning of this act, at such price or prices as shall be agreed between the said company and those proprietors: provided the said governor and company, for every annuity (part of the said annuities computed to amount in the whole to six hundred sixty six thousand eight hundred twenty one pounds, eight shillings, and three pence halfpenny per annum, or thereabouts) so to be taken in by them, may, in lieu thereof, have an addition made to their capital stock after the rate of twenty years purchase, and such respective additions (in respect thereof) to their present annuity or yearly fund, secured to be paid for such time, and out of such duties and revenues as are herein-after prescribed and appointed, until the redemption thereof according to the tenor and true meaning of this present act. And the said governor and company are willing, at such time or times as they shall see convenient, before the said first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, to take in, either by purchase or subscriptions, all or any of the above mentioned lottery-annuities in this act computed to amount to forty six thousand two hundred and sixty pounds, six shillings, and one penny per annum, or thereabouts for the term of twenty three years, reckoned from Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and the pay-tickets for the same, from the respective proprietors thereof, at such price or prices as shall be agreed between the said company and the respective proprietors of those annuities. And where any of the lottery-annuities so payable during the said term of twenty three years, or the pay-tickets for the same, do or shall belong to several persons or corporations, who will voluntarily agree together to depart with all the pay-tickets for any such annuity for the said term of twenty three years, the said governor and company, in all such cases, and every such case and cases, are willing, at such time or times as they shall find convenient, before the said first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, to take in the same, either by purchase or subscriptions, at such price or prices as shall be agreed between the said company and those proprietors: provided the said governor and company, for every such lottery-annuity so to be taken in, may have an addition made to their capital stock after the rate of fourteen years purchase, and such respective additions to their present annuity or yearly fund, secured to be paid for such time, and out of such duties and revenues as are herein-after prescribed and appointed in that behalf, until the redemption thereof according to the tenor and true meaning of this present act. And the said gov-

nor and company are also willing, at such time or times as they shall see convenient, before the said first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, to take in, either by purchase or subscriptions, all or any the above mentioned annuities, (before in this act computed to amount to eighty one thousand pounds per annum, or thereabouts) for the said term of twenty two years and three quarters of a year, reckoned from Christmas, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, or for the remainder of that term which shall be to come and unexpired at the quarter day next preceding the taking in the same from the respective proprietors thereof, without any compulsion on any such proprietors, at such price or prices as shall be agreed between the said company and the respective proprietors of those annuities. And where any of the annuities so payable during the said term of twenty two years and three quarters of a year, or such remainder thereof, do or shall belong to several persons or corporations having particular estates or interests therein, who will voluntarily agree together to depart with such their particular estates or interests, so that such annuity or annuities may effectually be taken in for the said whole time or term of twenty two years and three quarters of a year, or such remainder thereof, the said governor and company in all and every such case and cases are willing, at such time or times as they shall see convenient, before the said first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, to take in the same, either by purchase or voluntary subscriptions, at such price or prices as shall be agreed between the said company and those proprietors; provided the said governor and company, for every such annuity so to be taken in, may have an addition made to their capital stock after the like rate of fourteen years purchase, and such respective additions, in respect thereof to their present annuity or yearly fund, secured to be paid for such time, and out of such duties and revenues as are herein-after prescribed and appointed in that behalf, until the redemption thereof according to the tenor and true meaning of this present act. And the said governor and company are likewise willing, at such time or times as they shall see convenient, before the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, (but subject to such notices for redemption as are herein-after mentioned) to take in all and every the said redeemable debts and annuities, (the principal sums whereof are in this act before computed to amount to sixteen millions five hundred forty six thousand four hundred eighty two pounds, seven shillings, and one penny farthing, or thereabouts) either by purchases, taking subscriptions, or paying them off by the said governor and company: provided the said governor and company may have an addition of one hundred pounds to their present capital stock for every one hundred pounds of the principal monies so taken in by them, and proportionably for greater or lesser sums, and so as such additions be made to the present annuity or yearly fund of the said governor and company as shall be equal to the rates now payable for the principal sums of those redeemable debts and annuities which shall be so taken in, until the redemption thereof according to this act. And the said governor and company, for the liberty of increasing their capital stock and their annuity or yearly fund by such means as aforesaid, have desired and consented, that their present annuities or yearly funds for their present capital stock, and the annuities or yearly funds for their capital stocks, (to be increased pursuant to this act) be continued at the respective rates herein-after mentioned, till the feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven inclusively; and that from and after the same day their then annuity or yearly fund for their whole capital and increased capital stocks may be actually reduced to four pounds per centum per annum, and be likewise from thenceforth redeemable by parliament; and in consideration thereof, and of such other benefits and advantages as are hereafter in and by this act provided and expressed, the said governor and company are willing to make payments into the receipt of Exchequer as are herein-after specified, for the use of the publick, to be applied for paying off the publick debts and incumbrances incurred before Christmas, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen.

Great Britain in parliament assembled, being desirous to have the said public debts and incumbrances lessened as fast as conveniently may be, with regard to justice and the publick faith, and that as well such publick duties, revenues, and incomes, as are already settled for answering the present annuity or yearly fund of the said governor and company, as also such other publick duties, revenues, and incomes, as are specified in this act, may be settled in such manner, that the present annuities or yearly funds for the present capital of the said governor and company, and the annuities or yearly funds which shall become due and payable for their capital to be increased, pursuant to this act, may be continued at the respective rates herein-after mentioned, till the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven inclusive; and that from and after the same feast day their then annuity or yearly fund for their whole capital and increased capital may be actually reduced to four pounds per centum per annum, and likewise be thenceforth redeemable by parliament according to the purport and true meaning of this act, have, for that end and purpose, given and granted, and do by this present act give and grant to your Majesty, your heirs and successors, such rates, duties, revenues, and incomes, as are herein-after mentioned; and do humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That such or the like particular rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale, cyder, and other liquors, as by the said act of the eighth year of the reign of Queen Anne were granted for the term of thirty two years, which commenced from the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and such new rates or duties upon pepper, raisins, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and snuff, as by the same act were granted for the term of thirty two years, which commenced from the sixth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and nine, shall severally, by virtue of this act, have continuance after the respective determinations of the several terms of thirty two years last mentioned, and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever: and that the above mentioned yearly fund or sum of thirty five thousand pounds per annum, which by the said letters patent of her said late majesty Queen Anne, grounded upon the said act of parliament in that behalf, was made payable at the Exchequer during the term of thirty two years, which commenced from Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and thirteen, out of revenues in the same letters patents expressed, shall, after the determination of the term of thirty two years last mentioned, have continuance, and the said revenues shall be charged therewith for ever: and that such or the like additional or new duties and rates for and upon all soap, and for and upon all paper, paste-boards, mill-boards, and scale-boards, and for and upon certain chequered and striped linens, and upon certain linens printed, painted, stained, or dyed after the manufacture, or in the thread or yard before the manufacture in any foreign parts, and for and upon silks, calicoes, linens, and stuffs printed, stained, painted, or dyed in Great Britain, and for and upon all starch, and for and upon coals shipped to be exported, and for and upon several matters and things which should be engrossed or written on stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, which in or by the said two acts, the one of the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, and the other of the first year of his now Majesty's reign, or by one of those acts, were granted and laid for a term or several terms of thirty two years, which commenced from the second day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, (except as in the same acts or either of them is excepted) shall severally, by virtue of this act, have continuance after the determination of the term and terms of thirty two years last mentioned, and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever: and that such and the like particu-cular rates and impositions; which in and by one of the said acts of the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign were granted or imposed for and upon all sorts of coals and culm which should be imported and brought into the port of the city of London, or the river of Thames within the liberty of the said city upon the same river, from and after the twenty seventh day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, and before the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty one, shall by virtue of this act be continued and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever, for and upon all sorts of coals and culm which shall be imported and brought at any time or times after the twenty fourth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty.

and the duties on coals, &c. 5 Geo. 1. c. 9. made perpetual.

II. And it is hereby enacted, That the several rates, duties, revenues, and impositions by this act made perpetual, as aforesaid, as well before as when and as the same respectively shall take effect by virtue of this act, shall be raised and levied by such rules, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such distributions of the same penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such power of mitigation, and with such respective drawbacks, allowances, and repayments, and with such exceptions, and in such manner and form, as the like rates, duties, revenues, or impositions, granted or continued by the said former acts now in being respectively, are prescribed, enacted, or appointed to be raised or levied.

These duties how to be raised.

III. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where any further or other provision or alteration is made by any other act or acts of parliament now in force, touching or concerning any the rates, duties, revenues, and impositions which were granted for certain terms, as aforesaid, such other provisions and alterations shall be observed and take place, in relation to the like rates, duties, revenues, and impositions by this act intended to be made perpetual.

Alterations in other acts concerning the duties to take place.

IV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies to arise by the said rates, duties, revenues, and impositions by this act made perpetual, as aforesaid, as well before as when and as the same respectively (after the expiration of the respective terms formerly granted, as aforesaid) shall take effect by virtue of this present act, (the necessary charges of raising the same excepted) shall from time to time be brought into the receipt of the Exchequer, to the intent and purpose that the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South Seas, and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, and their successors, may out of the same be secured the payment of such respective annuities or sums as shall may become due or payable to them in pursuance of this act, until the redemption thereof: nevertheless the said rates, duties, revenues, and impositions hereby made perpetual, and such annuities or sums as shall or may become due or payable out of the same to the said governor and company, and their successors, shall be subject to redemption by parliament, according to the proviso or condition of redemption hereafter in this act contained in that behalf; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

The monies to arise by these duties to be brought into the Exchequer, subject to redemption.

XXIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the annuity or yearly fund now payable to the same governor and company at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, from the time to which it last paid at the Exchequer, until and for the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, and from thenceforth at the said rate of five pounds per centum per annum, until redemption by parliament, according to this act, shall grow and be accounted due quarterly, as the same now is satisfied by weekly or other payments, as is herein-after mentioned) to the same governor and company, and their successors, out of the monies to arise into the said Exchequer, of or for the particular duties, revenues,

The increased annuity shall grow due quarterly out of the monies to arise by the duties chargeable therewith.

revenues, funds, and other provisions now charged or chargeable with the same annuity or yearly fund, now payable after the said rate of five pounds per centum per annum, or appropriated for payment thereof by any act or acts of parliament now in force; and that the several additions to be made to the same annuity or yearly fund of the same governor and company by virtue of this act, as fast as the same additions respectively shall be settled and determined, as aforesaid, shall be computed and paid from the respective commencements thereof according to this act, and shall grow and be accounted due to them and their successors quarterly, at the four most usual feasts aforesaid, by equal portions, at the several rates by this act prescribed, until and for the said feast of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, one thousand seven hundred twenty seven; and from and after the same feast day at the said rate of four pounds per centum per annum, until redemption by parliament, according to this act (nevertheless to be satisfied by weekly or other payments, as is herein-after mentioned); and all and every the same additional annuities or yearly funds shall be charged and chargeable upon, and be paid and payable out of the monies arisen or to arise at the said receipt of Exchequer, of or for the particular duties, revenues, funds, and other provisions respectively, which were charged with payment of the respective annuities or debts so taken in or paid off, as aforesaid, or were appropriated for payment thereof; and in case the said particular duties or revenues, or any of them, are temporary, or were imposed only for a term or terms of years, which may end or determine before the redemption of the additional annuity or annuities intended to be charged thereupon by virtue of this act, then and in all and every such case and cases every such additional annuity, until the redemption thereof by parliament, according to this act, shall be charged upon, and be payable out of the same or the like particular duties and revenues by this act continued and granted to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever, which are hereby declared to be a further security for payment of the same.

XXXIV. And whereas the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, are already entitled, by virtue of former acts of parliament in that behalf to several yearly sums, amounting to nine thousand three hundred ninety seven pounds, nine shillings, and six pence per annum, for charges of management, and it is intended that they, and their successors, shall have a further allowance for charges of management of so much as it now costs the publick for the annual charge of paying, assigning, and accounting for the annuities and debts by this act intended to be taken in or paid off, or so much of them as shall be actually taken in or paid off, pursuant to this act: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, shall with all convenient speed cause an account or estimate to be taken and made up of the whole annual cost to the publick, of paying, assigning, and accounting for all the annuities and debts of what kind soever, computed or specified in this act as aforesaid, (whether they shall or shall not be all taken in or paid off) and upon his or their receiving the above mentioned accounts, or duplicates thereof, from the said managers and directors to be constituted in pursuance of this act, from time to time, shall compute and allow, and cause to be computed and allowed to the same governor and company, a proportion of the said costs for the annuities and debts then appearing to be actually taken in or paid off; that is to say, as the sum of eleven millions seven hundred forty four pounds, eight shillings, and ten pence (being their present capital stock) is to the said yearly sum of nine thousand three hundred ninety seven pounds, nine shillings, and six pence, (being the present allowance for management) so the stock which they are to have for the annuities and debts by every such account or duplicate thereof, appearing to be taken in or paid off, shall be to the proportional sum which shall be allowed to the same corporation towards their charges, so as all the portions proportional sums last mentioned do not exceed the whole of one year's cost for paying, assigning, and accounting for all the annuities and debts before mentioned; and the proportional sums so to be allowed, shall from time to time be specified in the said respective instruments, under the hands and seals of the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, and shall respectively commence from the respective time or times at which the to be increased annuity and annuities to the same governor and company, or the proportional parts thereof, shall commence in pursuance of this act.

XXXV. And it is hereby enacted, That the said sums amounting to nine thousand three hundred ninety seven pounds, nine shillings, and six pence per annum, and such further sums for charges of management, (when and as they shall be added thereunto) shall from time to time be paid and payable to the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors, at such times, and in such manner and form, as their present annuity or yearly fund, and the said additions to be made thereunto, as aforesaid, are by this act appointed to be paid and payable, till the same annuities and yearly funds shall be redeemed according to this act; and that as well the said sums amounting to nine thousand three hundred ninety seven pounds, nine shillings, and six pence per annum, as the said further sums to be allowed for charges of management, shall be charged upon and payable out of the particular duties, revenues, and incomes by this act charged, or intended to be charged, to and with the payment of the said present annuity or yearly fund of the same governor and company, and of the said several additions to be made thereunto, as aforesaid; any thing in this or any former act or acts of parliament contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

The 9,397 l. 9 s. 6 d. per annum, and further sums for charges, to be paid to the company as their present annuities, &c. are payable till redeemed.

XXXVI. And for better securing to the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors, all the payments intended to be made to them, by virtue or in pursuance of this act: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the above mentioned duties and revenues whatsoever by this act charged, or intended to be charged to or with the payment of the annuity or yearly fund of the same governor and company, and the additions to be made thereunto, as aforesaid, and to or with the payment of the said yearly sum of nine thousand three hundred ninety seven pounds, nine shillings, and six pence, and the additions for charges of management to be made thereunto, as aforesaid, (whether the same duties or revenues, or any of them, be such as were granted in perpetuity by any former act or acts of parliament, or be continued in perpetuity by virtue of this act) shall from time to time be raised, levied, and collected, and all the monies arising thereby, (except the necessary charges of raising, collecting, levying, and paying the same into the Exchequer in England) shall from time to time be brought and paid into the same Exchequer and according to the rules, methods, and directions, and with such drawbacks, repayments, and allowances, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are prescribed by the said former act or acts of parliament respectively, or referred unto by this act, for raising, levying, collecting, or bringing in the same, as fully and effectually, as if the same rules, methods, directions, drawbacks, repayments, allowances, penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and every of them, were in and by this act particularly repeated and re-enacted; and that all the monies which shall be so brought into the said receipt, from time to time, of or for the said duties and revenues respectively, shall be fairly and distinctly entered and registered in one or more book or books to be kept in the offices of the auditor of the receipt, and clerk of the pells severally for that purpose, to which all persons concerned, at all seasonable times, shall have free access without fee charge.

All the duties and revenues charged with the company's yearly fund, &c. to be brought into the Exchequer, according to the directions of the former acts, to be entered in books of the auditor of the receipt and clerk of the pells.

XXXVIII. And it is hereby also enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies which shall or ought to be so separated and kept apart for the said purposes in this act expressed, shall be and are hereby appropriated, and shall from time to time be issued and applied to and for the payment and satisfaction of such sum and sums of money as, according to the tenor and true meaning of this act, shall from time to time be due or payable to the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, or their successors, (subject nevertheless to such reduction and redemption, as are in and by this act prescribed touching the same) and to none other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever; and that the respective officers in the Exchequer, who shall make any wilful delay in issuing or paying the same, or shall be guilty of diverting or misapplying any of the said monies contrary to this act, for any such offence shall be forejudged of their respective offices or places, and be rendered incapable to serve his Majesty, his heirs or successors, in any office or employment of trust or profit whatsoever, and shall also be liable to pay double the value of any sum or sums of money so wilfully delayed to be paid, or so diverted or misapplied as aforesaid, to the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors, to be recovered by action of debt or on the case, bill, suit, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record in Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be granted or allowed.

XLI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if at any time or times the monies which shall be brought into the Exchequer, and be set apart as aforesaid, for making the payments by this act appointed and intended to be made to the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors, as aforesaid, (which monies are by this act appropriated for or towards that use and purpose) shall not be sufficient to pay and discharge, or compleat the payment at the end of any quarter of a year of all the monies which shall be then due for or upon their said present annuity or yearly fund, and the said additions to be made thereunto, and for or upon the said yearly sum of nine thousand three hundred ninety seven pounds, nine shillings, and six pence, for charges of management, and the additions to be made to the same as aforesaid, then and so often, and in every such case, the deficiency of any such quarter shall and may be supplied out of the overplus monies to arise and to be set apart as aforesaid in any subsequent quarter.

XLII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That such of the said annuities and debts as shall not be taken in by purchase or subscription, or be paid off by or in pursuance of this act, and the interest monies payable for the same debts, shall severally continue to be paid, and shall be payable to the respective proprietors thereof, their executors, administrators, successors and assigns, at the same respective offices and places, and out of the same duties, revenues, and incomes, and at such times and times, and shall be assignable, transferrable, and disposeable in the same manner and form as those annuities and debts, or the interest of such debts.

are now payable, assignable, transferrable, or disposeable by the respective acts or statutes now in force concerning the same, and as if this present act had never been made: and that this act, or any clause, matter, or thing therein contained, shall not extend or be construed to interrupt, delay, or prejudice, at any time before or after the said first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, the receiving, assigning, transferring, or disposing the said annuities or debts, or the interests of such debts not taken in or paid off by virtue of this act as aforesaid, in any manner of wise; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding (except as is herein before otherwise provided and directed, relating to the stopping or delaying the assigning and transferring the annuities or shares in stock for the same, now transferrable at the publick office of the bank of England).

LVII. And it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors for ever, shall remain, continue, and be one body corporate and politick, by the name of The governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South Seas, and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, and shall have, hold, receive, and enjoy the said annuity or yearly fund of five hundred eighty seven thousand three hundred forty two pounds, four shillings, and five pence, and the said annuities or yearly funds which, pursuant to this act, shall or ought to be added thereunto by way of increase, as aforesaid, and the said yearly sum of nine thousand three hundred ninety seven pounds, nine shillings, and six pence, and the said yearly sums to be added thereunto, (by way of increase for management) pursuant to this act, until the said annuities and yearly funds, and the said yearly sums respectively shall be redeemed according to this act, and shall have, hold, and enjoy for ever, all their forts, factories, acquisitions, lands, tenements, hereditaments, sole benefit of trade in and to the South Seas and elsewhere, with a perpetual succession, and all abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, franchises, exemptions, privileges, profits, and advantages whatsoever, whereunto the same governor and company are, or before the making of this act were entitled by any act or acts of parliament, grant or charter now in force, (all which are by this act ratified, confirmed, and made effectual to them and their successors) freed and discharged of and from all former provisos, powers, acts, matters, and things whatsoever, for redeeming, determining, or making void the same, or any of them, subject nevertheless to the provisos and powers herein-after contained for redeeming the said present annuity and yearly fund of the same governor and company, and all additions to be made thereunto, and the said yearly sum of nine thousand three hundred ninety seven pounds, nine shillings, and six pence, or charges of management, and all additions to be made thereunto, at such time or times, and in such manner and form, as are herein-after specified in that behalf.

Corporation shall continue for ever, and shall enjoy their increased funds till the redemption thereof, and their factories, trade, and acquisitions.

LVIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, at any time after the said feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred twenty seven, upon repayment by parliament to the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, or their successors, of the whole sum thereof their said capital stock, with all the additions which (for taking in the said annuities, debts, and incumbrances) are to be made thereunto by way of increase as aforesaid, shall then consist, according to this act, without any deduction, defalcation, or abatement whatsoever, to be made out of the same, or any part thereof, and upon payment of all arrears which shall then be due at the respective rates aforesaid, or either of them, for or upon the then annuity or yearly fund of the same governor and company to be increased as aforesaid, and upon payment of all arrears of the said yearly sums for charges of management; all which arrears (if any such be) shall be computed and paid to the quarterly feast day then next preceding, and from from thence shall be computed and paid by the day, till the time of such full payment made of the capital stock to be increased as aforesaid, then the said annuity or yearly fund of the same governor and company, payable as aforesaid, and the annuities or yearly funds which shall be added thereunto pursuant to this act, and the said yearly sums to be allowed for charges of management as aforesaid, and every of them, shall from thenceforth cease and determine.

After 24 June, 1727, on payment of any sum not less than 1,000,000 l. a proportionable part of the annuities shall cease.
2 Geo. 2. c. 8. sect. 19.

LIX. And in regard it is intended, that at any time or times after the said feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred twenty seven, the principal or sum total of the said capital and to be increased stock of the same governor and company, consisting of eleven millions seven hundred forty six thousand eight hundred forty four pounds, eight shillings, and ten pence, and the additions to be made thereunto as aforesaid, may be satisfied to the said governor and company by any payments (not being less than one million of lawful money of Great Britain at a time); and that as the same principal money shall be paid off, the said annuity or yearly fund of the same governor and company, and the annuities or yearly funds to be added thereunto as aforesaid, shall from time to time proportionably sink and be abated: be it therefore further provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That at any time or times after the said feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred twenty seven, upon repayment by parliament to the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, or their successors, of any sum or sums of money (not being less than one million at a time) in part of the principal monies whereunto the said capital with all the additions which, for taking in the said annuities, debts, and incumbrances, are to be made thereunto by way of increase as aforesaid, shall then jointly amount according to this act, and upon payment of all arrearages then due to them at the respective rates aforesaid, or either of them, for or upon their said annuity or yearly fund increased or to be increased as aforesaid, or so much of those arrearages as shall bear a proportion to the principal sums from time to time remaining unsatisfied, being computed by the day, until the time of every such payment of part of the principal respectively; and upon payment of all arrearages then due for or upon the said yearly sums for charges of management: then, from and after every such payment so made to the same governor and company, or their successors, so much of their said annuity or yearly fund increased or to be increased as aforesaid, as shall bear proportion to the monies so paid in part of the said principal, shall cease, determine, and be abated; any thing in this or any former act or acts of parliament contained or other matter or thing whatsoever, to the contrary notwithstanding.

After redemption of the annuities, the duties to be understood to be redeemed by parliament, but the corporation to continue for ever.

LX. Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the redemption of the said annuity or yearly fund of the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and of the additional annuities or yearly funds which are to be joined to the same as aforesaid; and of the said yearly sums to be paid for charges of management as aforesaid, according to the several and respective provisos or conditions of redemption in this act contained, of or concerning the same, then and not till then, so much of the said several duties, revenues, and incomes as were by this act applicable thereunto during the continuance thereof, shall be understood to be redeemed by parliament, and shall not be issued, paid, or applied to any use, intent, or purpose whatsoever without authority of parliament: nevertheless, the same corporation by the name aforesaid shall for ever remain, continue, and be one body corporate and politick, and shall have, hold, and enjoy all their forts, factories, acquisitions, lands, tenements, hereditaments, sole benefit of trade in and to the South Seas and elsewhere, and also all the lands, tenements, and hereditaments that are or shall be by them purchased in Great Britain, not exceeding one thousand pounds per annum, with perpetual succession, and all abilities, capacities, powers, and authorities.

authorities, franchises, exemptions, privileges, profits, and advantages whatsoever, whereunto the said governor and company are, or before the making this act were entitled by any act or acts of parliament, grants, or charter now in force; all which, and all the clauses, matters, and things therein contained, now being in force, are by this act ratified, confirmed, and made effectual to them and their successors; and the same governor and company, and the members thereof, without having any share or interest in the said yearly funds, payments, or annuities, or any of them, after the same shall be redeemed, shall have and be entitled to the sole and exclusive benefits of trade in and to the South Seas and elsewhere, and such power of trade in the fishery, as by any act or acts of parliament now in force is directed, and all other benefits, powers, privileges, and advantages, (the said respective annuities to them issuing or payable after such redemption as aforesaid, only excepted) as if no such redemption were had or made; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

LXI. And it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, exemptions, franchises, privileges, profits, and advantages whatsoever, and all pains of death and other penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and all rules, directions, methods, articles, matters and things whatsoever, which by any former act or acts of parliament, or any clause or clauses therein, or any charter or charters under the great seal of Great Britain, are enacted, granted, or established to, for, touching or concerning the same corporation of the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South Seas and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, or their successors, or the members of the same, or any person or persons employed or to be employed under them, (being in force at or until the time of making this act, and not hereby determined or altered) shall for ever continue and be practised, and be put in execution, for securing and paying the yearly funds, annuities, and payments by this act directed, and subject to the provisos for redemption thereof in this act contained, and also (as well after such redemption as before) for securing the possessions, trade, and business of the same corporation, and for the advantage of them and all persons employed and to be employed under them, in all respects, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if the said abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, exemptions, franchises, privileges, profits, and advantages, and the said pains of death and other penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and the said benefit of trade, rules, directions, methods, articles, matters, and things were severally repeated and at large re-enacted in the body of this present act.

LXII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That nothing in this act contained shall obstruct or hinder, or be construed to obstruct or hinder, the payment of any part of the yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds, settled during his Majesty's life (which God long preserve) for support of his Majesty's household, and of the honour and dignity of the crown, or any part of the annuities granted by his Majesty to his royal highness the prince of Wales, or his trustees, out of the same, pursuant to acts of parliament in that behalf; or to obstruct or hinder the payment of the yearly sum of four thousand pounds payable by any act or acts of parliament out of part of the said aggregate fund to sheriffs of England and Wales, for defraying the charges of taking forth their letters patents for their respective offices, and passing their several accounts, and obtaining their quietus's; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

LXVI. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted, That if the sub-governor, deputy-governor, the directors, managers, assistants, or other members of the said corporation of the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain trading to the South Seas and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery, shall upon the account of the said corporation, at any time or times, purchase any lands or revenues belonging to the crown,

All things by any former acts or charters granted, to continue for ever.

Not to hinder the payment of 700,000l. per annum to his Majesty, or the annuities to the prince of Wales, or the 4,000l. per ann. for the riffs charges.

Company not to purchase crown lands, or lend money to the crown by way of anticipation.

Penalty for so doing.

3 Geo. 3. c. 7.

So much money arising before 24 June, 1727, by the surplus monies called The sinking fund, with the increase thereof, as shall remain after 520,000 l. by 5 Geo. 3. c. 3. is completed, and after discharging payments charged on the sinking fund, &c. redeemable before Midsummer, 1727, shall be applied by even sums of 100,000 l. towards paying off part of the capital, carrying interest at 3 l. per cent.

or advance or lend to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, any sum or sums of money by way of loan or anticipation, on any part or parts, branch or branches, fund or funds of the revenues now granted or belonging, or hereafter to be granted or belonging to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, other than such fund or funds, part or parts, branch or branches of the said revenues only on which a credit of loan is or shall be granted by parliament, that then the said sub-governor, deputy-governor, directors, managers, or assistants, or other members of the said corporation, who shall consent, agree to, or approve of the advancing or lending to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, such sum or sums of money as aforesaid, and each and every of them so agreeing, consenting, or approving, and being thereof lawfully convicted, shall for every such offence forfeit treble the value of every such sum or sums of money so lent; whereof one fifth part shall be to the informer, to be recovered in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, wherein no protection, wager of law, essoin, privilege of parliament, or other privilege shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance, and the residue to be disposed of towards publick uses as shall be directed by parliament, and not otherwise.

LXVIII. And whereas in and by an act of parliament made in the third year of his Majesty's reign, the monies to arise from time to time by certain surplusses, excesses, and overplus monies therein specified, were appropriated for discharging the principal and interest of such national debts and incumbrances as were incurred before the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, and were declared to be national debts, and were provided for by act of parliament, in such manner and form as should be directed or appointed by any future act or acts of parliament to be discharged therewith or out of the same; which monies so arising by the said surplusses, excesses, and overplus monies, are commonly called The sinking fund, and the said fund, commonly so called The sinking fund, is like to be very much increased in consequence of this present act, by taking in several of the above mentioned annuities and debts, and settling (in lieu thereof) upon the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors, additions to their present annuity or yearly fund at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, until and from the said feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven and afterwards at the said rate of four pounds per centum per annum, till redemption thereof according to this act: now it is hereby further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That so much of the monies, as at any time or times before the said feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, shall arise by the said surplusses, excesses, and overplus monies, with the said increase thereof, as shall or may remain in the Exchequer after discharging so much as remains unsatisfied of the sum of five hundred and twenty thousand pounds, mentioned in an act of the fifth year of his Majesty's reign for cancelling such Exchequer bills as are therein specified, and after discharging such payments as shall be charged or chargeable on the said sinking fund, or the increase thereof, by any other act or acts of this session of parliament, and after paying off such publick debts and incumbrances carrying interest, or any annuity after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, or any higher interest or annuity, founded upon any former act or acts of parliament in that behalf, (not being part of the capital stock or fund of the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain) as may be redeemed before the said feast of the nativity of Saint John baptist, one thousand seven hundred twenty and seven, shall and may be applied at the end of every year, so far as such remainder of the said surplusses, excesses, and overplus monies will from time to time extend, by even sums of one hundred thousand pounds at a time, for or towards paying off part of the capital stock of the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, which shall carry the said rate of five pounds per centum per annum.

And upon every such payment a proportional part of their annuity or yearly fund payable at that rate for so much of the said capital stock as shall be so paid off, from time to time, shall cease and determine; and the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, are hereby directed and authorized to cause the monies so arising of or for the said sinking fund, other than and except as aforesaid, to be applied for or towards the paying off such publick debts and incumbrances, and for or towards paying off such part of the capital stock of the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and reducing a proportional part of their annuity or yearly fund accordingly, any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

LXXXI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the Exchequer bills to be made forth, as aforesaid, and to be current at any time or times, within the said term of seven years, shall be received and taken by, and shall pass and be current to all and every the receivers and collectors in Great Britain of the customs, excise, or of any revenue, supply, aid, or tax whatsoever already granted; due, or payable, or which shall or may hereafter be granted, due, or payable to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, and also at the receipt of the Exchequer, from the said receivers or collectors, or from any other person or persons, bodies politic or corporate whatsoever, making any payment or loan there to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, for or upon any account, cause or occasion whatsoever, according to the purport and true meaning of this act: and that such of the same bills as shall be so received at the Exchequer shall and may be locked up, and secured as cash according to the course of the Exchequer settled and established by law, for locking up and securing money in specie received there; and that all and every the receivers and collectors in Great Britain of the customs, excise, or any revenue, aid, tax, or supply whatsoever, already granted, due, or payable, or which shall or may hereafter be granted, due, or payable to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, shall and are hereby directed and required, out of any current coined money, as shall then be in his or their hands of such revenue, aid, tax, or supply, to pay such of the same bills as shall be brought to them respectively, by any person or persons desiring to have money for the same; and in case any such receiver or collector shall refuse or neglect to exchange such bills for ready money, by the space of four and twenty hours, then the person or persons demanding the same, shall or may bring an action of debt or on the case, for the principal and interest monies due upon such bill or bills, against such receiver or collector having money in his hands, as aforesaid, in which action the plaintiff shall or may declare, that such receiver or collector is indebted to such plaintiff in the money demanded upon every such bill according to the form of the statute, and hath not paid the same, which shall be sufficient; and the plaintiff in every such action shall recover against the receiver or collector not only the monies so refused or neglected to be paid, but also his damages, with full costs of suit, and such receiver or collector shall be subject and liable thereunto; and in such action no essoin, protection, privilege, wager of law shall be allowed, or more than one imparlance; and upon payment of the monies so to be recovered, the plaintiff, his executors or assigns, shall deliver up such bills to the defendants, his executors or assigns.

LXXXII. And be it further enacted, That as any of the said bills to be made forth by virtue of this or any other or future act or acts, as aforesaid, at any time or times hereafter, within or during the said term of seven years, or within or during any part of that term, be paid or lent into the Exchequer by any his Majesty's receivers, or other person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, making any payment or loans at that receipt, the receivers there shall cause tallies to be levied and delivered to the payers or lenders, as amply and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if they had made such payments or loans in specie.

These bills to be current in the revenue.

If received at the Exchequer, to be locked up as cash.

Receivers, &c. out of money in their hands, to exchange the bills.

Receivers refusing, may be sued.

Tallies to be struck for such bills lent into the Exchequer.

LXXXIII. And

Interest due on the bills to be allowed by receivers, &c.

LXXXIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the interest which shall from time to time be due upon any the bills so to be current, as aforesaid, shall be allowed to all persons, bodies politick and corporate, paying the same to any receiver or collector, receivers or collectors, of any his Majesty's revenues, aids, taxes, or supplies, or by way of exchange, as aforesaid, or paying or lending the same into the Exchequer, as aforesaid, to the respective days whereupon such bill or bills shall be so paid, exchanged, or lent.

No interest on the bills in the receivers hands, or in the Exchequer.

LXXXIV. Provided always, That no interest shall run or be paid upon or for any such bill or bills during the time that any such bill or bills so paid, exchanged, or lent, shall remain in the hands of any the said receivers or collectors, or in the hands of any teller or tellers of the Exchequer, but for such time the interest on every such bill shall cease, and the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain shall not be obliged to bear or pay any part or proportion of the interest so saved.

Persons paying bills to receivers, &c. to indorse their names, and time when paid in :

LXXXV. And to the end it may be known for what time such bills bearing interest shall, from time to time, remain in the hands of such receiver or collector, or in the Exchequer aforesaid; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the person or persons who shall pay any such bill or bills bearing interest to any receiver or collector of any his Majesty's revenues, aids, taxes, or supplies, by way of exchange or otherwise, or shall pay or lend such bill or bills so bearing interest into the Exchequer, as aforesaid, shall at the time of making such payment, exchange, or loan, on each bill bearing interest, and so paid, exchanged, or lent, put his or their name or names, and write thereupon in words at length, the day of the month and year in which he, she, or they so paid, lent, or exchanged such bill or bills bearing interest, all which the said receivers and collectors respectively, and also the respective tellers in the Exchequer, shall take care to see done and performed accordingly, to which respective days the said receivers and collectors shall be allowed again the interest which he, she or they shall have allowed or paid upon such respective bill or bills, upon his, her, or their paying the same into the receipt of Exchequer, as aforesaid.

And the time of re-issuing to be also indorsed.

LXXXVI. Provided also, and be it hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said bills, or any of them, may be re-issued and paid again out of his Majesty's exchequer, and when the same shall be re-issued or paid again out of his Majesty's exchequer, the respective teller therefrom whose office such bill or bills bearing interest shall be so re-issued or again paid out, shall indorse on the same bill or bills so re-issued, in words at length, the day of the month and year in which the same were so re-issued or repaid out of the said Exchequer, and also on what account the same were last received into the receipt of Exchequer, and sign the same, from which time the interest of such bill or bills so re-issued or paid again shall revive, and such bill or bills shall again run and pass at interest, as the same did before they were paid unto or exchanged by the said receivers or collectors, or before the same were paid or lent into the Exchequer, as aforesaid.

Bills re-issued
to bear the same interest as when paid
in.

LXXXVII. And it is hereby enacted, That the same bills to be re-issued from time to time, or at any time at the Exchequer, as aforesaid, shall be re-issued for the principal money to be contained therein, and for so much interest as was due thereon, and allowed by the teller at the respective times and times when such bill and bills were last paid into the Exchequer.

Receivers-general to keep books for entering all monies received, on penalty of 100l.

LXXXVIII. And be it enacted, That every receiver-general of any his Majesty's revenues, aids, taxes, or supplies, belonging or to belong to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, shall keep a fair book or books of accounts in writing, in which he or his deputy or deputies shall truly enter all the sums which shall have been received by him or them, for every such revenue, aid, tax, or supply, together with the names of the several collectors from whom the same or any part thereof was received, the day when, and the sums paid, how much thereof in money, and how much in such Exchequer bills, and what Exchequer bills shall have been exchanged by every such receiver-general, pursuant to this act, to which accounts every person concerned shall have free access, at all reasonable times, without fee or charge, and the said accounts shall constantly lie open at one certain place within the limits of his receipt for that purpose; and if such receiver shall neglect to keep such book or books, or to enter therein any sum or sums of money by him or them received and paid, as aforesaid, by the space of three days after the receipt or payment of the same, or shall refuse any person or persons concerned to inspect such book or books without fee or charge, as aforesaid, every such receiver for every such offence shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds to any person or persons who shall sue for the same, to be recovered by action of debt or on the case, bill, suit, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, privilege, or wager of law shall be allowed, or any more than one imparlance.

LXXXIX. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any of the Exchequer bills, which shall be made forth by virtue of this act, shall be filled up by writing, or indorsements to be made thereon, as aforesaid, or shall by any accident be defaced, it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, and he and they are hereby authorized and enjoined, (by their or his discretions) from time to time, to cause new bills to be made forth at the receipt of the Exchequer, in lieu of such bills which shall be so filled up or defaced, which bills so filled up or defaced shall be cancelled at the receipt of Exchequer, and kept there on a file or files for that purpose, and such bills so to be made forth in lieu thereof, shall have a like currency, and shall in all respects be subject to the same rules, methods, and continuance as the bills so filled up or defaced were intended to have by this act, and shall bear the same numbers, dates, and principal sums, and carry the like interest, as were born and carried by the bills so cancelled respectively.

Bills filled up by indorsements, treasury to make forth new ones.

XC. And it is hereby enacted, That for the greater ease and dispatch of the publick business at the Exchequer, it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, and he or they are hereby authorized and enabled, in case he or they shall so think fit) at the request of the said court of directors of the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain for the time being, to cause Exchequer bills for any large sums, not exceeding five thousand pounds each, to be made forth at the receipt of Exchequer, and to be placed as cash in the same receipt in lieu of the like value of the principal contained in Exchequer bills, made forth by virtue of this act for lesser sums, which at the time of making such large bills shall happen to be in the said receipt, which shall be at the same time cancelled and discharged, and be kept there on a file for that purpose; which new bills for such large sums shall or may be issued at the said receipt, and have the same currency, and in all respects be subject to the same rules, methods, continuance, and carry the like interest, and have the same security, benefit, and advantages, and the same pains of death, and other pains, penalties, and forfeitures, for any crime or offence relating thereunto, shall be inflicted, incurred, and put in execution, as if they had been bills originally issued by virtue of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Bills for large sums not exceeding 5000l. each, may be issued, &c.

XCI. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall forge or counterfeit any Exchequer bills, which shall be made forth by virtue of this act, or be renewed or made forth in pursuance of this act, or any endorsement or writing thereupon or therein, or tender in payment any such forged or counterfeited bill, or any Exchequer-bill made forth by this act with such counterfeit endorsement or writing thereupon thereupon or therein, or shall demand to have such counterfeit bill, or any Exchequer bill with such counterfeit endorsement or writing thereupon or therein, exchanged for ready money, by any person or persons, body or bodies politick or corporate, who shall be obliged or required to exchange the same, pursuant to this act, knowing the bill so tendered in payment, or demanded to be exchanged, or the endorsement or writing thereupon or therein, to be forged or counterfeit, and with intent to defraud his Majesty, his heirs or successors, or the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, or the said trustees, or any of them, or any other person or persons, body politick or corporate, then every such person or persons so offending (being thereof lawfully convicted) shall be adjudged a felon, and shall suffer death as in cases of felony, without benefit of clergy.

No interest to
than a penny.

XCIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That as often as any interest upon the Exchequer bills to be made forth, by virtue of this or any other or further act or acts, as aforesaid, shall be demanded to be paid by the said trustees for the time being, they shall not be obliged to pay for such interest to any lesser sum than one penny upon such bill, in case a single bill be produced for payment, or for the total of the interest of such bills, where two or more shall be offered at one time by the same person; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

If provision be made by parliament of money to discharge the bills, or any part thereof, the same to be applied thereto.

XCIV. Provided also, and it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if at any time or times hereafter provision shall be made by authority of parliament of so much money, in the lawful coins of this kingdom, as shall be sufficient to pay off and discharge all the principal and interest which shall be due upon the said Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this act, as aforesaid, or any proportion thereof at a time; and if by like authority the same coined monies shall be actually brought and paid into the receipt of Exchequer for that purpose, then the same shall be applied for or towards the paying off and discharging the said bills, or such proportion thereof, so far as such money will extend, by paying to the respective bearer or bearers of the same bill or bills then standing out, the principal and interest which shall be due thereupon, and by placing the same coined money, or any part thereof, in lieu of any the said Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this act, which shall then be in the office or offices of any teller or tellers of the Exchequer to answer such payments, whereunto the same bills so remaining in such office or offices shall then be legally subject or liable; which payments shall be answered with the said money in specie, under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities as are prescribed by any former laws or statutes concerning the money for which such bills did lie in the Exchequer, to prevent the diverting or misapplying the same; and from and after such payments to the bearer or bearers, or such placing of money in lieu of bills in the said office or offices of the said teller or tellers to answer such payments, as aforesaid, (and not sooner) the several and respective bills themselves which shall be so paid off, or for which coined money shall be so placed, shall be cancelled; and the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors, shall repay to the respective tellers so much interest as remained due upon the same bills respectively, at the time or times when they were last paid into the Exchequer before the cancelling thereof; any thing in this or any former act or acts of parliament to the contrary notwithstanding.

If the bills be not discharged by 24 June 1724, they shall be discharged by the sinking fund.

XCV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if before the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, coined money shall not be raised and brought into the Exchequer sufficient to pay off and discharge all the said Exchequer bills which shall be made forth by virtue of this act, that then and in such case, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, the said Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this act, or many of them as shall not have been paid off and discharged by such coined money, as aforesaid, shall be and are hereby charged upon and made payable by and out of the first money which shall, after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, arise into the Exchequer for or by the aforesaid surpluses, excesses, and overplus monies herein before denominated the sinking fund, or by or out of monies to be raised thereon by way of loan; after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, and the same bills, or such of them as shall so remain unsatisfied, shall be cancelled and discharged in such manner as the commissioners of the treasury, or three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being shall direct; any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

XCVI. Provided always, and be it enacted, That the court of directors of the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain for the time being, (with the consent and approbation of the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, and not otherwise) may at any time or times after the end of the session of parliament which shall next happen after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, by writing to be signed by the secretary of the same court, and to be affixed upon the exchange of London, and by publication in the London Gazette, declare and direct, if they shall so see cause, and think fit, the said bills to be made forth by virtue of this act, or any number or part of them, to carry a higher interest than the said rate of two pence per centum per diem, for such time or times as shall be mentioned in such writing or writings and publication, as aforesaid; so as the whole interest on such bills do not exceed the rate of three pence per centum per diem; and for the greater accommodation and ease of paying the bills to be made forth by virtue of this act, or any of them, to the receivers and collectors of the publick revenues; and into the receipt of Exchequer, the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, have hereby power, at the request of the said court of directors of the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain for the time being, to make forth, or cause to be made forth, any of the said Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this act, without bearing any interest; yet nevertheless those bills so made forth without bearing any interest, may from time to time be made to carry such interest, not exceeding the said rate of three pence per centum per diem, as the court of directors of the same company shall by writing signed by the secretary, and to be affixed upon the exchange of London, and published in the London Gazette, signify and declare in that behalf.

XCVII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if, at any time or times before the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, any Exchequer bills; or bills in the nature of Exchequer bills, shall be made forth or be current in the publick revenues or Exchequer of Great Britain, or any part thereof; by authority of parliament, (other than and except such Exchequer bills as shall be made forth by virtue and in pursuance of this act; and other than except such Exchequer bills, or bills in the nature of Exchequer bills; shall be issued by virtue of any other act of this session of parliament; other than and except such Exchequer bills, or bills in the nature of Exchequer bills, as shall be circulated by virtue of any future act or acts of parliament upon the credit of the Exchequer, or of the publick money which shall be brought into the Exchequer, or of such money which the commissioners of the treasury, or high treasurer for the time being, shall be empowered by parliament to borrow, to support the currency of such Exchequer bills) then from and after such currency of any Exchequer bills, or bills in the nature of Exchequer bills, (other than and except, as aforesaid) the Directors with consent of the treasury may, after the session of parliament, which shall be after 24 June, 1721, declare, that the bills to be made forth by this act, shall carry a higher rate of interest.

Treasury, at the request of the company, may make forth bills without bearing interest.

If before 24 June, 1727, any further Exchequer bills be made forth by parliament, the company shall not be obliged to exchange them.

the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors, shall not be obliged to furnish money for exchanging any Exchequer bills, pursuant to this act, or to bear or pay any interest, or proportion of interest, which from thenceforth shall grow due thereupon; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Treasury, out of the sinking fund, to defray the charges of executing this act.

XCVIII. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, shall have power, and he or they are hereby enabled to pay and allow, or cause to be paid and allowed, out of the monies to arise of or for the said surplusses, excesses, and overplus monies, commonly called The sinking fund, or of or for the increase thereof, to be made in consequence of this act, from time to time, as well to the respective managers and directors to be constituted for taking in the above mentioned annuities and debts, and performing such other matters as are by this act required to be performed by such managers and directors, and to the persons who shall be appointed for taking the said orders and tickets, and for performing such other matters as are by this act required to be performed by them, and to the said trustees, who shall be appointed for exchanging the said Exchequer bills, and for performing such other matters as are by this act required to be performed by those trustees respectively, such salaries and allowances for the charges, pains, and service of themselves, and those who shall be employed under them respectively in those respective trusts, as they the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the said high treasurer for the time being shall, from time to time think just and reasonable in that behalf; and also to pay and allow, or cause to be paid and allowed, out of the same monies arising as aforesaid, the necessary charges for taking in and cancelling the residuary Exchequer bills, and making forth new bills in lieu thereof, pursuant to this act; and to allow and pay, or cause to be allowed and paid, out of the said money to arise as aforesaid, any reasonable charges for books, clerkship, or other matters and things which shall be necessarily incident in or for the execution of this act, or any part thereof, by or by the order or direction of such person or persons as shall be appointed thereunto, or employed therein by them the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or by the said high treasurer for the time being, and not otherwise; any thing in this or any other law or statute whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

Anno sexto

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. X.

An act for making forth new Exchequer bills, not exceeding one million, at a certain interest; and for lending the same to the South Sea company at an higher interest, upon security of repaying the same and such high interest into the Exchequer for uses to which the fund for lessening the publick debts, (called The sinking fund) is applicable; and for circulating and exchanging upon demand the said bills at or near the Exchequer.

SECT. III. AND to the end the said bills which shall be made forth by virtue of this act, may the better obtain a currency for so long time as they are intended to be current in pursuance of this act; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That as well the said sum of three hundred twenty eight thousand six hundred seventy three pounds, four shillings, and ten pence halfpenny, remaining in the receipt of his Majesty's Exchequer, as aforesaid, and the monies which (from and after the application of the said sum of five hundred and twenty thousand pounds, for discharging and cancelling Exchequer bills, made forth by former acts in that behalf, or reserving sufficient thereof in the Exchequer for that purpose) shall arise of or for the said surplusses, excesses, and overplusses, commonly called The sinking fund, shall be and are hereby declared and enacted to be a fund or security for furnishing such proportions of ready money, from time to time, as are herein-after mentioned, for or towards exchanging and circulating the Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this and the said other act of this session of parliament, or either of them, as often as the same bills, or any of them, shall be demanded during their joint currency, according to the purport and true meaning of this act: and to the end there may be no failure in furnishing, from time to time, the said proportions of ready money for answering such demands, the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, (in case he or they shall see cause) are hereby authorized and empowered, from time to time, to direct the officers in the receipt of his Majesty's Exchequer to receive and take in, by way of loan, from any person or persons, natives or foreigners, bodies politick or corporate, willing to make such loans, such sum or sums in the lawful coins of this realm as the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer, for the time being, shall judge to be necessary for enabling them to furnish the said proportions of ready money for exchanging and circulating the said bills, and supporting the currency thereof, from time to time; which lenders shall have interest for the forbearance of their respective loans, not exceeding the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, to be paid every three months from the making of such loans, until the satisfaction of the principal sums respectively; and that no money so to be lent shall be rated or assessed to any tax or assessment whatsoever; and that every such lender shall immediately have a talley of loan struck for the money so by him, her, or them lent, and an order of the same date for the repayment thereof, with such interest, as aforesaid; and that all such orders shall be registered in course, according to their dates, and all persons and corporations shall be bound thereon in course, as their orders shall stand registered; and that the monies to come in of or for the said several surplusses, excesses, or overplusses, called The sinking fund, shall be in the same order liable, and are hereby appropriated to and for the satisfaction of the respective persons and corporations, corporations, their executors, administrators, successors, and assigns respectively, without undue preference of one before another, and not otherwise.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the trustees to be constituted, as aforesaid (being from time to time furnished with money of the lawful coins of this realm for the purpose aforesaid, according to the true meaning of this and the said other act of this session of parliament) shall, and they are hereby enjoined and required, at their said public office, to exchange for ready money all such of the said bills to be made forth by virtue of this and the said other act of this session of parliament, or either of them, as from time to time, or at any time or times during such joint currency of the said bills, as aforesaid, shall be in the hands of any person or persons, and be demanded of the same trustees, or at their public office, to be exchanged for ready money, by paying upon every such demand, or within twenty four hours after at the farthest, unto all such person or persons, in ready money, the principal sum or sums for which such bill or bills so required to be exchanged, shall have been issued, or which the owner or owners of such bill or bills shall be entitled unto by the same bill or bills respectively, together with the interest which shall have grown due thereupon for any time or times within the time of such joint currency, and shall at the time of any such demand be due on each bill or bills respectively, and so toties quoties, as often as such bill or bills shall be demanded as aforesaid.

X. And it is hereby enacted, That any person or persons, body or bodies politick or corporate, having in his or their custody any of the said Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this or the said other act of this session of parliament, upon which six months interest or more shall be due or unpaid, at any time or times during such joint currency, as aforesaid, shall and may, from time to time, demand and receive of and from the said trustees for the time being (they being furnished with money, as aforesaid) the interest so due and unpaid; which the said trustees are hereby directed and required to pay and discharge accordingly.

XI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no person or persons whatsoever, who shall be intrusted or any ways concerned in or about the circulation or exchanging of the said Exchequer bills, or any of them, pursuant to this or the said other act of this session of parliament in that behalf, shall for that cause only be disabled from being a member of parliament; any law, statute, or provision to the contrary notwithstanding.

XII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That as well all and every the said Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this act until the discharging and cancelling the same pursuant to the proviso hereafter contained in that behalf, as also all and every the Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of the said other act of this session of parliament until the discharging and cancelling the same pursuant to the provisions that act contained for that purpose, shall and may jointly or severally be received and taken by, and shall pass and be current to all and every receivers and collectors in Great Britain of the customs, excise, or of any revenue, supply, aid, or tax whatsoever, already granted, due, or payable, or which shall or may hereafter be granted, due, or payable to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, and also at the receipt of the Exchequer, from the said receivers or collectors, or from any other person or persons, body or bodies politick or corporate whatsoever, making any payment or loan there to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for or upon any account, cause, or occasion whatsoever, according to the purport and true meaning of this act; that such of the same bills as shall be received at the Exchequer, shall and may be locked up and secured as cash, according to the course of the Exchequer, settled and established by law, for locking up and securing money in specie received there; and that all and every the receivers and collectors in Great Britain of the customs, excise, or any revenue, aid, tax, supply supply whatsoever, already granted, due, or payable, or which shall or may hereafter be granted, due, or payable to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, shall and are hereby directed and required, out of any current coined money as shall then be in his or their hands of such revenue, aid, tax, or supply, to pay such of the same bills as shall be brought to them respectively by any person or persons desiring to have money for the same; and in case any such receiver or collector shall refuse or neglect to exchange such bills for ready money by the space of twenty four hours, then the person or persons demanding the same shall or may bring an action of debt, or on the case, for the principal and interest monies due upon such bill or bills, against such receiver or collector having money in his hands, as aforesaid, in which action the plaintiff shall or may declare, that such receiver or collector is indebted to such plaintiff in the money demanded upon every such bill according to the form of the statute, and hath not paid the same, which shall be sufficient; and the plaintiff in every such action shall recover against the receiver or collector, not only the monies so refused or neglected to be paid, but also his damages besides full costs of suit, and such receiver or collector shall be subject and liable thereunto; and in such action no essoin, protection, privilege, or wager of law shall be allowed, or more than one imparlance; and upon payment of the monies so to be recovered, the plaintiff, his executors, or assigns, shall deliver up such bills to the defendant, his executors or assigns.

Receivers refusing, may be sued.

XIII. And be it further enacted, That as any of the said bills to be made forth by virtue of this or the said other act of this session of parliament, as aforesaid, shall at any time or times hereafter, within the respective times during which they shall be jointly or severally current pursuant to this or the said other act of this session of parliament, as aforesaid, be paid or lent into the Exchequer by any of his Majesty's receivers, or other person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, making any payments or loans at that receipt, the officers there shall cause tallies to be levied and delivered to the payers or lenders, as amply and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if they had made such payments or loans in specie.

Tallies to be struck for such bills lent into the exchequer.

XIV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the interest which shall, from time to time, be due upon any of the bills so to be current, as aforesaid, shall be allowed to all persons, bodies politick and corporate, paying the same to any receiver or collector, receivers or collectors, of any his Majesty's revenues, aids, taxes, or supplies, or by way of exchange, as aforesaid, or paying or lending the same into the Exchequer, as aforesaid, to the respective days whereupon such bill or bills shall be so paid, exchanged, or lent.

Interest due on the bills to be allowed by receivers, &c.

XV. Provided always, That no interest shall run or be paid upon or for any such bill or bills during the time that any such bill or bills, so paid, exchanged, or lent, shall remain in the hands of any the said receivers or collectors, or in the hands of any teller or tellers of the Exchequer, but for such time the interest on every such bill shall cease; and the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain shall not be obliged to bear or pay any part or proportion of the interest so saved.

No interest on bills in receivers hands, or in the Exchequer.

XVI. And to the end it may be known for what time such bills bearing interest shall, from time to time, remain in the hands of such receivers or collectors, or in the Exchequer aforesaid; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the person or persons who shall pay any such bill or bills bearing interest to any receiver or collector of any his Majesty's revenues, aids, taxes, or supplies, by way of exchange or otherwise, or shall pay or lend such bill or bills so bearing interest into the Exchequer, as aforesaid, shall, at the time of making such payment, exchange, or loan, on each bill bearing interest, and so paid, exchanged, or lent, put his or their name or names, and write thereupon, in words at length, the day of the month and year in which he, she, or they so paid, lent, or exchanged such bill bill or bills bearing interest; all which the said receivers and collectors respectively, and also the respective tellers in the Exchequer, shall take care to see done and performed accordingly; to which respective days the said receivers and collectors shall be allowed again the interest which he, she, or they shall have allowed or paid upon such respective bill or bills, upon his, her, or their paying the same into the receipt of Exchequer, as aforesaid.

Persons paying bills to receivers, &c. to endorse their names, and time when paid in:

and the time
of reissuing to be also endorsed.

XVII. Provided also, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said bills, or any of them, may be reissued and paid again out of his Majesty's exchequer; and when the same shall be reissued or paid again out of his Majesty's exchequer, the respective teller there, from whose office such bill or bills bearing interest shall be so reissued or again paid out, shall endorse on the same bill or bills so reissued, in words at length, the day of the month and year in which the same were so reissued or repaid out of the said Exchequer, and also on what account the same were last received into the receipt of Exchequer, and sign the same, from which time the interest of such bill or bills so reissued or paid again shall revive; and such bill or bills shall again run and pass at interest, as the same did before they were paid unto or exchanged by the said receivers or collectors, or before the same were paid or lent into the Exchequer, as aforesaid.

Bills reissued
to bear the same interest
in.

XVIII. And it is hereby enacted, That the same bills to be reissued from time to time, or at any time at the Exchequer, as aforesaid, shall be so reissued for the principal money to be contained therein, and for so much interest as was due thereon, and allowed by the teller at the respective time and times when such bill and bills were last paid into the Exchequer.

Receivers-general to keep books for all money received.

XIX. And be it enacted, That every receiver general of any the revenues, aids, taxes, or supplies, belonging or to belong to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, shall keep a fair book or books of accounts in writing, of all the monies by him received, in which he or his deputy or deputies shall truly enter all the sums which shall have been received by him or them, for every such revenue, aid, tax, or supply, together with the names of the several collectors from whom the same, or any part thereof, was received, the days when, and the sums paid, how much thereof in money, and how much thereof in such Exchequer bills, and what Exchequer bills shall have been exchanged by every such receiver-general, pursuant to this act; to which accounts every person concerned shall have free access, at all reasonable times, without fee or charge; and the said accounts shall constantly be open at one certain place within the limits of his receipt for that purpose; and if such receiver shall neglect to keep such book or books, or to enter therein any sum or sums of money by him or them received and paid, as aforesaid, by the space of three days after his receipt or payment of the same, or shall refuse any person or persons concerned to inspect such book or books without fee or charge, as aforesaid, every such receiver, for every such offence, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds to any person or persons who shall sue for the same; to be recovered by action of debt, upon the case, bill, suit, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, privilege, or wager of law shall be allowed, or any more than one imparlance.

Penalty off
receivers.

Bills filled up by endorsement, Exchequer to make forth new ones, &c.

XX. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any of the Exchequer bills, which shall be made forth by virtue of this act, shall be filled up by writing, or endorsements made thereon, as aforesaid, or shall by any accident be defaced, it shall and may be lawful for the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, and he and they are hereby authorized and empowered, by their or his discretion, from time to time, to cause new bills to be made forth at the receipt of Exchequer, in lieu of such bills which shall be so filled up or defaced; which bills so filled up or defaced, shall be cancelled at the receipt of Exchequer, and kept there in file or files for that purpose; and such bills so to be made forth in lieu thereof.

of, shall have a like currency, and shall, in all respects, be subject to the same rules, methods, and continuance, as the bills so filled up were intended to have been by this act, and shall bear the same numbers, dates, and principal sums, and carry the like interest as were born and carried by the bills so cancelled respectively.

XXI. And it is hereby enacted, That for the greater ease and dispatch of the publick business at the Exchequer, it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, and he or they are hereby authorized and enabled, in case he or they shall so think fit, at the request of the said court of directors of the governor and company of merchants of Great Britain for the time being, to cause Exchequer bills for any large sums, not exceeding five thousand pounds each, to be made forth at the receipt of Exchequer, and to be placed as cash in the same receipt in lieu of the like value of the principal contained in Exchequer bills, made forth by virtue of this act for lesser sums, which at the time of making such large bills, shall happen to be in the said receipt, which shall be at the same time cancelled and discharged, and be kept there on a file for that purpose; which new bills for such large sums shall or may be issued at the said receipt, and have the same currency, and in all respects be subject to the same rules, methods, continuance, and carry the like interest, and have the same security, benefit, and advantages, and the same pains of death, and other pains, penalties, and forfeitures, for any crime or offence relating thereunto, shall be inflicted, incurred, and put in execution, as if they had been originally issued by virtue of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Bills for large sums not exceeding 5000*l.* each, may be issued, &c.

XXII. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall forge or counterfeit any Exchequer bill which shall be made forth by virtue of this act, or be renewed or made forth in pursuance of this act, or any endorsement or writing thereupon, or therein, or tender in payment any such forged or counterfeit bill, or any Exchequer bill made forth by this act, with such counterfeit endorsement or writing thereupon, or shall demand to have such counterfeit bill, or any such Exchequer bill with such counterfeit endorsement or writing thereupon, or therein, exchanged for ready money by any person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, who shall be obliged or required to exchange the same, pursuant to this act, knowing the bill so tendered in payment, or demanded to be exchanged, or the endorsement or writing thereupon, or therein, to be forged or counterfeit, and with intent to defraud his Majesty, his heirs or successors, or the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, or the said trustees, or any of them, or any other person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, then every such person or persons so offending, being thereof lawfully convicted, shall be adjudged a felon, and shall suffer as in cases of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Forging Exchequer bills felony.

XXIII. And it is hereby further enacted, That the said trustees shall, from time to time, have the use and custody of one part of all the cheques, indents, or counterfoils of all the Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this act, from which the said bills shall be cut, in order to prevent their being imposed upon by counterfeited or forged bills; and that such parts of the said cheques, indents, and counterfoils, shall be delivered back into the receipt of Exchequer by the said trustees for the time being, when the same bills are to be cancelled and discharged, pursuant to this act.

Trustees to have the cheques, &c. of the bills.

XXIV. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That as often as any interest upon the Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this or the other act of this session of parliament, shall be demanded to be paid by the said trustees for the time being, they shall not be obliged to pay for such interest to any lesser sum than one penny upon such bill, in case a single bill be produced for payment, or for the total of the interest of such bills,

No interest to a lesser sum than a penny.

where two or more shall be offered at one time by the same person; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

If provision be made by parliament of money to discharge the bills, or any part thereof, the same to be applied thereto, &c.

XXV. Provided also, and it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if at any time or times hereafter, provision shall be made by authority of parliament of so much money, of the lawful coins of this kingdom, as shall be sufficient to pay off and discharge all the principal and interest which shall be due upon the said Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this act, as aforesaid, or any proportion thereof at a time; and if by like authority the same monies shall be actually brought and paid into the receipt of the Exchequer for that purpose, then the same shall be applied for or towards the paying off or discharging the same bills, or such proportion thereof, so far as such money will extend, by paying to the respective bearer or bearers of the same bills then standing out, the principal and interest which shall be due thereupon, and by placing the same coined money, or any part thereof, in lieu of any the said Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this act, which shall then be in the office or offices of any teller or tellers of the Exchequer to answer such payments, whereunto the same bills so remaining in such office or offices shall then be legally subject or liable; which payments shall be answered with the said money in specie, under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are prescribed by any former laws or statutes concerning the money for which such bills did lie in the Exchequer, to prevent the diverting or misapplying the same; and from and after such payments to the bearer or bearers, or such placing of money in lieu of bills in the said office or offices of the said teller or tellers to answer such payments, as aforesaid, and not sooner, the several and respective bills themselves which shall be so paid off, or for which coined money shall be so placed, shall be cancelled.

If the bills be not paid by 1 March, 1721, or before the end of the next session, how they shall be discharged.

XXVI. Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if before the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, or before the end of the session of parliament then next ensuing, coined monies shall not be raised and brought into the receipt of the Exchequer, sufficient to pay off and discharge all the Exchequer bills which shall be made forth by virtue of this act, that then, and in such case immediately upon the end of such session of parliament next after the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, all or any the monies then remaining in the receipt of the Exchequer of the said sum of three hundred twenty eight thousand six hundred and seventy three pounds four shillings, and ten pence halfpenny, if the same or any part thereof shall then remain there not issued for the purposes in this act directed, and all the monies which from and after the end of the said session of parliament next after the said first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one shall quarterly arise into the Exchequer, of or for all the said surplusses, excesses, and overplusses, denominated the sinking fund, as aforesaid, or for such increase thereof as shall be made by repaying the monies which shall be lent to the said governor and company as aforesaid, with interest according to the purport and true meaning of this act, and all or any the monies, if any shall be then remaining in the receipt of the Exchequer, the loans which shall have been made there by virtue of this act, for answering the said proportions for circulating and exchanging the said bills, or so much of the monies before mentioned as shall be sufficient to discharge or complete the discharging of all the Exchequer bills which shall have been made forth by virtue of this act, shall be applied for or towards discharging and cancelling the same, until they shall all be paid off, discharged, and cancelled, or so much of the same monies shall be reserved in the Exchequer as shall be sufficient for that purpose; and the commissioners of the treasury and the high treasurer for the time being, are hereby impowered, enjoined and required, to cause the said monies so by this act appointed and intended for cancelling and discharging all the said Exchequer bills which shall be been made forth by virtue of this act, to be applied accordingly; and the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, are hereby authorized and impowered, when and as the said monies so by this act appointed and intended for cancelling and discharging the said Exchequer bills which shall have been made forth by virtue of this act, or any considerable proportion thereof, shall come or be brought into the said receipt of the Exchequer for that purpose, by publick notice, or by several publick notices in writing, to be affixed on the Royal Exchange, in London, and published in the London Gazette, to prefix a certain day, or several days, for the bearers of the same bills standing out, to bring the same, or any proportion or proportions thereof at a time, to such person or persons as the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, shall appoint to receive the same, to be exchanged for ready money, in order to be discharged and cancelled, as aforesaid; and that all such of the said bills standing out as shall not be brought in upon such notice or notices to be exchanged for ready money within the time or times thereby to be signified, shall lose their currency; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

And, for the greater accommodation and ease of paying the bills to be made forth by virtue of this act, or any of them, to the receivers and collectors of the publick revenues, and into the receipt of Exchequer, the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, have hereby power, at the request of the court of directors of the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain for the time being, to make forth, or cause to be made forth, any of the said Exchequer bills to be made forth by virtue of this act, without bearing any interest: yet, nevertheless, those bills so made forth without bearing any interest, may, from time to time, be made to carry such interest, not exceeding the said rate of two pence per centum per diem, as the court of directors of the said company shall, by writing signified by the said secretary, and to be affixed upon the exchange of London, and published in the London Gazette, signify and declare in that behalf.

XXVII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if at any time or times before the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven; any Exchequer bills, or bills of the nature of Exchequer bills, shall be made forth or current in the publick revenues, or Exchequer of Great Britain, or any part thereof, by authority of parliament (other than and except such Exchequer bills as shall be made forth by virtue and in pursuance of this act, and other than and except such Exchequer bills, or bills in the nature of Exchequer bills, as shall be issued by virtue of any other act of this session of parliament; and other than and except such Exchequer bills, or bills in the nature of Exchequer bills, as shall be circulated by virtue of any future act or acts of parliament upon the credit of the Exchequer, or of the publick money which shall be brought to the Exchequer, or of such money which the commissioners of the treasury, or high treasurer for the time being, shall be impowered by parliament to borrow, to support the currency of such Exchequer bills); then, from after such currency of any Exchequer bills, or bills of the nature of Exchequer bills, or other than and except as aforesaid, the said governor and company of merchants of Great Britain, and their successors, shall not be obliged to furnish money for exchanging any Exchequer bills, pursuant to this act, or to bear or pay any interest, or proportion of interest, which from thenceforth shall grow due thereupon; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXVIII. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no reward, or gratuity, shall be demanded or taken, directly or indirectly, by any his Majesty's officers in the Exchequer, or by any of the said trustees, or by any of their clerks or substitutes, from any of his Majesty's subjects, Treasury, at the request of the South Sea company, may make forth bills without bearing interest.

If before 24 June, 1727, any further bills shall be made forth by parliament, the company shall not be obliged to exchange them.

No fee to be demanded.

subjects, for any matter or thing to be done by the said officers, trustees, and clerks, or any of them respectively, in pursuance of this act; and that no such officer, trustee, clerk, or substitute, shall divert or misapply, or cause or procure to be diverted or misapplied, any of the monies by this act intended for the exchanging, circulating, or cancelling the said bills, or any of them, or for repayment of the said loans, and the interest thereof, or any of them, under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, to be incurred by and inflicted on them respectively, as by one act of this session of parliament, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an aid by a land tax, to be raised in Great Britain, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and twenty, are prescribed and enacted for diverting or misapplying any the monies thereby granted, or for taking or demanding any fee, reward, or gratuity, concerning the same.

XXIX. Provided always nevertheless, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, shall have power, and he or they are hereby enabled to pay and allow, or cause to be paid and allowed, out of the monies to arise of or for the said surplusses, excesses, and overplus monies, commonly called The sinking fund, or of or for any increase thereof, from time to time, to the said trustees, who shall be appointed for exchanging the said Exchequer bills, and for performing such other matters as are by this act required to be performed by those trustees respectively, such salaries and allowances for the charges, pains, and service of themselves, and those who shall be employed under them respectively in that trust, as they the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the said high treasurer for the time being, shall from time to time, think just and reasonable in that behalf; and also to pay and allow, or cause to be paid and allowed, out of the same monies arising as aforesaid, the necessary charges of making forth such bills as are to be made forth by virtue of this act, and for books, clerkship, or other matters and things which shall be necessarily incident in or for the execution of this act, or any part thereof, by or by the order or direction of such person or persons as shall be appointed thereunto, or employed therein by them the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or by the said high treasurer for the time being, and not otherwise; any thing in this or any other law or statute whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

Anno sexto

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. XI.

An act for laying a duty upon wrought plate; and for applying money arising for the clear produce (by sale of the forfeited estates) towards answering his Majesty's supply; and for taking off the drawbacks upon hops exported for Ireland; and for payment of annuities to be purchased after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum at the Exchequer, redeemable by parliament; and for appropriating supplies granted in this session of parliament; and to prevent counterfeiting receipts and warrants of the officers of the South Sea company; and for explaining a late act concerning foreign salt cellared and locked up before the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen; and to give a further time for paying duties on certain apprentices indentures; and for relief of Thomas Vernon, esq; in relation to a parcel of senna imported in the year one thousand seven hundred and sixteen.

ECT. AND we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the IV. said commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being fully resolved to furnish such supplies as are necessary for defraying the expenses and occasions of the publick, have for that end and purpose cheerfully and unanimously given and granted, and do by this act give and grant to your Majesty the several and respective rates and duties herein-after mentioned, for and upon all silver plate to be made or wrought in Great Britain, or to be imported or brought into the same, and such further sum and sums of money as are herein specified and appointed, in such manner and form as are herein-after more particularly expressed, do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be raised, levied, collected, answered, and paid, unto and for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever, (subject nevertheless to such redemption as in and by this act is afterwards provided in this behalf) for and upon all silver plate which shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain, and for and upon all silver plate to be made or wrought within the same kingdom, the several and respective rates or duties following; (that is to say,) For and upon all silver plate made or to be made, which at any time or times after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, shall be imported or brought into the said kingdom of Great Britain, (over and above all other customs, subsidies, and duties already imposed thereupon) a duty after the rate of six pence for every ounce Troy, and proportionally for greater or lesser quantities, to be paid down in ready money by the importer thereof, from time to time, before the landing of the same; and for and upon all silver plate which shall be made or wrought in Great Britain, or at any time or times, from and after the said first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, shall or ought to be touched, assayed, or marked in Great Britain aforesaid, a duty after the rate of six pence for every ounce Troy, and proportionally for any greater or lesser quantity, to be paid by the makers or workers thereof respectively, and to be secured to be paid in such manner and form as in and by this act are afterwards prescribed in that behalf.

And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties by this act imposed upon wrought plate to be imported shall be raised, levied, collected, answered, and paid, and be brought into the Exchequer, (to and for the use and purposes in this act expressed) by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such allowances,

From 1 June, 1720, silver plate imported, or made in Great Britain, to pay 6d. per oz.

The duty on plate imported to be levied as the duty on gilt or silver wire, 10 Ann. c. 26.

and in such manner and form, as the duties upon gilt and silver wire imported, imposed by an act of the tenth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, or by any act of parliament relating thereto, are prescribed and appointed to be raised, levied, recovered, answered, and paid.

On oath that the duty has been paid, and on debenture from the customer, &c. exporter of plate may draw back the duty.

12 Geo. 2. c. 26.

XVIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any person or persons whatsoever shall, at any time or times after the said first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, during the continuance of the duty by this act imposed upon wrought plate or manufactures of silver, export by way of merchandize for any foreign parts, any wrought plate or manufactures of silver by this act charged or chargeable with the said duty of six pence per ounce, and the same shall appear to have been made or marked as aforesaid, after the said first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and shall give sufficient security before the shipping thereof for exportation, that the particular quantities of such plate or manufactures of silver, intended to be exported as aforesaid, and every part thereof, shall not be reloaded or brought again into Great Britain, and shall make proof upon oath, or by such affirmation respectively, as aforesaid, that the same silver plate or manufactures were actually made or marked as aforesaid, after the said first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty (which securities shall be taken in the King's name, and to his use, and the said oaths and affirmations shall be administered by the customer or collector of the respective port for such exportation); that then, and in every such case, the said customer or collector shall give to the exporter thereof a debenture expressing the true kinds and quantities of such plate and manufactures of silver so exported, or shipped to be exported; and the exportation or shipping thereof being certified by the searcher upon the said debenture, the collector or receiver of the said duty on plate (upon producing the said debenture so certified to him) shall forthwith pay a drawback or allowance, after the rate of six pence for every ounce of such plate or manufactures of silver, out of the money of the said duty on plate or manufactures of silver then in the hands of such receiver or collector, without fee or reward; and if such receiver or collector shall not have money in his hands to pay any such debenture, then the respective commissioners of the said duty upon plate or manufactures of silver, are hereby required to pay, or cause to be paid, the said debenture out of any the same duties arising by this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Duty on plate chargeable with the yearly fund for annuities.

XXII. And it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid That all the said duties upon plate and other manufactures of silver, made or wrought in this realm, or imported into the same as aforesaid, shall be liable to and chargeable with the yearly fund herein-after mentioned, and the annuities to be payable out of the same in pursuance of this act, subject nevertheless to such redemption as is herein-after mentioned; and all the same rates and duties upon plate and manufactures of silver (except the necessary charges before mentioned) are and shall be appropriated thereunto in such manner, that all the monies which shall, from time to time, be remain due or in arrear for and upon the same annuities, or any of them, for any arrears thereof, if any such be, shall from time to time, in the first place, be paid and satisfied out of the said duties upon plate or manufactures of silver, by this act granted, or so far as the same duties will extend, with preference to any other payments that shall or may hereafter be charged thereupon, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are hereafter in this act contained in that behalf.

Commissioners and officers to be appointed, who are to be liable to the penalty of 5 & 10 W. 1. c. 44.

XXIII. And to the end all the monies to arise by this act for the said duties upon plate and manufactures of silver may be duly and certainly raised and brought into the said receipt of Exchequer for the purposes aforesaid, it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from time to time, during the continuance of this act, there shall be appointed and so many commissioners of the customs and excise, and other officers, as shall be proper and necessary for the raising and levying the respective duties and sums of money by this act granted or chargeable, and for keeping and rendering the accounts of the same; and that all receivers-general, collectors, and other officers, who are or shall be concerned in the raising, collecting, receiving, and paying the said respective duties hereby granted, or any of them, and keeping and rendering the several accounts thereof, shall perform their several duties therein, as to them respectively shall appertain, under such and the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, for any offence or neglect therein, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the said monies, as are prescribed and to be inflicted by virtue of an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the third, intituled, An act for raising a sum, not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies, for the like offence or neglect relating to the duties on salt, and upon stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, thereby granted or referred unto, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying, any part of the monies which were granted or appropriated by the act last mentioned.

XXIV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That yearly and every year, reckoning the first year to begin the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, the full sum of thirteen thousand pounds per annum, by or out of the monies to arise of or for the said duties upon plate or manufactures of silver, and to be brought into the receipt of Exchequer, as aforesaid, in case the same shall extend thereunto, shall be the whole and entire yearly fund; and in case all the monies arising into the Exchequer of or for the said rates and duties upon plate and manufactures of silver, shall not amount to thirteen thousand pounds per annum, then the monies so arising, so far as the same will extend, shall be part of the yearly fund, for or towards answering or paying all the several and respective annuities herein-after mentioned; and in case the said rates and duties upon plate and manufactures of silver shall at any time or times appear to be so deficient, or low in the produce of the same, as that within any one year to be reckoned as aforesaid, the said monies arising into the Exchequer for or upon account of the same rates and duties shall not amount to so much as thirteen thousand pounds, or to so much as shall be sufficient to discharge and satisfy all the annuities by this act appointed or intended to be paid within or for the same year respectively, that then and so often, and in every such case, so much as shall be deficient or wanting to make up the said fund for every or any such year, until the redemption thereof by parliament, according to the proviso herein-after contained in that behalf, shall be supplied and made good, from time to time, out of the monies which shall, from time to time, arise by certain surplusses, excesses, and overplus monies, commonly called The sinking fund, so as the sums which, from time to time, or at any time shall be supplied out of the said sinking fund, do not exceed the monies which shall be saved by taking off the drawback of the duties on hops exported, or shipped to be exported for Ireland, pursuant to the clauses herein-after contained in that behalf; and if the same shall at any time exceed such saving, then the residue of such deficiency shall be supplied out of the then next aids to be granted in parliament; any thing in any former or other law or statute contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Deficiency to be made good out of the sinking fund, &c.

or out of the next aids in parliament.

XXV. And it is hereby enacted, That all the monies arising by the said duties on plate and manufactures of silver, for payment of the several annuities, which shall be payable upon this act, shall be fairly and duly entered in one or more book or books, to be kept in the offices of the auditor of the receipt and clerk of the pells for that purpose, to which all persons concerned, at all reasonable times, shall have free access without fee or charge.

The monies arising by the duty, to be entered in a book.

XXVIII. And

The annuities to be charged on the duties arising by this act, &c.

Annuities a personal estate and to go to executors.

Tax-free.

Surplus to be reserved for publick use.

General issue.

On publick notice in the Gazette, and on the Exchange, at any of the quarterly feast days, and on repayment of the principal, then they are to cease, and any vote of the commons, signed by the speaker,

XXVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the annuities so to be purchased upon this present act shall be and are hereby charged upon, and shall be paid and payable, from time to time, out of the money arising by the said rates and duties, and other provisions made by virtue of this act for the payment thereof; and that all and every contributor and contributors upon this act, duly paying the consideration or purchase-money at the rate aforesaid, at or before the respective days or times in this act limited in that behalf, for any such annuity or annuities, as aforesaid, or such as he, she, or they shall appoint, his, her, or their respective executors, administrators, successors, and assigns, shall have, receive, and enjoy, and be intitled by virtue of this act to have, receive, and enjoy, the respective annuity and annuities, so to be purchased out of the monies by this act appropriated, until the redemption thereof by parliament, according to the proviso herein-after contained in that behalf, as is above mentioned; and that all and every such purchasers, their executors, administrators, successors, and assigns respectively, shall have good, sure, absolute, and undefeazible estates and interests in the several annuities so by them respectively to be purchased, according to the tenor and true meaning of this act; and that all such estates and interests of and in the said annuities, and every of them, shall be, and be adjudged, taken, and accepted in construction of law, and in all courts of law and equity whatsoever, to be a personal and not a real estate, and shall go to the executors or administrators of the person or persons dying possessed thereof, interested therein, or entitled thereunto, and not to the heirs of such person or persons; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding: and that all the said annuities to be purchased on this act, as aforesaid, and every of them, shall be free from all taxes, charges, and impositions whatsoever.

XXXVI. Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted, That in case there shall be any surplus or remainder of the monies arising by the rates and duties granted by this act, at the end of any year, for which the said annuities are to be payable, after all the annuities, charges, and payments directed or authorized by this act, shall be fully satisfied, paid and discharged, or money sufficient shall be reserved for that purpose, such surplus or remainder shall be reserved for the publick use, and shall be disposed and disposeable by authority of parliament, and not otherwise.

XXXVII. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall at any time or times be sued or prosecuted for any thing by him or them done or executed in pursuance of this act, or of any matter or thing in this act contained, such person or persons shall and may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence for his or their defence; and if upon the trial a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall become nonsuited, then such defendant or defendants shall have treble costs to him or them awarded against such plaintiff or plaintiffs.

XXXVIII. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That at any time upon publick notice to be printed in the London Gazette, and affixed upon the Royal Exchange in London, by authority of parliament, at any of the said quarterly feast days for payment of the said annuities to be payable out of the said particular fund, not exceeding twenty thousand pounds per annum; and upon repayment by parliament of the respective principal sums for which the same annuities shall be payable such respective persons and corporations as shall be entitled to the same annuities, and also upon full payment of all arrearages of the same annuities, to be computed by the day after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum till such actual repayment, then, and not till then, the same annuities shall cease and determine; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding: and that any vote or resolution of the house of commons, signed by the speaker in writing, to be inserted in the said London Gazette, and affixed affixed on the Royal Exchange in London, as aforesaid, shall be deemed and adjudged to be sufficient notice within the words and meaning of this act.

shall be sufficient notice.

XL. And whereas certain duties upon hops were by an act of parliament made in the ninth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, of blessed memory, intituled, An act for laying a duty upon hops, imposed for the term of four years, reckoned from the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven; and were by an act of the first year of your Majesty's reign continued until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen; and by another act of the same year were granted to your Majesty, your heirs and successors for ever, subject nevertheless to redemption by parliament: in and by which acts, or some of them, (amongst other things therein contained) it was provided, That it should and might be lawful to and for any person or persons, who should have actually paid the duty thereby payable for any quantity of hops whatsoever of British growth, and to and for any other person or persons, who should buy or be lawfully entitled to any such quantity of hops of British growth from the said person or persons who actually paid the said duty for the same, to export such hops, being of British growth, for Ireland by way of merchandize; and that upon giving such security, and performing such other requisites as by the said acts, or some of them, are prescribed, the customer or collector of the port where such hops shall be exported, shall give to the exporter a debenture expressing the true quantity of the British hops so exported; and that upon such debenture the said duty shall be repaid, or the security for the same be discharged in the manner and form thereby prescribed, as by the said acts of parliament, relation being thereunto severally had, may more fully appear: and whereas the said duty upon hops of British growth is very moderate, and such hops exported for Ireland may reasonably bear the same duty which is charged upon those consumed in Great Britain: now we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being minded and desirous to improve the publick revenues, which are applicable to the discharging of publick debts and incumbrances, do further humbly pray your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duty upon hops of British growth, or any part thereof, shall not be repaid or drawn back for any such hops which shall be exported or shipped to be exported for Ireland, at any time or times after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty; and that no debenture or certificate shall be granted or made forth for or in order to the repayment or drawing back of the same duty for or upon any such hops so exported or shipped to be exported for Ireland after the said first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty; but such drawback or repayment from thenceforth shall cease and determine; the said recited acts of parliament, or any other law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

XLI. And whereas it may be requisite for encouraging the several manufactures of wrought plate, to continue both the standard of plate of eleven ounces ten penny weight Troy, and also the standard of eleven ounces two penny weight Troy, for the better accommodating the buyers of plate, and the workers and dealers therein: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, all silver vessels of plate, or manufactured of silver, shall not be made less in fineness than that of eleven ounces ten penny weight of fine silver in every pound Troy, or of silver less in fineness than eleven ounces two penny weight of fine silver in every pound Troy; which two different standards of wrought plate shall be severally and respectively marked with distinguishing marks, (that is to say) vessels made of silver plate or manufactured silver, not less in fineness than eleven ounces ten penny weight of fine silver in every pound Troy, to be marked with the workman's mark, the mark of the wardens of the mystery or craft of the goldsmiths, and with the figure of a lion's head erased, and the figure of a woman called the Britannia; and all vessels of silver plate or manufactured silver not less in fineness than eleven ounces two penny weight of fine silver in every pound Troy, and under the degree of eleven ounces ten penny weight of fine silver in every pound Troy, shall be marked with the workman's mark, and the wardens of the mystery or craft of goldsmiths as aforesaid, and with the figure of a lion passant, and the figure of a leopard's head; and that it shall not be lawful to make any vessels of silver plate or manufactures of silver of a coarser alloy than what is herein specified, under the penalties and forfeitures prescribed by any of the laws now in being concerning wrought plate; any thing in this act, or any other act or acts to the contrary notwithstanding.

XLIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies lent and to be lent to his Majesty upon one act of this session of parliament, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an aid by a land tax, to be raised in Great Britain, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and so much money (if any such be) of the tax thereby granted, as shall arise and remain after all the loans made or to be made on that act, and the interest thereof, and the charges thereby allowable for raising the said tax, shall be satisfied, or monies sufficient shall be reserved to discharge the same; and all the monies lent or to be lent to his Majesty upon an act of this session of parliament, intituled, An act for continuing the duties on malt, mum, cyder, and perry, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and twenty; and for enabling the lords commissioners of his Majesty's treasury to call in such Exchequer bills as are to be cancelled and discharged with money appointed for that purpose; and so much of the duties on malt, mum, cyder, and perry thereby granted or continued, as shall arise and remain (if any such be) after all the loans made or to be made on the same act, or thereby transferred or directed to be transferred thereunto, and all the interest thereof, and the charges thereby allowable for raising the same duties shall be satisfied, or monies sufficient shall be reserved to discharge the same; and the said sum, not exceeding three hundred and twelve thousand pounds, intended to be raised as aforesaid; and the said sum of two hundred thousand seven hundred thirty seven pounds, fourteen shillings, and nine pence farthing, to be taken out of the said clear produce of forfeitures, in pursuance of this present act, shall be appropriated and applied, and are hereby appropriated for or towards the several uses, intents, and purposes herein expressed, subject nevertheless to such restrictions as are herein-after prescribed; that is to say, it is hereby enacted and declared, That out of all or any the aids or supplies provided as aforesaid, there shall and may be issued and applied any sum, not exceeding eighty eight thousand forty nine pounds, three shillings, one penny, and one fifth part of a penny, to make good the deficiency of the fund, commonly called The general fund, for raising seven hundred and twenty four thousand eight hundred and forty nine pounds, six shillings, and ten pence, and one fifth part of a penny, per annum, for the year ended at Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen.

LI. And whereas by an act passed last session of parliament, intituled, An act for the recovery of the credit of the British fishery in foreign parts, and for better securing the duties upon salt, liberty is given to his Majesty's subjects to import foreign salt for the use of the fishery duty-free after Midsummer-day one thousand seven hundred and nineteen; and it being at the same time intended by the said act, that all such foreign salt as was imported, weighed, cellared, and locked up, in the presence of an officer for the duties upon salt, and under the custody of such officer and the importer thereof, before the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, should have the benefit of being turned over as stock in hand, and be made use of in the fishery duty-free; but for want of sufficient words to express clearly and plainly the intention of the said act, in relation to such foreign salt so imported as aforesaid before the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, the proprietors of the said salt have, to their great loss and detriment, not been enabled to make use of the said salt in the said fishery, nor will, for the time to come, be enabled enabled to make any use at all of it, unless the said act be better explained: for remedy whereof, and to supply the defect in the said act, be it, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such foreign salt so imported, cellared, and locked up as aforesaid, before the said twenty fourth of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, shall, at the desire of the proprietor or proprietors thereof, or his or their agent or agents, be turned over as stock in hand for the use of the fishery duty-free; subject nevertheless to the same conditions and restrictions as all other foreign salt intended for the use of the fishery, and have the same benefit and advantage as all other foreign salt intended for the use of the fishery, and imported after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen; any thing in this act, or any other, to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. XII.

An act for preventing of frauds and abuses in the allowances on damaged wines, and for lengthening the time for the drawbacks on the exportation of wines.

WHEREAS by the tenth rule annexed to an act of parliament passed in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tunnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandize exported and imported, which has been continued by several subsequent acts, and is now in force, it is provided, That if any wines shall prove corrupt and unmerchantable, and fit for nothing but to distil into hot waters, or to make vinegar, then every owner of such wines shall be abated in the subsidy according to such his damages in those wines, by the discretion of the collectors of the customs and one of the principal officers: and whereas several other subsidies, impositions, and duties, have been since laid, and are now payable to his Majesty on the importation of wines into this kingdom by several acts of parliament now in force; which several acts have reference to the said act of tunnage and poundage, and to the said rule in making allowances for the damages out of the respective duties on wines imported (except the duty payable on wines for the encouraging of coinage, by an act passed in the eighteenth year of the reign of his said late majesty King Charles the Second): and whereas frequent disputes do arise between the officers of the customs and the merchants, in the making and adjusting the allowances which damaged wines may deserve, the same depending for the most part on the taste thereof: for the preventing the like disputes for the future, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the second day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty, the said tenth rule annexed to the said act of tunnage and poundage be, and the same is hereby repealed, made void, and shall no longer be put in practice; any thing in the said act of tunnage and poundage, or in any other act or acts, in any wise to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. And whereas it may be reasonable to make the merchants importers of wine compensation for the allowances they would have received out of the several duties of their damaged wines by virtue of the said tenth rule, whereby the revenue may be collected with greater certainty, and not so liable to abuse: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said second day of May, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, there shall be made, as well to the merchant at importation, as also to the prize-master or proprietor of the duties of prizage, out of all the several gross duties now laid upon wines in casks, (except the coinage duty before mentioned) over and above the present abatements and discounts, the several allowances hereafter mentioned; that is to say, Out of the several gross duties (except the coinage) now laid upon Rhenish wine, or wine of the growth of Germany, or wines which pay duty as such, an allowance after the rate of two pounds per centum; upon French wines, or wines of the growth of France, or of any of the French King's dominions, an allowance after the rate of six pounds per centum; and upon Spanish, Portugal, and all other wines, (except Rhenish or French) an allowance after the rate of ten pounds per centum: the said several allowances after the rate of two per centum, six per centum, and ten per centum, to be deducted on the debenture, in case the wines be again exported; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

III. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any merchant or other person shall find his wine, or any part thereof, so damaged, corrupt, or unmerchantable, that he shall refuse to pay or secure the duties for the same, he shall have liberty, immediately after the landing the wines, to stave, spill, or otherwise destroy such wines in the presence of two or more of the officers of the customs, to be appointed by the collector, and one of the principal officers of the port, who shall take an exact account of the quantity of wine which the merchant or other person shall so stave, spill, or otherwise destroy, to the end the duty of such wine may be repaid, without any delay or charge to the merchant, by certificate, or that the quantity of wine so staved, spilt, or otherwise destroyed, be deducted from the foot of the account of the merchant refusing to pay or secure the duty of such wine, as aforesaid, in the book or books kept by the proper officer or officers appointed to the discharge of the ship importing the wine.

IV. And be it further enacted, That, over and above the duties repaid or allowed, as aforesaid, the merchant or other person shall, for every tun of wine, containing two hundred fifty and two gallons, of the growth of Germany, or wines which pay duty as such, and of the growth of France, so staved, spilt, or otherwise destroyed, be allowed as a compensation for the freight and other charges, the sum of four pounds; and wines of the growth of Spain, Portugal, and elsewhere, the sum of eight pounds per tun, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity, which allowances shall without delay be paid by certificate out of the duties arising by the said act of tunnage and poundage, and the officers are hereby required and directed to make, pass, and pay such certificate without fee or reward.

V. And, for the further encouragement of the wine trade, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the second day of May, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, every British merchant shall have eighteen months time from the importation of all wines to export the same, and every alien or stranger shall have fifteen months time from the importation of all wines to export the same, which importation shall be reckoned from the master's report of the ship; and shall have the like benefit and drawback by such exportation, as if the same had been exported within twelve months or nine months respectively, as mentioned in the second and fourth rules annexed to the said act of tunnage and poundage; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding; provided certificates and oaths be made, and all other requisites performed, according to the laws now in being, relating to the importation and exportation of wine.

VI. And, as a further encouragement, be it likewise enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, over and above the present duties drawn back on the exportation of wine, the merchant exporter be allowed, on the terms and conditions aforesaid, two thirds of the impost duty paid on the importation of wine by virtue of an act of parliament passed in the first year of King James the Second, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an impost upon all wines and vinegar, imported between the four and twentieth of June, one thousand six hundred and eighty five, and the four and twentieth of June, one thousand six hundred ninety three, which by several subsequent acts is continued and still in force, any thing in the said act, or in any other act to the contrary notwithstanding.

VII. Provided, and it is hereby declared and enacted, That any thing in this act contained or to be done in execution thereof, shall not extend or be construed to extend to diminish or lessen the duties of prizage and butlerage of wines due upon the importation of the same, but that the said duties shall be collected, taken, and received in the same manner as if this present act had never been made.

This act shall not lessen the duties of prizage, &c.

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. XIV.

An act for prohibiting the importation of raw silk and mohair yarn of the produce or manufacture of Asia, from any ports or places in the Streights or Levant seas, except such ports and places as are within the dominions of the Grand Seignior.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament passed in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouraging and encreasing of shipping and navigation, it is amongst other things enacted, That no goods or commodities which are of foreign growth, production, and manufacture, which by the said act are to be brought into England, Ireland, Wales, the islands of Guernsey or Jersey, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, in English or other shipping, navigated in such manner as therein is mentioned, shall be shipped or brought from any other place or places, country or countries, but only from those of the said growth, production, or manufacture, or from those parts where the said goods and commodities could only or were or usually had been first shipped for transportation, and from none other places or countries: and whereas in the said act there is a proviso in the words following; (viz.) Provided always, That this act, or any thing therein contained, extend not, or be meant to restrain and prohibit the importation of any the commodities of the Streights or Levant seas, loaden in English built shipping, and whereof the master and three fourths of the mariners at least are English, from the usual ports or places for lading of them heretofore within the said Streights or Levant seas, though the said commodities be not of the very growth of the said places: and whereas at the time of passing the said recited act, the subjects of France exported very little woollen manufacture to Turkey, and were then supplied with great quantities of woollen goods from England for their own use, and likewise with raw silks, and other goods of Turkey, which were the returns of English woollen manufactures; for all which the importation into France was then free for the subjects of England: and whereas the woollen manufacture in France has since that time been greatly increased, and very large quantities of such goods are now annually imported from thence to Turkey, in return whereof they bring from thence raw silk and other commodities to Marseilles, and other parts in France, great quantities whereof are carried into Italy, and from thence imported into Great Britain in English shipping, greatly to the discouragement of the woollen manufactures of Great Britain, and the advancement thereof in France; and without some speedy care therein, the British trade to Turkey will be daily lessened, and is in danger of being entirely lost: be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and tempo-cited act, as to the importation of raw silk and mohair yarn of the product of Asia, is repealed, except to places within the grand seignior's dominions.

ral, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, the said last recited clause or proviso, as to the importation of raw silk and mohair yarn, of the product or manufacture of Asia, shall be, and is hereby repealed, excepting only as to the ports and places in the said Streights or Levant seas which are within the dominions of the Grand Seignior.

An act to repeal so much of the act, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs, passed in the thirteenth and fourteenth years of King Charles the Second, as relates to the prohibiting the importation of deal-boards and fir-timber from Germany.

13 & 14 Car. 2.
c. 11. sect. 23.

WHEREAS by a clause in an act of parliament passed in the thirteenth and fourteenth years of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs, deal-boards and fir-timber are (among other things therein mentioned) prohibited to be imported from the Netherlands or Germany, upon any pretence whatsoever, in any sort of ships or vessels whatsoever, upon penalty of the loss of all the said goods, as also the ship and furniture: and whereas fir-timber, fir-planks, masts, and deal-boards, are not only found to be useful and necessary in the building and refitting his Majesty's ships of war, and other ships and vessels, but the same have of late years been, and now are very much used in and about all manner of buildings, which hath occasioned so great a demand for, and consumption of the said commodities, that the price thereof, at the places from whence the same may now be lawfully imported, is very much increased, to the prejudice of trade, which may be remedied, if the said prohibition be taken off, whereby the said commodities will become more plentiful, and the price thereof much reduced: be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That, from and after the first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty, so much of the said act, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs, as prohibits the importation of deal-boards and fir-timber from Germany only, shall be, and the same is hereby repealed, annulled, and made void, to all intents and purposes whatsoever.

After Aug. 1, 1720, so much of the recited act as prohibits the importation of deal-boards, &c. from Germany only, shall be repealed.
13 & 14 Car. 2.
c. 11.

His Majesty's subjects may import fir-timber, &c. from Germany, paying the like duties as that imported from Norway.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, shall and may be lawful to and for any of his Majesty's subjects to import any quantity or quantities of fir-timber, fir-planks, masts, and deal-boards being of the growth of Germany, into this kingdom, from any port or place in Germany, in British built ships only, so as the owner or owners are his Majesty's British subjects, and whereof the master, and three fourths of the mariners at least are British subjects, paying the like rates and duties to his Majesty for the same as are now payable for fir-timber, fir-planks, masts, and deal-boards imported from Norway.

Not to repeal the clause in the recited act so far as it prohibits the importation

III. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend, or be construed to extend, to charge or repeal the said clause in the said act of parliament, so far as the same prohibits importation of the said commodities from the Netherlands but as to such importation thereof from the Netherlands, or any port or place therein, the before mentioned act, and all the penalties and forfeitures therein contained, shall be in full force and effect, as fully and entirely as if this act had never been made; any thing in this present act to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

of the said commodities from the Netherlands.

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. XXI.

An act for preventing frauds and abuses in the publick revenues of excise, customs, stamp-duties, post-office, and house-money.

SECT. IV. AND be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any unmalted oats or barley shall be found mixt with or amongst malt shipping or shipped for exportation, that then, and in every such case, the person or persons who shall ship, or cause or procure to be shipped, such malt so mixed, shall, for every bushel thereof, forfeit and lose the sum of five shillings.

Forfeiture for mixing unmalted oats or barley with malt for exportation, 5s. per bushel.

XVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, no brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters, exceeding the quantity of one gallon, shall be removed or carried from any part of this kingdom to another, by land or by water, without such permit or certificate from some or one of the officers of his Majesty's customs or excise, signifying and certifying the quality and quantity thereof, and that his Majesty's duties chargeable thereon have been duly paid and satisfied, or that the same had been condemned, or was part of such stock as aforesaid, on pain of forfeiting the brandy, arrack, rum, spirits and strong waters which shall be found carrying from one place to another without such permit or certificate, together with the casks and vessels whatsoever containing the same.

No brandy, &c. exceeding a gallon, to be removed without a permit.

XIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the penalties and forfeitures by this act given for or on account of any brandy, arrack, rum, spirits, strong waters or sweets herein-after mentioned, shall and may be sued for, recovered and levied, or mitigated, by the same ways, means and methods, as any penalty or forfeiture given by any of the laws of excise can or may be sued for, recovered and levied, or mitigated; and that one moiety of every such penalty or forfeiture (the reasonable charges of suing for, recovering, and levying thereof, being first deducted) shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall seize, inform, or sue for the same.

Penalties how to be sued for, &c.

XX. And whereas the clandestine importation of brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters, from parts beyond the seas into this kingdom of Great Britain, of late become more frequent than formerly; and his Majesty's officers, who ought and do frequently seize such liquors so clandestinely imported, are under great discouragements in the performance of their duty therein, in the trouble and expence they are forced to be at in procuring the same to be condemned in his Majesty's court of exchequer, or other of his Majesty's courts: for remedy whereof, it is hereby provided, enacted, and declared by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, where any brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters, British or foreign, shall be seized as forfeited by virtue or in pursuance of this present act, or of any other act or acts of parliament relating to his Majesty's revenues of customs and excise, or either of them, by any of his Majesty's officers of the said revenues, or either of them, all such seizures except in every case where the seizure shall be made for unlawful importation, tion, and the whole quantity of the brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters, at any one time for that cause seized, doth exceed sixty three gallons) shall and may, in a summary way, be proceeded upon, heard, examined into and determined in the manner herein-after mentioned; that is to say, in case such seizures (except before excepted) shall happen to be made in any place or places within the immediate limits of the chief excise office in London, the same shall and may, in a summary way, be proceeded upon, heard, examined into, and determined by the commissioners of excise for the time being, or the major part of them; and in case such seizure (except before excepted) shall happen to be made in any place or places out of the said immediate limits of the said chief office of excise in London, then, and in such case, the same shall and may, in a summary way, be proceeded upon and examined into, heard, adjudged, and determined by and before any two or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace residing near to the place where such seizure or seizures shall be made; which said commissioners and justices of the peace respectively, within their respective jurisdictions, shall be and are hereby authorized and empowered to cause the respective person or persons, in whose custody such brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters so to be seized as aforesaid, were found at the time of the seizure thereof, to be summoned to appear before them at a certain time and place to be prefixed by the said commissioners of excise and justices of the peace respectively, who are hereby fully authorized, empowered, and required, upon the appearance or default of such person or persons so to be summoned, to examine into the cause of such seizure or seizures, and thereupon to proceed to give judgment for the condemnation of such brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters so seized, (except before excepted) as upon due examination shall be found to be forfeited by virtue of this act, or any other act or acts of parliament relating to his Majesty's revenues of customs or excise, together with the casks and other vessels whatsoever containing the same, and to issue out their warrants for the sale of such brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters, as shall be so by them respectively condemned, and of the casks and other vessels whatsoever containing the same; and such their respective judgments shall be and are hereby declared to be taken and adjudged to be good, valid, and effectual in the law, and final to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and not liable to any appeal, or to be removed by any writ or writs of certiorari; any law, statute, or provision to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

After 1 Aug. 1720, how brandy seized shall be sued for and condemned.

When brandy, &c. is seized, and no claim made thereof in 20 days, how to proceed to judgment and condemnation.

XXI. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, in all cases where any such brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters as aforesaid, (except as before excepted) shall be seized as forfeited, and no person or persons, within twenty days next after such seizure, shall appear to the officer or officers who made such seizure to claim the same, then, and in such case, if such seizure or seizures shall happen to be made within the immediate limits of the chief excise office in London, it shall and may be lawful for the officer or officers who shall make such seizure or seizures, from and after the expiration of the said twenty days next after such respective seizure or seizures, to cause notice in writing, to be signed by his Majesty's solicitor for the revenue of excise for the time being, to be affixed at the Royal Exchange, signifying the day and the time of the day that the commissioners of the excise for the time being, or the major part of them, will proceed to hear the matter of such seizure or seizures, and to the condemnation of the brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters so seized as aforesaid, and of the casks and other vessels containing the same; and if such seizure or seizures of such brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters as aforesaid, (except before excepted) shall happen to be made as aforesaid, out of the immediate limits of the said chief excise office in London, it shall and may be lawful for the officers who shall make such seizure or seizures, from and after the expiration of twenty days next after such respective seizure or seizures seizures, to cause publick notice to be given by proclamation at the next market town to the place or places where such respective seizure or seizures shall be made as aforesaid, upon the next market day after the expiration of the said twenty days, of the day and place when and where the justices of the peace will proceed to hear the matter of such seizure or seizures, and to the condemnation of such brandies, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters so seized as aforesaid; in which said cases it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners of excise and justices of the peace respectively, within their respective jurisdictions, to proceed to examine into the cause of such seizure or seizures, and to give judgment for the condemnation of such brandy, arrack, rum, spirits and strong waters so seized, as upon due examination shall appear to be forfeited, and of the casks and other vessels containing the same; which judgments shall be good, valid, and effectual in the law, and final to all intents and purposes whatsoever, as if the respective owner or owners of the same brandy, arrack, rum, spirits, or other strong waters, or the respective person or persons in whose custody the same was at the respective time or times of the seizure or seizures thereof, had been respectively summoned to attend the said commissioners of excise and justices of the peace respectively, in the manner herein-before prescribed, and shall not be liable to any appeal, or to be removed by Certiorari; any thing in this present act contained, or any law, statute, or provision to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

No Certiorari,

XXIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, if upon trial or trials of or in any information, action, suit, or prosecution whatsoever relating to his Majesty's duties of customs and excise, or to either of them, or to any other his duties whatsoever, or to any seizure or seizures, penalty or penalties, forfeiture or forfeitures relating to the said duties, or any of them, or if upon any trial or trials of or in any action, suit, or prosecution whatsoever against any person or persons, for any thing done by virtue or in pursuance of any act or acts of parliament relating to the said duties, any or either of them, any question or questions shall be made, or any doubt or doubts, dispute or disputes, shall arise or happen, touching or concerning the keeping of any office or offices of excise in any city or cities, town or towns, or touching or concerning any one or more defendants being an officer or officers of or for the said duties, any or either of them, that in every such case and cases proof shall and may be made, or evidence given, either of the actual keeping of such office or offices of excise in such city or cities, town or towns, or of such one or more defendants actually exercising of and being employed and intrusted in such office or offices respectively, before and at the respective time and times when the matter or matters in question upon such trial or trials shall happen to have been done or committed, or omitted, or neglected to have been done or performed, without producing any particular person or persons to prove the names of the particular and respective commissioners to any commissions in the respective cases before mentioned, any or either of them, to be of their own hand writing; and that in every such case and cases respectively such proof and evidence shall be deemed and taken to be legal and sufficient evidence, unless or until by other evidence the contrary shall or do appear.

In trials relating to excise or customs, &c. if questions arise concerning the keeping of any office, or any one's being an officer, what proof is requisite.

vered, broke up, and sold, as therein mentioned: and whereas, to elude the penalty of the said law, many ill-disposed persons do now carry on a clandestine trade, by importing these goods in ships and vessels above fifteen tun: for the prevention thereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any foreign brandy, arrack, rum, strong waters, or spirits of any kind whatsoever, shall, from and after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, be imported or brought into Great Britain, or into any port, harbour, haven, or creek thereof, in any ship, vessel, or boat, of the burthen of thirty tuns or under, (except only for the use of the seamen then belonging to and on board such ship, vessel, or boat, not exceeding one gallon for each such seaman) every such ship, vessel, or boat, with all her tackle, furniture, and apparel, as also all such brandy, arrack, rum, strong waters or spirits, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized by any officer or officers of the customs, and shall and may be prosecuted by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed; one moiety of which forfeiture shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the seizer or prosecutor; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXX. And be it further enacted, That after the seizure and condemnation of such ship, vessel, or boat, the same shall be intirely broke up, and publickly sold to the best advantage, together with the tackle, furniture, and apparel thereto belonging, and the produce thereof divided in like manner as the ships, vessels, and boats, under fifteen tuns, are to be broke up, sold, and the produce thereof divided, by virtue of the said act of the last session of parliament.

XXXI. And whereas by the said act of the last session of parliament, a remedy was provided, amongst other things, to prevent the running of brandy from ships or vessels of the burthen of fifty tuns or under, which lie hovering on the coast within the limits of the ports of this kingdom, and the exportation of wool: and whereas such ships or vessels, to elude the intent of that law, do lie at anchor, or hover on the coasts as near to the said limits as may be, whereby the masters of such ships or vessels have better opportunities of making their signals to the exporters of wool, and the runners of uncustomed and prohibited goods, to draw down to the sea side, (as they frequently do in great numbers of armed men) and of running the goods on shore, and carrying off the wool and coin of this kingdom in their boats, which make more frequent trips to and from the shore than they could do, if such ships or vessels were obliged to lie at a greater distance from the shore: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, where any ship or vessel of the burthen of fifty tuns or under, being in part or fully laden with brandy, shall be found at anchor or hovering within two leagues from the shore, and not proceeding on her voyage, wind and weather permitting, it shall and may be lawful to and for the commander of any of his Majesty's ships of war, frigots, or armed sloops, appointed for the guard of the coasts, or to and for the commander of any yatch, smack, sloop, or other boat or vessel in the service of his Majesty's customs, or to and for any officer of his Majesty's customs, to compel the master or other person having the charge of such ship or vessel, to come into port; and it is hereby declared, That such master or other person, as aforesaid, as likewise such ship or vessel and the brandy wherewith such ship or vessel is laden, in part, or in the whole, shall be subject to the same rules, regulations, penalties, and forfeitures, as such cargoes, ships, and vessels, and the masters or others taking charge thereof, which hover within the limits of any port of this kingdom, are by the said act subject unto; any thing therein, or in any other act to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding.

XXXII. And forasmuch as such illegal importations and exportations cannot be carried on by such ships or vessels, if the masters or commanders thereof take due care to prevent the same: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, if the master, purser, or other person taking charge of such ship or vessel, shall suffer any brandy, or other uncustomed or prohibited goods, to be put out of the said ship or vessel into any hoy, lighter, boat, or bottom, to be laid on land, or shall suffer any wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shortlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth, fulling-clay, or tobacco-pipe-clay, to be laden or taken in from the shore, to be put on board such ship or vessel, to be carried to parts beyond the seas, he or they so offending, being convicted thereof, shall, besides the penalties and forfeitures to which they will be liable by any law now in being, suffer six months imprisonment without bail or mainprize.

Master, &c. suffering brandy or uncustomed goods, to be put out of his ship, or wool, &c. to be taken in from the shore, besides former penalties shall suffer six months imprisonment.

XXXIV. And whereas the punishment already inflicted by law on such who shall forcibly hinder officers of the customs in the due performance of their duty, has proved insufficient: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, if any officer or officers of the customs be forcibly hindered, wounded, or beaten, in the due execution of their office, by any persons armed with club, or any manner of weapon, tumultuously assembled in the day or night, to the number of eight or more persons, all and every person or persons so forcibly hindering, wounding, or beating the said officer or officers, or such as shall act in their aid or assistance, being convicted thereof, shall, by order of the court, before whom such offender or offenders shall be convicted, be transported to some of his Majesty's colonies and plantations in America, for such term as the court shall think fit, not exceeding seven years, in the same manner as by an act made in the fourth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the further preventing robbery, burglary, or other felonies, and for the more effectual transportation of felons and unlawful exporters of wool, and for declaring the law upon some points relating to pirates, the offenders therein mentioned are to be transported to the said colonies and plantations.

Eight or more hindering, wounding, &c. officers in execution of their office, to be transported.

XXXV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if such offender or offenders shall return into Great Britain or Ireland, before the expiration of the said term, contrary to the intent and meaning hereof, he or they so returning, shall suffer as felons, and have execution awarded against them as persons attainted of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Returning into Great Britain or Ireland, felony.

XXXVI. Provided nevertheless, That if any such offender shall, within two months after such his offence, and before his conviction, discover two or more of his accomplices therein to the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland respectively, so as they, or two of them at least, be convicted of such offence, the offender so discovering shall have and receive the sum of forty pounds for every offender so discovered and convicted, as a reward for such his discovery, and shall be clearly acquitted and discharged of such his offence.

Offender, before conviction, discovering two of his accomplices within two months, to have 40 l. for each, and acquitted.

XXXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, if any other person or persons shall, within three months after such offence shall have been committed, discover to the said commissioners respectively any person or persons who shall have been guilty of such offence, so as such offender or offenders be convicted thereof, such discoverer or discoverers shall have and receive the like reward of forty pounds for every such offender so discovered and convicted, over and above any other reward and recompence which he or they may be entitled unto on account of the goods so carried or conveyed away, which shall be recovered by means of such his discovery, or on account of the penalty which shall be recovered for the running the said goods.

Other persons discovering in three months to have 40 l. over and above any other reward;

XXXVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of the customs in England and Scotland, shall cause the several to be paid by the cashier of the customs.

several rewards of forty pounds for the discovery of the offenders before mentioned, to be paid by the respective receiver general or cashier of the customs for the time being, out of any publick money in his hands under the management of the said commissioners, upon producing to them a certificate or certificates under the hand of the judge or justice of the court before whom the cause shall be tried, certifying the conviction of the offender or offenders; and the money so paid by any receiver-general as aforesaid, shall be accepted of and allowed in his accounts, as so much paid to his Majesty, and he is and shall be hereby discharged thereof accordingly; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXXIX. And whereas prohibited and customable goods found by officers of his Majesty's customs in the custody of persons in boats on the water, or coming directly from the water side, to wit, the customable goods on suspicion they were unshipped without payment of duty, and the prohibited goods for being imported contrary to law, and such goods being also found in other places, upon information that they were clandestinely run, are in like manner stop'd until the persons in whose custody the same are found, or the owners of such goods, shall apply to the commissioners of the customs, or to the collector of the port where such goods are stop'd respectively, that the said goods may be discharged in case there be no just cause to detain the same; nevertheless the owners of the goods, instead of making such application, do sue the officers for more than the value thereof, to their great charge and discouragement in the execution of their duty: and whereas there is good reason to believe, that many ill-disposed persons do put themselves purposely in the way of officers with such goods in their custody, and that others, by the directions of the owners, do falsely or deceitfully inform the officers that the goods were run, to the intent such officers should seize the same, in order to sue the officers, and thereby the owners get excessive prices for their goods, and the officers are deterred from making seizures, whereby the clandestine running of goods is greatly encouraged: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That Prohibited or customable goods in any boat, &c. or in any house, &c. officer may stop and warehouse the same till claimed, &c.

c. 11.

From and after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, if prohibited or customable goods shall be found by any officer or officers of the customs in the custody of any person or persons, being in a bark, hoy, lighter, barge, boat, or wherry on the water, or coming directly from the water side, without the presence of an officer, or if such goods shall, upon the information of one or more credible person or persons, be found in any house, shop, cellar, warehouse, room, or other place, on a search there made in such manner as in and by an act made in the fourteenth year of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs, is mentioned and directed, it shall and may be lawful to and for such officer or officers to stop and put the said goods in his Majesty's warehouse in the port next to the place where such stop shall be made, there to remain until the claimer or claimers thereof shall make proof by oath, or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the commissioners for managing his Majesty's customs, if such stop shall be made within the ports of London or Edinburgh respectively, that the duties of the customable goods have been paid, or secured to be paid, or that the same had been bought in a lawful way of trade, and that he, she, or they claiming the said goods, do verily believe the duties thereof to have been paid, or secured to be paid, or that the said goods had been compounded for, or condemned in his Majesty's court of Exchequer at Westminster or Edinburgh, or been otherwise delivered by writ of that court respectively, and that the prohibited goods had been compounded for, or condemned, or otherwise delivered, as aforesaid, in which case such goods shall and may be delivered without delay or charge: and if such goods shall be stopped in any other of the ports within this kingdom, the claimer or claimers thereof shall and may make the like proof to the like purpose, as aforesaid, and deliver the same to the collector, or in his absence to one of the other principal officers of the customs in the port where such stop shall be made, who proof shall, without loss of time, be transmitted to the said commissioners respectively, for their directions touching the immediate delivery of such goods, without charge to the claimer or claimers, or for the seizing and prosecuting of the same, as the said commissioners shall see cause.

XL. Provided, such proof be made within ten days after the goods shall have been so stopped, in failure whereof the same shall and may be seized, and prosecuted in such manner as by the several and respective laws now in force against the importation of prohibited or uncustomed goods, is provided, the forfeiture of such goods after condemnation, shall be to and for such uses, and according to such proportions or shares, as are therein and thereby respectively mentioned and distributed.

Proof to be in 10 days after stopping.

XLI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if upon such prosecution where no application hath been made to the commissioners or officers aforesaid, and not otherwise, the property of the goods shall be claimed by any person or persons, and if any question, dispute, or doubt shall arise, whether the duties thereof were paid or secured, or that the said goods had been compounded for, or condemned, or otherwise delivered by writ out of the court of Exchequer, or bought in a lawful way of trade, the proof shall be incumbent on such claimer or claimers, and not on the seizer or prosecutor; and if thereupon a verdict shall pass for such claimer or claimers, or if the officer or officers shall become nonsuit, or forbear prosecution, or discontinue the same, or if upon demurrer or otherwise, judgment shall be given against the officer or officers, then, and in any of the said cases, the claimer or claimers shall, over and above the recovery of his, her, or their goods, or the value thereof, have reasonable costs of suit, for which he, she, or they shall have the like remedy as where costs by law are awarded, which said costs of suit shall be reckoned and esteemed as a full satisfaction for the said claimer or claimers damages occasioned by the detention and seizure of the said goods.

Proof to lie on the claimer.

If verdict pass er, he shall

c. 28. sect. 8.

XLII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where the claimer or claimers of such goods so stoppt, as aforesaid, shall make proof either by oath before any justice of the peace, or other person empowered to administer the same, or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the commissioners for managing his Majesty's customs respectively, or officers of the customs, as aforesaid, in manner before directed and appointed, so as to induce the respective commissioners to order the delivery of the goods so stoppt; and if the owner or owners, claimer or claimers of such goods, shall receive any damage by means of such stop; then, and in such case, the owner or owners, claimer or claimers of the said goods, shall and may receive such goods by virtue of such order, without any charge or delay; and it shall and may nevertheless be lawful to and for such owner or owners, claimer or claimers, to bring his, her, or their action or actions against the officer or officers who shall stop his, her, or their goods, for such reasonable damages, which he, she, or they shall or may have sustained by means of the said goods being so stoppt or detained, as aforesaid; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

If the claimer make proof of his goods, or that they have received any damage, the goods to be delivered, and he may sue;
&c.

XLIII. Provided always, and be it declared to be the true intent and meaning hereof, That if the officer or officers who shall stop such goods, or any other officer or officers of the customs, shall be desirous to seize and prosecute the same, notwithstanding any directions of the commissioners of the customs for the delivery of the said goods respectively, it shall and may be lawful to and for such officer or officers to seize and prosecute the same in such manner as by the several and respective laws of the customs now in force such goods may be seized and prosecuted, in every of which cases the officer or officers so prosecuting shall be liable, and he or they are hereby declared to be sued by the owner or owners of the said goods for the recovery of the same, or the value thereof, with full costs of suit; or if the said commissioners shall not order the delivery of the said goods so stoppt, then, and in such such case, the owner and owners, claimer or claimers of such goods, shall and may nevertheless sue for the recovery of such goods, together with costs and damages, according to the usual course of law, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland, as he or they might have done before the passing of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Offences relating to the customs, where, and how to be tried.

XLIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several offences in this act mentioned, relating to the customs, or other duties upon importation or exportation, or to uncustomed or prohibited goods, (except as in this act is otherwise provided) shall and may be heard, tried, and determined, by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland respectively, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

3 & 4 Ann.
c. 4.

XLV. And whereas by an act passed in the third year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for continuing duties upon low wines, and upon coffee, tea, chocolate, spices, and pictures, and upon hawkers, pedlars, and petty chapmen, and upon muslins; and for granting new duties upon several of the said commodities, and also upon callico, China ware, and drugs, it is enacted, That any person or persons may import into this kingdom nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and tea, subject to the several duties payable for the same, from any parts beyond the seas, in British ships, navigated as therein mentioned, and so as notice be first given to the commissioners of her Majesty's customs of the quantity and quality of the said spices and tea so intended to be imported, and the place to which they intend to import the same, and taking a licence under the hands of the said commissioners for the time being for the landing and importing thereof, as aforesaid: And whereas by an act passed in the eighth year of the reign of her said late Majesty, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty new duties of excise, and upon several imported commodities, and for other purposes therein mentioned, it is enacted, That nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, and mace, may be imported into Great Britain, subject to the several duties payable for the same, from any parts beyond the seas, in British ships, navigated as therein mentioned, the importer thereof first giving notice to the said commissioners of the quantity and quality of the said spices, and the place into which he intends to import the same, and taking a licence under the hands of the said commissioners for the importing thereof, which importation is to be continued during the continuance of the said respective acts, which are still in force: and whereas many ill-disposed persons having taken out licences for great quantities of the said spices and tea, do import the same at several times in small parcels, with intent secretly to land the same as opportunity shall offer; but if the said spices or tea are found by the officers of the customs on board the ship, the importers, to prevent the seizures thereof, do produce their licences, and pretend that those spices or tea are part of the quantities mentioned in the said licences whereby there is good reason to suspect that great frauds are frequently committed, to the lessening of his Majesty's revenue, and prejudice to the fair merchants be it therefore enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That in every licence to be granted from and after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, in pursuance of the said acts, and during the continuance, for the importing of nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and tea, shall be expressed the quantity and quality of the said spices and tea, and the place or port into which the same are intended to be imported; and that if any greater quantity of the said spices or tea shall be imported than what is expressed in the said licence, the same so imported shall be deemed to be imported without a licence; and such licence shall and may be granted, without any fee or reward, by the commissioners or chief managers of the customs for the time being, or any three or more of them, or by the collector or collector and controller of the port into which the said spices and tea are to be imported, so as that all nutmegs, cloves, mace, and cinnamon, to be imported into this kingdom by virtue of such licence, from any place or places beyond the seas, other than directly from the East Indies, be not in any other package than in casks or bales; which casks or bales shall contain the quantity hereafter mentioned, that is to say, each cask of nutmegs, cloves, or mace, to weigh neat three hundred pounds weight, or upwards; each bale of cinnamon to weigh neat seventy pounds weight, or upwards.

XLVI. And be it further enacted, That the licence so taken out for spice and tea as aforesaid, shall be delivered to the merchant demanding the same; which licence shall be produced and delivered up by the master, purser, or other person taking charge of the ship wherein such spice or tea shall be imported, with the name of the ship and master, together with the marks and numbers of each cask, bale, or parcel, and the quantity and quality of such spice or tea indorsed on the back thereof, to the collector and comptroller of the port into which the same shall be imported, at the time of his or their entering the ship; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Licence to be delivered up at entering the ship.

Enforced by 8 Geo. 1. c. 18. sect. 21.

XLVII. And whereas such spices are frequently imported in bags and other small parcels packed in hogsheds, casks, bales, or other package, in order to run the same clandestinely: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any of the spices above mentioned shall be found on board any ship or vessel in bags or other small parcels packed in hogsheds, casks, or bales, the same shall be forfeited; one moiety whereof to be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them who will inform or sue for the same in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland, wherein no essoins, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed.

Spices in bags or small parcels, &c. forfeited.

XLVIII. And whereas by an act of parliament of the eighth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, made (amongst other things) for better preventing frauds in drawbacks, it was enacted, That no debenture should be paid or allowed for any tobacco exported from any port of Great Britain to the kingdom of Ireland, until a certificate should be produced under the hands and seals of the collector, comptroller, and surveyor of the customs of any port in Ireland, or any two of them, where such goods should be landed, testifying the landing thereof (the danger of the seas or enemies excepted): and whereas it frequently happens, that tobacco imported into this kingdom, and afterwards shipped again for Ireland, doth in the carriage thither waste and decrease in weight, but as the law now stands no more drawback can be allowed than for the quantity of tobacco particularly specified in the said certificates returned from Ireland: now, for the encouragement of all fair traders that shall send tobacco for Ireland, it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from time to time, upon producing such certificates as aforesaid under the hands and seals of the collector, comptroller, and surveyor of the customs of any port in Ireland, or any two of them, where such tobacco shall be landed, testifying the landing thereof in that kingdom, at any time or times after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, in case there shall appear to be any difference in weight between the quantity specified in such certificate, and the quantity entered and shipped for exportation thither, so that the quantity landed in Ireland shall be less than the quantity so entered and shipped for that kingdom, in all and every such case and cases an allowance shall be made to the merchant exporter on the duties to be drawn back of all such tobacco so shipped and exported to Ireland, in consideration of the waste which may happen (if any be) in the voyage between Great Britain and Ireland, so as such allowance do not in any case exceed two per centum; any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

An allowance of two per cent. to be made for tobacco exported to Ireland, for waste.

XLIX. And whereas it is found by experience, that great quantities of tobacco are clandestinely run into Ireland after the entering and exporting the same from Great Britain for other foreign parts, and the exporters have entitled themselves to drawbacks for the drawbacks in this kingdom, in prejudice of his Majesty's revenues, and to the discouragement of fair traders: be it further enacted by the Tobacco exported for foreign parts, landed in Ireland, forfeited, and double the drawback, &c.

the authority aforesaid, That if any tobacco so entered out and exported shall afterwards be landed in Ireland, the same and double the drawback thereof shall be forfeited, and every debenture for the drawback thereof shall become void, as if the said tobacco were relanded in any part of Great Britain; which forfeitures shall and may be prosecuted and recovered in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster or Dublin respectively, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland; in which prosecution no effoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance; one moiety of which forfeiture or forfeitures to be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same as aforesaid.

Ireland to be added to the oath of exporters of tobacco to foreign parts.

L. And whereas the exporters of tobacco for any foreign parts are now only obliged to swear, that the tobacco shipped and certified is not landed, or intended to be relanded in any part of Great Britain: it is hereby enacted, That, from and after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, Ireland shall be added and included in the oath before mentioned, (except for such tobacco as shall be regularly shipped for Ireland) without which the officers of the customs shall not suffer the debenture to pass; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

Ships of 50 tons hovering on the coasts of Ireland within two leagues of the shore, officers may enter such ships to take account of the lading, and take security of the masters in treble the value of the goods on board, for proceeding regularly on their voyage.

(a) Not land, in the record. Amended by 12 Geo. 2. c. 22. Masters refusing bonds, or not departing in 30 days, officers may secure all the goods, &c.

LXII. And whereas divers ships and vessels of the burthen of fifty tons or under, laden with tobacco, brandy, spirits, and other customable or prohibited goods, pretending to be bound for foreign parts, do frequently lie hovering on the coast of Ireland, with intention to run the same privately on shore, as opportunity offers, to the great diminution of his Majesty's revenue and ruin of fair traders; and ships or vessels of the burthen of fifty tons or under do frequently lie hovering on that coast to take in wool, not lawfully licensed to be brought to England, and other staple commodities of Ireland, prohibited to be exported: for the better preventing whereof, be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, where any ship or vessel of the burthen of fifty tons or under, laden with customable or prohibited goods, shall be found at anchor or hovering on the coast of Ireland within two leagues of the shore, and not proceeding on her voyage, wind and weather permitting, it shall and may be lawful to and for any officer or officers of his Majesty's customs of that kingdom, to go on board every such ship or vessel, and to take an account of the lading, and to demand and take security from the master or other person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel in that voyage, by his own bond by him to be entered into unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in such sum or sums of money as shall be treble the value of such goods then on board, with condition that such ship or vessel (as soon as wind and weather, and the state and condition of such ship or vessel doth permit) shall and will proceed regularly on such voyage, and shall (a) land such goods (except wool lawfully licensed, as aforesaid) in and at some foreign port or ports; and if such master or other person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel, shall, upon such demand, refuse to enter into such bond, or, having entered into such bond, shall not depart or proceed regularly on such voyage, (as soon as wind and weather, and the state and condition of such ship or vessel shall permit) unless otherwise suffered to make a longer stay by the collector (or other principal officer in his absence) of such port where such ship or vessel shall be, not exceeding twenty days; then, and in either of the said cases, all the goods so on board such ship or vessel, shall and may, by any officer or officers of the customs, by direction of the collector, or other principal officer, as aforesaid, be taken out of and from such ship or vessel, and forthwith brought on shore and secured; and in case the said goods are customable, the customs and other duties shall be paid for the same; and as concerning wool, or any prohibited goods, or other goods liable to forfeiture, which may be found on board such ships or vessels at the time of their unlading, as aforesaid, the same are hereby declared to be subject to forfeiture, and the officers of the customs shall and may prosecute the same, as also the ship or vessel, in case she shall be liable to condemnation.

LXIII. Provided always, That after such goods are so taken out of such ship or vessel, and brought on shore, and secured by such officer or officers, such bonds so to be given as aforesaid shall be void, and delivered up without any fee or reward for taking or delivering up the same; and such bond, not being otherwise discharged, shall, on a proper certificate returned under the common seal of the chief magistrate in any place or places beyond the seas, or under the hands and seals of two known British or Irish merchants upon the place, that such goods were there landed, or upon proof by credible persons, that such goods were taken by enemies, or perished in the seas, (the examination and proof thereof being left to the judgment of the commissioners of the customs in Ireland.) shall be vacated and discharged.

On landing the goods, bond void.

Bonds not otherwise discharged, to be vacated on certificate.

LXIV. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners or sub-commissioners of excise respectively, in their respective limits and districts in Ireland, or the major part of them, are hereby authorized and required to hear and determine all offences against any clause or article contained in this or any other act of parliament now in force in Ireland, made for preventing the unlawful exportation of wool, wool-fells, thorthings, mortlings, wool-flocks, worsted, bay or woollen yarn, cloth, serge, kerseys, bays, sayes, frizes, druggets, cloth-serges, shalloons, or any other drapery stuffs or woollen manufactures, made or mixed with wool or wool-flocks, and manufactured in Ireland; which commissioners or sub-commissioners shall and may proceed in a summary way, and give judgment or sentence, and levy the fines, penalties, and forfeitures thereupon, in such or the like manner as they are enabled to proceed, give judgment, and levy the fines, penalties, and forfeitures, in cases of excise in Ireland, by any act or acts of parliament now in force in that kingdom.

Commissioners of excise in Ireland to determine all offences relating to wool.

LXV. And be it further enacted, That no person or persons shall be admitted to claim property in any seizure that shall be made upon any clause or clauses in any act of parliament for preventing the unlawful exportation of wool from Ireland, till he or they shall first have given sufficient security to the said commissioners or sub-commissioners of the district where such seizure shall be made to answer the penalties attending the forfeiture thereof, if such seizure shall be adjudged to be good in law.

None may claim property in any seizure in Ireland till they have given security, &c.

LXVI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be sued, molested, or prosecuted for any thing done by virtue or in pursuance of this act, or any of the clauses therein contained, such person and persons shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act, and the special matter in evidence for his, her, or their defence; and if afterwards a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall discontinue his or their action, or be nonsuited, or judgment shall be given against him or them upon demurrer, or otherwise, then such defendant or defendants shall have full costs to him or them awarded against such plaintiff or plaintiffs.

General issue.

Anno septimo

GEORGE I. Regis.

STAT. I. CAP. VII.

An act to preserve and encourage the woollen and silk manufactures of this kingdom, and for more effectual employing the poor, by prohibiting the use and wear of all printed, painted, stained, or dyed calicoes in apparel, household stuff, furniture, or otherwise, after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two (except as therein is excepted).

After 25 Dec. 1722, none shall wear in Great Britain any garment of printed, &c. callico, under the penalty of 5l. to the informer, on conviction before a justice, and complaint within six days after offence committed.

Appeal to sessions, whose judgment shall be final.

After the said 25 Dec. mercer, &c. selling any printed, &c. callico, or any bed, &c. made thereof, unless for exportation, shall forfeit 20l.;

WHEREAS it is most evident, that the wearing and using of printed, painted, stained, and dyed calicoes in apparel, household stuff, furniture, and otherwise, does manifestly tend to the great detriment of the woollen and silk manufactures of this kingdom, and to the excessive increase of the poor, and if not effectually prevented, may be the utter ruin and destruction of the said manufactures, and of many thousands of your Majesty's subjects and their families, whose livelihoods do intirely depend thereupon: for remedy thereof, may it please your most excellent Majesty, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That, from and after the twenty fifth day of December, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, it shall not be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever to use or wear in Great Britain, in any garment or apparel whatsoever, any printed, painted, stained, or dyed callico, under the penalty of forfeiting to the informer the sum of five pounds of lawful money of Great Britain for every such offence, being lawfully convicted thereof by the oath or oaths of one or more credible witness or witnesses before any one or more justice or justices of the peace; which justice or justices is and are hereby respectively authorized and strictly enjoined and required, upon any complaint or information upon oath exhibited or brought of any such offence committed, contrary to this act, within six days after commitment thereof, to summon the party accused, and upon his or her appearance or contempt to proceed to examination of the matter of fact, and upon due proof made thereof, either by voluntary confession of the party, or by the oath or oaths of one or more credible witness or witnesses, (which oath or oaths the said justice or justices is and are hereby respectively impowered and required to administer) to hear and determine the same, and upon such conviction to cause the said penalty, by warrant under his or their hand and seal, or hands and seals respectively, to be levied by distress and sale of the offender's goods and chattels, rendering to the party the overplus, (the charge of such distress and sale being first deducted); nevertheless, it shall be lawful for any party aggrieved to appeal to the justices of the peace at the next general quarter sessions to be holden for the county, city, riding, or place, where the said offence or offences shall have been committed, giving six days notice at the least of such appeal to the prosecutor or prosecutors; which justices, at such general quarter sessions, are hereby authorized and impowered to hear and determine the same, and their judgment therein shall be final.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any mercer, draper, upholder, or any other person or persons or corporation whatsoever, shall at any time or times after the said twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, sell, utter, or expose to sale, any printed, painted, stained, or dyed callico, or any bed, chair, cushion, window-curtain, or other household stuff or furniture whatsoever, made up of or mixed with any printed, painted, stained, or dyed callico, unless for exportation tation thereof, and unless the same shall be cleared outwards accordingly, as is usual in case of sale for exportation, every such person or corporation so offending, shall, for every offence, being lawfully convicted thereof, forfeit and pay the sum of twenty pounds of lawful money of Great Britain, to be recovered as is herein-after directed; and every steward or other officer of such corporation, or his deputy, offending herein, and being lawfully convicted of such offence, shall, over and besides the forfeiture or penalty aforesaid, forfeit and lose his office and employment, and be incapable to hold the same.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to use or wear in Great Britain, in or about any bed, chair, cushion, window-curtain, or any other sort of household stuff or furniture, any printed, painted, stained, or dyed callico, (except as herein-after is excepted) under the penalty of forfeiting (being thereof lawfully convicted) the sum of twenty pounds of lawful money of Great Britain, to be recovered as herein-after is directed.

No such callico to be used in any bed, chair, &c. on pain of 20l.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That one moiety of all pecuniary penalties and forfeitures imposed by this act, where the same shall exceed five pounds, shall be to the informer or prosecutor, and the other moiety to the poor of the parish or place where the offence shall be committed; and such penalties as are not herein directed to be otherwise recovered, shall be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, for offences committed in England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, or in his Majesty's court of session, court of justiciary, or court of Exchequer in Scotland, for offences committed in that part of Great Britain, together with full costs of suit, by any person or persons who shall sue for the same within six calendar months next after the offence committed; and that in any such action or suit no sloop, protection, privilege, or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance.

How the forfeitures shall be applied and recovered.

V. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if it shall appear that any person convicted of any offence against this act shall be sheltered or protected, or doth or shall reside or inhabit in any pretended privilege place whatsoever, every such offender shall and may be taken from thence by warrant under the hand and seal of any of his Majesty's justices of the court of King's bench, common pleas, or barons of the Exchequer in England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, or by warrant under the hand and seal of any of the lords of session, judges of the court of justiciary or barons of the Exchequer in Scotland; and shall be by any such justice, lord of session, judge, or baron, committed to the common gaol of the county or place where the offence was committed, there to remain without bail or mainprize till payment and satisfaction of all penalties and forfeitures imposed by this act, with full costs.

Persons convicted may be taken out of any pretended privilege place by warrant of any of the judges in England, or of the lords of session, &c. in Scotland, and committed to common gaol till payment of the forfeitures.

VI. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend or be construed to extend in any wise to any calicoes which have already been made up or used in any bed, chair, cushion, window-curtain, or other sort of household stuff or furniture; provided the same be continued to be worn and used in such household stuff or furniture, and not otherwise.

Not to extend to calicoes made up in any bed, &c. before Dec. 25, 1722;

VII. Provided also, That nothing in this act contained shall extend or be construed to extend to repeal, make void, or alter any law now in force for prohibiting calicoes, printed, painted, dyed, or stained in foreign parts, or prohibiting any other goods or manufactures whatsoever.

nor to repeal, &c. any law for prohibiting calicoes printed in foreign parts.

VIII. Provided also, and be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all persons and bodies corporate who shall, on or before the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two,

Exporters of calicoes before the said 25 Dec. entitled

two, export any calicoes, shall be entitled to and have such and the same allowances and advantages upon the exportation thereof, as fully as if the same had been exported within twelve months after the importation thereof; any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be sued or prosecuted for any thing done or to be done, in pursuance of this act, such person or persons may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence; and if the plaintiff or plaintiffs, prosecutor or prosecutors, shall become nonsuit, or forbear prosecution, or suffer discontinuance; or if a verdict pass against him, her, or them, the defendant or defendants shall have treble costs, and shall have the like remedy for the same, as in any case where costs are by law given to defendants.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the prohibition of calicoes intended by this act, and the penalties thereby inflicted for wearing or using printed, painted, stained, or dyed callico in apparel, household stuff or furniture, after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, contrary to this act, shall respectively extend to prohibit, and shall be levied and recovered for wearing or using in apparel, household stuff or furniture, after the said twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, any stuff made of cotton or mixt therewith, which shall be printed or painted with any colour or colours, or any callico chequered or striped, or any callico stitched or flowered in foreign parts with any colour or colours, or with coloured flowers made there (muslins, neckcloths, and fustians excepted) in such manner as the penalties inflicted by this act for wearing or using printed, painted, stained, or dyed callico in apparel, household stuff or furniture, after the said twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, contrary to this act, are to be levied or recovered; but under such limitations, and with such liberties, privileges, and advantages as are mentioned and expressed in this act, or in any other act or acts of parliament now in force relating thereto, or relating to printed, painted, stained or dyed calicoes.

XI. Provided, That nothing in this act contained shall extend or be construed to extend to such calicoes as shall be dyed all blue.

c. 44.

6 Ann. c. 17.

10 Ann. c. 28.

5 Geo. 1. c. 21.

WHEREAS it is of importance to the welfare of this kingdom, that the trade to and from the East Indies, as the same is now regulated, be carried on in such manner, as that the British nation may have and enjoy the fruits and advantages thereof: and whereas, by virtue of several acts of parliament and letters patents, the whole trade to and from the East Indies and places beyond the Cape of good Hope, in the said acts and letters patents mentioned, is now solely vested in the united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies; notwithstanding which, and notwithstanding the prohibitions, injunctions, and penalties contained in such acts and letters patents for securing the said trade to the said company, several evil-minded persons, subject his Majesty, preferring their own private gain to the good of their country, have not only clandestinely, and without any authority from the said company, trafficked and traded to and from the East Indies, but have also, by colour or upon pretence of commissions obtained from foreign governments, openly and publickly, in defiance of the said laws, and in contempt of his Majesty's authority, fitted out, manned, and loaded great and defensible ships, and have sent out the same or sailed therewith to the East Indies and parts aforesaid, and have prevailed upon several British seamen, and other subjects of his Majesty, to serve on board the said ships, and to engage in the same undertaking, to the diminution of his Majesty's revenue, and of the naval force and commerce of this kingdom: now, to the intent that such wicked, mischievous, and destructive practices may be prevented for the future, and that the trade aforesaid may be more effectually guarded and successfully carried on; be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if at any time from and after the four and twentieth day of June, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, any of his Majesty's subjects shall sail, go, or repair to, or shall trade, traffick, or adventure in, to or from the East Indies or parts aforesaid, contrary to the laws now in being, or contrary to the tenor of this act, in every such case it shall and may be lawful, either for his Majesty's attorney general for the time being, or for the said united company, at any time within the space of six years, to file or exhibit, in any one of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, one or more information or informations against such offender or offenders for the offence by him or them committed; and if the party or parties, defendant or defendants, to such information or informations shall, by due course of law, appear or be found to be guilty thereof, in the court where such information or informations shall be so filed or exhibited, shall forthwith proceed to give judgment against the defendant and defendants by such fine and imprisonment, or either of them, as the said court shall think fit; and shall also award the prosecutor or prosecutors his and their full costs of suit; but in case the said defendant or defendants shall be, upon any information exhibited by the said company, acquitted or found not guilty, in such case the said company shall pay such defendant or defendants his or their full costs.

If after 24 June, 1721, any of his Majesty's subjects shall go or traffick to or from the East Indies, contrary to law, the attorney general, &c. may within six years file an information against such offender, who, if convicted, shall be fined and imprisoned at the discretion of the court; but if acquitted, shall have full costs.

II. And it is hereby further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all contracts and agreements whatsoever, at any time from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, made or entered into by any of his Majesty's subjects, or any person or persons in trust for them, for or upon the loan of any monies by way of bottomry on any ship or ships in the service of foreigners, and bound or designed to trade in the East Indies or parts aforesaid; and all contracts and agreements whatsoever made by any of his Majesty's subjects, or any person or persons in trust for them, for the loading or supplying any such ship or ships with a cargo or lading of any sort of goods, merchandize, treasure, or effects, or with any provisions, stores, or necessaries, and all copartnerships, or agreements in the nature of copartnerships, made or entered into, relating to any such voyage or the profits thereof, and all agreements for the wages of any person or persons serving on board such ship or ships to be employed in such voyage, shall be and are hereby declared to be void.

After 24 June, 1721, all contracts for loans by way of bottomry on any foreigners ships bound for the East Indies, and for loading such ships, and all copartnerships, and agreements for wages, declared void.

III. And it is hereby further enacted and declared, That every person and persons, subject and subjects of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, who shall at any time or times from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, sail, go, or repair to the said East Indies or places aforesaid, contrary to the laws now in being, shall be deemed and accounted to be a trader, and to have traded and trafficked there; and all the goods and merchandizes that shall be there bartered or trafficked for, or be purchased by any such offender or offenders, or shall be found in his custody, or in the custody of any other person or persons by his or their order or procurement, shall be forfeited, together with double the value thereof.

All goods shipped for the East Indies, or taken out of ships coming from thence (except goods of the company, or licensed by them) forfeited, together with double value.

Masters of such ships to forfeit 1,000l. lose their wages, &c.

Attorney general may exhibit a bill of complaint in the Exchequer against such as trade, &c. to the East Indies after 24 June, 1721, contrary to law, or against their agents, &c. for discovery of such trading, &c. and waiving the penalties, &c.

such person shall answer, and not plead or demur to the said bills, and pay the customs, &c.

IV. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the goods, merchandize, treasure, and effects, that shall at any time or times from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, be shipped or put on board any ship or ships, vessel or vessels, bound to the East Indies or parts aforesaid, (other than and except the goods, merchandize, treasure, and effects of the said company, or such as are licensed by them, or the naval stores, provisions, and necessaries for such ship or ships performing their voyage) and all and every the goods, merchandize, treasure, and effects (except as before is excepted) that shall, from and after the time aforesaid, be taken out of any such ship or vessel in her voyage homeward from the East Indies or parts aforesaid to England, before her arrival there, the same and every of them shall be forfeited, together with double the value thereof; and the master or commander, and other officers of such ship or ships, vessel or vessels for the time being, knowingly permitting or suffering any such goods, merchandize, treasure, or effects to be shipped or put on board any such ship or ships so bound to the East Indies, or to be taken out of any such ship or ships bound from the East Indies or parts aforesaid to England, shall forfeit for every such offence the sum of one thousand pounds, and moreover shall not be entitled to have, demand, or receive any wages whatsoever; nor shall the said company be obliged or compelled or compellable to pay any wages to, or to the use or upon the account of any such master, commander, or officer, for or in respect of the voyage so made or to be made by such master, commander, or officer, but shall have an allowance or deduction in respect thereof out of the monies payable by them on account of the ship to which such master or officers belong.

V. But forasmuch as it happens many times, that the above mentioned illegal trade is carried on and managed so artfully and covertly, that the said united company cannot come to the knowledge and proof of the same, and at most cannot ascertain the quantities, qualities, and values of the goods, merchandize, treasure, and effects so traded for, nor therefore obtain any satisfaction or compensation for the damages by them sustained, to their great loss and detriment, and to the great and apparent lessening of his Majesty's revenue: therefore it is provided and further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for his Majesty's attorney general for the time being, at the relation of the said company, or by his own authority, to exhibit a bill or bills of complaint in his Majesty's court of exchequer against any person or persons trading, dealing, trafficking, or adventuring, at any time from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, in, to, or from the East Indies, or places aforesaid, contrary to law, or against any person or persons concerned as agent, factor, or copartner with such illegal traders, for discovery of such their trading, dealing, trafficking, and adventuring, and for recovery of such duties and damages as are herein-after mentioned, waiving or disclaiming in every such bill all the penalties and forfeitures incurred by such person or persons for the matters in such bill contained; and that such person or persons shall answer the said bill or bills, and not plead or demur to the discovery thereby sought, and pay to his Majesty the customs and duties of the goods and merchandize arising, produced, or purchased by the said unlawful trade, traffick, or adventuring, and shall answer and pay to the said company for the same thirty pounds per centum, according to the value thereof in England; and if such offender or offenders pay the said duties and customs, or the amount of the same, into his Majesty's exchequer for the use of his Majesty, and damages to the said company, he or they shall not be prosecuted upon any other branch or article in this act, or upon any other law or statute whatsoever.

for the same offence; and if such bill or bills (if exhibited at the relation of the said company) be dismissed by the court where the same shall be exhibited, the said united company shall pay every such defendant and defendants his and their costs of suit; and in case there be a decree obtained against the defendant or defendants, such defendant or defendants shall pay costs to his Majesty and the relator respectively.

Costs to be paid by either side.

VI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the forfeitures and penalties herein before appointed and enacted, or which are appointed or enacted in and by one act made in the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William, intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions upon a fund for payment of annuities after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies; or in and by one other act made in the sixth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for better securing the duties of East India goods; or in and by one other act made in the fifth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for the better securing the lawful trade of his Majesty's subjects to and from the East Indies; and for the more effectual preventing all his Majesty's subjects trading thither under foreign commissions, shall, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, be sued for, recovered, and recoverable in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, by bill, plaint, or information, at the suit or prosecution of his Majesty's attorney general for the time being, or of the said united company, or of any officer or officers of the customs, such officer or officers of the customs first taking such consent and directions as is or are contained in the proviso for that purpose hereafter; and that one third part of all such forfeitures and penalties shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors; one other third part thereof to the use of the said united company; and the remaining third part thereof to the use of such officer or officers of the customs as shall inform, and so as aforesaid sue for the same; in which suits or prosecutions no essoin, wager of law, or protection shall be allowed, or any more than one imparlance.

Forfeitures appointed by this act, or by 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 44. 6 Ann. c. 3. and 5 Geo. 1. c. 21. to be recovered by bill, &c. one third to the King, one other to the company, and the remaining third to the officers of the customs that shall sue for the same.

VII. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby further enacted and declared, That before any suit or prosecution shall be commenced for the recovery of all or any the penalties or forfeitures aforesaid, by any such officer or officers of the customs, such officer or officers shall first repair and go to the court of directors of the said united company for the time being, and make known to them the offence committed, and his or their intentions to sue or prosecute for the same; and if the said court of directors shall elect to have the suit or prosecution brought or commenced by bill or bills of complaint, to be filed or exhibited in the court of Exchequer, with such waiver and disclaimer of the penalties and forfeitures as aforesaid, then, and in such case, such bill or bills of complaint shall be filed and exhibited, and prosecuted accordingly, in the name of the attorney general as aforesaid, and then and thereupon there shall be yielded and paid by the said company to such officer or officers one quarter part of the monies that shall be recovered upon such suit, for the benefit of the said company; and the said united company shall moreover bear the charges of the said suit or prosecution; but if the said court of directors shall elect to have the suit or prosecution commenced for the penalties or forfeitures by informations or actions of debt at law, then the said officer or officers shall accordingly sue and prosecute for the same at law; and the said information or actions shall be proceeded upon, and shall not be discontinued or determined, but by and with the consent of the said united company, or their court of directors.

Officers not to sue without acquainting the court of directors, who, if they chuse to sue in the attorney general's name, shall pay such officers one quarter part of the monies recovered, and bear the charges, otherwise the officers shall prosecute, and not discontinue, &c. without consent of the company.

VIII. Provided always, That this act, or any thing herein contained, shall not extend, or be construed, deemed, or taken to extend, to subject the governor and company of merchants of England trading into the Levant Seas or any member thereof, to answer such bill, or subject him or them to any other the penalties and forfeitures hereby enacted, for or in respect of his

Not to extend to the Levant company.

After 24 June, 1721, East India goods carried into Ireland, Jersey, &c. except such as are laden in Great Britain, shall be forfeited, together with the ship, &c.
Amended by 12 Geo. 2. c. 22.

How such forfeiture shall be disposed of.

Officers of the customs conniving at such importation, or delaying the prosecution, to forfeit 500 l. and be incapable of any office under the crown.

his or their trading into the Levant Seas; any thing herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

IX. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, no commodity of the growth, product, or manufacture of the East Indies, or other the places aforesaid, shall be imported or carried into the kingdom of Ireland, the islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, Sark, or Man, or into any land, island, plantation, colony, territory, or place, to his Majesty, or to the crown of Great Britain belonging, or which shall hereafter belong to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in Africa or America, but such only as shall be bona fide, and without fraud, laden and shipped in Great Britain in ships navigated according to the several and respective laws now in being, as to the several places to which the said goods shall be imported or carried, under the penalty of forfeiting all such goods, or the value thereof, together with the ship or vessel in which they shall be imported, with all her guns, tackle, furniture, ammunition, and apparel; and such ship and goods shall and may be seized, and the same, or the value thereof, shall and may be prosecuted in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in Dublin, or in any of his Majesty's courts in such land, island, colony, territory, or place where the offence shall be committed, or in the royal courts of Jersey and Guernsey respectively, by bill, plaint, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance; one moiety of which forfeiture shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them who shall seize or sue for the same; except such offence shall be committed in any of his Majesty's plantations in Africa or America, in which case one third part of the said forfeiture shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, one other third part to the governor of such land, island, colony, or place where the offence shall be committed, and the other third part to the informer or prosecutor; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding: and if any officer or officers of the customs in the said kingdom of Ireland, or in the lands, islands, colonies, plantations, territories, or places aforesaid, shall willingly or knowingly connive at the fraudulent importation of any such commodities as is before mentioned, contrary to the true meaning hereof; or if any such officer or officers shall take upon him or them to seize any of the said commodities, and shall by fraud or collusion desist or delay the prosecution thereof to condemnation; he or they so conniving, desisting, or delaying, shall forfeit and lose the sum of five hundred pounds, to be sued for and recovered in manner aforesaid; one moiety of which forfeiture to be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to him or them who will inform and sue for the same; and such officer or officers shall also for the future be incapable of holding any office or employment under his Majesty, his heirs and successors.

X. And whereas by an act passed in the fourth year of the reign of King William and Queen Mary, for granting to their Majesties certain additional impositions upon several goods and merchandizes, for the prosecuting the war against France, the several duties charged by that act upon amber beads, amber rough, coral beads, and polished coral, and upon cowries, are to be repaid to the merchants exporting the same, if exported within three years from the importation thereof, which act is now in force: and whereas by several other acts of parliament now in force, the time for exportation of some foreign goods by British merchants is limited to the space of twelve months, and of other foreign goods to the space of eighteen months, or thereabouts, from the times of the importation thereof: and whereas the time for exportation of some foreign goods, by aliens or merchant strangers, is limited to the space of nine months, and of others to the space of fifteen months, or thereabouts, from the times of importing the same: but forasmuch as it hath been found by experience, that the said respective times of nine months, twelve months, fifteen months, and eighteen months afore mentioned, are too short, and very inconvenient to traders; and forasmuch also as it will be for the benefit of the trade of this kingdom, if the time given for repaying or drawing back the duties upon the exportation of all goods and merchandizes of his Majesty's plantations, and all other foreign goods and merchandizes whatsoever, be enlarged; be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the respective times for exportation of all goods and merchandizes of his Majesty's plantations, and all other foreign goods and merchandizes as the same are now limited by any law or laws in being, shall, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, be extended and enlarged, so that in all cases where repayments, allowances, or drawbacks are made upon the exportation of any goods and merchandizes of his Majesty's plantations, and all other foreign goods and merchandizes imported, and afterwards exported, by virtue of any law now in force, all merchants and traders, bodies politick and corporations, shall from thenceforth have and be allowed three years time, from the importation of such goods, to export the same, accounting such importation from the master's report of the ship; and all and every such merchant and merchants, trader and traders, bodies politick and corporations, shall have the like repayments, allowances and drawbacks by and for such exportation, as if the same had been exported within the respective times before mentioned, or any other times limited by any law now in being for that purpose, such law, or any other law, rule, custom, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding: Provided nevertheless, that certificates and oaths be made, and all other requisites performed according to the laws now in being relating to the importation and exportation of such goods.

After 24 June, 1721, three years allowed for the exportation of foreign goods, after the importation thereof.

But certificates and oaths shall be made according to the laws now in being.

XI. And whereas by the several acts which granted the duties of fifteen per centum upon muslins and white calicoes imported, (which acts are now in force) the importers before the landing thereof, are to give security by bond for payment of the said duties, as soon as the same shall be sold, and for exposing the said goods to sale openly and fairly by way of auction or inch of candle, within the city of London, within the time of twelve months after the importation thereof; and in case the said goods shall, within the time limited, be fairly sold, as aforesaid, and in case the importers shall pay down the said duties in ready money, within twenty days after such sale, they are to have an allowance after the rate of five pounds for every one hundred pounds of duties so paid: and whereas by several acts of parliament now in force for granting, continuing, and better securing the duties payable ad valorem upon unrated East India goods, and for ascertaining the values according to which such duties shall be paid, the importer or importers thereof are, in like manner, to give security by bond for payment of the said duties according to the real values of the said goods, to be ascertained according to the respective acts of parliament in that behalf made, (except as soon as the said goods shall be sold, and also for exposing the said goods to sale openly and fairly by way of auction, or by inch of candle, within the city of London, within the time of twelve months after the importation thereof; and forasmuch as the restraining the said muslins, white calicoes, and unrated East India goods to be sold within twelve months from the importation thereof, may some times be detrimental to the revenue; and that the enlarging the said time of sale will be for the benefit of the trade of this kingdom: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for such of the said goods as are at present imported and unsold, or shall, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, be imported, the importer or importers thereof may, at any time within the space of three years from the importation of such respective goods, expose the same to sale, and after such sale there shall be allowed the same discounts on payments of the respective duties on such goods, as if the same had been exposed to sale within the time of twelve months, as before mentioned, or any other time heretofore limited by law; and from and after

East India company may ship out stores of war duty free; such duties not exceeding 300l. in one year.

XII. And whereas by an act passed in the third year of her late majesty Queen Anne, for continuing duties upon low wines, and upon coffee, tea, chocolate, spices, and pictures, and upon hawkers, pedlars, and petty chapmen, and upon muslins, and for granting new duties upon several of the said commodities, and also upon callico, China ware, and drugs; it is enacted, That any person or persons may import into this kingdom tea, subject to the several duties payable for the same, from any parts beyond the seas, in British ships, navigated as therein mentioned, so as notice be first given to the commissioners of her Majesty's customs of the quantity and quality of the said tea so intended to be imported, and the place in which they intend to import the same, and taking a licence under the hands of the said commissioners for the time being, or any three of them, for the landing and importing thereof, as aforesaid, which act hath been since continued, and is now in force: and whereas the method of granting those licences, by an act passed in the last session of parliament, intituled, An act for preventing frauds and abuses in the publick revenues of excise, customs, stamp duties, post office, and house money, is altered and explained: and whereas under the colour of such licences great frauds are committed, to the prejudice of his Majesty's revenue; and forasmuch as it hath been found by experience, that the allowing the importation of tea, by virtue of such licences or certificates from Ostend, and other places, not being the place of its growth, tends to promote the illegal trade carried on by his Majesty's subjects to the East Indies under foreign commissions, and in conjunction with foreigners, and is very prejudicial to the trade and navigation of this kingdom; for the preventing thereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, so much of the said act of the third year of her said late Majesty, and of the several acts continuing the same, and so much of the said act of his present Majesty which past the last sessions of parliament, and every other act which relates to or allows of the importing tea by licence or certificate, as aforesaid, shall be, and the same are hereby repealed, annulled, and made void, to all intents and purposes whatsoever.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said united company shall for the future be allowed to ship out stores, provisions, utensils of war, and necessaries for maintaining their garrisons and settlements, free of all duties, so as such duties, if they had been to be paid, would not have exceeded, or do not exceed in any one year the sum of three hundred pounds.

STAT. I. CAP. XXVII.

An act for raising a sum not exceeding five hundred thousand pounds, by charging annuities at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum upon the civil list revenues till redeemed by the crown; and for enabling his Majesty, his heirs or successors, (by causing such a deduction to be made as therein is mentioned) to make good to the civil list the payments which shall have been made upon the said annuities; and for borrowing money upon certain lottery tickets; and for discharging the corporations for assurances of part of the money which they were obliged to pay to his Majesty; and for making good a deficiency to the East India company.

SECT. XIX. AND to the end his Majesty, his heirs and successors, may be enabled to reimburse himself or themselves such sum and sums of money as in pursuance of this act shall have been issued or furnished out of his Majesty's civil list revenues, during his life, (which God long preserve) or out of the said hereditary revenues after his Majesty's demise, for or towards the payment of the said annuities, or for or towards the redemption of the same; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by any warrant under the great seal of Great Britain, privy seal, or royal sign manual, to cause a deduction to be made, not exceeding six pence in the pound, out of all monies which, from and after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, shall be paid for or upon all pensions and annuities charged upon any of the said hereditary or temporary duties, and for and upon all salaries, fees, and wages, payable for or in respect of offices of profit, granted by or derived from the crown, and for and upon all other payments from the crown whatsoever, or for or upon any arrearages of them, or any of them, incurred or to be incurred; the pay of commission and non-commission officers and private men, serving in the navy or army, only and always excepted; the same deductions to be made for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for the benefit of his or their civil government, so long as the said annuities shall, by virtue of this act, be payable out of the revenues charged therewith, as aforesaid, and until the same annuities shall be redeemed pursuant to this act; any former law, statute, or provision whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

His Majesty may cause a deduction of 6d. in the pound out of all salaries, &c. from 1 Aug. 1721: This deduction how appropriated, 12 Geo. 1. c. 2. s. 24.

CAP. IV.

An act for taking off the duty upon all salt used in the curing of red herrings, and laying a proportionable duty upon all red herrings consumed at home only; and for ascertaining the customs and excise payable for the sugar houses in Scotland; and for making an allowance for salt lost in any harbour or river of this realm; and for the better securing the duties on salt delivered in Scotland.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made in the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for recovering the credit of the British fishery in foreign parts; and for better securing the duties on salt, it is enacted, That all curers of fish shall be allowed to import foreign salt, or take from any salt works or salt pits any such quantity of British salt, where the same is allowed by law, for curing of fish for exportation, as they shall think proper, for curing fish for foreign markets, without paying any duty to his Majesty for the same, except the customs payable upon the importation thereof; in consequence whereof all red herrings spent within this realm are or should be cured with salt that has paid the duties; but in regard the same are cured promiscuously, it is difficult to distinguish them from such as are intended to be exported, whereby his Majesty may be defrauded in his revenue without a proper remedy for preventing the same: be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That at the beginning of every fishing season for herrings, the proprietor or proprietors of the salt delivered duty free for the curing of herrings for exportation, pursuant to the said act, or his or their agent or agents, shall, instead of the oath required by the said act, make oath in writing before the officer for the duty on salt, at the office nearest to the place where the said salt is lodged, (who is hereby empowered to administer the same) declaring the quantity of the foreign or British salt respectively lodged for curing of fish, and that all the said salt is intended for the curing of fish for exportation only, and shall not by his or their order, consent or connivance, directly or indirectly, be sold, given away, or any way delivered, but for the purpose aforesaid, except so much thereof as shall be used for curing such red herrings, as shall be entered with the officer of the place for home consumption, and charged with the duties by this act changeable thereupon.

At every fishing season for herrings, proprietors, &c. instead of the oath required by 5 Geo. 1. c. 18. to make oath of the quantity of salt intended for curing fish for exportation; except salt used for curing red herrings for home consumption.

Curer of red herrings, after 25 March, 1711, before he remove them (except for exportation) to make entry, and pay 1 s. 8 d. for every thousand.

Casks to be marked.

Upon entry, &c. permit to be given gratis.

Penalty on removal before entry, &c.

These duties reviewed for three years, by 5 Geo. 2. c. 6.

Moiety to the King; moiety to the officer informing.

Officer to seize red herrings removed before entry, &c.

Proprietor of salt, &c. to express the

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every maker or curer of red herrings, from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, before he remove any red herrings (except for exportation) from the office or place where the same shall be cured, shall from time to time make entry thereof at the next salt office, and shall pay to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, a duty of one shilling and eight pence for every thousand of red herrings so to be removed, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity: and that in case such red herrings shall be packed or put up in casks, then the number of herrings in each cask shall be marked on the head thereof; and upon entry and payment of the duty, and marking each cask as aforesaid, a permit shall be given gratis by the salt officer, expressing the number of red herrings for which the duties shall be paid as aforesaid, and the marks and numbers of such casks, and for what place the same are intended, and whether to be sent by land or water carriage, on pain of forfeiting all the red herrings that shall be removed or carried away before entry be made, and the duty paid, and without the casks being marked, and permit obtained as aforesaid, and of the cask or vessel in which such herrings shall be found, and also the sum of forty shillings for every thousand of red herrings so removed, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, to be recovered from the person or persons who shall so remove or carry away the same; one moiety thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the officer or officers who shall seize, sue, or inform for the same, to be sued for, recovered, and levied in such manner and form, and with such power of mitigation, as any fine, penalty, or forfeiture may be sued for, recovered, levied, and mitigated by any law of excise, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster: and all and every officer and officers of his Majesty's customs, excise, or duties upon salt, are hereby authorized and empowered to seize all such red herrings so removed or carried before entry and payment of duty, and all other things performed as aforesaid, and the said cask or vessels wherein they shall be found.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the proprietor or proprietors of the salt delivered duty free for curing red herrings for exportation, his or their agent or agents, shall, in the account which after the end of every fishing season they are to deliver in writing into the salt office, containing the quantity of fish exported or entered, and shipped to be exported, on which the salt taken away after its delivery into the sole custody of the said proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents, has been used or consumed, as by the former law is directed, (and under the penalties thereby prescribed) express also the quantity of red herrings entered for home consumption, on which such salt has been used or consumed.

quantity of red herrings entered for home consumption.

IV. And whereas by the aforesaid act in the fifth year of his Majesty's reign, the proprietor or proprietors of salt delivered duty free for the curing of fish for exportation are required at the end of every fishing season to deliver an account in writing into the salt office, containing the quantity of fish exported or entered, and shipped to be exported, on which the salt taken away after its delivery into the sole custody of the said proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents, has been used or consumed, together with a certificate or certificates by the proper officers of the several ports where the said fish were shipped for exportation, verifying the said account: and whereas it may happen, that such fish may never be exported, for want of an opportunity to ship them while they are good and merchantable, so that the proprietors of the salt can have no such certificate as is by the said act required: be it therefore enacted, That in such case the owner of the fish may cause them to be destroyed in the presence of an officer of the salt duties; and the officer's certificate that such fish were destroyed in his presence, shall be admitted to verify the account of the proprietor of the salt used in curing them, instead of the officer's certificate that they were shipped for exportation, required by the said act.

5 Geo. 1. c. 18. Owner of fish may cause them to be destroyed in presence of an officer, whose certificate shall be admitted instead of certificate of exportation required by the act 5 Geo. 1. c. 18.

V. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the duties of excise on salt, (which now amount to three shillings and four pence per bushel on home made salt, and six shillings and eight pence per bushel on foreign salt) or any of them, shall cease, determine, or be redeemed by parliament, then the rate or duty of one shilling and eight pence per thousand hereby imposed upon red herrings, shall cease or be lessened in proportion to the duties on salt that shall so cease, determine, or be redeemed; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Duty of 1 s. 8 d. per thousand upon red herrings shall cease, or be lessened in proportion to duties on salt.

VI. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the first year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for raising nine hundred and ten thousand pounds for publick services by sale of annuities after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, redeemable by parliament; and to authorize a treaty concerning private rights, claimed by the proprietors of the sugar-houses in Scotland, it was (inter alia) enacted, That the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the lord high treasurer for the time being, should be, and they were thereby impowered to treat with the proprietors of the sugar-houses in Scotland for such sum or sums of money as might be a reasonable satisfaction for such private rights of exemption from custom and excise, to which the said proprietors were entitled: And whereas the said proprietors of the four sugar-houses in Scotland, commonly called The Easter, Wester, and South sugar-houses of Glasgow, and the sugar-houses of Leith, in pursuance of the said act of parliament, and in consideration of their being released and discharged of and from all claim and demand which the crown might have upon them for custom or excise, pretended to be due by them, have proposed to surrender and disclaim all right, title, and privilege which they either had or pretended to have to any exemption from custom or excise; which proposition appearing to be just and reasonable, and tending to settle the trade upon the same foot in Scotland as it is in England: therefore, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty-fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, the said proprietors shall be subject and liable to pay for their sugars and other commodities, the same and such like duties of custom and excise as any other of his Majesty's subjects are liable to pay by the acts of parliament now in force; any right or pretended right in the said proprietors to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all conditional bonds or other securities whatsoever, which, on or before the said five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, have been entered into by the said proprietors, or either of them, for payment or security of any duties of custom or excise, pretended to be due or payable by the said proprietors, or either of them, as proprietors of the said sugar-houses, for which they claimed exemptions, and for which such bonds or securities were given as aforesaid, be and the same are hereby declared to be void, and of no force or effect; and the proper officer in whose power or custody such bond or security is or shall be, is hereby authorized and required to deliver up the same to be cancelled.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said proprietors, their executors and administrators, and every of them, shall be and are hereby discharged, released, and indemnified from the payment of any duty of custom and excise due or pretended to be due from them, as proprietors of the said sugar-houses, and for which they claimed such exemption as aforesaid, before the said five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two.

IX. And whereas by an act passed in the fifth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for recovering the credit of the British fishery in foreign parts; and for the better securing the duties on salt, directions are given, that, at the end of every fishing season, the officers for the duty on salt shall take a particular account of the quantity of foreign and British salt respectively remaining in hand, which remaining salt shall be immediately locked up in the joint custody of the said officer and proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents; and the proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents, of the said salt, using the said salt as aforesaid, shall, as soon as possible, after the end of every fishing season, deliver an account in writing into the office for the duty on salt, containing the quantity of fish exported, or entered and shipped to be exported, on which the salt taken away after its delivery into the sole custody of the said proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents, has been used and consumed, together with a certificate or certificates by the proper officer of the several ports where the said fish were shipped for exportation, which said account delivered into the said office as aforesaid, shall be affirmed by the oath of the said proprietor or proprietors, using the said salt as aforesaid, or his or their agent or agents, who have used the same; and such proprietor or proprietors, or other persons concerned, who shall for the space of six months after the end of every fishing season, neglect or refuse to deliver such account attested upon oath as aforesaid, such proprietor or proprietors, and such other person or persons as aforesaid, shall, for every such offence, forfeit forty pounds: and whereas some doubts have arisen touching the periods of the several fishing seasons, and that for the want of ascertaining the time when the accounts aforesaid were to be delivered to the proper officers, the merchants exporters of fish have in many places neglected to account for the salt received by them duty free, under pretence that the fishing seasons have no end: for remedy whereof, and for the better securing of his Majesty's revenues, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such quantities of foreign or British salt, as have been delivered duty free, into the sole custody of any person whatsoever, for the curing of fish for foreign markets, since the four and twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and before the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, which shall not be accounted for as the said act directs, on or before the five and twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, shall be accounted for as the said act directs, on or before the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, under the penalty of ten shillings per bushel, to be recovered the proprietor or proprietors, person or persons to whom, or for whose use or account the said salt was delivered, for every bushel so delivered to, or received by them duty free, for the curing of fish for foreign markets.

X. And for the more regular accounting for such salt as shall be delivered duty free, for the curing of fish for foreign markets, after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such quantities of foreign or British salt as shall be so delivered after the said five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, shall be accounted for yearly, as the aforesaid act directs, within three months after the expiration of each year; and every person or persons, who shall receive into his or their sole custody any quantity of foreign or British salt duty free, for curing of fish for foreign markets, that shall neglect or refuse to weigh over to the proper officer what of that salt shall remain in his or their hands, or shall neglect or refuse to deliver to the proper officers yearly, within three months after the expiration of each respective year, such accounts of the salt received as aforesaid; and of the fish cured therewith, and exported as the act directs, together with a certificate or certificates by the proper officers of the several ports where the said fish was shipped for exportation, verifying the said account, (which certificates the said officers are hereby required to give gratis, and without delay) shall, for every such offence, forfeit and lose ten shillings per bushel, to be recovered of the proprietor or proprietors, person or persons to whom, or for whose use or account the said salt was delivered, for every bushel so delivered to, or received by them; one moiety of all which penalties aforesaid to be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the officer or officers who shall sue or inform for the same, to be sued for, recovered, and levied, in such manner and form, and with such power of mitigation as any fine, penalty, or forfeiture may be sued for, recovered, levied, and mitigated by any law of excise; or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed.

Salt delivered duty-free, to be accounted for yearly after 25 March, 1722, &c.

Penalty on neglect of delivery of accounts of salt received, &c. of fish cured, and exported.

XI. And whereas by storms and violent rages of the tides from sea, into several ports and harbours of this realm of England, divers ships, barges, and lighter-boats laden with salt, for which the duty and excise charged thereon were duly paid, have been stranded, overset, sunk, and cast away, within the bounds and limits of the same ports and harbours, before the same salt, or any part thereof, hath been landed or delivered on shore, whereby the said salt hath perished and been wholly lost, and many of his Majesty's good subjects, owners of such salt, have sustained great and heavy damages thereby, for which no relief or redress respect to the said duty and excise have hitherto been provided: and whereas an act of parliament made in the second year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for the better securing and regulating the duties upon salt, it is, among other things, provided and enacted, That in cases where any salt, for which the said duty hath been paid, shall by wind or stormy weather be lost at sea, any merchants or other persons owners of such salt, being subjects of this realm, shall upon due proof made thereof before such justices at such times and in such manner, and with such restrictions as the said act are for forth, receive a certificate of such proof as is therein contained, upon producing thereof to any the officers appointed to collect the duties upon salt, the said officer or officers shall let such persons buy the like quantity of salt as is expressed in such certificate to be lost, without paying any duty or tax for the same, as in and by the said act is expressed: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every such merchants, and persons as aforesaid, who shall be owners of any salt, which after due payment of the said duty shall perish or be lost in any of the ports or harbours, or elsewhere of this realm, by storms or rages of the tides from sea, or otherwise as aforesaid, shall, upon such proofs to be made thereof, in all points, and in manner manher as by the said recited act is directed, be intituled to such certificate, and thereupon to such right and privilege in all respects, as any owners of the like salt lost at sea in the like case are entitled to by virtue of the said act; any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

C A P. XII.

An act giving further encouragement for the importation of naval stores, and for other purposes therein mentioned.

WHEREAS in the third and fourth years of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, a good law was made for encouraging the importation of naval stores from her Majesty's plantations in America, by an act which commenced the first day of January, one thousand seven hundred and five, and continued from thence forward for the space of nine years; and by an act made in the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, the aforesaid act is continued from the time of the expiration of the same, for the further term of eleven years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament; and by the act last mentioned encouragement is given for the importation of naval stores from that part of Great Britain called Scotland to that part of Great Britain called England, during the remainder of the time limited for granting premiums to the importers of naval stores from America by the said acts: and whereas, in consequence of the said encouragement, it is found by experience that great quantities of good and merchantable pitch and tar (part of the naval stores mentioned in the said acts) have been imported into this kingdom from the said plantations in America, which pitch and tar have been found useful for the service of his Majesty's navy, and it is necessary to give further encouragement therein: and whereas it is probable that the owners of large tracts of land in the said plantations, and in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, lying near the sea, and upon navigable rivers, would be induced to sow the same with hemp, if further encouragement were given for that purpose: may it therefore please your most excellent Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the premium or reward of five pounds, given by the said acts for every tun of hemp water-rotted, bright and clean, each tun containing twenty gross hundreds and six pounds, shall be continued from the expiration of the said act of the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, for and during the term of sixteen years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and shall be paid and payable in the same manner, and under the same rules, methods, and restrictions as are prescribed in and by the said former acts, or either of them touching the same; and all such hemp, being lawfully imported into this kingdom after the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, shall be free and clear of and from all duties, customs, and impositions whatsoever, payable to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, any law, custom, or other matter or thing to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Premium for tun of hemp, &c. continued from expiration of the act 12 Ann. for 16 years, &c.

Hemp imported after 24 June, 1722, duty-free.

II. And whereas great quantities of wood and timber, and of the goods commonly called lumber, herein-after particularly enumerated, (that is to say, deals of several sorts, timber balks of several sizes, barrel boards, clap boards, pipe boards; or pipe bolt, white boards for shoemakers, boom and cant for boat staves, capravens, clap bolt, chomy wood, headings for pipes, and for be-beads and barrels, hoops for coopers, oars, pipe and hoghead staves, barrel staves, fork staves, trunnels, speckled wood, sweet wood, small spars, oak, plank, and waincot, or some of them, have usually been imported into this kingdom from foreign countries at excessive rates or prices, especially in time of war, and foreigners have thereby found opportunities to export the coined monies of this realm; and it is well known that the said commodities, being of the growth and product of his Majesty's plantations in America, may be furnished from thence, if due encouragement was given in that behalf: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons who, within the term of one and twenty years, to be reckoned from the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, shall import or cause to be imported into Great Britain, directly from any of his Majesty's British plantations or colonies in America, in any ship or vessel, ships or vessels, which may lawfully trade to or from his Majesty's said plantations or colonies, and which shall be navigated according to law, any sort of wood, plank, or timber whatsoever, wrought or unwrought, or any of the goods called lumber, before in this act enumerated, such wood, plank, timber, and lumber, being of the growth and product of the said plantations or colonies, or some of them, (except masts, yards, and bowsprights, touching which duties and premiums are ascertained by former acts in that behalf) shall and may import the same free from all customs and impositions whatsoever granted to his Majesty, his heirs or successors.

Wood, lumber, &c. (except masts, &c.) imported from America, for 21 years, after 24 June, 1722, duty-free.

Lignum Vita may be imported duty-free by 1 Geo. 2. stat. 2. c. 17. s. 5.

III. And to the end his Majesty's royal navy may, from time to time, have the benefit of so much of such hemp as shall be requisite for the service thereof; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon the importation of any hemp, for which any bounty or premium is by this or any former act given, the pre-emption or refusal of such hemp shall be offered and tendered to the commissioners of his Majesty's navy, or some of their agents for the time being, upon landing the same; and if within the space of twenty days after such tender the said commissioners shall not contract or bargain for the same, it shall be lawful for the importer or importers, owner or owners of such hemp, otherwise to dispose thereof, as by law they may, for his, her, or their best profit and advantage.

Pre-emption of hemp imported, to be tendered to commissioners, &c. of the navy. Such hemp not contracted for by them within 20 days, to be otherwise disposed of.

An act for making the river Eden navigable to Bank End, in the county of Cumberland.

SECT. XIV. AND whereas when the said river Eden is deepened, cleansed, and cleared, and made more navigable, a doubt may arise, whether coals, culm, or eynders, carried from Ellen Foot to Bank End in the county of Cumberland, or from any creek or place to any other creek or place between Ellen Foot and Bank End in the county aforesaid, are liable to any duty or duties as if they were coals waterborn or carried to sea; it is hereby provided, enacted, and declared, That all coals carried from Ellen Foot to Bank End in the said county, or from any creek or place to any other creek or place between Ellen Foot and Bank End aforesaid, are not, or shall not in respect of such carriage be liable to any duty or duties, or shall not be taken, construed, or deemed liable to any duty, otherwise than by this present act imposed; any thing in this or any other act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Coals carried from Ellen Foot to Bank End to pay no other duty than imposed by this act.

8 G

XV. Provided

Bond to be given for the landing the said coals.

1s. to be paid for each bond, and 4d. for the return and sufferance.

Officers not to take fees for loading, &c. of limestone.

XV. Provided always, That the owner or master of every boat or vessel carrying such coals, do first enter into bond with sufficient sureties, at least once a year, in a penalty not exceeding three hundred pounds, with a general condition that all such coals as he or they shall take or put on board his or their boat or vessel, by virtue of a sufferance from the proper officer, shall be landed in some place in the bay or firth of the river Eden in the county of Cumberland, lying to the northward of Ellen Foot; and he or they shall bring, or cause to be brought, a return signed by the proper officer, that such coals were there duly landed, the persons respectively concerned paying for each bond the sum of one shilling, and no more, besides the stamp duties, and to the officers granting the sufferance and return, for each boat or vessel, the sum of four pence, to be distributed in such manner as the commissioners of the customs now, and for the time being, shall think proper.

XVI. And it is hereby further provided and declared, That no master or masters, or owner of boat or boats, vessel or vessels, shall be liable or obliged to have or take any certificate, sufferance, or other testimonial, from the officers of his Majesty's customs, at or for the removing, loading, shipping, and conveying any lime or limestone from any creek or places whatsoever, to any other creek or place between Ellen Foot and Bank End, or to pay any fee or fees to any officer or officers whatsoever; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. XV.

An act for encouragement of the silk manufactures of this kingdom; and for taking off several duties on merchandizes exported; and for reducing the duties upon beaver-skins, pepper, mace, cloves, and nutmegs imported; and for the importation of all furs of the product of the British plantations, into this kingdom only; and that the two corporations of assurance, on any suits brought on their policies, shall be liable only to single damages and costs of suit.

MAY it please your most excellent Majesty, Whereas the wealth and prosperity of this kingdom doth very much depend upon the improvement of its manufactures, and the profitable trade carried on by the exportation of the same, which trade ought, by all proper means, to be encouraged, for the more comfortable support and maintenance of great numbers of your Majesty's subjects employed in the making or working of such goods, and for the enlargement of the commerce of Great Britain; and whereas the manufacture of silks, stuffs, and of stuffs mixed with silk, which is one of the most considerable branches of the manufactures of this kingdom, has of late years been greatly improved in this kingdom, and there is reason to believe that the exportation of them into foreign parts would considerably increase, were it not obstructed and hindered by reason of the high duties payable upon the importation of raw and thrown silk, without any allowance being made upon the said silks when wrought up and exported; and in regard the said raw and thrown silk, when exported unmanufactured, do draw but a great part of the duties paid inwards; and it seems just and reasonable that the said silks, when made up, should also enjoy the same benefit and allowance upon the exportation of them; and for that there is a waste of the raw and thrown silk used in the manufacture: therefore, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, humbly pray your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the several and respective allowances or sums of money hereafter in this act expressed, shall be paid to any person or persons, who at any time or times, within or during the term of three years, to be reckoned from the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, or at any time or times before the end of the then next session of parliament, shall really and truly export out of this kingdom by way of merchandize, any of the goods or commodities of the manufacture of Great Britain, herein-after particularly specified, and so in proportion for any greater quantity; that is to say, and to the end of the next session, and farther continued by 2 Geo. 2. c. 28. 10 Sept. 1734. Explained by 1 Geo. 2. stat. 2. c. 17. sect. 10. Farther continued by 15 Geo. 2. c. 35. and by 20 Geo. 2.

II. And for the better preventing frauds in the entering any of the said goods under a wrong denomination, to the prejudice of the revenue, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any searcher, or other proper officer of the customs, after the entry of any of the said goods, and before or after the shipping thereof, to open and strictly examine any bale, truss, chest, or other package, as now by law they may do, to see if the goods are right entered; and if on such examination the same shall be found to be right entered, the officer shall at his own charge cause the same to be repacked, to the satisfaction of the exporter, which charge shall be allowed to the said officer by the commissioners of the customs, if they think it reasonable; but in case the said officer shall find the said goods, or any part thereof, to have been entered under a wrong denomination, whereby his Majesty would have been defrauded in the allowance to be paid on the exportation of such goods, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, all such goods so wrong entered shall and may be seized, and the same, as likewise the value thereof, shall be forfeited and lost, and shall and may be prosecuted and divided as herein-after mentioned.

III. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said respective allowances shall not be demanded or made for such of the said manufactures mixed with gold or silver, when they are only so mixed at the edges and the ends of the pieces, or for such of the said manufactures mixed with silk, when they are only so mixed at the edges or ends of the piece; and if any dispute shall arise concerning any of the said manufactures, that is to say, whether the same were made in Great Britain, or touching the quality of the goods, the Onus Probandi shall lie on the exporter, claimer, or owner thereof, and not on the officer.

IV. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any of the said silk, stuffs, or other manufactures aforesaid, shipped to be exported, for which allowance is hereby made, shall be reloaded or unshipped in any port or place in Great Britain, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, without the licence of one or more of the principal officers of such port or place first had and obtained, or unless it be in case of distress to save the said goods from perishing, which shall be forthwith made known to one of the said officers, the goods (over and above the penalty of the bond to be levied and recovered to his Majesty's use as aforesaid) and treble the value of such goods shall be forfeited and lost, and shall and may be prosecuted and divided in the manner herein-after mentioned.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said allowances shall and may be paid by the respective customer or collector, or by any money in his hands arising from customs or other duties upon goods imported from parts beyond the seas, and the money so paid shall be accepted of in his or their account as so much paid to his Majesty, and he and they are, and shall be discharged thereof accordingly.

VI. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any of the customs or other duties now payable on the importation of foreign thrown or raw silk, shall, during the continuance of the act, be redeemed; or otherwise cease to be payable, so much of the allowance or allowances to be made on the exportation of the silk, stuffs, or other manufactures before mentioned; shall be abated as shall bear a proportion to the customs or duties so redeemed, or that shall cease to be payable on the importation of thrown or raw silk; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

VII. And, for the further encouragement of the British manufactures, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, the several and respective subsidies and other duties whatsoever, payable to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, by any law now in force, upon the exportation of any goods and merchandizes of the product or manufactures of Great Britain, shall cease, determine, and be no longer due or payable for so much of the said goods or merchandizes as shall from thenceforth be exported, except such goods and merchandizes touching which a special provision is herein-after made.

VIII. And it is hereby provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act, or any thing herein contained shall not extend, or be construed to extend, to determine, alter, or lessen the several or respective subsidies of poundage or other duties, payable upon the exportation of allom, lead, lead ore, tin, leather tanned, copperas, coals, wool cards, white woollen cloths, Lapis Calaminaris, skins of all sorts, glew, coney hair or wool, hares wool, hair of all sorts, horses, and litharge of lead; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Duties on al-
lom, lead, &c.
exported, to continue.

IX. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to or for any person or persons, after the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, to export out of any port of this kingdom, in which there is a customer or collector, all such goods and merchandizes of the produce or manufacture of Great Britain, as may now be lawfully exported, and that without paying any subsidy, or other duty whatsoever, (other than for the goods or merchandizes, touching which an exception or special provision is before made in this act), so as a due entry be first made of the said goods or merchandizes in such custom-house respectively, where the same shall be exported, in the same manner and form, expressing the quantities and qualities of the respective goods, as was used and practised before the making of this act, and so as the same be shipped by the proper officer for that purpose, on failure whereof the said goods to be liable to the payment of the duties, as if this act had never been made; any law, statute, provision, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

On entry, &c. all goods of British produce, lawfully exported, to be custom-free.

X. And for the further encouragement of the manufactures of this kingdom, by the promoting the importation of drugs, and other goods used for dying; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, it shall and may be lawful to import into this kingdom all sorts of drugs and other goods, herein-after particularly enumerated, which are used for dying; that is to say, Agarick, Annotto, Antimonium Crudum, Aqua-fortis, Argoil, Arsenick, Bayberries, Brazil Wood, Braziletto Wood, Cochineal, Cream of Tartar, Fustick, Galls, Gum Arabick, or Gum Seneca, Indico of all sorts, Isinglass, Litmus, Logwood, Madder of all sorts, Madder Roots, Nicaragua Wood, Orchal, Orchelia, Pomegranate Peels, Red Wood, Saflower, Sal-armoniack, Sal-gem, Sappan Wood, Red Saunders, Shoetmack, Sticklack, Turnsole, Valonia and Verdegrease, without paying any subsidy, custom, imposition, or other duty whatsoever for the same, (Salt-petre always excepted) so as a due entry be first made thereof in the custom-house belonging to the port into which such drugs or other dying goods shall be imported, in the same manner and form, expressing the quantities and qualities of the respective goods as was used and practised before the making of this act, and so as the same be landed in the presence of the proper officer appointed for that purpose, and so as such importation be according to the rules prescribed and enjoined by an act of parliament passed in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouragement and increasing of shipping and navigation; and on failure of the said conditions or directions herein last mentioned, such drugs or dying goods shall be liable to the payment of the respective duties, as if this act had never been made; any law, statute, provision, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XII. And to the end the encouragement given to the manufactures of this kingdom, in allowing the before mentioned foreign drugs, or other goods used in dying, to be imported duty-free, according to the true meaning of this act, may in no wise tend to the benefit of manufactures made in foreign parts, as it may do, should such drugs, or other goods used in dying, be again carried out of this kingdom, without paying any duty for the same, whereby they may be sold in foreign markets so much cheaper: we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do give and grant to your Majesty, and do humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, for and upon all foreign goods, commodities, or materials used in dying, which shall be imported into this kingdom free of duty by virtue of this present act, and which, from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty-two, shall be again exported thereout, there shall be paid and answered to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, a subsidy of poundage upon the value of twenty shillings, according to the several rates and values hereafter mentioned, the sum of sixpence, and so after that rate for greater or lesser quantities; that is to say,

Foreign
goods, &c.
used in dying, imported duty-free, and after 25
March, 1722,
exported, to pay 6d. upon every 20s.

Which subsidy of sixpence upon the said goods, commodities, or materials used in dying, and exported according to the several and respective rates and values thereof, set down in this act, as aforesaid, shall have such or the like respective continuances, and shall and may, from time to time, be raised, received, levied, and recovered, by such ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such allowances for goods lost or taken sea, and in such manner and form, as the subsidy of poundage on goods merchandizes exported, may be raised, received, levied, or recovered, by law of the customs now in force.

XII. And it is hereby enacted, That the produce of the said subsidy by this act granted for and upon the said dying goods and commodities exported (the necessary charges of management excepted) are and shall be appropriated and applied to and for the same respective uses, and in such proportions, manner, and form, and subject to such respective powers of redemption, as the subsidy of poundage on other goods and commodities exported, not herein before exempted from the payment thereof, is by any laws now in force appropriated and applicable; and that all the powers, directions, penalties, and forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, contained in any act of parliament now in force for appropriating and applying the said subsidy on goods exported, not herein before exempted, shall be practised and put in execution for appropriating and applying the said subsidy hereby granted accordingly, as fully and effectually, as if the same were again enacted and re-enacted in the body of this present act; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

XIII. And whereas beaver-skins imported are valued in the book of rates at six shillings and eight pence per skin, according to which value the duties now payable on every beaver-skin imported, do amount as follows; that is to say, For the subsidy, four pence; for the further subsidy four pence; for the one third subsidy, one penny, and one third part of a penny; for the two third subsidy, two pence, Subsidy of 6d. on goods, &c. used for dying, to be recovered as subsidy of poundage on goods exported.

The powers, &c. in former acts, to be put in execution for applying the subsidy granted hereby.

Duties upon beaver-skins, how to be computed and paid.

pence, and two third parts of a penny: and for the additional impost, four pence; amounting in the whole to sixteen pence per skin, as by several acts of parliament now in force doth appear: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, the duties upon beaver-skins from thenceforth to be imported, shall be computed and paid, as if they had been valued in the said book of rates at two shillings and sixpence per skin, according to which value there shall be paid for every beaver-skin so imported sixpence, and no more, which shall be applied to the said several subsidies and additional impost, in such proportions as sixteen pence bears to six pence; any former act or acts of parliament to the contrary notwithstanding.

Drawbacks
25 March,
1722.

XIV. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted, That, from and after the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, upon the exportation of any of the said beaver-skins within the time allowed by law, for which the duties chargeable by this act shall have been first paid or secured, there shall be allowed a drawback of a moiety of the said respective sum so paid or secured, and no more, which drawback shall be made or allowed, according to such rules and methods as drawbacks are allowed by any law now in force relating to the customs.

Duty on pepper for home consumption to be reduced to 4d. per lb weight.

XV. And whereas pepper imported directly from the place of its growth, in English built shipping, is valued in the book of rates at one shilling and eight pence per pound weight, according to which value it now pays, or is liable to pay, several subsidies, after the rate of twelve pence in the pound; and there is also charged thereupon an impost of three pence, and a new duty of eighteen pence per pound weight, which subsidies, and other duties, amount in the whole to one shilling and eleven pence halfpenny per pound weight, (over and above one halfpenny per pound weight, chargeable for the half subsidy upon the importation thereof), and the said duties amounting to one shilling and eleven pence halfpenny per pound weight, are or ought to be applied in manner following; that is to say, For half the said old subsidy, one halfpenny; for the said further subsidy, one penny; for the one third subsidy, one third part of a penny; for the two third subsidies, two third parts of a penny; for the old impost, three pence; and for the new duty, one shilling and sixpence, as by several acts of parliament now in force doth appear; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, the said duties amounting to one shilling and eleven pence halfpenny per pound weight upon such pepper, as aforesaid which thenceforth shall be delivered from the proper warehouses for home consumption, (without altering the half subsidy now payable upon the importation thereof) shall be lessened and reduced to pay four pence per pound weight, and no more.

Value of pepper how to be estimated and divided.

XVI. And for better making a distribution thereof to and amongst the said several subsidies and duties respectively, it is hereby declared and enacted That the value of the said pepper shall be esteemed at six shillings and eight pence per pound weight, upon which value twelve pence in the pound do amount to the said sum of four pence per pound weight, and the said esteemed value of six shillings and eight pence per pound weight shall be divided follows, in order to compute the several duties hereafter to be paid thereupon, to wit,

To the old subsidy, three pence, and one third part of a penny.

To the further subsidy, three pence, and one third part of a penny.

To the one third subsidy, and two third subsidy, three pence, and one third part of a penny.

To the said impost, ten pence.

And to the said new duty, five shillings.

And the said sum of four pence in the pound shall be apportioned and applied to the said several subsidies and other duties accordingly; any former act or acts of parliament to the contrary notwithstanding. Four pence in the pound, how applied.

XVII. And whereas mace, cloves, and nutmegs imported, are valued in the book of rates at the respective values following; that is to say, mace the pound weight, twenty shillings; cloves the pound weight, ten shillings; nutmegs the pound weight, eight shillings; according to which several values the duties now payable upon mace, cloves, and nutmegs imported, do amount as follows; that is to say, For the said old subsidy, for every twenty shillings value, according to the said respective values, one shilling; for the said further subsidy, for every twenty shillings value, according to the said respective values, one shilling; for the said one third subsidy, for every twenty shillings value, according to the said respective values, four pence; for the said two third subsidy, for every twenty shillings value, according to the said respective values, eight pence; for the new duty, for every twenty shillings value, according to the said respective values, one shilling; for the new additional duty, for every twenty shillings value, according to the said respective values, one shilling; and for the further new duty, for every twenty shillings value, according to the said respective values, five shillings; amounting in the whole to ten shillings for every pound weight of mace, to five shillings for every pound weight of cloves, and to four shillings for every pound weight of nutmegs, as by several acts of parliament thereunto relating, and now in force, doth appear; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, the duties upon mace, cloves, and nutmegs, from thenceforth to be imported, shall be computed and paid, as if they had been valued in the said book of rates at the values following; that is to say, Mace the pound weight, six shillings; cloves the pound weight, four shillings; nutmegs the pound weight, three shillings; according to which respective values there shall be paid, Duties upon mace, cloves, and nutmegs, how to be computed and paid.

For every pound weight of mace so imported, three shillings, and no more. Mace.
 For every pound weight of cloves so imported, two shillings, and no more. Cloves.
 For every pound weight of nutmegs, one shilling and sixpence, and no more. Nutmegs.

Which several sums shall be applied to the said several subsidies and other duties, in such proportions as ten shillings bear to three shillings for mace, as five shillings bear to two shillings for cloves, and as four shillings bear to one shilling and sixpence for nutmegs; any former act or acts of parliament to the contrary notwithstanding. Application of the several sums.

XVIII. And it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the importation of mace, cloves, and nutmegs, every or any of them, shall be subject to the same rules in taking forth the licences, and other rules and restrictions, whereunto the same were subject before the making of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding. Mace, &c. imported, subject to the same rules, &c. as formerly.

XIX. And be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all the several and respective sum and sums of money, which shall arise by virtue of this act, for the said reduced duties upon beaver-skins imported, and for such pepper delivered out of the warehouses for home consumption, and for the said reduced duties upon mace, cloves, and nutmegs imported, shall have such or the like respective continuances, and shall and may, from time to time, be raised, received, levied, secured, and recovered, by such ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such discounts and allowances, and in such manner and form, as the present duties upon beaver-skins, pepper, mace, cloves, and nutmegs, before the making of this act, might be raised, received, levied, secured, or recovered, by any law or laws of the customs now in force. Monies arising for reduced beaver-skins, &c. imported, to have like continuance, as duties upon beaver-skins, &c. before this act.

XX. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several and respective sum and sums of money, as shall arise by virtue of this act, Monies how appropriated.

for the said reduced duties upon beaver-skins imported, and for such pepper delivered out of the warehouses for home consumption, and for the said reduced duties upon mace, cloves, and nutmegs imported, (the necessary charges of management excepted) are and shall be appropriated and applied to and for the same respective uses, and in such or the like proportions, manner, and form, and subject to such respective powers of redemption, as the present duties upon beaver-skins, pepper, mace, cloves, and nutmegs, at or before the making of this act, were by any act or acts of parliament in force respectively appropriated and applicable; and that all the powers, directions, penalties, forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, contained in any act or acts of parliament for appropriating and applying the said present duties upon beaver-skins, pepper, mace, cloves, and nutmegs, every or any of them, shall be continued, practised, and put in execution, for appropriating and applying the monies to arise by virtue of this act, for and upon the said respective duties upon beaver-skins, pepper, mace, cloves, and nutmegs, according to this act, as fully and effectually as if the same were again repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXI. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, upon exportation of any of the said mace, cloves, or nutmegs, or any of them, within the time allowed by law, for which the duties chargeable by this act shall have been first paid or secured, there shall be allowed certain drawbacks as shall bear such or the like proportion to the sums charged by this act upon mace, cloves, and nutmegs respectively, as the former drawbacks allowable on mace, cloves, and nutmegs exported respectively did bear to the duties thereupon, before the making of this act, and no more; which proportional drawbacks shall be made and allowed, according to such rules and methods as drawbacks are allowed by any laws now in force relating to the customs.

XXII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several penalties and forfeitures in this act mentioned, shall and may be prosecuted and determined by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer at Edinburgh respectively, wherein no essoin, protection, privilege, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed; and one moiety of the said penalties and forfeitures shall be to the use of the King's majesty, and the other moiety to such person or persons as will sue for or prosecute the same.

XXIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action or suit shall be commenced against any person or persons for any thing done in pursuance of this act, the defendant or defendants in such action or suit may plead the general issue, and give this act, and the special matter in evidence, at any trial to be had thereupon, and that the same was done in pursuance and by authority of the said act: and if it shall appear so to have been done, the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants; and if the plaintiff shall be nonsuited, or discontinue his action, after the defendant or defendants shall have appeared, or if judgment shall be given upon any verdict or demurrer against the plaintiff, the defendant or defendants shall and may recover treble costs, and have the like remedy for the same, as the defendant or defendants hath or have in other cases by law.

XXIV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all beaver-skins, and other furs of the product of any of the British plantations in America, Asia, or Africa, shall, from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, be imported directly from thence into Great Britain, and laid on shore there, and not elsewhere, under the penalties and forfeitures contained in an act passed in the twelfth year of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouraging and increasing shipping and navigation, in relation to sugars, tobacco and other enumerated goods, of the growth, production, or manufacture of any of the English plantations therein mentioned, to be recovered and distributed in such manner as the penalties and forfeitures relating to the said enumerated goods are, by the said recited act, to be recovered and distributed.

Anno octavo

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. XVI.

An act for taking off the duty upon all salt used in the curing and making of white herrings, and, instead thereof, laying a proportionable duty upon all white herrings consumed at home only; and for making an allowance for tobacco exported from Scotland; in the time therein mentioned; and for giving a farther relief to the refiners of rock salt.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made in the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for recovering the credit of the British fishery in foreign parts; and for better securing the duties on salt; it is enacted, That all curers of fish shall be allowed to import foreign salt, or take from any salt works or salt pits any such quantity of British salt, where the same is allowed by law, for curing of fish for exportation, as they shall think proper for curing fish for foreign markets, without paying any duty to his Majesty for the same, except the customs payable upon the importation thereof; in consequence whereof all white herrings spent within this realm, are or should be cured with salt that has paid the duties; but in regard the same are cured promiscuously, it is difficult to distinguish them from such as are intended to be exported, whereby his Majesty may be defrauded in his revenue, without a proper remedy for preventing the same; be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That, at the beginning of every fishing season for herrings, the proprietor or proprietors of the salt delivered duty-free for the curing of herrings for exportation, in that part of Great Britain called England, Wales, and Berwick upon Tweed, pursuant to the said act, or his or their agent or agents, shall, instead of the oath required by the said act, make oath in writing before the officer for the duty on salt, at the office nearest to the place where the said salt is lodged, who is hereby empowered to administer the same) declaring the quantity of the foreign or British salt respectively lodged for curing of fish, and that all the said salt is intended for the curing of fish for exportation only, and shall not, by his or their order, consent, or connivance, directly or indirectly, be sold, given away, or any way delivered, but for the purpose aforesaid; except so much thereof as shall be used for curing such white herrings as shall be entered with the officer of the place for home consumption, and charged with the duties by this act chargeable thereupon.

At beginning of fishing-season for herrings, proprietors, &c. in England, &c. instead of the oath required by the act 5 Geo. 1. to make oath of the quantity of salt intended for curing fish for exportation, &c. Except salt used for curing white herrings for home consumption, &c.

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every maker or curer of white herrings, in that part of Great Britain called England, Wales, and Berwick upon Tweed, from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, before he remove any white herrings (except for exportation) from the office or place where the same shall be cured, shall, from time to time, make entry thereof at the next salt office, and shall pay to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, a duty of three shillings and four pence for every barrel, containing thirty two gallons, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity: and that every cask or vessel in which such white herrings shall be packed or put up, shall have Curer of white herrings, after 25 March, 1722, before he remove them (except for exportation) to make entry, and pay 3 s. 4 d. per barrel, &c. These duties revived by 5 Geo. 2. c. 6. sect. 3.

Quantity to be marked on casks.

Upon entry, &c. permit to be given gratis.

Penalty on removal before entry, &c.

Moiety to King, moiety to officer seizing, &c.

Officers to seize white herrings removed before entry, &c.

Proprietor of salt duty-free, to express quantity of white herrings.

Duty upon white herrings shall cease, or be lessened, proportionably to duties on salt.

have a mark or marks on the head thereof, shewing the contents or quantity of every such cask or vessel; and upon entry and payment of the duty, (each cask or vessel being marked as aforesaid) a permit shall be given gratis by the salt officer, expressing the quantity of white herrings, for which the duties shall be paid as aforesaid, and the marks and numbers of such casks or vessels, and for what place the same are intended, and whether to be sent by land or water carriage, on pain of forfeiting the white herrings that shall be removed or carried away before entry be made, and the duty paid, and without the casks or vessels being marked, and permit obtained as aforesaid, and of the casks or vessels in which such herrings shall be found, and also the sum of forty shillings for every cask or vessel so removed, to be recovered from the person or persons who shall so remove or carry away the same; one moiety thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the officer or officers who shall seize, sue, or inform for the same, to be sued for, recovered, and levied in such manner, and with such power of mitigation, as any fine, penalty, or forfeiture may be sued for, recovered, levied, and mitigated by any law of excise, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no esoin, protection, privilege, or wager of law, shall be granted or allowed, nor any more than one imparlance; and all officers of his Majesty's customs, excise, or duties upon salt, are hereby authorized and impowered to seize all such white herrings so removed or carried away before entry, and payment of duty, and all other things performed as aforesaid, and the said casks or vessels wherein such white herrings shall be found.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the proprietor or proprietors of the salt delivered duty-free, for curing white herrings for exportation, in that part of Great Britain called England, Wales, and Berwick upon Tweed, his or their agent or agents, shall, in the account which after the end of every fishing season they are to deliver in writing into the salt office, containing the quantity of fish exported, or entered, and shipped to be exported, on which the salt taken away after its delivery into the sole custody of the said proprietor or proprietors, his or their agent or agents, has been used or consumed, as by the former law is directed, (and under the penalties thereby prescribed) express also the quantity of white herrings entered for home consumption, on which such salt has been used or consumed.

IV. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the duties of excise on salt, (which now amount to three shillings and four pence per bushel on home-made salt, and six shillings and eight pence per bushel on foreign salt) or any of them, shall cease, determine, or be redeemed by parliament, then the rate or duty by this act imposed upon white herrings shall cease, or be lessened in proportion to the duties on salt that shall so cease, determine, or be redeemed; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. XVIII.

An act to prevent the clandestine running of goods, and the danger of infection thereby; and to prevent ships breaking their quarantine; and to subject copper-ore of the production of the British plantations to such regulations, as other enumerated commodities of the like production are subject.

FORASMUCH as the laws already made to prevent the secret landing of prohibited and uncustomed goods have been found insufficient for that purpose, it being notorious that such infamous and pernicious practices are still continued in open defiance of the laws, to the great diminution of the publick revenues, the discouragement of honest traders, and during the time of infection abroad, to the endangering the health and lives of many thousands of his Majesty's innocent subjects, by bringing into this kingdom, from infected places, goods apt to retain infection: and whereas by an act passed in the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act against clandestine running of uncustomed goods; and for the more effectual preventing of frauds relating to the customs, it was enacted, That any ship, vessel, or boat, of the burthen of fifteen tuns or under, wherein any brandy, arrack, rum, strong waters or spirits of any kind whatsoever should be imported or brought into Great Britain, or into any port, harbour, haven, or creek thereof, (except as therein is excepted) such ship, vessel, or boat, with all her tackle, furniture, and apparel, or the value thereof, should be forfeited and lost, and should and might be seized, recovered, broke up and sold, as therein mentioned, which forfeiture is, by an act passed in the sixth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for preventing frauds and abuses in the publick revenues of excise, customs, stamp-duties, post-office, and house-money, extended to vessels of thirty tuns: and whereas, to elude the intent of the said laws, many persons do now carry on a clandestine trade by importing those goods in ships and vessels above the burthen of thirty tuns: for the prevention thereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if any foreign brandy, arrack, strong waters or spirits of any kind whatsoever shall, from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, be imported or brought into Great Britain, or into any port, harbour, haven, or creek thereof, in any ship, vessel, or boat, of the burthen of forty tuns or under, according to the admeasurement prescribed in the last mentioned act, (except only for the use of the seamen then belonging to and on board such ship, vessel, or boat, not exceeding two gallons for each such seaman) every such ship, vessel, or boat, with all her tackle, furniture, and apparel, as also all such brandy, arrack, strong waters or spirits, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized by any officer or officers of the customs, and shall and may be prosecuted and divided in such manner and form, as is prescribed in the said acts concerning ships, vessels, and boats, of fifteen or thirty tuns as aforesaid; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That after the seizure and condemnation of such ship, vessel, or boat, the principal officers of his Majesty's customs in the port or place where the same shall be at the time of such condemnation, are hereby directed to cause the hull of such ship, vessel, or boat, to be burnt and wholly destroyed, and the tackle, furniture, and apparel thereunto belonging, to be publickly sold to the best advantage,

III. And whereas many frauds are committed to the prejudice of the revenue in the clandestine running of goods imported, and in relanding certificate goods, as well as in exporting wooll and the coin of this kingdom, by watermen and others in boats, wherries, pinnaces, barges, and gallies, which are sometimes rowed with six, eight, or twelve oars, built on purpose for the smuggling trade; and in case they are pursued by the officers, do make their escape, which may be also a means of bringing in the infection: for the preventing whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, if any boat, wherry, pinnace, barge, or galley, rowing, or made or built to row with more than four oars, shall be found upon the water, or in any bargehouse, workhouse, shed, or other place within any of the counties of Middlesex, Surrey, Kent, or Essex, or in the river of Thames either above or below London Bridge, or within the limits of the ports of London, Sandwich, or Ipswich, or the members or creeks to them, or either of them respectively belonging, such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge, or galley, with all her tackle and furniture, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized by any officer or officers of the customs; and the owner or owners thereof, or any person using or rowing in such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge, or galley, shall also forfeit and lose the sum of forty pounds; and such seizure and forfeiture shall and may be prosecuted in the manner herein-after mentioned; and after the seizure and condemnation of such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge, or galley, the principal officers of his Majesty's customs in the port or place where the same shall be at the time of such condemnation, are hereby directed to cause such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge, or galley, to be burnt and wholly destroyed, and the tackle, furniture, and apparel thereunto belonging to be publicly sold to the best advantage, the produce whereof to be divided as herein-after mentioned; the reasonable charges of prosecuting, selling, and burning as aforesaid being first deducted.

IV. Provided always, That this act shall not extend, or be construed to extend, to any barge or galley belonging to or to belong to his Majesty, or the royal family, or any of them, or to any long-boat, yaul, or pinnace, belonging to and used in the service of any merchant ship or vessel, or to such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge, or galley, as shall be licensed by the lord high admiral, or commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral, or the major part of the same commissioners for the time being; which licences shall be in writing, signed by the said lord high admiral, or commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral, or the major part of such commissioners for the time being, and shall be granted without any fee or charge whatsoever.

V. Provided always, That no such licence shall be granted, but upon sufficient security to be given to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by the owner or owners of such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge, or galley, by bond in such penalty as the lord high admiral, or commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral for the time being, shall find to be reasonable with condition that the same shall not be made use in the clandestine running of uncusommed and prohibited goods; which security the said lord high admiral, or the commissioners for executing the office of lord admiral who shall grant such licence, are hereby impowered and required to take for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, all and every person and persons, who shall be found passing (knowingly and willingly) with any foreign goods or commodities landed from any ship or vessel, without the due entry and payment of the duties

VII. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That if any runner of foreign goods or commodities as aforesaid shall, within two months after such his offence, and before his conviction, discover two or more of his accomplices therein to the commissioners of the customs or excise in England or Scotland respectively, so as they, or two of them at least, be convicted of such offence, the offender or offenders so discovering shall have and receive the sum of forty pounds for every such offender so discovered and convicted, as a reward for such his discovery; so as the value of the goods recovered for the use of his Majesty on such discovery shall exceed the sum of fifty pounds; and such person so discovering shall be clearly acquitted and discharged of such his or her offence.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, if any other person or persons shall, within three months after such offence shall have been committed, discover to the said commissioners respectively any person or persons who shall have been guilty of such offence, so as such offender or offenders be convicted thereof, such discoverer or discoverers shall have and receive the like reward of forty pounds for every such offender so discovered and convicted, over and above any other reward or recompence, which he or they may be entitled unto, on account of the goods so carried or conveyed away, which shall be recovered by means of such his or their discovery, or on account of the penalties which shall be recovered for the running of the said goods, so as the value of the said goods recovered for the use of his Majesty on such discovery shall exceed the sum of fifty pounds.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of the customs and excise in England and Scotland respectively shall cause the several rewards of forty pounds for the discovery of the offenders before mentioned, to be paid by the respective receiver general or cashier of the customs and excise for the time being, out of any publick money in his or their hands under the management of the said commissioners, in proportion to the duties payable on the goods so clandestinely run, for which such person or persons shall be convicted, upon producing to them them a certificate or certificates under the hand of the judge or justice of the court before whom such offender or offenders shall be tried, certifying the conviction of the offender or offenders, and the money paid by any receiver general or cashier as aforesaid shall be accepted of and allowed in his accounts, as so much money paid to his Majesty, and such receiver general or cashier is and shall be hereby discharged thereof accordingly; any law, custom, or usage, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Persons receiving goods, &c. clandestinely run, &c. forfeit 20l.

X. And forasmuch as the persons using such clandestine trade are greatly encouraged to continue the same, by reason great numbers of persons, for their private lucre, receive and buy the goods and merchandizes so by them clandestinely imported contrary to law, which may be a means of bringing in the infection: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall receive or buy any goods, wares, or merchandizes so clandestinely run or imported, before the same shall have legally been condemned, knowing the same to be so clandestinely run or imported, and shall be thereof lawfully convicted upon his, her, or their appearance or default, upon the oath or oaths of one or more credible witness or witnesses, or by the confession of the party, by one or more justice or justices of the peace of the county, division, or liberty where such offence shall be committed, or the offender shall be found, (which oath such justice or justices of the peace are hereby required to administer) the person so convicted shall forfeit the sum of twenty pounds; one moiety thereof to the informer, and the other moiety to the poor of the parish where such offence shall be committed, the same to be levied by distress and sale of the offender's goods, by warrant under the hand and seal or hands and seals of such justice or justices before whom such offender shall be convicted as aforesaid; and for want of such distress every such offender shall by such justice or justices be committed to prison, there to remain without bail or mainprize for the space of three months.

Foreign brandy, though less than one gallon, without permit, &c. forfeited, with cask.

XIII. And whereas many retailers of foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters are furnished with the brandy, spirits or strong waters which they retail by persons who run the same, or their accomplices, in small quantities, viz. less than one gallon at a time, and when the officers of the excise find such small quantities in the hands of such retailers, they refuse to produce any permit or certificate for the same, alledging, that no such permit or certificate are required by law for any quantity of such brandy, spirits or strong waters under the quantity of one gallon, whereby the runners thereof find means to dispose of great quantities of such run brandy, spirits or strong waters: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, no foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters, although the same be under the quantity of one gallon, shall be received or taken into the custody or possession of any such retailer, or any person or persons for the use of any such retailer, without a permit or certificate signed by some officer of the customs or excise, signifying that the duties thereof were paid, or secured to be paid, or that the same had been condemned as forfeited, or was part of some person's stock in hand on the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, upon pain of forfeiting all such foreign brandy, spirits or strong waters, as shall be found in the custody of such retailer or any other person or persons for the use of any such retailer, without a permit or certificate, together with the cask, bottle, or other vessel, wherein the same shall be so found; any law, statute, or provision to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

How persons running brandy, &c. removing from their abode, &c. may be prosecuted.

XV. And whereas several persons guilty of the clandestine running of brandy or other customable and prohibited goods, or of receiving such goods, knowing the same to have been so run, do frequently remove from their usual places of abode into some other county, and are there called by other than their true names, to avoid their being prosecuted with effect for such their notorious offences; be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall, after the said five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, be guilty of any offence or offences contrary to the true intent and meaning of this or any other act of parliament made for the preventing clandestine running of brandy or other customable or prohibited goods, or of receiving such goods into his or their house, shop, or warehouse, custody, or possession, knowing the same to be so run, such person and persons shall and may be prosecuted for any of the offences or matters aforesaid, by action, bill, plaint, or information, and thereupon a Capias in the first process, specifying the sum of the penalty sued for, shall and may issue; and such person or persons shall be obliged to give sufficient bail or security by natural-born subjects or denizens, to the person or persons to whom such Capias shall be directed, to appear in the court out of which such Capias shall issue at the day of return of such writ, to answer such suit and prosecution, and shall likewise, at the time of such appearing, give sufficient bail or security by such persons as aforesaid in the said court, to answer and pay all the forfeitures and penalties incurred for such offence or offences, in case he or they shall be convicted thereof, or to yield his or their body or bodies to prison.

XVI. *And whereas by two several acts passed in the eighth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, the one, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty new duties of excise upon several imported commodities, and for other purposes therein mentioned; the other, intituled, An act for continuing several impositions, additional impositions and duties upon goods imported, to raise money by way of loan for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and ten; and for taking off the over-sea duty on coals exported in British bottoms; and for preventing frauds in drawbacks upon certificate goods, and other purposes therein mentioned, it is thereby respectively enacted, That if any sort of goods whatsoever, liable to the payment of duties, be unshipped with intention to be laid on land (customs and other duties not being first paid or secured) or if any prohibited goods whatsoever be imported into any part of Great Britain, or in case any tobacco or other foreign goods contained or specified in any certificate, whereupon any drawback is to be made, or whereupon any debenture is to be made forth for such drawback, shall, when shipped for exportation, be landed again in any part of Great Britain, (except as therein is excepted) the vessels and boats, and all the horses and other cattle and carriages whatsoever, used in the landing, relanding, removing, carriage or other conveyance of the aforesaid goods, shall be forfeited and lost, and may be sued for, recovered, and distributed in such manner as by the said act is provided and directed; which laws have not had the good effects thereby proposed, in regard that the keeping and maintaining the horses so seized, from the time of seizure to the time of condemnation in his Majesty's court of Exchequer, is very chargeable, and for that the charge of condemning such vessels, boats, and horses as aforesaid, is very great, whereby officers are discouraged from making such seizures, and the smugglers encouraged in their illegal practices: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all seizures of vessels or boats of the burthen of fifteen tons or under, which shall be made after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, by virtue of the said acts, or either of them, or of any other act relating to the revenue of customs, for carrying or conveying uncustomed or prohibited goods from ships inward, or for relanding certificate or debenture goods from ships outwards, and that all seizures of horses, or other cattle or carriages whatsoever, which shall be made after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, for being used in the removing, carriage, or conveyance of such goods, contrary to the said acts, or any of them, shall and may be examined into, proceeded upon, heard, adjudged, and determined by and before two or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace residing near the place where such seizure shall be made, in such manner, and after such summons and public notice given, as by an act passed in the sixth year of his present Majesty, intituled, *An act for preventing frauds and abuses in the public revenues

dues of excise, customs, stamp-duties, post-office, and house-money, seizures of brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters, (except as therein is excepted) may be examined into, proceeded upon, heard, adjudged, and determined, before two or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace, and such their respective judgements shall be and are hereby declared to be taken and adjudged to be good, valid, and effectual in the law, and final to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and not liable to any appeal, or any writ or writs of

No Certiorari.

Justices of London, &c. to have like power as other justices.

Certiorari; any law, statute, or provision to the contrary notwithstanding.

XVII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any two or more justices of the peace of the cities of London and Westminster, shall have the like power and authority in the summoning, examining, proceeding, hearing, adjudging and determining such seizures, as are or shall be made within the cities of London or Westminster respectively, as any two justices of the peace of any other county or place have; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

Goods brought from one port into another in Great Britain, &c. unshipped before cocquet delivered to customer, &c. forfeited.

XVIII. And whereas foreign goods are frequently taken in at sea by masters of coasting vessels, who privately land the same, to the prejudice of the revenue, and the encouragement of the foul traders: for the prevention whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any goods brought or coming into any port within the kingdom of Great Britain, from any other port within the said kingdom, by coast cocquet, transire, let-pas or certificate, in any ship or vessel, shall, from and after the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, be unshipped to be landed or put on shore, before such cocquet, transire, let-pas or certificate, shall be delivered to the customer or collector and comptroller of the port or place of her arrival, and warrant or sufferance made and given from such customer, collector and comptroller for the landing or discharging thereof, the master, purser, boatswain, or other mariner, taking charge of such ship or vessel, out of which the goods shall be landed or put on shore, knowing and consenting thereunto, shall forfeit the value of the goods so unshipped; and if any goods of foreign growth, production or manufacture, coming coastwise, as aforesaid, shall be landed without the presence of an officer of the customs, such foreign goods, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited and lost; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Foreign goods landed without presence of officer, forfeited.

6 Geo. 1. c. 12.

XIX. And whereas by an act made in the sixth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for preventing of frauds and abuses on damaged wines, and for lengthening the time for the drawbacks on the exportation of wines, it is enacted, That in case any merchant or other person importing wines, shall find the same, or any part thereof so damaged, corrupt or unmerchantable, that he shall refuse to pay or secure the duties of such wines, and shall thereupon stave, spill or otherwise destroy the same, as by the said act he is allowed to do, in the manner therein mentioned, such merchant or other person, shall, as a compensation for the freight and other charges, have the sum of four pounds for every tun of wine, containing two hundred and fifty two gallons, of the growth of Germany, or wines which pay duties as such, and of the growth of France, so staved, spilt, or otherwise destroyed, and the sum of eight pounds per tun, for every tun of wine of the growth of Spain, Portugal, or elsewhere, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, to be paid in the manner thereby directed; which several and respective allowances were made with regard to the distances of the places from whence the said several sorts of wine are usually imported: and whereas since the making of the said act, great quantities of mean and corrupt wines have been imported from the isle of Madeira, the freight whereof was inconsiderable, and staved for the benefit of the above mentioned allowances for freight and charges, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said act, which fraudulent practice may not only, from the encouragement before mentioned, be continued from the said island, but also be carried on by ill-disposed persons from Ireland, and the islands of Jersey and Guernsey

by, or other places and parts beyond the seas, to the lessening of his Majesty's revenues, and prejudice of fair traders: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no allowance shall be made by virtue of the said act for the freight or charges of any wine which shall be imported after the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, unless such wine be imported in casks on board such merchant ship or vessel, directly from the country or place of the growth of such wine, or the usual port or place of its first shipping; any thing in the said act to the contrary notwithstanding.

After 25 March 1722, no allowances for freight of wine unless imported directly from the place of its growth.

XX. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any ship or vessel having wines on board, shall by stress of weather, or any other accident be stranded, then and in such case, the wines on board the said ship or vessel which shall be saved, may be put on board any other ship, vessel or boat, and be carried to any of the lawful ports or places for landing of goods in this kingdom, and be intitled to the same allowances for such of them as shall be staved, spilt or destroyed, as if they came in the ship or vessel in which they were first loaded; any thing in this or any other act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Allowances for wine in ships stranded.

XXI. And whereas by an act passed in the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for preventing frauds and abuses in the publick revenues of excise, customs, stamp-duties, post-office, and house-money, it is enacted, That every licence taken out for the importation of nutmegs, cloves, mace or cinnamon, in the manner therein directed, shall be delivered to the merchant demanding the same, to be produced and delivered up by the master, purser, or other person taking charge of the ship, to the collector and comptroller of the port at the time of entering the ship, which act is evaded for want of penalty to enforce the same, contrary to the true intent and meaning thereof; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the master, purser, or other person taking charge of any ship, importing any of the said spices from any place or places beyond the seas, other than directly from the East Indies, shall not deliver up such licence to the collector and comptroller of the port into which the said spices shall be imported, at the time of his or their entering the said ship, regularly indorsed, as in and by the said act is directed, and also annex such licence to the entry or report of the ship; and in case each cask of nutmegs, cloves, or mace so imported, shall not contain neat three hundred pound weight, and each bale of cinnamon neat seventy pound weight, as by the said act is directed; then and in any of the said cases, such nutmegs, cloves, mace or cinnamon shall be forfeited, and deemed to be imported without a licence, granted or to be granted by virtue of the said act, or any former law, and such spice shall and may be prosecuted, as also the ship importing the same, by any act or acts of parliament now in force relating to the customs, as if such spice had been imported without licence; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Penalty in case of deficiency in quantity of casks, &c.

XXII. And whereas by the acts made in the twelfth and twenty-fifth years of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, the former intituled, An act for the encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation; and the latter intituled, An act for the encouragement of the Greenland and Eastland trade, and for the better securing the plantation-trade; and by one other act made in the third and fourth years of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty a further subsidy on wines and merchandizes imported, certain commodities therein respectively enumerated, of the growth, production or manufacture, of any of the British plantations in America, Asia or Africa, are for the reasons therein mentioned, restrained to be imported into this kingdom, or to some other of the said plantations, under the securities and penalties in the said two first recited acts, or either of them, particularly mentioned; since the making of which laws, copper ore, (which is not in any of the said acts particularly enumerated) is produced in the said plantations, tations, and carried to foreign markets in Europe, without being first brought into this kingdom, to the prejudice of the trade and the lessening the correspondence and relation between this kingdom and the aforesaid plantations; for prevention whereof for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, all copper ore shall be, under the like securities and penalties, restrained to be imported into this kingdom, as by the fore-recited acts, or any of them, is provided for the goods therein particularly enumerated; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several penalties and forfeitures in this act mentioned, shall and may be prosecuted and determined by bill, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer at Edinburgh respectively, (except where it is in this act otherwise directed) wherein no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed; and one moiety of the said several penalties and forfeitures shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to such person or persons as will sue for or prosecute the same.

XXIV. And whereas doubts have arisen and been made of and concerning the seizing of such brandy, arrack, rum, spirits and strong waters, as well foreign as British, and also of such foreign exciseable liquor, as by act or acts relating thereto now in force, are in several and respective cases enacted and declared to be forfeited; now to clear all doubt and question therein, or relating thereto, be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the liquors aforesaid, every or any of them, which have been, are, is, or hereafter shall be forfeited by any act or acts of parliament now in force, or hereafter to be made, together with the casks, bottles, vessels, or other package containing the same, ought to be, and from time to time shall and may be seized by any officer or officers of the customs or excise respectively, or by such person or persons, who are or shall be deputed or authorized thereto, by warrant from the lord treasurer or under treasurer, or by special commission from his Majesty, under the great seal or privy seal, but by none other or others whatsoever.

XXV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if from and after the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, any person or persons whatsoever, shall assault, resist, oppose, molest, obstruct or hinder any officer or officers of the customs or excise, in the due seizing or securing any brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters, either foreign or British, or any foreign exciseable liquors, which by any officer or officers of customs or excise, shall or may be seized by virtue or in pursuance of this or any other act or acts now in force, or hereafter to be made, or shall by force or violence rescue, or shall cause or procure to be rescued, any brandy, arrack, rum, spirits or strong waters, British or foreign, or any foreign exciseable liquors, after the same shall have been seized by such officer or officers, as aforesaid, or shall attempt or endeavour so to do, or shall, at or after such seizure, break, or otherwise destroy or damage any cask, vessel or bottle containing such brandy, arrack, rum, spirits, or strong waters, British or foreign, or such foreign exciseable liquor, the party or parties so offending shall for every such offence forfeit and lose the sum of forty pounds.

XXVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in any action or suit shall be commenced against any person or persons for any thing done in pursuance of this act, that the defendant or defendants in such action or suit, may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence, at any trial to be had thereupon, and that the same was done in pursuance and by the authority of the said act; and if it shall appear so to have been done, then the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants; and if the plaintiff shall be nonsuited, or discontinued continue his action, after the defendant or defendants shall have appeared, or if judgment shall be given upon any verdict or demurrer against the plaintiff, the defendant or defendants shall and may recover treble costs, and have the like remedy for the same, as the defendant or defendants hath or have in other cases by law.

Treble costs.

XXVII. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this present act shall continue and be in force for the space of two years, commencing from the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer.

This act to continue for two years after 25 March, 1722, &c. Farther continued by 8 Geo. 2. c. 21.

CAP. XX.

An act for paying off and cancelling one million of exchequer-bills, and to give ease to the South-Sea company, in respect of its present obligation, to circulate or contribute towards circulating exchequer-bills; and to give further time to that company for repayment of one million which was lent to them; and for issuing a further sum in new exchequer-bills, towards his Majesty's supply, to be discharged and cancelled, when the said company shall repay the million owing by them; and that the exchequer-bills, which are to continue, may be circulated at easy and moderate rates; and for appropriating the supplies granted to his Majesty in this session of parliament; and for relief of the sufferers at Nevis and Saint Christophers, by an invasion of the French in the late war; and for laying a further duty on apples imported; and for ascertaining the duties on pictures imported.

SECT. XLVI. AND moreover, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be raised, levied, answered and paid unto and for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for and upon all apples, which at any time or times after the feast-day of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, during the term of three years from thence next ensuing, or before the end of the session of parliament next following the said term of three years, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain (over and above all customs, subsidies and duties already imposed thereupon) an additional duty, to be reckoned after the rate of two shillings for every bushel, and proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity, to be paid down in ready money by the importers, from time to time, before the landing of the same respectively.

An additional duty of 2s. per bushel to be paid on apples imported after 25 March, 1722.

XLVII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said additional duty upon apples imported, shall be raised, levied, recovered and paid, and be brought into his Majesty's exchequer, by such rules, ways, means and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as the other duties upon apples imported, or any of them, are by any act or acts of parliament now in force, prescribed or appointed to be raised, levied, recovered, answered and paid.

How, and under what penalties to be paid.

XLVIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said additional duty upon apples imported (except the necessary charges of management thereof) is and shall be applied for or towards making good the services for which his Majesty's supply, granted in this session of parliament, is by this act appropriated or applicable.

To what use applied.

XLIX. And

Duties payable on pictures imported after 25 March, 1722. For the measuring of pictures imported, see 11 Geo. 1. c. 7. sect. 12.

XLIX. And whereas by several acts of parliament now in force, several duties are payable upon the importation of pictures; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties for all pictures, which shall be imported from and after the feast-day of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, shall cease and determine, and in lieu thereof there shall be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for all pictures, that from and after the said feast-day of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary one thousand seven hundred and twenty two shall be imported into Great Britain, the certain duties following, according to the respective dimensions of such pictures; that is to say,

For pictures of four feet square, 3 l.

For every picture of four feet square or upwards, or of any dimensions, which being reduced, will produce a square of four feet or upwards, the sum of three pounds, of lawful money of Great Britain.

Two feet square, 40 s.

For every picture of two feet square, and under four feet square, or of any dimensions, which being reduced will produce a square of two feet, and under four feet, the sum of forty shillings, of like money.

Less than two feet, 20 s.

And for every picture under two feet square, or of any dimensions which being reduced will produce a square less than two feet, the sum of twenty shillings, of like money.

To be paid in ready money before landing.

Which duties shall be paid down in ready money by the respective importers of such pictures, from time to time, before the landing of the same respectively.

How, and under what penalties to be paid.

L. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties upon pictures imported, shall be raised, levied, recovered and paid, and be brought into the exchequer, by such rules, ways, means and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as the duties upon pictures hereby taken away, or any of them, might have been raised, levied, recovered and paid, if the same or any of them had continued.

How appropriated.

L.I. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid That the duties to arise upon the importation of pictures, pursuant to this act (the necessary charges of management excepted) shall be appropriated and applied as near as may be, to the same uses and purposes, to which the former duties upon pictures by this act taken away, were applicable or ought to have been applied if this act had not been made.

How redeemable.

L.II. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted, That the duties by this act charged upon pictures imported, or any part thereof, shall be redeemable by parliament, in the same manner as the said former duties on pictures hereby taken away, or any of them, were redeemable; and in all cases where any of the said former duties on pictures were to cease or determine, a proportional part of the duties on pictures hereby charged, shall likewise cease and determine.

Act for continuing some laws, and revising others therein mentioned, for exempting apothecaries from serving parish and ward offices, and upon juries; and relating to jurors; and to the payment of seamen's wages, and the preservation of naval stores, and stores of war; and concerning the militia and trophy-money; and against clandestine running of uncustomed goods, and for more effectual preventing frauds relating to the customs, and frauds in mixing silk with stuffs to be exported.

SECT. I. AND whereas by an act made in the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act against clandestine running of uncustomed goods, and for the more effectual preventing of frauds relating to the customs, several clauses therein mentioned, were to have continuance for the term of three years, from the several times of commencement thereof, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament respectively, which are near expiring, and it hath been found by experience, that several of the said clauses are necessary to be continued, to prevent frauds, which might otherwise be practised to the prejudice of the revenue and fair trade: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That so much of the said act as relates to such foreign goods, wares and merchandizes, as shall be taken in at sea out of any ship or vessel, in order to be landed or put into any other ship, vessel or boat; and so much of the said act as relates to goods not reported, and found after clearing ships, and so much of the said act as provides further remedies against relanding goods prohibited to be worn in this kingdom, and foreign goods shipped out for parts beyond the seas, and so much of the said act as relates to the opening or altering the package of goods on board ships outward-bound, and so much of the said act as relates to hovering ships or vessels of the burthen of fifty tuns, or under, and so much of the said act as concerns the bales or package in which coffee shall be exported, as was to continue in force for three years, from the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and to the end of the then next session of parliament, and so much of the said act as relates to rum imported in casks or vessels, not containing twenty gallons at the least, which was to continue in force for three years, from the twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and to the end of the then next session of parliament, and so much of the said act as relates to certificate-goods entered in order to be exported to Ireland, which was to continue in force for three years, from the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, and to the end of the then next session of parliament, shall be continued and be in force, and put in practice for the purposes therein mentioned, from and after the expiration of the several and respective terms before-mentioned, for and during the space of five years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament.

MA Y it please your most excellent Majesty, whereas great benefit and advantage did accrue to England by one act of parliament, passed in the eighteenth year of the reign of his majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for encouraging of coinage, and continued by another act made in the twenty fifth year of the reign of his said majesty King Charles, intituled, An act for continuing a former act concerning coinage; both which said acts were revived by an act made in the first year of the reign of his majesty King James the Second; and were continued by an act made in the fourth year of King William and Queen Mary, of blessed memory; and were further continued by an act made in the twelfth year of the reign of the said late King William; and were further continued by an act made in the seventh year of the reign of the said late majesty Queen Anne, of blessed memory, and then extended to Scotland; and were further continued by an act made in the first year of your Majesty's reign, to be in force for seven years, from the first day of March one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following, and no longer; so that unless the said acts be revived and continued the encouragement given thereby will cease, and this kingdom be deprived for the future of so great a good, as it hath for many years last past enjoyed: now your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled; do give and grant unto your Majesty the rates, duties and impositions herein after mentioned, for and during the term and time herein after expressed; and do humbly pray, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That such and the like rates, duties and impositions, as, by the said act of parliament of the eighteenth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, were granted, and by the said subsequent acts were continued for and upon the importation of wines, vinegar, cyder, beer, brandy and strong waters, imported during the respective terms or times therein mentioned, shall be further continued, and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for and upon all wines, vinegar, cyder, beer, brandy and strong waters, which shall be imported or brought into Great Britain within or during the space of seven years, to commence from the first day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following, and no longer; and that all the said former acts, and all other acts of parliament concerning coinage, and every of them, and every clause, article and sentence in them, or any of them contained, now being in force, shall be and are, by virtue of this act, revived and continued, and shall be in force, and be duly put in execution, for and during all such term and time, as are before mentioned, as fully and effectually, as if the same were particularly repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act; any former law, statute, provision, matter or thing whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

The act for encouraging the coinage continued for seven years from 1 March 1723, and to the end of the next session of parliament. 18 Car. 2. c. 5. Farther continued from March 1730, for seven years, by 4 Geo. 2. c. 12. Farther continued by 19 Geo. 2. c. 14.

II. And to the end the importers of gold and silver into the mints of England and Scotland respectively, may not be discouraged by any deficiency of the revenue by this act settled for defraying the coinage thereof; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them now being, or the lord high treasurer, or any three or more of the commissioners of the treasury for the time being, out of the monies arising by this act, or out of any other the publick supplies granted or to be granted by parliament, to cause so much money to be applied, as shall be necessary for defraying the expences of the said mints of England and Scotland respectively, by way of imprest and upon account for that service, so as the same, together with the coinage duties arising by this act, do not exceed in any one year the sum of fifteen thousand pounds, and so as the said monies be issued out of the exchequer of Great Britain to the master of the mint in England, and the master of the mint in Scotland respectively, for the said purposes.

15,000 l. for defraying the expences of the mints of England and Scotland yearly.

VI. And whereas by several acts of parliament, several duties are payable upon the importation of books bound, which duties being payable ad valorem, have been found inconvenient; for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties payable ad valorem for all books bound, which shall be imported from and after the twenty fourth day of June which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, shall cease and determine, and instead thereof shall be payable and paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for all bound books which shall be imported into Great Britain, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, the sum of fourteen shillings of lawful money of Great Britain, for every hundred weight, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser weight, which duty shall be paid down in ready money by the respective importers of such bound books, from time to time, before the landing of the same respectively.

Books bound imported, to pay 14 s. per hundred weight.

How to be raised,

VII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duty upon bound books imported, shall be raised, levied, recovered and paid, and be brought into the exchequer, by such rules, ways, means and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form as the duties upon bound books hereby taken away, or any of them, might or ought to have been raised, levied, recovered or paid, before the making of this act.

and appropriated.

VIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the duty to arise upon the importation of books bound pursuant to this act, (the necessary charges of management deducted) shall be appropriated and applied, as near as may be, to the same uses and purposes to which the former duties upon bound books, by this act taken away, were applicable or ought to have been applied, if this act had not been made.

Redeemable
by parliament.

IX. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted, That the duty by this act charged upon bound books imported, or any part thereof, shall be redeemable by parliament, in the same manner as the said former duties on bound books hereby taken away, or any of them, were redeemable; and in all cases where the said former duties on bound books, or any of them, were to cease or determine, the duty hereby granted, or a proportional part thereof, shall cease and determine.

An Act for enabling his Majesty to put the customs of Great Britain under the management of one or more commissions, and for better securing and ascertaining the duties on tobacco, and to prevent frauds in exporting tobacco, and other goods and merchandizes, or carrying the same coastwise.

5 Ann. c. 8.

After 1 June 1723, the customs of Great Britain may be under one or more commissions.

WHEREAS by the sixth article of the act of parliament for uniting the two kingdoms of England and Scotland, passed in the fifth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, all parts of the united kingdom were for ever, from and after the union, to be liable to the same customs and duties on import and export, and to be under the same restrictions and regulation of trade: and whereas the customs and duties arising by the exportation and importation of goods and merchandize were put under the direction of two distinct commissions, one of which to have the care and management of the customs and duties arising in England, the other in Scotland, but each vested with the like powers and authorities: be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, the customs and other duties, now under the management of the several and respective commissioners of the customs of England and Scotland, shall and may be put under the management of one commission of the customs for the whole united kingdom, or under the management of several commissions of the customs for England and Scotland respectively, from time to time, as his Majesty shall judge to be most for the advantage of trade and security of his revenues; any law, statute or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. Provi-

II. Provided always, and be it enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by his commission or commissions under the great seal of Great Britain, to increase the number of commissioners for the managing and causing to be levied and collected, his customs and duties, as shall be thought proper for the carrying on the said service, and in such commission or commissions to make provision for putting in execution the several laws relating to the customs; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

The number of commissioners may be increased.

III. And whereas by the act of tonnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and by the book of rates thereto annexed, a duty of one penny per pound (commonly called the old subsidy) was laid upon all tobacco of the British plantations imported; and by the same act and book of rates an additional duty of one penny per pound was laid on the same tobacco imported; and by another act made in the first year of the reign of the late King James the Second, a duty or impost of three pence per pound was laid on the same tobacco imported; and by another act made in the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, a further subsidy of one penny per pound was laid on the same tobacco imported; and by another act made in the second year of her late majesty Queen Anne, a duty or subsidy of one third part of a penny per pound was laid on the same tobacco imported; all which duties on tobacco imported, as before-mentioned, amounting in the whole to sixpence and one third part of a penny per pound weight, are by several subsequent acts since continued, and are now in force: and whereas certain abatements, discounts and allowances, for waste and damage, and other allowances, are made to the importer of such tobacco out of the said duties, which by experience have been found prejudicial to trade and a loss to the revenue: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said several duties upon tobacco imported after the said first day of June one thousand seven hundred and twenty three shall be raised, levied, collected and paid, during the continuance thereof respectively, in the manner following; that is to say, the importer of tobacco of the British plantations shall, on the importation thereof, pay down the said old subsidy of one penny per pound, with an allowance of twenty five per centum instead of the former allowance of five per centum; and that all the other duties afore-mentioned on such tobacco imported, amounting together to five pence and one third of a penny per pound, shall be paid down, or the importer thereof shall become bound to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, with one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved of by the collector of the port where the tobacco shall be imported, with the consent of the comptroller of such port, in one or more bond or bonds, at the election of the importer, for payment of the respective duties within eighteen months, to commence at the end of thirty days after the master's report of the ship, or to commence from the merchant's entry of the goods within those thirty days, which shall first happen; and that in lieu of all former encouragements, allowance for waste or damage, or other allowances and discounts for prompt payment (all which encouragements, allowances and discounts are intended to be repealed and abrogated, and are, by force and virtue of this act, repealed and abrogated accordingly) one allowance of twenty five per centum of the said last recited duties, amounting to five pence and one third of a penny per pound as aforesaid, shall be deducted and allowed upon the entry of the importer, paying down the said duties; and every importer not paying down the said duties shall have an allowance only of fifteen per centum; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

case any merchant or other person shall refuse to enter and pay, or secure the duties aforesaid for such tobacco, then he or they shall have liberty to refuse the same, or to separate such damaged tobacco, by cutting off from the hoghead or other package so much thereof, as he or they shall refuse to pay custom for, and the principal officers of his Majesty's customs, or any three or more of them, shall cause all such tobacco to be burnt and destroyed, without making any allowances to such importer for freight or other charges, other than the allowances hereafter in this act provided for; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

V. Provided always, and it is not hereby intended, That any merchant or other person shall have liberty to separate the stalk from the leaf, on pretence that the same is damaged or mean tobacco.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any of the said tobacco, which shall have been entered, and the duties thereof paid or secured in manner aforesaid by this act directed and appointed, shall, from and after the said first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, be exported into any foreign parts, the exporter shall, upon the exportation thereof within the time limited by law, on a proper debenture to be made forth for that purpose, be paid or allowed to draw back the whole duty, or the security vacated on the bond or bonds given on the importation, and no more, as to what shall be so exported, care being taken, that the several allowances and deductions made at the importation be again deducted on the debenture; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

VII. And whereas, notwithstanding the many laws to prevent fraudulent drawbacks upon tobacco and other goods and merchandize exported, yet the same still continue, but if some further encouragement were given to such as would be willing to discover such frauds, the same might in some measure be prevented: be it therefore declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person (other than the exporter) shall discover to the commissioners, or any officer of the customs, any frauds committed, either by the exporter of the tobacco, or other goods or merchandize, or by any other person or persons in aid or assistance of the exporter, whereby his Majesty has been or shall be defrauded by the exportation of such tobacco or other goods or merchandize, such person or persons (except as aforesaid) shall, as an encouragement, have and receive one half of the officer's or prosecutor's share of what shall be recovered and paid by such discovery, the charges of prosecution being first deducted; and the commissioners of the customs for the time being are to cause such charges to be paid equally by the crown and the officer or prosecutor; and in case such person or persons, who were aiding or assisting to the exporter in such fraud, so discovering, he or she shall, in consideration of such his or her discovery, be clearly acquitted and discharged of such his or her offence; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

VIII. And whereas frauds are many times committed under pretence of carrying tobacco or other foreign goods or merchandizes from one port to another in Great Britain, coastwise, by masters of coasting vessels, who take in such goods in ports beyond the sea, or out of ships or vessels at sea, or in any place, other than the port from whence it was certified, and privately land the same in Great Britain, to the prejudice of the revenue and the encouragement of the foreign traders: for the prevention whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any tobacco or other foreign goods or merchandizes shall be taken on board any coasting vessel in parts beyond the seas, or out of any ship or vessel at sea, or at any port or place of this kingdom, other than the port or place from whence such goods shall be certified, that then the said goods, and double the value thereof, shall be forfeited and lost, and the master of the said coasting ship, wherein the said goods were imported, shall forfeit the value of the said tobacco or other goods.

IX. And

IX. And be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person (other than the owner or claimer of the tobacco or other goods or merchandize so shipped coastwise, or pretended to be shipped coastwise) shall discover to the commissioners, or any officer of the customs, any frauds committed either by the owner or claimer of the tobacco or other goods or merchandize so shipped or pretended to be shipped coastwise, or by any other person or persons in aid or assistance of the owner or claimer of such tobacco or other goods or merchandize, whereby his Majesty has been or shall be defrauded in his duties, such person or persons (except as aforesaid) shall, as an encouragement, have and receive one half of the officer's or prosecutor's share of what shall be recovered and paid by such discovery, the charges of prosecution being first deducted; and the commissioners of the customs for the time being are to cause such charges to be paid equally by the crown and the officer or prosecutor; and in case such person or persons, who are aiding or assisting to the owner or claimer of the tobacco or other goods or merchandize so shipped or pretended to be shipped coastwise in such frauds, he or she shall, in consideration of such his or her discovery, be clearly acquitted and discharged of such his or her offence; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Discoverer to have one half of the officer's share.

Aider discovering acquitted.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid; That the several penalties and forfeitures in this act mentioned shall and may be prosecuted and determined by bill, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer at Edinburgh respectively, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed; and one moiety of the said penalties and forfeitures shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to such persons as will sue for or prosecute the same.

How to be sued for,

and divided.

XI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be sued, molested or prosecuted for any thing done by virtue or in pursuance of this act, or any of the clauses therein contained, such person or persons shall or may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence for his, her or their defence; and if afterwards a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall discontinue his or their action, or be nonsuited, or judgment shall be given against him or them upon demurrer or otherwise, then such defendant or defendants shall have full costs to him or them awarded against such plaintiff or plaintiffs.

General issue.

XII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any importer or proprietor of tobacco, that hath given security as aforesaid for the payment of the said duties in eighteen months, shall be desirous to discharge his bond or bonds, or any part thereof, in ready money, sooner than the expiration of the said eighteen months, he shall be abated upon such bond or bonds so much as the discount at the rate of seven per centum per annum shall amount to in proportion to the time unexpired.

Importer discharging his bond within the 18 months, to have a discount of 7 per cent. for the time.

XIII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any tobacco shall happen to receive damage on board any ship or vessel by stress of weather at sea, or any damage by any ship or vessel's being forced on shore in any part of Great Britain, or if any unforeseen accidents should happen after the arrival of any ship or vessel in port, by the ship's bulging on an anchor, or by the lighter into which the tobacco is put in order to be laid on land, or by any such like accidents, whereby such tobacco shall receive damage, it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners or collectors, or other chief officers of his Majesty's customs, to allow and pay to the importer at the rate of one halfpenny for every pound of such tobacco, for which the importer shall refuse to pay the full duties, and which shall be cut off or separated from the sound found in order to be burnt or otherwise publickly destroyed by the officers of his Majesty's customs, so as such allowance shall not exceed thirty shillings for all the tobacco damaged in any one single hoghead imported; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XIV. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no drawback shall be allowed on any tobacco exported in any package, but only in casks, containing three hundred weight or more in each cask, except such tobacco as shall be cut or rolled; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XV. And whereas the allowances at the scale for draught upon every hoghead of tobacco imported have been uncertain, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, there shall be allowed only at the scale eight pounds upon every hoghead that shall contain three hundred and fifty pounds of tobacco or more, which allowance shall not be deducted upon exportation.

XVI. And whereas divers quantities of tobacco of the British plantations may happen to arrive before the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, and it being reasonable that the tobacco trade should be on an equal foot, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the time of importation of all such tobacco as shall arrive after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, and on or before the second day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, and then remain unentered, shall be reckoned to be from and after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, in like manner, as if the masters of such ships or vessels had made report of their several loadings on the said second day of June; and the importers or proprietors of such tobacco shall pay or secure the duties, and have and enjoy the several allowances and discounts, and be entitled to draw back the duties, as fully and in like manner, as if the said tobacco had been imported, and the masters of the ships had made their respective reports of their loadings on the said second day of June; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XVII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, no tobacco shall be imported into Great Britain stript from the stalk or stem; and in case any tobacco stript from the stalk or stem, shall be so imported after the said first day of June, the same shall be seized, and shall be liable to be searched for and forfeited by any officer of the customs, in the same manner as any other prohibited goods may, by the laws now in being, be searched for or seized; and all and every such penalties and forfeitures shall and may be recovered by information in the court of exchequer of England or Scotland respectively; one moiety thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to the use of the person or persons who shall seize and sue for the same.

XVIII. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby declared, That nothing herein contained shall authorize or empower any officer of the customs, or other person, to search for any stript tobacco imported, after the same shall have been weighed by the proper officer, for the payment of the duties payable for the same; and where it shall happen there shall not be more than twenty pounds weight of stript tobacco in any one hoghead, the same shall not be subject or liable to be seized or forfeited by virtue of this act.

XIX. Provided always, and it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies to arise of or for the duties of tobacco, under the regulation by this act prescribed (the necessary charges of management excepted) are and shall be appropriated and applied to such uses and purposes, and in such or the like proportions, and in such manner as the duties on such tobacco were appropriated and would have been applicable, if this act had not been made, under such penalties and forfeitures for diverting or misapplying any of the said monies, as in the like case or cases might have been inflicted by any former act or acts of parliament; for diverting or misapplying any money arising by the duties on tobacco therein mentioned; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XX. And be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no drawback shall be allowed for any tobacco-stalks or stems exported by themselves, when they have been or shall be separated from the rest of the leaf; any law to the contrary notwithstanding.

No drawback for tobacco-stalks exported.

C A P. XXVI.

An act to prevent his Majesty's subjects from subscribing or being concerned in encouraging or promoting any subscription for an East India company in the Austrian Netherlands; and for the better securing the lawful trade of his Majesty's subjects to and from the East Indies.

WHEREAS several acts and statutes have been heretofore made and provided by parliament, for the securing to the united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies the sole trade to and from the East Indies, and other places beyond the Cape of Good Hope, in the said acts, some or one of them, particularly mentioned and described, to the intent that the British nation might thereby have and enjoy the full fruits and advantages of so beneficial a trade; notwithstanding which acts, and the prohibitions, injunctions and penalties contained therein, several evil-minded persons (subjects of his Majesty) preferring their own lucre to the good of their native country, have not only in their private capacities secretly and illegally traded to and from the East Indies, and with the pirates infesting those seas, but have also openly, and in defiance of the laws of this kingdom, under foreign commissions, fitted out and loaded many great and defensible ships for voyages to the East Indies, and have corrupted several British sailors to serve on board such ships for such voyages; and of late, with design totally to elude the good and wholesome laws made to prevent such practices as aforesaid, have subscribed, contributed to, or promoted the raising, establishing, and carrying on a foreign company, under a foreign charter, for carrying on an East India trade from the Austrian Netherlands, taking and providing for themselves shares and proportions in the stock or capital of such company, with design to engage others of his Majesty's subjects, as well as themselves, to be concerned in the same undertaking, by which perfidious and unwarrantable practices the trade of this kingdom is diverted, the revenue diminished, and the treasure thereof exhausted: to prevent therefore such wicked practices, and more effectually to secure the said East India trade to his Majesty's subjects for the future, according to the laws now in being; be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if at any time or times, from and after the four and twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, any person or persons whatsoever, subject or subjects of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, shall contribute or subscribe to, or encourage or promote the raising, establishing, or carrying on any foreign company, society, or corporation, trading, trafficking, or adventuring, or hereafter to trade, traffick, or adventure, from any part or parts of or in the Austrian Netherlands, in, to, or from the East Indies,

After 24 June, 1723, none of his Majesty's subjects shall subscribe to, or be concerned in promoting an East India company in the Austrian Netherlands, Indies, or places aforesaid, or shall be interested or concerned in his, her, or their name or names, or in the name or names of any other person or persons whatsoever, or otherwise howsoever, in any part or share of or in the capital, principal stock or actions of any such foreign company, society, or corporation as aforesaid, or shall make any payments in money, or by bills of exchange, remittances, or otherwise, to, for, or towards the raising, supporting, sustaining, encouraging, or promoting such foreign company, society, or corporation, or the trade or traffick thereof, or shall subscribe, contribute to, encourage or promote the raising, establishing, or carrying on any other foreign company or companies hereafter to be raised, formed, or erected, for trading or dealing to the East Indies or parts aforesaid, or shall become interested in, or entitled unto, any share in the stock or capital of such last mentioned company or companies, every such person and persons so offending shall forfeit all his, her, and their interest, share, proportion, and concern in the capital, principal stock or actions of any such foreign company, society, or corporation as aforesaid, together with treble the value thereof; one third part thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the remaining two third parts thereof to the use of the said united company, if they shall inform, sue, or prosecute for the same; or otherwise, one third part of such two thirds shall be to the use of such person or persons as shall inform or sue for the same, such informer or prosecutor first taking such directions and consent as hereafter is mentioned for that purpose; and the said penalties shall and may be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, wager of law, or protection shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance.

II. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for his Majesty's attorney general for the time being, of his own authority, or at the relation of the said united company, and to and for the said united company, to file or exhibit a bill or bills of complaint in his Majesty's high court of chancery, or court of exchequer, against any person or persons who shall have subscribed, contributed to, encouraged or promoted, or any ways become interested or concerned in the raising, establishing, or carrying on any such foreign company, society, or corporation as aforesaid, or the stock, capital, trade or traffick thereof, for the discovery of such his, her, and their offence, remitting or waiving in every such bill, the said forfeiture of the treble value of the offender's stock, interest, share, proportion, and concern, in the principal stock or actions of any such foreign company, society, or corporation, and insisting only on the single value thereof, and thereupon such person and persons shall answer the said bill or bills, and not plead or demur to the discovery thereby sought, and in such case the single value only of such interest, share, proportion, and concern, shall be decreed to be paid by such offender or offenders, one third part whereof shall be yielded and paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the remaining two third parts thereof to the use of the said united company.

III. Provided also nevertheless, and it is hereby further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That if before any suit or prosecution shall be commenced for the recovery of the penalties aforesaid, either by his Majesty's attorney general, or the said united company, any common informer or informers shall go to the court of directors of the said united company, and make known to them the offence committed, and his or their intentions to sue or prosecute for the same at law, and if instead thereof the said court of directors shall elect to have the suit or prosecution brought or commenced by bill or bills of complaint, to be filed or exhibited in his Majesty's said courts of chancery or exchequer, then, and in every such case, there shall be yielded and paid to such common informer or informers, one third part of the remaining two third parts of the single value of the said said interest and concern, when recovered; but if the said court of directors shall elect to have the suit or prosecution commenced for the penalties or forfeitures by information or action of debt at law, then the said informer or informers shall and may accordingly sue and prosecute for the same at law, and the said information or action shall be proceeded upon, and shall not be discontinued or determined, but by and with the consent of the said united company, or their court of directors.

IV. And for the more effectual discovery of the interest, share, proportion, or concern of any of his Majesty's subjects, of or in the capital, principal or stock of any such foreign company, society, or corporation as aforesaid, it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, subject or subjects of his Majesty whatsoever, shall have accepted of any trust or trusts, or shall know of any interest, share, part, proportion, or concern, which any of his Majesty's subjects shall have or be entitled to in any such foreign company, society, or corporation as aforesaid, and shall not within six months next after his, her, or their accepting such trust, or coming to the knowledge of such interest, share, proportion, or concern as aforesaid, truly discover and disclose in writing the same to the said united company, or their court of directors for the time being, every person so offending shall forfeit treble the value of the interest, share, proportion, or concern so accepted in trust, or so known, and not discovered as aforesaid; one moiety thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to him or them who shall sue for the same, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance; or otherwise, such offender and offenders shall, at the discretion of the court where the prosecution is commenced, suffer imprisonment by the space of one whole year, without bail or mainprize.

Subjects accepting such shares, &c. in trust, not discovering in six months, forfeit treble value, or imprisoned for a year.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every person who shall, within the time above limited for that purpose, voluntarily come to the court of directors of the said united company, and make a true discovery in writing of the interest, share, part, proportion, or concern of any of his Majesty's subjects in the capital, principal, or stock of any such foreign company, society, or corporation as aforesaid, then every such person, making such discovery, shall have and receive, out of the forfeitures arising or to arise upon or by virtue of this act, by, from, and out of the estate or estates of such person and persons so interested or concerned in any such foreign company, society, or corporation as aforesaid, one moiety or half-part of the clear amount of such forfeitures; and the court, in which the prosecution against such offender or offenders shall be commenced, shall have full power and authority, and are hereby directed to award to the person making such discovery, such reward as aforesaid.

Persons within the time limited discovering, to have a moiety of the forfeitures.

VI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, subject or subjects to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, (other than such as are lawfully authorized thereunto) shall at any time or times from and after the four and twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, go, sail, or repair to, or be, or be found in or at the East Indies, or any the places aforesaid, every person and persons so offending, are, and are hereby declared to be guilty of a high crime and misdemeanor, and shall and may be prosecuted for the same in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, wager of law, or protection shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance; and such person and persons so offending, being convicted thereof, shall be liable to such corporal punishment or imprisonment, or to such fine, as the court where such prosecution shall be commenced shall think fit; one moiety of such fine to be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs Subjects (except lawfully authorized) going to the East Indies, guilty of a misdemeanor.

VII. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons so offending, shall and may be seized and brought to England, and it shall and may be lawful to and for any one or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace, and they are hereby authorized and required to commit all and every such person and persons to the next county gaol, there to remain until sufficient security be given by natural-born subjects or denizens, to appear in the court where such suit or prosecution shall be commenced or depending, to answer the same, and not to go or depart out of court, or out of this kingdom, without the leave of the said court.

VIII. And to the intent that this act, and the laws heretofore made for encouraging, settling, and securing, or for better securing the lawful trade of his Majesty's subjects to and from the East Indies and parts aforesaid, may more effectually be put in execution; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That a capias in the first process shall and may issue upon any bill, plaint, indictment, or information, commenced, found, filed, or prosecuted for, upon, or by reason of any the offences mentioned in this act, or in any other act or acts made for the encouraging, settling, securing, or better securing the lawful trade of his Majesty's subjects to and from the East Indies and parts aforesaid, or for preventing all or any unlawful trade thereto or therefrom; which capias shall specify the sum of the penalty sued for; and such offender and offenders shall be obliged to give sufficient bail or security by natural-born subjects or denizens, to the person or persons to whom such capias shall be directed, to appear in the court, out of which such capias shall issue at the day of return of such writ, to answer such suit or prosecution; and shall likewise, at the time of such appearing, give sufficient bail or security by such persons as aforesaid, in the said court, to answer and pay all the forfeitures and penalties incurred for such offence and offences, in case he, she, or they shall be convicted thereof, or to yield his, her, or their body or bodies to prison.

IX. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the offence and offences committed or done against this act, or against one act made in the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William, intituled, An act for raising a sum, not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies; or against one other act made in the fifth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for the better securing the lawful trade of his Majesty's subjects to and from the East Indies; and for the more effectual preventing all his Majesty's subjects trading thither under foreign commissions; or against one other act made in the seventh year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for the further preventing his Majesty's subjects from trading to the East Indies under foreign commissions; and for encouraging and further securing the lawful trade thereto; and for further regulating the pilots of Dover, Deal, and the isle of Thanet; shall and may, from and after the fourteenth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, be laid or alledged to be in the city of London or county of Middlesex, at the pleasure of the informer or prosecutor.

X. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act, and also the said acts made in the fifth and seventh years of his said present Majesty's reign, in all and every the clauses, articles, and parts thereof, shall be and be deemed, construed, and adjudged to be publick acts, to all intents and purposes whatsoever: and furthermore, that the said act made in the fifth year of his said Majesty's reign, shall stand, continue, and be in full force and virtue for seven years, to be computed from the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, and from from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer; any thing therein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

XI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid; That in case the said united company shall first inform, sue, or prosecute for any of the offences committed contrary to all or any the laws or statutes made for encouraging, settling, or securing to the said company the lawful trade to and from the East Indies, or for preventing any unlawful trade thereto or therefrom, that then the part, share, and proportion of the penalties and forfeitures otherwise given or appointed, in and by any of the said acts, to any other person or persons that should sue or inform for the same, shall devolve upon, and be to the use of the said united company; although such information, suit, or prosecution be commenced by the said company after the time limited by law for the suit, prosecution, or information of the common informer is elapsed.

XII. Provided always, That if any suit or prosecution shall be commenced upon or by virtue of any of the aforesaid former act or acts, then, and in such case, the offender or offenders shall not be sued or prosecuted upon this act, or any branch or article thereof, except such suit or prosecution be by bill or bills of complaint in the said courts of chancery or exchequer.

C A P. X.

An act for repealing certain duties therein mentioned, payable upon coffee, tea, cocoa nuts, chocolate, and cocoa paste imported; and for granting certain inland duties in lieu thereof; and for prohibiting the importation of chocolate ready made, and cocoa paste; and for better ascertaining the duties payable upon coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts imported; and for granting relief to Robert Dalzell, late earl of Carnwath.

MAY it please your most excellent Majesty, Whereas by an act of parliament made in the sixth year of the reign of his late majesty King William, (of glorious memory) intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty several additional duties upon coffee, tea, chocolate and spices, towards satisfaction of the debts due for transport service for the reduction of Ireland, several additional and other duties and impositions herein-after mentioned were granted to his Majesty for and upon coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, and tea, which should be imported into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, at any time after the first day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and ninety five, and before the second day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and ninety eight, and above all duties before that time payable for the same at the custom-house; that is to say, For every hundred weight of coffee imported as aforesaid, accounting one hundred and twelve pounds to the hundred, fifty six shillings of lawful English money: for every hundred weight of cocoa nuts imported, and containing as aforesaid, from any the plantations belonging to the crown of England, fifty six shillings: for every hundred weight of cocoa nuts imported, and containing as aforesaid, from any other country or place from whence they may by law be imported, four pounds and four shillings of like lawful English money: for every pound of chocolate ready made, imported as aforesaid, one shilling: for every pound of cocoa paste, imported as aforesaid, two shillings: for every pound of tea regularly imported as aforesaid, from whence the same might have been lawfully imported before the making that act, one shilling: for every pound of of tea imported as aforesaid, from Holland or any other country, not the place of its growth or usual shipping, two shillings and sixpence per pound weight; and so proportionably for any greater or lesser quantity of any of the commodities imported as aforesaid, respectively. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the third year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for continuing duties upon low wines, and upon coffee, tea, chocolate, spices, and pictures, and upon hawkers, pedlars, and petty chapmen, and upon mullins; and for granting new duties upon several of the said commodities, and also upon callicoes, china ware, and drugs, several new and additional rates and sums of money herein-after mentioned were granted to her said Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all and all manner of coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, and tea, which should be imported into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, at any time or times after the first day of February, one thousand seven hundred and four, and before the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten, over and above all duties and additional duties before that time payable for the same, or any of them, by any other law then in force, and over and above the duties herein-before mentioned, the new and additional rates and sums of money following; that is to say, For every hundred weight of coffee imported as aforesaid, accounting one hundred and twelve pounds to the hundred, fifty six shillings of lawful English money: for every hundred weight of cocoa nuts imported, and containing as aforesaid, from any the plantations belonging to the crown of England, fifty six shillings: for every hundred weight of cocoa nuts imported, and containing as aforesaid, from any other country or place from whence they may by law be imported, four pounds and four shillings of like lawful English money: for every pound of chocolate ready made and imported as aforesaid, one shilling: for every pound of cocoa paste imported as aforesaid, two shillings: for every pound of tea regularly imported as aforesaid, from whence the same might lawfully have been imported before the making of the said act of the sixth year of his said late Majesty's reign, one shilling: for every pound of tea imported as aforesaid from Holland or any other country, not the place of its growth or usual shipping, two shillings and sixpence; and so proportionably for any greater or lesser quantity of any the commodities imported as aforesaid, respectively: which said several rates and duties herein-before particularly mentioned were, by several acts of parliament, continued and made payable to her said Majesty, her heirs and successors, to the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the seventh year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for enlarging the capital stock of the bank of England, and for raising further supply to her Majesty, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and nine, all the said several rates and duties upon coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, and tea, herein-before particularly mentioned, which should be imported or brought into Great Britain from and after the twenty third day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, should be paid and payable to her said Majesty, her heirs and successors for ever, for the purposes in the said last mentioned act expressed, subject nevertheless to the proviso or condition of redemption in the same act contained relating thereto. And whereas by an act made in the tenth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, among other things for laying additional duties upon hides and skins, vellum and parchment, and new duties on starch, coffee, tea, drugs, gilt and silver wire, several new rates and duties upon all coffee and tea which should be imported or brought into Great Britain, at any time or times within or during the term of thirty years, to be reckoned from the seventeenth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, over and above all other customs, subsidies, and duties imposed upon or payable for the same; that is to say, For all coffee imported as aforesaid, twelve pence for every pound weight averdupois, and proportionably for any greater or lesser quantity: for all kinds of tea imported from any place or places within the limits of the charter granted to the East India company, two lings for every such pound weight; and for all kinds of tea imported from any other place or places, five shillings for every such pound weight, and proportionably for greater or lesser quantities of tea. And whereas by an act made in the third year of your Majesty's reign, amongst other things, for redeeming the duties and revenues which were settled to pay off principal and interest on the orders made forth on four lottery-acts passed in the ninth and tenth years of her said late Majesty's reign, the said last mentioned rates and duties upon coffee and tea are continued and made payable to your Majesty, your heirs and successors for ever, for the purposes in the same act prescribed and directed, subject to such provisos and powers of redemption, as are in and by the same act contained and prescribed of and concerning the same, as by the said several acts, relation being had to them respectively, more at large may appear. And whereas the duties now subsisting upon coffee, tea, cocoa nuts, chocolate, and cocoa paste, are or may be very much lessened, not only by the clandestine importation thereof from parts beyond the seas, but also by the fraudulent relanding of the same after the same have been exported from this kingdom for foreign parts, and the duties thereupon drawn back, without paying any duties for the same, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the several acts relating to the said duties, and to the ruin of the fair traders in the said commodities: for remedy whereof, and for the more effectual securing a revenue to your Majesty, to arise by the said coffee, tea, cocoa nuts, chocolate, and cocoa paste, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do most humbly beseech your Majesty, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, the several duties upon coffee and tea, granted (by the said act of parliament made in the sixth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, and by the said act of parliament made in the third year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, and by the said act of parliament made in the tenth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne) for several terms of years in the said respective acts mentioned, and which have been since continued by several acts of parliament, and made perpetual, (subject to redemption by parliament as aforesaid;) and the several duties upon cocoa nuts, granted (by the said act of the sixth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William, and by the said act of the third year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne) for several terms of years in the same respective acts mentioned, and which have been since continued by several acts of parliament, and made perpetual, (subject to redemption by parliament as aforesaid) shall cease, determine, and be no longer paid or payable; any thing in the before mentioned acts to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, no chocolate ready made, or cocoa paste, shall be imported or brought into Great Britain from any part or parts beyond the seas, upon pain of forfeiting all such chocolate ready made and cocoa paste, which shall be so brought in contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, together with double the value thereof, and the bags, casks, boxes, and other package wherein the same shall be contained.

After 24 June, 1724, no chocolate ready made, or cocoa paste to be imported, on pain of being forfeited.

XIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, no coffee, tea, cocoa nuts, or chocolate, shall be sold, uttered, or exposed to sale, either by wholesale or retail, but when the same shall be in some or one of the said warehouses, storehouses, rooms, shops, cellars, vaults, or other places so entered as aforesaid, or in some or one of the warehouses to be approved of by the commissioners of his Majesty's customs for the

the keeping of coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts, in pursuance of this act, upon pain of forfeiting all such coffee, tea, cocoa nuts, and chocolate, which shall be so sold, uttered, or exposed to sale, when the same shall be in any other place or places than those entered or approved as aforesaid, and treble the value thereof, together with the canisters, bags, jars, tubs, boxes, casks, and other vessels or package whatsoever containing the same.

XV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, where any such coffee, tea, cocoa nuts, or chocolate, shall be sold in any of the said entered places in any quantity above the weight of six pounds, the officer or officers for the inland duties hereby set and imposed, of the respective divisions or places where the same shall be so sold, shall be obliged, and are hereby required from time to time, upon request of the seller or sellers thereof, without fee or reward, to give to the respective buyer or buyers thereof certificates in writing, signed by the respective officer or officers, expressing the quantities so sold, and the name and names of the respective buyers and sellers thereof; and that the duties by this act granted on such coffee, tea, or chocolate so sold, have been paid, or that such cocoa nuts have been duly entered with the officer or officers of his Majesty's customs, or that the same have been condemned as forfeited, or were part of such stock in hand as aforesaid; which certificate shall be left with the officer or officers for the said duties of the respective divisions, to which the same is or are intended to be carried, to satisfy the said officers that no duties are to be answered for the same, that the seizing thereof may be prevented.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, no coffee, tea, cocoa nuts, or chocolate, exceeding the quantity of six pounds weight, shall be removed or carried from any part of this kingdom, by land or by water, without a permit or certificate, signed by one or more of the officers for the said inland duties hereby set and imposed, signifying and certifying the names and places of abode of the buyer and seller, and expressing the quantity and species of the commodity so permitted or certified for, and that his Majesty's inland duties chargeable by this act upon coffee, tea, and chocolate, have been duly paid and satisfied, or that the cocoa nuts have been duly entered as aforesaid, or that the same have been condemned as forfeited, or were part of such stock in hand as aforesaid, upon pain of forfeiting the coffee, tea, cocoa nuts, or chocolate, which shall be found carrying from one place to another without such permit or certificate, together with the canisters, bags, jars, tubs, boxes, casks, and other vessels or package whatsoever containing the same; which permit or certificate shall be left with the officer of the division to which the same shall be carried, to prevent the seizure thereof; in which permits or certificates the officers, who grant the same, shall express and limit the time for which the same shall continue in force.

XXVI. And for the better securing the inland duties by this act granted upon coffee and tea sold to be consumed in this kingdom, and upon chocolate which shall be made and sold in Great Britain, by wholesale or retail, and to the intent that the same may not be too burthensome on the importers of such coffee and tea as shall be exported to parts beyond the seas; it is hereby provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, all such coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts, as shall be imported into the kingdom of Great Britain from any foreign parts, upon the entry thereof at the custom-house, and paying or securing the several subsidies and additional imposts which shall then remain due thereon, shall be forthwith carried or put into such warehouse or warehouses as shall be for that purpose provided at the charge of the respective importer or importers of such coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts, and shall be approved of by the commissioners of his Ma-

His Majesty's customs, or the major part of them for the time being; and the said importer or importers thereof shall have power to garble and separate in such warehouses such coffee and cocoa nuts, as hath been usual, to make it merchantable; and the said coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts so brought into such warehouse or warehouses, shall not be taken or carried out thence upon any account whatsoever, other than as is herein-after mentioned; that is to say, Such of the said coffee and tea as shall be sold to be consumed in Great Britain, shall be delivered out of such warehouse or warehouses, upon payment of his Majesty's duties payable by this act for the same coffee and tea in manner following; that is to say, the importer or proprietor, or such person or persons as shall be appointed by him or her, shall for such coffee and tea which shall remain in such warehouse or warehouses within the cities of London or Westminster, or the weekly bills of mortality, make an entry with the receiver or collector of the said inland duties within the cities of London or Westminster, who shall be appointed to receive the same, of so much coffee or tea as he or she intends to take out of such warehouse, and pay down in ready money to such receiver or collector the respective inland duties by this act granted, amounting in the whole to two shillings for every pound weight of coffee, and four shillings for every pound weight of tea: and in all other places of Great Britain the importer or proprietor, or such person or persons as shall be appointed by him or her, shall make such entries at the office for the said inland duties as shall be appointed for that purpose, which shall be nearest to such warehouse or warehouses appointed as aforesaid, and pay down the said inland duties to the collector appointed to receive the same, and upon producing a warrant or warrants, certificate or certificates, signed by such respective collector or receiver (certifying that he has received the said inland duties by this act granted) to the respective warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, such warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers shall deliver out of such warehouse or warehouses so much coffee or tea, intended for home consumption, as shall be mentioned or expressed in such warrant or warrants, certificate or certificates respectively, to have paid the said inland duties; and the respective warehouse-keeper and warehouse-keepers are thereupon to give to such importers or proprietors a permit or certificate to accompany such coffee or tea so delivered out, which permit or certificate shall be also signed by an officer attending the said warehouse or warehouses, who shall be appointed by the said commissioners for the said inland duties, or the major part of them, to prevent the seizing thereof; and as to such cocoa nuts as shall remain in such warehouse or warehouses, and shall be intended to be taken out of the same, in order to be made into chocolate in this kingdom, an entry thereof shall be first made by the importer or proprietor, or such person or persons as he or she shall appoint, with the respective receiver or collector appointed to receive or collect the said inland duties, as a charge upon such importer or proprietor, and also on the buyer of the same, which said receiver or collector respectively, shall certify such entry to the respective warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers; and upon such certificate the quantity of cocoa nuts mentioned therein, shall be delivered out of such warehouse or warehouses accordingly, with a permit or certificate, signed by the officer for the said inland duties at such warehouse, to be delivered to the officer of the said inland duties by this act granted, of the division or place to which such cocoa nuts are intended to be carried, to the intent that the same officer may take the same into stock; and as to such part of the said coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts, as shall be intended for exportation to parts beyond the seas, the same shall be delivered out of such warehouse or warehouses unto the importers, or such buyers or other persons as such importers shall appoint in that behalf, upon sufficient security to be first given to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, which security the commissioners of the customs for the time being, or such officer or officers of the customs as they, or the major part of them shall from of and for such part of such coffee and tea as is sold to be consumed in Great Britain.

An entry to be made.

The inland duties to be paid down.

On producing to the warehouse-keeper a warrant or certificate of having received the inland duties, such warehouse-keeper to deliver out so much, and to give a permit for so much.

As to cocoa nuts intended to be made into chocolate in this kingdom, the like method to be observed.

Such part of such coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts in such warehouses as is intended to be exported, is to be delivered out upon sufficient security to export and not reland the same.

Such securities to be discharged on certificate.

Coffee, tea, or cocoa nuts imported, not so entered and brought to such warehouse, and the package thereof, and horses employed in carrying thereof, may be seized.

Upon disputes of paying or not paying duties, the proof to lie on the claimer.

Every warehouse keeper to keep a book for entering all brought in and all carried out, and to transmit accounts.

At the end of every six months, or sooner, if required.

from time to time appoint, are hereby required and impowered to take, that the same, and every part thereof, shall be exported, and not relanded in Great Britain, which said securities shall be discharged without fee or reward, upon certificate returned or produced to the commissioners of the customs, or such officer or officers as aforesaid, under the common seal of the chief magistrate in any place or places beyond the seas, or under the hands and seals of two known British merchants then being at such place or places, that such coffee, tea, or cocoa nuts were there landed, or upon proof by credible persons, that such coffee, tea, or cocoa nuts were taken by enemies, or perished in the seas, the examination and proof thereof being left to the judgment of the said commissioners of the customs for the time being.

XXVII. And, for preventing all clandestine importing or bringing in of coffee, tea, or cocoa nuts into this kingdom of Great Britain, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, shall import or bring any coffee, tea, or cocoa nuts (which ought to be secured in such warehouse as aforesaid) into Great Britain, and shall not make due entries thereof, and bring the same into the said warehouse or warehouses as aforesaid, the same shall be and is hereby adjudged to be clandestinely run, and unlawfully imported, and the same shall and may be seized by any officer or officers of the customs, or for the said inland duties hereby granted; and such person or persons, or bodies politick or corporate offending therein, shall forfeit and lose all the coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts so clandestinely run, or unlawfully imported, together with the canisters, bags, casks, or other vessels or things containing the same, and the horses, carts, and other carriages made use of in the carrying of the same.

XXVIII. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any dispute shall arise whether the customs or inland duties payable for any coffee or tea, or the customs for any cocoa nuts, which shall be seized in pursuance of this act, have been duly paid, or that the same or any part thereof have been condemned as forfeited, the proof thereof shall lie upon the owner or claimer thereof, or the person or persons on whom the same shall be found, and not on the officer.

XXIX. And, for preventing the clandestine carrying the said coffee, tea, or cocoa nuts out of the said warehouses, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the keeper or keepers of the said warehouse and warehouses who shall be appointed by the commissioners of his Majesty's customs, and the person or persons, who shall be appointed by the commissioners of the said inland duties granted by this act to attend the said respective warehouses shall each of them keep one or more book or books, wherein they shall respectively and separately fairly enter in writing an exact, particular, and true account of all coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts, which from time to time shall be brought into and carried out of the respective warehouse or warehouses to which he or they shall respectively belong, and the days and times when the same shall be so brought in and carried out, and how much thereof was delivered out to be consumed and spent in Great Britain, and how much for exportation, and the names of the respective person or persons to whom or for whose use the same was delivered out, and shall at the end of every six months, or oftner, if required, transmit in writing an account thereof upon oath to the respective commissioners of the customs, and for the said inland duties hereby granted for the time being, under whom they respectively serve, together with an exact account of how much shall be remaining in the respective warehouse or warehouses to which they respectively belong, and the said commissioners of the customs, and the commissioners for the said inland duties, severally and respectively are hereby required and enjoined, within one month after the same shall be respectively transmitted to them as aforesaid, to appoint one or more person or persons to inspect the said respective respective book or books, warehouse or warehouses, and to examine the same accounts, and if upon examination it shall appear that any of the said coffee, tea, or cocoa nuts, were delivered out otherwise than as aforesaid, or before payment of his Majesty's inland duties for such of the said coffee and tea as shall have been sold to be consumed in Great Britain, or giving such security as aforesaid for such of the said coffee or tea which shall be delivered out for exportation as aforesaid, then the warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, and officer or officers respectively offending therein, shall not only be disabled to hold or enjoy any publick office or employment, but shall also forfeit and lose, for every such offence, the sum of one hundred pounds.

XXX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the proprietor or proprietors of the said coffee, tea, or cocoa nuts, so to be lodged in any such warehouse or warehouses as aforesaid, to affix one lock to every such warehouse, the key of which shall remain in the custody of such proprietor or proprietors, and to and for the officer or officers to be appointed by the said commissioners for the said inland duties to attend such warehouse or warehouses, to affix one other lock upon every such warehouse or warehouses, the key whereof to remain in the custody of the said officer for the said inland duties; and the said proprietor and proprietors shall and may, in the presence of the said warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, and officer or officers appointed for the said inland duties, (who are hereby obliged to attend at all reasonable times for that purpose) view, sort, and receive out of the said warehouse or warehouses, the said coffee, tea, or cocoa nuts, or any part thereof, in manner following; that is to say, such of the said coffee or tea which shall be sold to be consumed in Great Britain, upon paying the inland duties hereby charged thereon, to the persons and in the manner herein before prescribed; and such of the said cocoa nuts as are intended to be made into chocolate in Great Britain, upon making an entry thereof in the manner before prescribed, and giving permits and certificates as is before directed; and such of the said coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts as shall be sold for exportation, upon giving such security as is before in that behalf expressed.

XL. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, any person or persons whatsoever shall assault, resist, oppose, molest, obstruct, or hinder any officer or officers of the customs, or for the duties by this act granted, in the due seizing or securing of any coffee, tea, cocoa nuts or chocolate which by any officer or officers of the customs, or for the duties hereby granted, shall or may be seized by virtue or in pursuance of this or any other act or acts now in force, or hereafter to be made, or shall by force or violence rescue, or shall cause to be rescued, any of the said commodities after the same shall have been seized by such officer or officers as aforesaid, or shall attempt or endeavour so to do, or after such seizure shall stove, break, or otherwise destroy or damage any vessels or package, wherein the same shall be contained, all and every the party or parties so offending shall, for every such offence, forfeit and lose the sum of fifty pounds.

XLI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all fines and penalties, and all forfeitures, as well specifick as pecuniary, relating to the inland duties by this act imposed, or to the commodities hereby prohibited to be imported, or to any seizures made in pursuance of this act, shall be sued for, levied, and recovered, or mitigated, by such ways, means, and methods, as any fine, penalty, and forfeiture is or may be recovered or mitigated by any law or laws relating to his Majesty's revenues of excise, or any of them, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, for any thing done in that part of Great Britain called England, or the court of Exchequer at Edinburgh, for any thing done in that part of Great Britain called Scotland;

If upon examining such accounts, it shall appear, that any such coffee, &c. has been unduly delivered out, such warehouse-keeper to be incapable of any office, and to forfeit 100l.

Proprietor of such coffee, and such warehouse-keeper, each to have a lock and key.

Warehouse-keeper to attend at reasonable times.

For assaulting, &c. officer, &c. or for rescuing, destroying, or damaging coffee, &c. seized.

Penalty 50l.

All penalties and forfeitures, as well specifick as pecuniary, to be sued for, &c. as by the laws of excise, one moiety to the crown, the other to the informers.

and that one moiety of every such fine, penalty, and forfeiture, shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to him or them that shall seize, inform, and sue for the same.

General issue.

Treble costs.

The old subsidy on imported tea, to be according to the reduced value.

Imported coffee rated at 7l. per hundred weight, cocoa nuts at 50s. per hundred weight.

The former customs still remaining on coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts, to be still paid, &c. according to the former acts.

XLIV. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be sued, molested, or prosecuted, for any thing done by virtue or in pursuance of this act, such person or persons shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence in his defence, and if afterwards a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff shall discontinue his action, or be nonsuited, or judgment shall be given against him upon demurrer or otherwise, then such defendant or defendants shall have treble costs to him or them awarded against such plaintiff.

XLVII. And whereas by law the several subsidies and additional impost, payable upon tea imported from any place within the limits of the East India company's charter, are to be computed according to the gross price at which such tea is publicly sold by auction or inch of candle, after the deduction of the customs, and other duties payable thereon to his Majesty at importation, and other deductions, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all tea imported or to be imported as aforesaid, shall, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, pay the old subsidy of twelve pence in the pound, granted by an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, according to the reduced value thereof, after the deductions before mentioned, and the several other subsidies and additional impost upon tea are to be paid on the importation thereof, according to such reduced value proportionably; any thing herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XLVIII. And whereas the several subsidies and additional impost upon coffee and cocoa nuts imported, are by law charged according to the value at which such coffee and cocoa nuts are sworn by the importers, which by experience has been found to be very unequal, some persons valuing the same at far lower prices than others, to the detriment of the revenue, and the discouragement of fair traders: for remedy thereof for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, all coffee imported shall be rated at seven pounds, for every hundred weight, containing one hundred and twelve pounds, and all cocoa nuts imported shall be rated at fifty shillings for every hundred weight, containing one hundred and twelve pounds; and the subsidy of twelve pence in the pound, by the said act of the twelfth year of the reign of his said late majesty King Charles the Second, shall be paid according to such respective rates of seven pounds and fifty shillings, and the further subsidy, the one third and two third subsidies, and additional impost, shall be paid according to such rates respectively, and not according to the value sworn; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

XLIX. And whereas, over and above the inland duties by this act charged upon coffee and tea imported, and upon chocolate made in this kingdom, the several duties hereafter mentioned are by law still payable at the custom-house upon and for coffee, tea, and cocoon nuts imported, that is to say, the old subsidy, the new subsidy, the one third and the two third subsidies, and the additional impost; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said several subsidies and additional impost, shall be paid or secured, and shall be raised, levied, and collected, in such manner and form, and by such ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, with such discounts, allowances, and drawbacks as are mentioned and expressed in the several acts of parliament which granted or continued the said respective subsidies and additional impost; and all powers, penalties, provisions, articles, and clauses therein contained, shall continue and be of full force and effect, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for the raising, levying, collecting, securing, abating, in ing and paying the said respective duties, as fully and effectually to all intents and purposes, as the same might and ought to have been in case this act had never been made; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

L. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this act contained shall give or grant, or extend, or be construed to give or grant any power, authority or licence to any person or persons whatsoever, to import any tea into any of his Majesty's dominions, but such only as could by law import the same, and in such manner as the same could be lawfully imported before the making of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Not to give any new powers to import tea.

An act to prevent multiplicity of prosecutions upon an act made in the eleventh and twelfth years of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for the more effectual employing the poor, by encouraging the manufactures of this kingdom.

WHEREAS by an act made in the eleventh and twelfth years of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third of glorious memory, intituled, An act for the more effectual employing the poor, by encouraging the manufactures of this kingdom, it is, amongst other things enacted, That all wrought silks, bengals, and stuffs mixed with silk or Herba of the manufacture of Persia, China, or East-India, and all callicoes painted, dyed, printed or stained there, whether the same shall be mixed, sewed or made up together for sale, with any other goods or materials, or otherwise, which from and after the twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and one, shall be found in any house, shop or warehouse, or other place whatsoever (other than in such warehouses, as shall be approved of by the commissioners of his Majesty's customs) shall be forfeited, and subject and liable to be searched for and seized; in which said act it is provided, that the powers therein shall not extend to any such silks, bengals, stuffs or callicoes which shall have been made up and used in any sort of apparel or furniture before the said twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and one: and whereas several persons have, since the said twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and one, inadvertently made up and used the said prohibited goods in furniture and household-stuff, believing the act extended to apparel only, and thereby have subjected themselves to the penalties of the said act: for remedy whereof, and preventing the numberless prosecutions that might happen from such inadvertency, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said recited act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend to any silks, bengals or stuffs mixed with silk or Herba, or painted, dyed, printed or stained callicoes, manufactured in Persia, China or East-India, which were made up, or used in furniture or household-stuff before the twenty fifth day of December one thousand seven hundred and twenty two; any thing in the said recited act, or any other act or acts of parliament to the contrary notwithstanding.

An act for rating such unrated goods and merchandizes as are usually imported into this kingdom, and pay a duty ad valorem upon the oath of the importer and for ascertaining the value of all goods and merchandizes not inserted in the former or present book of rates; and for repealing certain duties upon drugs and rags; and for continuing the duty upon apples; and for ascertaining the method of admeasuring of pictures imported.

Most gracious Sovereign,

12 Car. 2. c. 4.

WHEREAS by the act of tonnage and poundage made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, a subsidy called poundage was laid upon all manner of goods and merchandizes of every merchant, natural born subject, denizen and alien, to be brought into this realm, or any the minions to the same belonging, by way of merchandize, of the value of every twenty shillings of the same goods and merchandizes, according to the several and particular rates and values of the same goods and merchandizes, as the same are particularly and respectively rated and valued in the book of rates therein mentioned and referred unto (subscribed with the hand of Sir Harbottle Grimstone, baronet, then speaker of the house of commons) twelve pence, and so after that rate; in which book of rates it is provided, That if there should happen to be brought into this realm any goods liable to the payment of custom and subsidy, which either were omitted in the said book, or were not then used to be brought in, or by reason of the great diversity of the value of some goods could not be rated; that in such case every customer or collector for the time being should levy the said custom and subsidy of poundage according to the value and price of such goods, to be affirmed upon the oath of the merchant in the presence of the customer, collector, comptroller and surveyor, or any two of them: and whereas a further subsidy of poundage of twelve pence in the pound, was granted to his majesty King William the Third (of glorious memory) for his life, by an act made in the ninth year of his reign, upon all goods and merchandizes imported (except such as are therein excepted) which further subsidy was again granted to her late majesty Queen Anne for her life, by an act made in the first year of her reign; and the said further subsidy was again granted to his present Majesty for his life (which God long preserve) by an act made in the first year of his Majesty's reign, with the like provision with respect to any goods imported that were not rated in the said book of rates, as was made touching the like goods liable to the first mentioned subsidy of twelve pence in the pound, granted by the said act made in the twelfth year of King Charles the Second: and whereas by act made in the second year of her said late Majesty another subsidy of poundage was granted upon all goods and merchandizes imported (except as therein is excepted) commonly called the one third subsidy; and by an act passed in the third year of her said late Majesty another subsidy of poundage was granted upon all goods and merchandizes imported (except as therein is excepted) commonly called the two thirds subsidy; which said several subsidies of one third and two thirds are, by the respective acts which granted and continued the same, to be paid in proportion to the said further subsidy granted by the said act of the ninth year of the reign of King William the Third, and since continued during his present Majesty's life as aforesaid: and whereas by an act made in second year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, an imposition (commonly called the old impost) was laid on several goods and merchandizes therein mentioned, and it is provided, That where any duties upon goods and merchandizes therein granted are to be levied according to the value of the same, where such goods or merchandizes are particularly rated in the said book of rates, the value shall be understood and taken according to such rate, and where they are not particularly rated, the value shall be taken by and according to the oath of the importer, and not otherwise (the duties imposed by the said act not to be reckoned into the value of the same:) and whereas by an act made in the fourth year of the reign of their said late Majesties, an additional impost was laid upon several goods and merchandizes therein mentioned according as the same stood rated in the said book of rates, and also upon all goods and merchandizes imported not particularly rated in the said book of rates, paying duty at value, five pounds for every one hundred pounds value thereof, to be affirmed upon the oath of the importer according to the direction of the said book of rates (except mum, and such goods and merchandizes as were particularly charged by the said act of the fourth year of their said late majesties, or by the said act of the second year of their said late Majesties reign:) and whereas by an act made in the seventh year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, an additional duty of twenty five pounds per centum ad valorem was laid upon all goods of the growth, product or manufacture of France imported (other than those particularly rated) to be raised, levied, collected and paid by such rules, means and ways as are mentioned in the said act of tonnage and poundage made in the twelfth year of his said late majesty King Charles

12 Car. 2. c. 4.

3 Ann. c. 9.

Charles the Second: and whereas by an act made in the third year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, a further duty was granted after the rate of four pounds for every one hundred pounds value, for and upon all unrated drugs (dying drugs excepted) that should be imported from any parts or places (other than the East-Indies, Persia, China, and other parts within the limits of the charters granted to the East-India company) and that the values of such unrated drugs should be affirmed by the oaths of the importers of such drugs respectively; all which acts, which granted the said several subsidies, commonly called the old subsidy, the one third subsidy and two thirds subsidy (except the said further subsidy, which is granted to his Majesty during his life) as also the said impositions, additional duty on French goods, and the farther duty upon unrated drugs, are by several subsequent acts of parliament continued for ever, subject to redemption by parliament: and whereas it has been found by experience, that the values of the several sorts of goods usually imported, and not rated in the said book of rates, which are sworn to or affirmed by the importers, according to which the said subsidies and other duties are to be paid, have been very unequal, some persons greatly undervaluing the same, to the detriment of the revenue and discouragement of the fair traders: now (for remedying the abuses aforesaid, and for putting trade on a more equal foot) we your faithful commons in parliament assembled do beseech your Majesty, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the several provisions and clauses contained in the said recited acts and book of rates before mentioned, for ascertaining the value of goods or merchandizes imported according to the oaths or affirmations of the importers, so far as the same relate to the particular goods and merchandizes mentioned and expressed in a certain book of rates herein after mentioned and referred unto, shall, from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty-five, be and are hereby repealed and made void.

Provisions for rating goods ad valorem repealed after 25 March 1725.

In lieu thereof, the old subsidy to be paid according to the additional book of rates signed by Spencer Compton, esq; speaker.

12 Car. 2. c. 4.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in lieu of the said former rates and duties ad valorem, repealed by this act, there shall, from and after the said five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, be payable and paid for the said old subsidy the several rates and duties mentioned and expressed in one book of rates, intituled, An additional book of rates of goods and merchandizes usually imported and not particularly rated in the book of rates referred to in the act of tonnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, with rules, orders and regulations, signed by the right honourable Spencer Compton, esquire, speaker of the honourable house of commons, the said rates and duties to be paid upon importation of the said goods and merchandizes respectively into any port or place within this kingdom, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity; which said last mentioned book of rates, composed and agreed on by your Majesty's said commons, and every article, rule and clause therein contained, shall be and remain, during the continuance of the said first recited act of tonnage and poundage, of full force, and shall be put in execution as fully and effectually to all intents and purposes, as if the same were particularly inserted in the body of this present act.

Goods liable to the further subsidy, &c. to pay according to the values in the said book of rates.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where any of the said goods or merchandizes mentioned in the said book of rates are by law subject or liable to the payment of the said further subsidy, the one third subsidy, the two thirds subsidy, the old impost, the additional impost, the additional duty on French goods, and the further duty on unrated drugs, or any of them, according to the respective values set thereon for the said old subsidy, or in proportion thereto, the same shall, from and after the said five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred hundred and twenty five, be paid proportionably according to the particular value set thereon in the said book of rates last mentioned for the old subsidy aforesaid, and not according to the oath or affirmation of the importer; any thing in the respective acts which granted the said duties, or in any other acts to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. And whereas by an act made in the tenth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne (for laying several duties upon all sope and paper made in Great Britain, or imported into the same, and for other purposes therein mentioned) a new duty, after the rate of twenty pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value, was laid upon all paper, white or brown, or of any other colour or kind whatsoever, which should be imported or brought into this kingdom (not being particularly charged in that act) and by another act made in the twelfth year of the reign of her said late Majesty, a further new duty, after the rate of ten pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value, was laid on the like sorts of unrated paper imported, the said values of such paper in the two acts last mentioned to be taken to be so much as such imported kinds are really worth to be sold at the port of importation, without any abatement for the duties charged by the said acts, or any former acts, the said new duties, so payable ad valorem, to be received and levied upon the oath or affirmation of the merchant or importer; which said acts are by subsequent acts continued for ever, subject to redemption by parliament: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty five the said several acts of parliament made in the tenth and twelfth years of the reign of her said late Majesty, so far as they relate to the levying the said respective new duties of twenty pounds per centum, and ten pounds per centum, on all paper, white or brown, or of any other colour, imported, not particularly charged in the said acts, according to such valuations thereof upon the oath or affirmation of the merchant or importer, shall be and are hereby repealed, and instead thereof the said new duties of twenty pounds per centum and ten pounds per centum, so payable ad valorem, shall be answered, levied and paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, over and above the subsidies and other duties on unrated paper, for and towards the fund granted by the said acts of the tenth and twelfth years of her said late Majesty, and during the continuance thereof, according to the respective rates and values for and upon the several kinds and sorts of unrated paper mentioned and expressed in a certain book of rates before-mentioned, signed by the right honourable Spencer Compton, esquire, speaker of the honourable house of commons, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity, as fully and effectually as if the said rates and values, and the clauses and rules relating thereunto, were inserted in the body of this present act; any thing in the said acts of the tenth and twelfth years of her said late Majesty, or in any other acts to the contrary notwithstanding.

10 Ann. c. 19.

12 Ann. ft. 2. c. 9.

Acts 10 & 12 Ann relating to unrated paper, repealed, and such paper to pay according to the values in the said book of rates.

V. And for the more equal payment of the said several duties upon unrated paper imported or brought into this kingdom from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty five; be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That if any new sorts or kinds of paper shall be imported, which are not particularly valued or rated in the said respective books of rates, or in any act or acts of parliament, such paper or papers shall pay the several and respective duties that are charged thereon according to the values and rates of those sorts or kinds of papers, which are nearest above in size and goodness to the several sorts or kinds of papers valued or rated in the said respective books of rates, or by this or any former act or acts of parliament, without any distinctions of country or place from whence the same shall be imported; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

New sorts of paper imported, to pay according to the values of those nearest above in size and goodness.

VI. And

How the several subsidies on unrated goods are to be raised.

VI. And be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the several subsidies, impositions, duties, new duties, and further new duties upon the said several sorts of unrated goods, shall be paid or secured, and shall be raised, levied and collected in such manner and form, and by such ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such discounts, allowances and drawbacks as are mentioned and expressed in the several acts of parliament which granted or continued the same respectively; and all powers, penalties, provisions, articles and clauses therein contained (except in such cases where any alteration is by this act made) shall continue in full force and effect during the continuance of the said respective subsidies, impositions and other duties, and new duties, and shall be applied, practised and executed for the raising, levying, collecting, securing, answering, paying and appropriating the said respective subsidies, impositions and other duties according to the true intent and meaning of this present act, as fully and effectually to all intents and purposes, as if the said clauses, matters and things (except as aforesaid) had been again repeated in the body of this present act; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

How goods not rated in the books of rates are to pay.

VII. And whereas it may happen that several goods and merchandizes may be imported, which are omitted to be rated in either of the said books of rates; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in such case the value and price of such goods and merchandizes shall be ascertained by the oath or affirmation of the merchant, in the presence of the customer, collector, comptroller and surveyor, or any two of them, and the old subsidy, and other duties which are payable in proportion to the said old subsidy, are to be paid according to such value and price.

Proper officer may examine goods paying ad valorem, and if not valued to the true price, may warehouse the goods for the use of the crown, and to pay to the importer the value sworn to, with the customs paid, and 10 l. per cent. over.

VIII. And the better to prevent frauds to the revenue, and that all merchants may be upon a more equal foot in trade, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the collector and comptroller, or other proper officers of the customs, to open, view and examine such goods and merchandizes paying duty ad valorem, and compare the same with the value and price thereof so sworn to or affirmed; and if upon such view and examination it shall appear, that such goods or merchandizes are not valued by such oath or affirmation according to the true value and price thereof, according to the true intent and meaning of this or any other act or acts of parliament, that then and in such case the importer or proprietor shall, on demand made in writing by the customer or collector, and comptroller of the port where such goods or merchandizes are entred, deliver or cause to be delivered all such goods and merchandizes into his Majesty's warehouse at the port of importation, for the use and benefit of the crown; and upon such delivery the customer or collector of such port, with the privity of the comptroller, shall, out of any money in his hands, arising by customs or other duties belonging to the crown, pay to such importer or proprietor the value of such goods and merchandizes so sworn to or affirmed for the said old subsidy as aforesaid, together with an addition of the customs and other duties paid for such goods, and of ten pounds per centum over and above the value thereof, taking a receipt for the same from such importer or proprietor, in full satisfaction for the said goods, as if they had been regularly sold; and the respective commissioners of the customs shall cause the said goods to be fairly and publickly sold for the best advantage; and out of the produce thereof the money so paid or advanced as aforesaid shall be repaid to such collector, to be replaced to such funds from whence he borrowed the same, and the overplus (if any) shall be paid into his Majesty's exchequer towards the sinking fund; any law, custom or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

10 Ann. c. 26. sect. 32.

IX. And whereas by an act made in the tenth year of her said late Majesty Queen Anne, (for laying additional duties on hides and skins, vellum and parchment)

ment, and new duties on starch, coffee, tea, and drugs, and for other purposes therein mentioned) a duty was granted after the rate of twenty pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value of all kinds of drugs imported, (dying drugs imported from foreign parts, and turpentine imported from the British plantations excepted) over and above all other customs, subsidies, and duties imposed upon or payable for the same: And whereas it has been found by experience, that the laying the said additional duty of twenty pounds per centum on the said drugs has not answered the intention thereof, the said duty being so excessive high, that the fair merchant cannot import the said drugs, which gives opportunity to run the same clandestinely, to the prejudice of the revenue, be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said additional duty of twenty pounds per centum upon drugs, payable by virtue of the said last mentioned act, shall, from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, cease, determine, and be no longer payable; any thing in the said act, or in any other acts, to the contrary notwithstanding.

The additional duty 10 Ann. on drugs, to cease after 25 Mar. 1725.

X. And for the encouragement of the making of paper in this kingdom, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, it shall and may be lawful to import into this kingdom any old rags, old ropes or junks, or old fishing nets, fit only for the making of paper or pastboard, without paying any subsidy, custom, imposition, or other duty for the same, so as a due entry be first made thereof in the custom-house belonging to the port into which the same shall be imported, in the same manner and form, expressing the quantities and qualities of the said goods as was used and practised before the making of this act, and so as the same be landed in the presence of the proper officer or officers appointed for that purpose; and on failure of such conditions such goods shall be liable to forfeiture, and shall and may be seized and prosecuted, and the value thereof divided, as if this act had never been made; any law, statute, usage, or provision to the contrary notwithstanding.

No duty on old rags imported.

XI. And whereas by an act of parliament made and passed in the eighth year of his present Majesty's reign, (for paying off and cancelling one million of Exchequer bills, and for other purposes therein mentioned) an additional duty of two shillings for every bushel was laid upon all apples imported after the feast day of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, to continue during the term of three years, and until the end of the next session of parliament next following the said term of three years, which term being near expired, and it being found necessary to continue the same for a further term of years; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said additional duty of two shillings for every bushel of apples imported, shall be further continued, from and after the expiration of the term and time aforesaid, for and during the term of seven years; and the said act so made in the eighth year of his Majesty, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, (for or concerning the said additional duty on apples imported) shall continue and be in force, and be applied, practised, and executed, for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said additional duty upon apples imported, as fully to all intents and purposes, as if all and every the clauses, matters, and things in the said act, so far as the same relates to the additional duty on apples imported, had been again repeated and enacted in the body of this present act; any thing in the said act, or in any other act, to the contrary notwithstanding.

8 Geo. 1. c. 10. Additional duty on apples imported, continued for seven years. Revised 10 Geo. 2. c. 27.

XII. And whereas by an act of parliament made and passed in the eighth year of his Majesty's reign, it is (amongst other things) enacted, That, from and after the feast day of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, there shall be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for all pictures which shall be imported into Great Britain, the certain duties following, according to the respective dimensions of such pictures; that is to say, For every picture of four feet square or upwards, or of any dimensions which being reduced will produce a square of four feet or upwards, the sum of three pounds; for every picture of two feet square, and under four feet square, the sum of forty shillings; and for every picture under two feet square, the sum of twenty shillings: and whereas some doubts have arisen as to the reducing pictures to the said several squares of four feet and two feet; for obviating and preventing such doubts for the future, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all pictures, which from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, shall be imported into Great Britain, shall be measured and reduced to superficial measure, that is to say, every picture, which being reduced will produce a square of four feet or upwards, shall be a picture that shall contain sixteen superficial feet or upwards, and shall pay the said sum of three pounds; every picture of two feet square, and under four feet square, shall, when reduced, produce four superficial feet or upwards, and under sixteen superficial feet, and shall pay the said sum of forty shillings; and every picture under two feet square shall be a picture which, when reduced, shall produce less than four superficial feet, and shall pay the sum of twenty shillings; any thing in the said act of the eighth year of his Majesty's reign, or any other law, usage, or custom to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

An ADDITIONAL BOOK of RATES of goods and merchandizes usually imported, and not particularly rated in the book of rates referred to in the act of tunnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second: with rules, orders, and regulations, signed by the right honourable Spencer Compton, esquire, speaker of the honourable house of commons.

ANY of the rates aforesaid, or any thing contained in this additional book of rates, is not to extend to alter the method prescribed by law for ascertaining the values upon such unrated goods, wares and merchandizes imported, as are of the growth, product, or manufacture of the East-Indies, China, or other the parts within the limits of the charters granted to the united company of merchants of England trading to the East-Indies: Or,

To the charging any duty upon such sort of wood, plank or timber, wrought or unwrought, or any of the goods called lumber, which are to be imported, duty-free, by virtue of the act made in the eighth year of his present Majesty's reign, on the conditions therein mentioned, during the continuance of the said act: Or,

To the charging any duty upon such drugs, or other goods used in dying, which are to be imported duty-free, by virtue of another act made in the eighth year of his present Majesty's reign, on the conditions therein mentioned:

And whereas it may happen, that several goods and merchandizes may be imported, which are omitted to be rated in the book of rates made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, or in this additional book of rates, or in some particular act of parliament, in such case, the value and price of such goods and merchandizes for the old subsidy (other than of those of India, Persia, or China) shall be ascertained by the oath or affirmation of the merchant.

in the presence of the customer, collector, comptroller and surveyor, or any two of them; and the better to prevent frauds, and that all merchants may be upon an equal foot in trade, the collector and comptroller, or other proper officers of the customs, may open, view and examine such goods and merchandizes paying duty ad valorem, and compare the same with the value and price thereof so sworn to or affirmed; and if upon such view and examination it shall appear, that such goods or merchandizes are not valued by such oath or affirmation, according to the true value and price thereof, according to the true intent and meaning hereof, that then and in such case the importer or proprietor shall, on demand made in writing by the customer or collector and comptroller of the port where such goods or merchandizes are entered, deliver, or cause to be delivered, all such goods and merchandizes into his Majesty's warehouse at the port of importation, for the use and benefit of the crown; and, upon such delivery, the customer or collector of such port, with the privity of the comptroller, shall, out of any money in the hands of such customer or collector, arising by customs or other duties belonging to the crown, pay to such importer or proprietor the value of such goods and merchandizes so sworn to or affirmed, for the said old subsidy as aforesaid, together with an addition of the customs and other duties paid for such goods, and of ten pounds per centum to such value, taking a receipt for the same from such importer or proprietor, in full satisfaction for the said goods, as if they had been regularly sold; and the respective commissioners of the customs shall cause the said goods to be fairly and publicly sold for the best advantage, and out of the produce thereof, the money so paid or advanced as aforesaid shall be repaid to such customer or collector, with the privity of the comptroller, to be replaced to such funds from whence the same was borrowed, and the overplus (if any) shall be paid into his Majesty's exchequer, towards the sinking fund, by the title of unrated goods imported undervalued.

C A P. XXIX.

An act to continue several acts therein mentioned for preventing frauds committed by bankrupts; for encouraging the silk manufactures of this kingdom; for preventing the clandestine running of goods; for making copper ore of the British plantations an enumerated commodity; and for explaining and amending a late act for more effectual punishment of such as shall wilfully burn or destroy ships.

Act 8 Geo. 1.
c. 15. for encouraging silk manufactures.
continued for 3 years, &c.
Farther continued by 26 Geo. 2. c.
32.

Two last clauses in an act 9 Geo. 1.
c. 8. to be in force.

SECT. I. AND be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the
II. several clauses for encouragement of the silk manufactures of this kingdom, and for taking off several duties on merchandizes exported, contained in an act made in the eighth year of his Majesty's reign for encouragement of the silk manufactures of this kingdom, and for taking off several duties on merchandizes exported, and for other purposes therein mentioned, which said clauses were to have continuance for three years from the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two and to the end of the then next session of parliament, shall be and are hereby continued from the expiration thereof for and during the space of three years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament.
III. And be it enacted, That the two last clauses (for the more effectual preventing frauds and abuses in the said manufactures) contained in an act made in the ninth year of his Majesty's reign, for continuing some laws and reviving others, and for other purposes therein mentioned, shall be in full force, and shall be put in execution accordingly.

IV. A

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That an act made in the eighth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act to prevent the clandestine running of goods, and the danger of infection thereby, and to prevent ships breaking their quarentine, and to subject copper ore of the production of the British plantations to such regulations as other enumerated commodities of the like production are subject, which act was to continue in force for two years, from the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, shall be and is hereby continued, from the expiration thereof, for and during the space of three years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, except so much of the same act as relates to ships or vessels performing quarentine.

A^d 8 Geo. 1. c. 18. to prevent running of goods, continued for three years, &c. Farther continued by 21 Geo. 2. c. 33.

Exception.

Anno undecimo

GEORGE I. Regis.

C A P. XXX.

An act for more effectual preventing frauds and abuses in the publick revenues; for preventing frauds in the salt duties, and for giving relief for salt used in the curing of salmon and codfish, in the year one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, exported from that part of Great Britain called Scotland; for enabling the insurance companies to plead the general issue in actions brought against them; and for securing the stamp-duties upon policies of insurance.

SECT. V. AND be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, no dealer in tea, or manufacturer or dyer thereof, or pretending so to be, shall counterfeit or adulterate tea, or cause or procure the same to be counterfeited or adulterated, or shall alter, fabricate, or manufacture tea with Terra Japonica, or with any drug or drugs whatsoever, nor shall mix, or cause or procure to be mixed with tea any leaves, other than leaves of tea, or other ingredients whatsoever, on pain of forfeiting and losing the tea so counterfeited, adulterated, altered, fabricated, manufactured, or mixed, and other thing or things whatsoever added thereto, or mixed or used therewith, and also the sum of one hundred pounds.

Adulterating tea, forfeits it, and 100l.

VIII. And whereas great quantities of tea imported into Flanders, Holland, and other parts beyond the seas, directly from the East Indies by foreigners, are from thence imported into this kingdom on pretence that such tea was formerly exported from hence, to the great prejudice of the trade and navigation of this kingdom, and to the great discouragement and loss of the fair importers of the said commodity from the place of its growth; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, no tea whatsoever shall be imported into this kingdom from any place whatsoever, other than from the place of its growth, although the same may have been formerly exported from hence, or upon any other pretence whatsoever, on pain of forfeiture of all such tea; one moiety whereof shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the use of such person and persons as shall seize and sue for the same; any law, statute, custom, or usage to the contrary whatsoever notwithstanding.

No tea to be imported but from the place of its growth.

X. And whereas several dealers in brandy, arrack, rum, spirits, and strong waters, coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts, in order to secure quantities of the said commodities, which have been clandestinely imported without paying any of the duties by law charged thereupon, from being seized, as forfeited for such clandestine importation thereof, do frequently take out permits from the officer or officers for

Penalty for taking out permits, and not sending away the commodities in the time limited, or not returning the permits, treble the value.

If there does not appear a sufficient decrease to answer the removal, officer to seize a like quantity of the brandy, &c.

No permit for removal, but by direction of him from whose stock commodities are to be removed,

Penalty 50 l. or imprisonment.

Concealing goods liable to duties, forfeits the goods, and treble value.

the said duties upon coffee, tea, and chocolate, brandy, arrack, rum, spirits and strong waters, for the removing of the said commodities from one place to another, but in reality do not remove the commodities from the respective places they are authorized by such permit to remove the same to the respective places they are by such permit authorized to carry the same commodities unto, but make use of such permits for securing the like quantity of commodities mentioned in such permits, which have been clandestinely imported, from being seized, as forfeited for such clandestine importation; for remedy whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, if any person or persons whatsoever shall take out any permit or permits from the officers employed in the said duties, or any of them, for removing of any of the said commodities from one place to another; and if, within the times limited in such permit or permits respectively, the party or parties, by or for whom such permit or permits shall be so taken out, shall not either actually and really send away all the commodities by such permit or permits authorized thereby to be sent away, pursuant to the true intent and meaning thereof, or in default of so sending away such commodities, shall not, before the expiration of the time limited in and by such permit and permits, respectively, return such permit and permits to the officer or officers from whom the same was had; then, and in every such respective case and cases, the person or persons taking out such permit or permits, or for whose use such permit or permits shall be taken out, shall, for every gallon of brandy, arrack, rum, spirits and strong waters, and for every pound weight of coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts, mentioned in such permit or permits, and not removed according to the purport thereof, forfeit and lose treble the value thereof, to be estimated according to the highest rate of the like commodities at the time when such forfeiture shall be incurred; and if such permit or permits are not so returned, as aforesaid, and in case, upon taking an account by any of the officers for the said duties upon brandy, arrack, rum, spirits and strong waters, and for the said inland duties of the stock of the coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts, remaining in the hands or custody of the person or persons, from or out of whose stock the commodities, mentioned in such permit or permits, as aforesaid, are thereby authorized to be removed, there shall not appear a sufficient decrease to answer the removal of the commodities mentioned in such permit or permits, as aforesaid, respectively; then, and in such case, the respective person or persons, from or out of whose stock the said commodities mentioned in the said permit or permits shall be authorized to be removed, shall forfeit and lose the like quantities of the respective commodities, so permitted to be removed, and not removed according to such permission, to be seized and taken by the officers for the said respective duties, for his Majesty's use, out of the like commodities then in the possession of the person or persons forfeiting the same: provided always, that no person or persons whatsoever shall demand, take, or receive, any permit or permits from any officer or officers for the said respective duties, for the removal of any of the said commodities from one place to another, without the special direction in writing, of the person or persons, or the known servant or servants of the person or persons, from or out of whose stock the said commodities are to be removed, upon pain of forfeiting for every such offence therein the sum of fifty pounds, or, in default of the payment thereof, shall suffer imprisonment for and during the space of three months, without bail or mainprize.

XVI. And, for the more effectual discovering and detecting the running of any goods, merchandizes, and commodities whatsoever, which are either prohibited to be imported, or which are liable to any duty or duties of customs and excise, and inland duty or duties, or to any or either of them, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five any person or persons whatsoever shall knowingly harbour, keep, or conceal, or shall knowingly permit or suffer to be harboured, kept, or concealed, such prohibited goods or run goods, wares, merchandizes, or commodities whatsoever, liable to any duty or duties of customs, excise, and inland duties, or to any or either of them, the party or parties offending therein, whether he, she, or they, have or have not, or do or do not claim, or pretend to have any property or interest in such goods, wares, merchandizes, or commodities so harboured, kept, or concealed, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and lose all such goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities whatsoever so harboured, kept, and concealed, and treble the value thereof.

XVII. And it is hereby further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the single value and worth of such goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities whatsoever so forfeited, shall, from time to time, be deemed and taken to be, according to and at the rate and rates, price and prices, as the best goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities of the like sorts, kinds, and denominations, do or shall, at such respective time or times, bear and sell for in London.

The value of goods forfeited to be taken at the best rate.

XVIII. And, for the better detecting and discovering the selling or exposing to sale any goods, wares, merchandizes, or commodities, which are or shall be prohibited, or which have been or hereafter shall be run, or shall be pretended so to have been, or to be, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, any person or persons whatsoever shall offer or expose to sale any goods, wares, merchandizes, or commodities whatsoever, which are or shall be prohibited, or which actually have been or shall be, or shall, by the party or parties so offering or exposing the same to sale, be pretended to have been run, all such goods, wares, merchandizes, and other commodities whatsoever, together with the package whatsoever including and containing the same, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized by the party or parties to whom the same shall be so offered or exposed to sale, or by any officer or officers of customs or excise, provided, that within the respective times next after such seizure herein-after mentioned, that is to say, if such seizure shall be made in any place or places within the limits of the weekly bills of mortality, then, and in such case, within the space of twenty four hours; and if such seizure shall be made in any other place or places out of the limits of the weekly bills of mortality, that then, and in such case, within the space of forty eight hours next after such seizure, such goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities so seized, shall, from time to time, be put into, and be placed, lodged, and secured in manner herein-after mentioned, that is to say, if such goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities are prohibited, or liable unto, or chargeable with only duties of customs or import duties, and are not liable unto, or chargeable with any excise, or inland duty or duties, that then the same be put into, and be placed, lodged, and secured in some warehouse or warehouses belonging to his Majesty, under the care and management of some of the officers of his customs or import duties, near to the place where the same shall be seized; and in case such seizure be made at a place too remote from any such warehouse, the same shall be lodged in some excise office near to the place of such seizure; but if such goods, wares, merchandizes, or other commodities be liable to any excise, or inland duty or duties, that then, and in such case, the same, within the respective times aforesaid, be put into, and be placed, lodged, and secured in some office or offices of excise, or for the said inland duties, or other safe place, under the custody of some officer or officers of excise, or for the said inland duties, near to the place where the same shall be so seized, as aforesaid.

Prohibited or run goods offered to sale may be seized.

Where such seized goods shall be lodged.

XIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every person and persons whatsoever, so offering or exposing to sale such goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities, as aforesaid, over and besides the forfeiting

Offering to sale such goods, forfeits the goods and treble value.

feiting such goods, wares, merchandizes, and other commodities, shall also forfeit and lose the treble value thereof, to be estimated in manner as aforesaid.

Prohibited goods may be seized from the buyer.

XX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the like prohibited or run goods, wares, and merchandizes whatsoever, so, or as such, bought by any person or persons whatsoever, together with the package containing the same, shall in like manner be forfeited, and shall and may be seized and taken from such buyer or buyers thereof, either by the seller or sellers thereof, or by any officer or officers of customs or excise; provided, that within the like respective times, as are herein before limited and appointed, of and concerning goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities to be seized from the person or persons exposing or offering thereof to sale, such goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities so to be seized from such buyer or buyers thereof, be placed, lodged, and secured, in the like places respectively, and in the like manner, and in the custody of the like persons respectively, as is before directed and appointed, of and concerning goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities, seized or to be seized from the person or persons offering or exposing thereof to sale.

Buyer also forfeits treble value.

Both buyer and seller not to be prosecuted for the same goods.

If prosecution be not commenced within one month, warehouse-keeper may prosecute.

XXI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, in every case, where any person or persons whatsoever shall buy any such prohibited or run goods, wares, merchandizes, or commodities whatsoever, or which, by the seller, at the time of selling thereof, shall be pretended so to be either prohibited or run, he, she, or they so buying, over and besides the goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities so bought, as aforesaid, shall also forfeit and lose treble the value thereof, to be computed and estimated in manner as aforesaid: provided always, and it is hereby declared, That it is not meant or intended by this act, that as well the party or parties buying, as also the party or parties selling, or offering or exposing to sale such goods, wares, merchandizes, or commodities, as aforesaid, shall, in any case or cases, both and each of them respectively forfeit or be prosecuted for the treble value of one and the same identical parcel or parcels of such goods, wares, merchandizes, or commodities, as aforesaid, but that the party or parties, whether buyer or seller of, or offering or exposing to sale such goods, wares, merchandizes, or commodities, who with effect shall first prosecute the other of the said parties for such the treble value of such goods, wares, merchandizes, or commodities, shall, in every such case and cases be, and is hereby declared discharged and acquitted of and from the like forfeiting, or being prosecuted for or on account of the treble value of every such respective parcel and parcels of goods, wares, and merchandizes, or commodities, for and on account whereof the other party or parties shall be prosecuted with effect: provided always, that if, within one month next after making such seizure, as aforesaid, either by the seller or buyer, or by the party or parties to whom such goods, wares, merchandizes, or commodities are or shall be offered or exposed to sale, a prosecution or prosecutions is not commenced and afterwards carried on for the adjudging and determining of and concerning the forfeiting or not forfeiting of such goods, wares, merchandizes or commodities, by the party or parties as shall so seize the same, that then and in every such case and cases, the warehouse-keeper, or keeper of the office of excise or inland duties, or other person or persons in whose custody such goods, wares, merchandizes, and other commodities shall be lodged and secured, shall and may prosecute for the forfeiture of such goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities, as, after having been so lodged and secured as aforesaid, shall not, within such month next after such seizure, be prosecuted for by the party or parties who shall have seized the same.

XXXII. And whereas, notwithstanding the act made in the sixth year of Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for preventing frauds and abuses in the public revenues of excise, customs, stamp-duties, post-office, and house-money great difficulties have frequently arisen upon the trial of divers actions, and other prosecutions prosecutions, concerning his Majesty's revenue, or for resisting or obstructing the officers thereof in the execution of their offices; by requiring strict proof of the commissions, deputations, or other authorities of such officers; for remedy thereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the twenty fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, if, upon the trial of any information, action, or suit whatsoever, relating to his Majesty's customs or excise, or the duties upon salt, or to any other duties whatsoever, or to any seizure or seizures, penalty or penalties, forfeiture or forfeitures, touching or concerning the said duties, or any of them, or the collection thereof; or if upon the trial of any indictment, action, suit, or prosecution whatsoever, against any person or persons for any thing done by virtue or in pursuance of any act or acts of parliament relating to the said duties, or any of them; or if upon the trial of any information or indictment for assaulting, resisting, or obstructing any officer or officers of the customs, excise, or duties upon salt, or other duties due and payable to his Majesty, in the execution of his or their respective office or offices, or for rescuing any goods or merchandizes seized or to be seized by any such officer or officers; any question shall arise, whether any person be an officer of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, of or for any of the said duties: in every of the said cases, proof shall and may be made and admitted, that such person was reputed to be, and had acted in, and in fact exercised such office, and at the respective time and times, when the matter or matters in controversy upon such trial or trials shall happen to have been done or committed, or omitted to have been done or performed, without producing or proving the particular commission, deputation, or other authority, whereby such officer was constituted and appointed, and that in every such case such proof shall be deemed and taken by the judges or justices before whom any such trial shall be had, to be good and legal evidence, unless by other evidence the contrary shall be made to appear; any law or usage to the contrary hereof notwithstanding.

If on trial of an information relating to the customs, excise, &c. any question arise whether the person be an officer of the duties;

Proof shall be admitted that he was reputed to be such officer, without producing the commission, &c.

XXXIX. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all fines, penalties, and forfeitures by this act before imposed, or and concerning the suing for, recovering, and dividing whereof other directions are not herein given, shall be sued for, recovered, levied, or mitigated by such ways, means, and methods, as any fine, penalty, or forfeiture is or may be sued for, recovered, levied, or mitigated by any law or laws relating to his Majesty's revenues of excise, or any of them, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, for or on account of any thing done or omitted to be done contrary to this act in the part and parts of Great Britain called England, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland, for or on account of any thing done or omitted to be done contrary to this act in that part of Great Britain called Scotland; and that one moiety of every such fine, penalty, and forfeiture, shall be to the use of his majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to him or them that shall sue or inform for the same.

How these penalties shall be sued for, and divided.

An act for repealing the duty laid upon snuff, by an act made in the eighth year of her late Majesty's reign, and for ascertaining the rates according to which the remaining duties are to be paid, and for giving further encouragement to the Greenland fishery.

Most gracious Sovereign;

WHEREAS by an act made in the eighth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty new duties of excise, and upon several imported commodities, and for establishing a yearly fund thereby, and by other ways and means, to raise nine hundred thousand pounds, by sale of annuities, and (in default thereof) by another lottery, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, a new duty of three shillings for every pound weight Avoirdupois, over and above all other duties, was laid upon all snuff imported or to be imported into the kingdom of Great Britain, at any time or times after the sixth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and nine, within or during the term of thirty two years, such snuff not being of the product or manufacture of her Majesty's plantations, which act has been since made perpetual: and whereas it is notorious, that since the laying of the said new duty, great quantities of snuff have been clandestinely and fraudulently imported, and run into this kingdom, to the diminution of his Majesty's revenues, and the discouragement of the fair traders; for remedy whereof, we, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled; do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the thirty first day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred

II. And whereas other duties upon snuff imported into this kingdom are now payable according to the value sworn to or affirmed by the importers; which, by experience, has been found to be very unequal, some persons greatly undervaluing the same, to the detriment of the revenue, and discouragement of the fair traders; for remedying the said abuse, and for putting the said trade on a more equal foot, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all provisions and clauses contained in any former act or acts of parliament, so far as they relate to the ascertaining the value of snuff imported, according to the oaths or affirmations of the importers, shall, from and after the said thirty first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and twenty six, be, and are hereby repealed and made void.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, in lieu of the said former rates and duties ad valorem, repealed by this act, all snuff which shall at any time or times, after the said thirty first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and twenty six, be imported into any port or place within this kingdom, shall, upon the importation thereof, be rated to, and pay the old subsidy granted by the act of tunnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, according to the several rates and values herein-after mentioned, (and not according to the values sworn to or affirmed by the importers) that is to say, all snuff imported in British ships, from any of the British plantations in America, or from any part of the Spanish West Indies, shall be rated at two shillings and sixpence for every pound weight Avoirdupois, and in that proportion for any greater or less quantity; and all snuff imported from Italy, Spain, Portugal, and all other foreign parts, except France, shall be rated at five shillings for every pound weight Avoirdupois, and in that proportion for any greater or less quantity.

Further subsidy, &c. to be paid according to the value set for the old subsidy.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where any of the said sorts of snuff are by law subject or liable to the payment of the further subsidy, the one third subsidy, the two third subsidy, the additional impost, or any of them, according to the respective values set thereon for the said old subsidy, or in proportion thereto, the same shall, from and after the thirty first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and twenty six, be paid proportionably, according to the particular value set thereon for the old subsidy aforesaid, and not according to the oath or affirmation of the importer; any thing in the respective acts, which granted the said duties, or in any other act, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Drawback of all the duties, except old subsidy.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon the exportation of any of the said sorts of snuff, within the time allowed by law, the duties paid or secured for the same at importation as aforesaid shall be drawn back or allowed to the exporter, on a proper debenture to be made forth for that purpose, except the old subsidy.

Duty how to be levied.

VI. And be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the several subsidies, impositions, and duties upon the said several sorts of snuff shall be paid or secured, and shall be raised, levied, and collected in such manner and form, and by such ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such discounts, allowances, and drawbacks, (except as herein is excepted) as are mentioned and expressed in the several acts of parliament, which granted or continued the same respectively; and the powers, penalties, provisions, articles, and clauses therein contained, (except in such cases where any alteration is made by this act) shall continue in full force and effect, during the continuance of the said respective subsidies and impositions.

impositions, and other duties, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for the raising, levying, collecting, securing, answering, paying, and appropriating the said respective subsidies, impositions, and other duties, according to the true intent and meaning of this present act, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if the said clauses, matters, and things had been repeated and enacted in the body of this present act; any law or other matter or thing to the contrary notwithstanding.

GEORGE II. I. Regis.

C A P. XXVIII.

An act for the improvement of his Majesty's revenues of customs, excise, and inland duties.

WHEREAS in and by an act made and passed in the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign, several penalties were inflicted on officers of the revenue, and others concerned in making collusive seizures of foreign goods, and for giving rewards to persons discovering the same; notwithstanding which such practices are still carried on, to the diminution of his Majesty's revenues; and the detriment of the fair traders: for the better preventing whereof, with respect to tea, coffee, foreign brandy, rum, or other foreign exciseable liquors, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That, from and after the twenty fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty six, it shall and may be lawful to and for the respective commissioners of the customs, excise, and inland duties, to cause all such goods which shall be seized by any officers of the customs or excise, and inland duties or others, for unlawful importation, or for nonpayment of duties, or for any other cause of forfeiture, to be proceeded against according to the several laws now in force concerning the same; and the said respective commissioners may cause all such tea and coffee, which shall be seized within the limits of the city of London or Edinburgh, and condemned, to be publickly sold there respectively; and for such tea and coffee as shall be seized in any other ports or places within this kingdom, the said commissioners may cause the same, after condemnation to be brought to and publickly sold in the said cities of London or Edinburgh respectively; and for all such foreign brandy, rum, or other foreign exciseable liquors, which shall be seized for nonpayment of duty, or for being prohibited to be imported, the said respective commissioners shall, after condemnation, cause the same to be publickly sold to the best bidder, at such places as the said commissioners shall think proper; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding.

After 24 June 1726, forfeited goods to be proceeded against by the laws in force.

Tea, coffee, and foreign brandy, how to be sold.

Officers to have one third arising from the sale.

Tea not worth 5s. per lb. to be burnt.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the officer of the customs or excise, and inland duties, or other person making such seizure, shall, for his encouragement, be allowed by the said respective commissioners, one third part of the full sum arising from the publick sale of all such tea, coffee, foreign brandy, rum, or other exciseable liquors, free from all charges of condemnation and sale.

III. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said respective commissioners, if they shall think fit, may cause such tea, as cannot be sold at a publick sale for five shillings the pound weight, to be burnt or otherwise destroyed, and the officer or other person making the seizure, to be rewarded in such manner as the said commissioners shall shall think proper, such reward not exceeding one shilling and sixpence for each pound weight of such tea.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of the customs shall cause the remaining part of the produce of such sales, after paying the reward to the officer, and the charges of condemnation and sale for such seizures as are made by any officer of the customs, to be paid into the receipt of his Majesty's Exchequer, in lieu of his Majesty's moiety, as now practised; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

V. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of excise or inland duties, shall cause the remaining part of the produce of such sales, after paying the reward to the officer, and the charges of condemnation, and other necessary charges, for such seizures as are made by any officer of excise, and inland duties, to be paid as now practised, in lieu of the King's moiety; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

VI. And, the better to prevent any imbezilment of such goods after seizure, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no officer of the customs, or other person, shall be entitled to any reward given on the seizure of any such goods by virtue of this act, unless notice thereof be by him given to the next officer of excise, or to the supervisor of the district where such seizure shall be made, within forty eight hours after seizure, who shall be obliged on such notice to take a particular account of the species and quantities of such goods; nor shall such goods be afterwards removed without a permit or certificate signed by such officer of excise and inland duties, or supervisor of the place or district from whence such goods are to be removed, under the penalties of such goods being resealed as forfeited by any other officers of the customs, or by any officer of excise and inland duties; and such resealeds shall and may be sued for, prosecuted, and recovered, by virtue of this act, or any other law now in force relating to the customs or excise, and inland duties.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any officer of the customs, excise, or inland duties, shall deal or trade in tea, coffee, or in brandy, or other exciseable liquors, such officer shall not only lose his said office or employment, but also forfeit and lose the sum of fifty pounds to any person who shall inform or sue for the same, and be likewise rendered incapable of having any place or employment in any branch of his Majesty's revenue for the future, which last penalties and forfeitures shall and may be sued for, prosecuted, and recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in his Majesty's court of Exchequer at Edinburgh in Scotland respectively.

VIII. And be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any foreign goods shall be seized for nonpayment of duties, or any other cause of forfeiture, and any dispute shall arise, whether the customs, excise or inland duties have been paid for the same, or the same have been lawfully imported, or legally compounded for or condemned, or concerning the place from whence such goods were brought, then, and in such cases, the proof thereof shall lie on the owner or claimer of such goods, and not on the officer who shall seize or stop such goods; any thing in an act of parliament made in the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, intitled, An act for preventing frauds and abuses in the publick revenues of excise, custom, stamp duties, post office, and house money, to the contrary notwithstanding.

IX. Provided always, and be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to hinder the respective officers, or other proper persons from suing for, prosecuting, and recovering the several penalties provided for by the several laws as they now stand in force, with respect to the goods or persons aforementioned.

X. An

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all tobacco seized for being prohibited, or for nonpayment of duty, shall be after condemnation publicly sold at such places, as the commissioners of his Majesty's customs in England or Scotland respectively shall think proper; and that the officer, or other person authorized, making such seizure, shall for his encouragement be allowed one third part of the publick gross sale of such tobacco, free from all charges of condemnation and sale.

Tobacco seized, to be sold, and officer to have one third of the sale.

XI. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of the customs, if they shall think fit, may cause all such tobacco, as will not sell publicly for the duties, to be burnt or otherwise destroyed; and the officer, or such other person making such seizure, to be rewarded in such manner as they shall think proper, not to exceed one penny per pound weight.

Tobacco that will not sell for the duties, to be burnt, &c.

XII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said commissioners of the customs shall cause the produce of such sales, after paying the reward to the seizer, and the charges of condemnation and sales, to be paid into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer, in lieu of his Majesty's share; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Produce of the sales after charges, &c. to be paid into the Exchequer.

XIII. And be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all tobacco stalks or stems stript from the leaf shall be prohibited to be imported; and on seizure and condemnation thereof the commissioners of his Majesty's customs shall and may cause the same to be publicly burnt; and shall and may allow the officer for his encouragement, in making the seizure, one penny for every pound weight of such stalks or stems so seized and condemned, clear of all charges of condemnation.

Tobacco stalks prohibited.

XIV. And whereas by an act passed in the eighth year of his present Majesty it is enacted, That every ship, vessel, or boat, of the burthen of forty tons or under, importing foreign brandy, arrack, strong waters or spirits, shall be forfeited, with all her tackle, furniture, and apparel; and after condemnation thereof, the principal officers of the customs in the port or place where the same shall be at the time of condemnation, are thereby directed to cause the hull of such ship, vessel, or boat, to be burnt and wholly destroyed: and whereas by the same act it is likewise enacted, That if any boat, wherry, pinnace, barge, or galley, rowing, or made or built to row with more than four oars, shall be found upon the water, or in any barge-house, work-house, shed, or other place within any of the counties of Middlesex, Surrey, Kent, or Essex, or in the river of Thames, either above or below London Bridge, or within the limits of the ports of London, Sandwich, or Ipswich, or the members or creeks to them or either of them respectively belonging, (except as therein is excepted) such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge, or galley, with all her tackle and furniture, shall be forfeited; and after condemnation thereof, the principal officers of the customs in the port or place where the same shall be at the time of condemnation, are thereby directed to cause such boat, wherry, pinnace, barge, or galley, to be burnt and wholly destroyed: and whereas it will be of service to his Majesty in his customs to have the use of such ships, vessels, boats, wherries, pinnaces, barges, or galleys, to prevent the foul traders carrying on their clandestine designs in importing prohibited goods, and fraudulently landing goods liable to the payment of duties, or relanding goods after the same have been shipped for exportation, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of his Majesty's customs to cause any such ship, vessel, boat, wherry, pinnace, barge, or galley, (except as before is excepted) which shall be seized for any of the reasons aforesaid and condemned, to be used by the officers of his Majesty's customs, in case the same or any of them shall be found to be of service, together with the tackle, furniture, apparel, and materials belonging thereunto, the officer or officers who seized the same being first paid his or their share or shares, according to the direction of the before recited act; any law, statute, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

8 Geo. 1. c. 18. Vessels of 40 tons or under, seized importing brandy, &c. may be used by custom officers, &c.

XV. Provided

Except the commissioners shall not think fit to use such vessel.

Justices where seizures are made to administer an oath to the persons to view them, and return the value, &c.

Searcher after entry, to examine any bale, whereon there is a drawback, &c.

On discovery of fraud may seize.

Goods shipped for exportation without warrant or presence of officer, forfeited.

XV. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the commissioners of his Majesty's customs shall not think fit, for his Majesty's service, to make use of any such ship, vessel, boat, wherry, pinnace, barge or galley, that then and in such case the said commissioners shall cause the principal officers of the customs, in the port or place where the same shall be at the time of condemnation, to see the hull thereof burnt, as if this act had never been made.

XVI. And whereas in pursuance of several acts of parliament informations are exhibited before the justices of the peace, on seizures made by officers of the customs, salt, excise, or inland duties, of goods clandestinely run, or being prohibited, and of vessels, boats, carriages, horses, and other cattle, in order to their bearing and determining the same; and it being necessary in order thereto, that a proper valuation be put thereon before the same are condemned, agreeable to the practice now used in his Majesty's court of exchequer; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That one or more justice or justices of the peace, of the county or place where such seizure shall be made, shall have power to administer an oath to such person or persons, as they think proper, who shall be skilled in the nature and value of the goods, vessels, boats, carriages, horses, and other cattle, mentioned to have been seized in the information or informations exhibited before any justices of the peace, to view the same, and to make a return of the species, quantity, quality, and value thereof, to such justices of the peace, in a limited time; and after the goods, vessels, boats, carriages, horses, and other cattle, shall be condemned by the judgment of such justices of the peace, the same shall be publickly sold to the best bidder, at such places, and at such times, as the said respective commissioners shall think proper; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XVII. And for the better preventing frauds in the entring for exportation any goods, whereon there is a drawback, bounty, or premium, or of goods prohibited to be worn or used here, or pepper, to the prejudice of the revenue; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any searcher, or other proper officer of the customs, after the entry of any of the said goods, and before or after the shipping thereof, to open and strictly examine any bale, truss, chest, or other package, to see if the goods are right entred; and if on such examination the same shall be found to be right entred, the searcher or other proper officer shall, at his own charge, cause the same to be repacked (which charge shall be allowed to the said officer by the commissioners of the customs, if they think it reasonable) but in case the officer shall on examination find such goods to be less in quantity or value than is expressed in the exporter's indorsement upon his entry, or that shall be entred under a wrong denomination, whereby his Majesty would have been defrauded, all such goods may be seized, and the same shall be forfeited and lost, and the owner or merchant shall lose the benefit of receiving the drawback or bounty for such goods, and the value thereof.

XVIII. And whereas great quantities of the goods and merchandizes, on which considerable duties are due and payable to his Majesty, and divers other sorts of goods prohibited to be exported, are by evil-disposed persons frequently shipped for parts beyond the seas, without the presence of the proper officer of the customs, to the great prejudice of the revenue, and all fair traders: for the preventing so great an evil, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any such goods or merchandizes shall be shipped for parts beyond the seas without a warrant, or without the presence of an officer of the customs appointed for that purpose, all such goods and merchandizes, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited and lost; one moiety whereof to the use of his Majesty, and the other moiety to him or them that will seize or sue for the same; any law to the contrary notwithstanding.

XIX. And

XIX. And whereas by an act made and passed in the twelfth year of her late Majesty's reign, it is enacted, That the commissioners of the customs for the time being shall in all cases, where goods are brought into his Majesty's store-houses for security of the customs, or other duties due thereon, and which shall have remained there for the space of twelve months, the duties not paid, compounded for, or otherwise secured, cause them to be publickly sold, and the produce to be applied as in the said act is directed: and whereas it is found by experience that the said time is too long, several goods being liable to decay, and thereby lessened in their value; be it therefore declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the commissioners of the customs for the time being, to cause all such goods, which are or shall be brought into his Majesty's warehouses, and shall have remained there for the space of six months, to be publickly sold, and the produce to be applied as in the said act is directed and appointed; any thing in the said act, or in any other act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Goods brought into his Majesty's warehouses remaining there six months to be sold.
12 Ann. stat.
2. c. 8.

XX. And whereas by an act made in the sixth year of his present Majesty, it is amongst other things enacted, That any merchant, or other person, who shall find his wine so damaged, corrupt or unmerchantable, and shall think fit to stave, spill, or otherwise destroy the same, shall, over and above the duties, be allowed as a compensation for the freight, and other charges, for every ton of wine of the growth of Germany, or wines which pay duty as such, and of the growth of France, the sum of four pounds; and wines of the growth of Spain, Portugal, or elsewhere, the sum of eight pounds per ton; which allowances have been by experience found too great, several persons having found it their interest to import mean and corrupt wines, for the sake only of the said allowances, to the lessening of his Majesty's revenue: for the better preventing whereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the commissioners of his Majesty's customs, to cause such wines as any merchant or other person shall refuse to pay or secure the duties for, as being damaged, corrupt or unmerchantable, to be received into the custody of proper officers of the customs, together with the casks or other package containing the same, and put into proper warehouses; and the said commissioners are hereby impowered to cause such wines, instead of their being staved, spilt, or otherwise destroyed, by virtue of the said act of the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, to be publickly sold, in order to be distilled into brandy, or to be made into vinegar, taking sufficient security to his Majesty's use, that such wines be not made use of for any other purpose whatsoever; such security to be discharged on a proper certificate, that such wines have been so made use of within three months after the same shall have been delivered out of such warehouses; and the commissioners of the customs shall cause the produce of such sale, without fee or reward, to be paid to the merchant, or other person, as a compensation for the freight, and other charges of such wine, not exceeding the allowances aforesaid; and in case there shall be any overplus arising by such sale, beyond the said allowances for freight, and other charges, the said commissioners shall cause the same to be replaced to the duties, out of which the charges of warehouse rent, and other charges attending the keeping and selling the said wines, are or shall be paid; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Damaged wines to be warehoused and sold to be distilled into brandy.
6 Geo. 1. c. 12.

The produce of the sale to be paid to the merchant, not exceeding the allowances.
6 Geo. 1. c. 12.

XXI. And whereas great sums of money are paid out of his Majesty's duties of customs on account of debentures for tobacco, and other foreign goods and merchandizes shipped for exportation to the Isle of Man; and it being found by experience, that the greatest part of such tobacco, and other foreign commodities, are shipped for the Isle of Man, with no other intent than fraudulently to reland the same on the coast of Great Britain or Ireland, by which evil practices his Majesty's revenues of customs are very much lessened, and the fair traders prejudiced and discouraged in their trade: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no drawback shall be allowed for any tobacco,

No drawback for tobacco, or foreign goods, to the Isle of Man, after 24 July, 1726.

bacco, or other foreign goods or commodities whatsoever, exported after the twenty fourth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty six, from Great Britain or Ireland to the Isle of Man; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

No commodities, except of the growth, &c. of the Isle of Man, to be brought into Great Britain or Ireland.

Penalty.

Entring foreign goods for exportation, to obtain a drawback, and landing them in the Isle of Man, the penalty.

Isle of Man to be added to the oath in all debentures for foreign goods exported.

Treasury in behalf of the crown, may treat for the absolute purchase of the Isle of Man:

XXII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no tobacco, wine, brandy, East-India, or other goods or commodities whatsoever, other than such as are of the growth, product or manufacture of the Isle of Man, shall be brought from the said island, after the said twenty fourth day of July, into the kingdoms of Great Britain or Ireland, or within the limits of any port thereto belonging, on any pretence whatsoever; and in case any ship, vessel, or boat, having on board any such goods brought from the said Isle of Man (except as aforesaid) shall be found within the limits of any port of Great Britain or Ireland, or discovered to have been within the limits of any port of Great Britain or Ireland as aforesaid, whether bulk has been broke or not, having such goods on board as aforesaid, such ship, vessel or boat, together with the tackle, apparel and furniture, and also all such goods so found on board, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited and lost; and every person who shall take any such commodities (except as aforesaid) out of any ship, vessel or boat, coming from the Isle of Man, within the limits of any port as aforesaid, or carry the same on shore, or convey the same from the shore when landed, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, or be aiding or assisting therein, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds, or suffer six months imprisonment, at the discretion of the court, in which he shall be convicted of such offence.

XXIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any merchant or other person shall, after the said four and twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twenty six, enter any foreign goods for exportation, to parts beyond the seas, other than to the said Isle of Man, in order to obtain the drawback for the same, and such goods shall nevertheless be carried to the said island and there landed, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, that then and in such case, the exporter of such goods shall forfeit the drawback, or the amount thereof, paid or to be paid for the same, as also the treble value of the said goods; and the master of the ship or vessel on board which such goods shall be shipped and landed as aforesaid, shall be subject and liable to the same penalties and forfeitures, and shall also suffer six months imprisonment, without bail or mainprize.

XXIV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of July one thousand seven hundred and twenty six, the Isle of Man shall be added to, and included in the oath upon all debentures for foreign goods exported, whereon the exporter is to swear that such goods are not landed, or intended to be landed in Great Britain, or Ireland respectively, without which the officers of the customs shall not suffer the debentures to pass; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXV. And for the better enabling his Majesty to prevent the said frauds and abuses, in the exporting or importing goods and merchandizes to and from the Isle of Man, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury now or for the time being, or any three or more of them, or the lord high treasurer for the time being, on the behalf of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and also to and for the right honourable James earl of Derby, his tenants or assigns, the right honourable John lord Asburnham, for and on behalf of his daughter Henrietta Bridge Asburnham, an infant, Bryan Fairfax, esquire, trustee for the said infant or the survivor of them, and all or any other person or persons claiming or to claim by, from, or under the said earl, or any of his ancestors, to treat, contract and agree for the absolute purchase or sale, release or surrender, or for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, of all or any estate, right, title or interest, which he the said earl, his tenant, the said Henrietta Bridget Ashburnham, or such other person or persons now have or claim, or can or may have or claim in or to the said island or lordship of Man, or in or to all or any regalities, powers, honours, superiorities, jurisdictions, rights, privileges, duties, customs, revenues, profits, or other advantages whatsoever, in, over, or about the said Island of Man, or its dependencies, for such sum or sums of money or upon such other terms or conditions as they shall think fitting; and that upon the executing of such contracts or agreements by or on the behalf of the said earl, his tenants, the said Henrietta Bridget Ashburnham, or such other person or persons claiming or to claim under him, or any of his ancestors as aforesaid, or upon executing such other conveyances, assignments, releases or surrenders, as in such contract or contracts shall be agreed on for that purpose, it shall and may be lawful to and for the said commissioners of the treasury now or for the time being, or any three or more of them, or the lord high treasurer for the time being, and they are hereby impowered by and out of any monies arisen or to arise to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, of or for any customs, subsidies, impositions, or other duties upon the importation or exportation of any goods or merchandizes whatsoever already granted or payable, or hereafter to be granted or payable to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, in Great Britain, Wales or Berwick upon Tweed, to order and direct the payment of such sum or sums of money, from time to time, as shall be so contracted or agreed on for such purchase or purchases, to such person or persons as, according to the terms of such contracts or agreements, shall be entitled to have and receive the same.

XXVI. And it is hereby further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Henrietta Bridget Ashburnham, notwithstanding her minority, by and with the consent of the said John lord Ashburnham her father, and the said Bryan Fairfax, or the survivor of them, to convey and assure all her estate and interest in the Isle of Man, and premises aforesaid, or any part thereof, pursuant to any contract or agreement, which shall be made by virtue of the powers in this act given; and such conveyance or assurance shall be good and effectual in law, to all intents and purposes, as if the said Henrietta Bridget Ashburnham was of the full age of one and twenty years; any law, custom or usage to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding: and the money to be paid as the consideration of such conveyance, shall be paid to such person as the high court of chancery shall direct, and when paid, shall be laid out by the direction of the said court of chancery for the benefit of the said Henrietta Bridget Ashburnham, her executors, administrators and assigns.

Henrietta Bridget Ashburnham, notwithstanding her minority, may convey her estate therein.

XXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty third day of May, one thousand seven hundred and twenty six, if any person or persons that now is or are, or shall be in prison for want of sufficient bail (such person or persons being taken by Capias or Capias's issued out of his Majesty's court of exchequer, or any other his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster or Edinburgh) upon any information or informations exhibited in any of the said courts against them or any of them, for having been aiding, assisting, or otherwise concerned in the unshipping out of any ship or vessel, ships or vessels, boat or boats, with intention to be laid on land, any sort of goods or merchandizes whatsoever, liable to the payment of any duties whatsoever, either customs, excise or salt, or any goods or merchandizes prohibited to be imported into this kingdom, or for having any such goods or merchandizes whatsoever knowingly come to his or their hands; or upon any information or informations for non-payment of duties relating to the customs, excise or salt-duty; or upon any information or informations already exhibited, or to be be exhibited in any of the said courts, in relation to any fraud or frauds about any drawback or certificate goods or merchandizes, or in relation to any other fraud or frauds whatsoever, already committed or to be committed, in order to diminish or lessen the revenue of the customs, excise or salt-duty, or upon any penal law or statute whatsoever, relating to the said revenues; and shall refuse or neglect to appear or plead to any such information or informations to be delivered to such person or persons, or to the gaoler, keeper or turnkey of the prison or prisons, at the prison or prisons wherein such person or persons shall be confined or imprisoned for any of the said offences, by the space of one term, judgment shall be entered against him or them by default; and in case judgment shall be obtained against any such person or persons by default, verdict, or otherwise, and such person or persons shall not pay the sum recovered against him or them for any of the said offences, execution shall be thereupon awarded and issued, not only against the body or bodies of such person or persons so in prison as aforesaid, but also against all the real and personal estate or estates of such person or persons, though such person or persons continue in prison for such sum or sums of money so to be recovered against him or them; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

No information to be filed for recovery of any penalty by the laws of the customs, &c. unless entered in the attorney general's name, or of some officer.

XXVIII. And whereas great quantities of prohibited goods, and goods liable to the payment of customs, excise or salt-duty, are by evil-disposed persons fraudulently landed in this kingdom, and goods pretended to be shipped outwards, entitled to a drawback or bounty, are frequently not shipped, or after the shipping thereof relanded, whereby they become liable to several penalties; but knowing themselves subject to be prosecuted for the said offences, and that their fraudulent practices may in time be discovered, do frequently, before any discovery can be made by the officers of the revenues, cause informations to be entered and filed against themselves in some of the courts at Westminster or Edinburgh, in the name of some person or persons, on his, her or their behalf; and if no discovery be made of the said fraudulent practices by the officers of the revenues, the said informations are never prosecuted; but in case the said frauds are discovered by any officer or officers of the revenues, who thereupon enter and file real informations against such offender and offenders, then either some secret agreement or agreements is or are made by such offender or offenders with such person or persons, who have filed or exhibited such informations on the behalf of such offender or offenders, or else a plea or pleas of priority of suit is or are pleaded in bar of such real informations prosecuted by the officers of the revenues, whereby the said offenders evade the several penalties inflicted by law, to the great prejudice of the crown, and also to the discouragement of real prosecutions; for the prevention of such fraudulent practices, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty third day of May, one thousand seven hundred and twenty six, it shall not be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever, to enter, or cause or procure to be entered, filed or prosecuted, any information or informations in any of the said courts against any person or persons for the recovery of any penalty or penalties inflicted by any of the laws of the customs, excise, and the duty upon salt, unless the same be entered, filed, and prosecuted in the name of his Majesty's attorney general, or in the name or names of some officer or officers of some or one of the aforesaid revenues of customs, excise or salt-duty: and if any information or informations is or are entered in any other person's name or names than as is before-mentioned, the same, and all proceedings thereupon had, are hereby declared to be null and void; and the said court or courts where such information or informations is, are or shall be so entered, filed or prosecuted, shall not permit or suffer any proceeding or proceedings to be had thereupon, and shall cause such information or informations to be taken off the file; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXXII. And whereas discoveries have been lately made of great quantities of foreign goods, liable to the payment of customs, excise or the duties on salt which have been clandestinely imported without paying the same; but the facts not being discovered within the time prescribed by law for prosecutions to be commenced, for the penalties by law imposed for such offences, his Majesty can only prosecute for the duties in the name of his attorney general, by informations in nature of actions of debt for recovery thereof; and whereas several persons against whom such informations in nature of actions of debt have been or may be brought, cannot pay the full sum they are or may be sued for respectively, the same amounting in many cases to very large sums, but may be able to pay some part thereof, in case a composition could be made with them for the same; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury or any three or more of them, or the lord high treasurer, or the commissioners of the treasury for the time being, or any three or more of them, to make such compositions or agreements, as to him or them shall seem reasonable, for any such debts incurred by any persons, for the customs or other duties of goods so clandestinely imported as aforesaid before the twelfth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, and upon payment of the composition-money, to cause the remainder of the debt so compounded for, to be effectually discharged, and the composition-money so paid, to be applied or appropriated, in proportion to the several branches to which the same doth or may belong; any law, statute or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Treasury may compound for debts for the customs of clandestinely imported goods before 12 May, 1723.

XXXIII. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all forfeitures and penalties by this act imposed for any offence which shall be committed, relating to any part of his Majesty's revenues under the management of the commissioners of excise, or inland duties in Great Britain, shall be sued for, levied and recovered or mitigated by such ways, means and methods, as any fine, penalty and forfeiture is or may be recovered or mitigated, by any law or laws relating to his Majesty's revenues of excise, or any of them, or by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster or the court of exchequer at Edinburgh respectively (except where it is otherwise provided for by this act) and all forfeitures and penalties by this act imposed for any offence which shall be committed relating to any part of his Majesty's revenues under the management of the commissioners of his Majesty's customs in Great Britain, shall and may be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster or the court of exchequer at Edinburgh respectively, except where it is otherwise provided for by this act; and that all forfeitures and penalties hereby imposed for any offence which shall be committed in the kingdom of Ireland, contrary to this act, shall be sued for, recovered and levied by such ways, means and methods, as any penalty or forfeiture is or may be sued for or recovered by virtue of any law or laws in force in Ireland, relating to his Majesty's revenue there, and one moiety of all such forfeitures and penalties imposed by this act, shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to him or them who shall seize, inform or sue for the same, except in such cases where it is otherwise directed by this act.

How forfeitures to be recovered, &c.

XXXIV. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be sued, molested or prosecuted for any thing done by virtue or in pursuance of this act, such person or persons shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act, and the special matter in evidence in his defence; and if afterwards a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff shall discontinue his action, or be nonsuited, or judgment shall be given against him upon demurrer or otherwise, then such defendant or defendants shall have treble costs awarded to him or them against such plaintiff.

WHEREAS the river Delawar, bay and coast of the province of Pennsylvania in America, and the seas adjoining are very commodiously situated for carrying on the fishing trade, and they abound with great quantities of hoad, surgeon, bass and several other kinds of fish, which may be caught and cured, and made fit for foreign markets, whereby the trade of Great Britain and the inhabitants of the said province would reap considerable benefit, which would enable the said inhabitants to purchase more of the British manufactures for their use, than at present they are able, by reason of the little trade and produce the said province affords, were it permitted for his Majesty's subjects to import salt from Europe into the said province for the curing of their fish withal, in the like manner as is practised in New England and Newfoundland, by virtue of an act of parliament, made in the fifteenth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, for that purpose: and whereas formerly the northern parts of America were comprehended under the general name of New England, but since have been divided into several provinces and colonies, and bear other distinct names, which occasions a doubt whether salt can be imported into them, without the further aid of parliament, by which a very considerable and beneficial fishery might be carried on there, to the great benefit of your Majesty's subjects in general, may it therefore please your most excellent Majesty, that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, it shall and may be lawful to and for any of his Majesty's subjects to carry and import salt from any part of Europe, into the province of Pennsylvania in America, in British ships and vessels, manned and navigated according to the act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation; any law, statute, usage or custom to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

WHEREAS cochineal of the growth of the Spanish West-Indies, is of principal use in dying cloth, and other the woollen manufactures of this kingdom, of scarlet, purple and other colours, called grain colours, to the great improvement thereof, by which great numbers of his Majesty's subjects are employed in finishing and perfecting such woollen manufactures; and whereas such cochineal, by the laws in being, cannot be imported but from Spain, or the places of its growth, and British ships are not at present admitted into the ports of Spain, and the territories thereunto belonging, so that this kingdom is not likely to be furnished with a sufficient quantity of cochineal for the necessary service thereof, unless some provision be made for the free importing of the same, during the interruption of the commerce with Spain, whereby great quantities of cloths, and other woollen manufactures of this kingdom, are like to remain white in the makers and merchants hands, for want of cochineal to dye the same into grain colours for exportation; and whereas in several parts of Europe cochineal is now sold at much cheaper rates than in this kingdom, and it is now used abroad, in dying foreign manufactures, at lower prices than his Majesty's subjects can dye the manufactures of this kingdom therewith, to the great encouragement of foreign woollen manufactures, the great prejudice of the woollen manufactures of this kingdom, and impoverishment of many of his Majesty's subjects employed therein: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twentieth day of May, one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, during the space of six months, and to the end of the then next session of parliament, it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons to import and bring cochineal into this kingdom, in any ship or ships, vessel or vessels belonging to Great Britain, or to any kingdom or state in amity with his Majesty, from any port or place whatsoever; any act or acts of parliament to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

After 20 May, 1727, for six months, and to the end of the next session of parliament, cochineal may be imported free.

An act for continuing the laws therein mentioned, relating to copper bars exported; and for better preventing frauds committed by bankrupts; and for searching drugs and compositions for medicines.

WHEREAS the laws herein-after mentioned (which have by experience been found useful and beneficial) are near expiring, may it therefore please your Majesty that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the clause contained in an act made in the ninth and tenth years of the reign of the late King William the Third, intituled; An act to settle the trade to Africa, for allowing during a limited time, a drawback of the duties upon the exportation of copper bars imported, and which clause (after expiration thereof) was by an act of the twelfth year of her late Majesty's reign revived and continued for fourteen years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament; and also the proviso in the said last act contained, being the words following, that is to say, provided nevertheless, and be it enacted, That no drawback shall be allowed on the exportation of any copper, but as hath been, or shall be imported from the East-Indies, and the coast of Barbary only, shall be and are hereby continued, from the expiration thereof, for and during the space of fourteen years; and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament.

c. 7.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made in the first year of the reign of our late sovereign lord King George the First, (of glorious memory) intituled, An act for the better support of his Majesty's household, and of the honour and dignity of the crown of Great Britain, it was amongst other things enacted, That the rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, which had been granted to his late majesty King Charles the Second, by an act made in the twelfth year of his reign, intituled, A grant of certain impositions upon beer, ale, and other liquors, for the increase of his Majesty's revenues during his life, and which were granted to their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, (of blessed memory) by an act made in the second year of their reign, for their lives and the life of the survivor of them, (a certain duty of sixpence for every barrel of vinegar beer granted by the same acts excepted) and also a duty of sixpence, part of a duty of eight shillings, which was granted to his said late majesty King William, for and upon every barrel of vinegar, vinegar beer, or liquor preparing for vinegar, which should be brewed or made of any English materials, by any person or persons whatsoever, for sale, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, by an act made in the tenth year of his reign; and likewise the further subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and other duties upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, which had been granted to his said late majesty King William for his life, by an act made in the ninth year of his reign, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty a further subsidy of tunnage and poundage towards raising the yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds for the service of his Majesty's household, and other uses therein mentioned, during his Majesty's life, should be levied, collected, and paid to his said late majesty King George the First, for and during the term of his natural life; and in and by the said act of the first year of the reign of his said late majesty King George the First, it was enacted and declared, That the hereditary rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, which were granted to the crown in the twelfth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, and the said duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, which had been granted to the late Queen Anne, by an act of the first year of her reign, for her life, (subject nevertheless to the incumbrances in that act mentioned) and the monies arising by the said further subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and other duties thereby granted, and the revenue arising in the general letter-office or post-office, or office of postmaster general, and the small branches of his Majesty's revenues therein particularly described or mentioned, should be for the support of his Majesty's household, and of the honour and dignity of the crown, as by the said act of the first year of his said late Majesty's reign (relation being thereunto had) may more fully appear: now, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being desirous that a competent revenue for defraying the expences of your Majesty's civil government, and better supporting the dignity of the crown of Great Britain during your life, (which God long preserve) may be settled on your Majesty, and that your Majesty may be enabled to make an honourable provision for your royal family, as a testimony of our affection to your sacred person, of whose great goodness and princely qualification ifications we have had very many testimonies; and by whose happy accession to the throne, your Majesty's subjects have a prospect, that the religion, laws, and liberties of this realm will be continued, and that they your said subjects, and their posterity, may, through the divine goodness, enjoy a long tranquillity under your Majesty's auspicious reign, have therefore freely and unanimously resolved to give and grant, and do by this act give and grant to you, our most gracious sovereign lord King George the Second, the several rates, duties, impositions, and charges herein after mentioned, during your Majesty's life; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled; and by the authority of the same, That, from and after the eleventh day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, for and during the term of the natural life of his majesty King George the Second, (whom God long preserve) the said rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, granted to his said late majesty King Charles the Second, by the said act made in the twelfth year of his reign, intituled, A grant of certain impositions upon beer, ale, and other liquors, for the increase of his Majesty's revenue during his life, and which were granted to their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, by the said act made in the second year of their reign, for their lives, and the life of the survivor of them; and which were continued to her said late majesty Queen Anne, by the said act of the first year of her reign, for her life; and which were continued to his said late majesty King George the First, by the said act of the first year of his reign, for his life, (other than and except the said duty of sixpence for every barrel of vinegar beer before mentioned to have been formerly excepted) and also the said duty of sixpence, part of the said duty of eight shillings for every barrel of vinegar, vinegar beer, or liquor preparing for vinegar, which shall be brewed or made of any English or foreign materials, by any person or persons whatsoever, for sale; and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, imposed by the said act of the tenth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid to our said sovereign lord King George the Second, in the same manner and form, and by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and with such allowances as are mentioned and expressed in the before mentioned acts, or any of them, or by any other law now in force, relating to the revenue of excise; and that all and every the said laws relating to the revenue of excise shall be of full force and effect, to all intents and purposes, for the levying, receiving, ascertaining, and recovering the said duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors; and the said duty of sixpence, part of the said duty of eight shillings for every barrel of vinegar, vinegar beer, or liquor preparing for vinegar, hereby granted or continued, in the like manner as if the same were repeated and enacted in the body of this present act.

Exceptions.

II. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said further subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and other duties upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, granted by the said act made in the ninth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William for his life, and continued to her said late majesty Queen Anne, by the said act of the first year of her reign, for her life, and afterwards continued to his said late majesty King George the First, by the said act of the first year of his reign, for his life, shall, from and after the said eleventh day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, during the life of our said sovereign lord King George the Second, be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto his Majesty, by the same ways, means, and methods, and under the same penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and by the same rules and directions, and with the same allowances and drawbacks as are prescribed in or by the said act of the ninth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William, or in any other

IV. And it is hereby enacted and declared, That the said hereditary rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, and the said duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, hereby granted to his Majesty for the term of his life, and the said further subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and other duties upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, and the said yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds hereby also granted granted to his Majesty for the term of his life, and the said revenue of the general letter-office, or post-office, or office of post-master general, and the small branches of his Majesty's revenues herein-after expressed, that is to say, the monies arising by fines for writs of covenant and writs of entry, payable in the alienation-office, the post fines, the revenue of the wine licenses, sheriffs profers and compositions in the Exchequer, seizures of prohibited and uncustomed goods, the revenue arising to his Majesty by rents of lands, or for fines of leases of the same, or any of them, and all other branches and revenues which were settled or appointed for the support of the household of his said late majesty King George the First, and the honour and dignity of the crown, during his said late Majesty's life as aforesaid, (except such revenues, rents, and hereditaments as have been granted or passed to any person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, by or in pursuance of any act or acts of parliament in that behalf, and except all charges of particular annuities or sums of money on the said revenues, or any of them, made or allowed of by any act or acts of parliament whatsoever) shall be for the support of his Majesty's household, and of the honour and dignity of the crown, and other the purposes in this act mentioned and declared: nevertheless the said hereditary duties of excise, and the said duties of excise granted for his Majesty's life as aforesaid, and the said revenues of the general letter-office or post-office, or office of post-master general, shall respectively be liable to and charged with the several particular annual, weekly, or other payments or incumbrances charged on, or directed to be set apart out of the said hereditary duties of excise, and the said duties of excise granted for the life of his said late majesty King George the First, and the said revenues of the general letter-office or post-office, or officer of post-master general, or any of them, by any former or other act or acts of parliament, in the same manner, and for the same uses, intents, and purposes, and under and subject to the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, for any offences in or about the same, as the said last mentioned duties or revenues, or any of them, were subject or liable unto at the time of the demise of his said late majesty King George the First, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if the same had been by this act particularly charged on or directed to be set apart out of the duties or revenues hereby granted or continued to his Majesty for his life; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

branches of the revenue, shall be for the support of the household, and the honour of the crown, but chargeable with the incumbrances thereon by other acts.

V. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the produce of the several duties and revenues hereby granted and appropriated for the purposes aforesaid, (over and above such annual, weekly, and other payments and incumbrances as aforesaid, and over and above all grants made by any of his Majesty's royal predecessors) shall at any time or times appear to be so deficient, that within any one year, reckoning from the feast of Saint John Baptist, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty seven, the same shall not be sufficient to answer and satisfy the yearly sum of eight hundred thousand pounds, then, and in every such case, and as often as any such deficiency shall happen, the same shall be provided for, answered, and made good, by and out of the then next aids to be granted in parliament.

If the produce of these duties be not sufficient to answer 800,000l. per ann. the deficiency to be made good out of the next aids.

VI. Provided nevertheless, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several and respective duties and revenues which were payable to his said late majesty King George the First, in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, for and during his life, shall be continued, raised, levied, and paid, from the decease of his said late Majesty, during the life of his present majesty King George the Second, in the same manner only, and subject to the same or the like charges thereon, as the same were liable or subject to during his said late Majesty's life.

The revenues payable to his late Majesty in Scotland, continued to his present Majesty.

VII. Saving always, to all and every person and persons, bodies politick, and corporate, their heirs and successors, executors, administrators, and assigns, other than to our said sovereign lord the King, his heirs and successors, Saving clause.

fors, all such rights, titles, estates, customs, interests, claims, and demands whatsoever, of, in, or to, or out of the revenues, hereditaments, and other the premises aforelaid, or any of them, as they or any of them had or ought to have had at the making of this act, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if this act had never been made; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

C A P. VIII.

An act for granting an aid to his Majesty by sale of annuities to the bank of England at four pounds per centum, redeemable by parliament, and charged upon the duties on coals and culm; and for further applying the produce of the sinking fund; and for enlarging the time for exchanging Nevis and Saint Christopher's debentures for annuities at three per centum, and for applying the arrears of his late Majesty's civil list revenues.

Most gracious Sovereign,

9 Ann. c. 22.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament, made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty several duties upon coals, for building fifty new churches in and about the cities of London and Westminster, and suburbs thereof, and other purposes therein mentioned, it was enacted, That for all sorts of coals and culm, which from and after the twenty eighth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and before the twenty eighth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, should be imported and brought into the port of the city of London, or the river of Thames, within the liberty of the said city upon the same river, there should be paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, by way of imposition thereupon (over and besides all other impositions and duties) according to the rates herein-after mentioned; that is to say, For all such sorts of coals and culm as are usually sold by the chalders, for every chalders thereof, containing thirty six bushels Winchester measure, the sum of three shillings; and for such sorts of coals as are sold by the tun, for every tun thereof, containing twenty hundred weight, the sum of three shillings; all the produce of which said imposition on coals and culm was thereby appropriated for the building of fifty new churches, in or near the cities of London and Westminster, or the suburbs thereof, and other purposes therein mentioned: and whereas by an act of parliament, made and passed in the first year of the reign of your Majesty's royal father, King George the First, of glorious memory, the said impositions and duties upon coals and culm were further granted to his said late Majesty, from the twenty seventh day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, to the twenty eighth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, and the whole produce thereof applied for the making provision for the ministers of the said fifty new churches, and other purposes therein mentioned: and whereas by an act of parliament of the fifth year of his said late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for continuing certain duties upon coals and culm, and for establishing certain funds to raise money, as well to proceed in the building of new churches, as also to complete the supply granted to his Majesty, and to reserve the overplus monies of the said duties for the disposition of parliament, and for more effectually suppressing private lotteries, the same impositions and duties were granted to his Majesty, from the twenty seventh day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty five, to the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, which should be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty one, and were thereby charged with a particular fund of twenty one thousand pounds per annum for thirty two years, from the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, for the raising from time to time, by loans at the Exchequer, on the credit of the said fund, as the same should be wanted, the sum of three hundred and sixty thousand pounds, in lieu of the provisions by the former acts for the building the said churches, and other purposes before mentioned; and the same impositions or duties were by the same act further charged with another particular fund of thirty thousand five hundred and fifty nine pounds, fourteen shillings per annum, for the like term of thirty two years, from the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and nineteen, for the paying off and discharging the sum of five hundred thousand pounds, with the interest at four pounds per centum per annum, for the fortunate tickets in the lottery established by the said late mentioned act: and whereas by a subsequent act of parliament made in the sixth year of his said late Majesty's reign, for enlarging the South Sea company to enlarge the capital Stock and fund of the said company, the said duties on coals and culm were continued for ever; and thereby the said sum of five hundred thousand pounds for the said lottery, or any part thereof, was (amongst other publick debts therein enumerated) impowered to be taken into the capital stock of the said company, and the said company was to be entitled to an annuity after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, redeemable by parliament, for so much thereof as should be so taken into the capital stock, in lieu of the former annuity payable for the same, and to a proportionable allowance for charges of management, and to be charged upon the said impositions and duties: and whereas, in pursuance of the said last mentioned act, the sum of four hundred thirty four thousand six hundred and five pounds principal money, part of the said sum of five hundred thousand pounds, was taken into the said stock, and by means thereof the said company became entitled to an annuity or yearly sum of seventeen thousand three hundred eighty four pounds, four shillings, redeemable by parliament, being after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, in respect of the said principal sum so taken into their stock; and the residue of the said principal debt or sum of five hundred thousand pounds hath been since paid off and discharged, by means whereof the former particular fund or annuity of thirty thousand five hundred fifty nine pounds, fourteen shillings, for paying off the said five hundred thousand pounds and interest, was redeemed and discharged: and whereas by or in pursuance of another act of parliament, made in the thirteenth year of the reign of his said late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty the sum of three hundred and seventy thousand pounds, to be raised by loans or exchequer bills, to be charged on the surplus monies of the duties on coals and culm, granted by an act of the fifth year of his Majesty's reign for a term of years, and since made perpetual, certain exchequer bills were made forth at the Exchequer, amounting together to the principal sum of three hundred thirty eight thousand eight hundred pounds; and charged on the said duties on coals and culm, and the same are still subsisting: and whereas by virtue of the powers granted by the said act of the fifth year of the reign of his said late majesty King George the First, several sums of money have been raised in part of the said three hundred and sixty thousand pounds, by loans; to be repaid with interest at the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, out of the said particular fund of twenty one thousand pounds per annum, and there now remains undischarged of the said loans, on the register thereof, the sum of ninety thousand pounds principal money, over and above any monies reserved in the Exchequer for satisfying thereof; and there also remains to be raised for the building the said churches, and other the purposes aforesaid, the further sum of one hundred and three thousand one hundred and forty pounds, to complete the said whole sum of three hundred and sixty thousand pounds by the said act appointed to be raised as aforesaid, and subject thereto, and to the said annuity of seventeen thousand three hundred eighty four pounds, and four shillings, or other charges now payable to the South Sea company, and redeemable on payment to the said South Sea company of the sum of four hundred thirty four thousand six hundred and five pounds, pounds, and also to the said exchequer bills, amounting to three hundred thirty eight thousand eight hundred pounds, as aforesaid, the surplus of the said impositions or duties is reserved for the disposition of parliament: and whereas the governor and company of the bank of England have consented and agreed to advance and pay into the receipt of your Majesty's exchequer the sum of one million seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds, at the times and in manner herein-after mentioned, for the purchase of an annuity of seventy thousand pounds to be payable to them and their successors for ever, subject to redemption by parliament, to be charged on the said duties and impositions, so as the same duties and impositions be freed and discharged from all the former charges or incumbrances thereon: now, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being willing and desirous not only to discharge all the said charges and incumbrances, but also to raise the necessary supplies which we have cheerfully granted to your Majesty, by means the most easy to your people, have freely and voluntarily given and granted, and by this act do give and grant to your Majesty the sum of one million seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds, to be raised in such manner and form as is herein-after directed; and to that end do most humbly beseech your Majesty, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That yearly and every year, from and after the feast day of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty eight, a certain yearly sum or fund of seventy thousand pounds, being after the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, for or upon the sum of one million seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds to be raised by this act, be settled and established, and be payable in the manner and form herein-after expressed and declared, for satisfying the annuities to be purchased in pursuance of this act from time to time, until redemption thereof by parliament, according to the proviso or provisos herein-after for that purpose contained.

After St. John Baptist's day, 1728, an annuity of 70,000 l. at 4 per cent. to be raised, redeemable by parliament, and chargeable on the duty on coals.

Surplus to be reserved for disposition of parliament.

On repayment by parliament, annuity redeemed.

II. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said yearly fund or sum of seventy thousand pounds is and shall, by virtue of this act, be charged and chargeable upon, and payable out of the monies which, from and after the said feast day of the nativity of Saint John Baptist, one thousand seven hundred and twenty eight, shall from time to time arise into the Exchequer, of or for the said impositions or duties on coals and culm so granted as aforesaid.

XI. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case there shall be any surplus or remainder of the monies arising by the said duties, at the end of any one year (computing the same to end at Christmas yearly) after the said annuity of seventy thousand pounds, and all arrears thereof are satisfied, or money sufficient shall be reserved for that purpose, such surplus or remainder shall, from time to time be reserved for the disposition of parliament, and shall not be issued but by authority of parliament, and as shall be directed by future act or acts of parliament; any thing in any former or other act or acts of parliament to the contrary notwithstanding.

XII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon repayment by parliament to the said governor and company of the bank of England, and their successors or assigns, of the said sum of one million seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds, without any deduction, discount, or abatement whatsoever to be made out of the same, or any part thereof, and of all arrears of the said annuity or yearly sum of seventy thousand pounds, then, and not till then, the said annuity or yearly sum shall from thenceforth cease and be understood to be redeemed; and from and after such redemption, the monies arising from the said impositions and duties shall not be issued or applied to any use or purpose, but as shall be directed by by future act or acts of parliament; any thing in this or in any former act or acts of parliament to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXIII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies which shall arise for the said surplusses, excesses, and overplus monies commonly called the sinking fund (over and beyond what will satisfy and pay the several sums before mentioned, and such other charges as have been heretofore made thereon by authority of parliament) shall be appropriated, reserved and applied to and for the further discharging the principal and interest of such national debts and incumbrances, as were incurred before the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and are declared to be national debts, and were provided for by act or acts of parliament, in such manner and form as shall be directed by any future act or acts of parliament, to be discharged therewith or out of the same, and to and for no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever.

The overplus of the sinking fund appropriated to discharge debts incurred before 25 Dec. 1716.

STAT. II. CAP. XVII.

An act for repealing the present duties on wine lees and lignum vitæ, and laying new duties on wine lees; and for prohibiting the importation of wine in flasks, bottles, or small casks; and for preventing frauds in exporting silk manufactures, and for supplying the want of regular certificates of such manufactures being landed in foreign parts, where such certificates cannot be had; and for giving further time to clerks and apprentices to pay duties omitted to be paid for their indentures and contracts.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WHEREAS in the book of rates annex to the act of tonnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, a particular rate of four pounds per ton was fixt upon wine lees imported; according to which rate a subsidy of twelve pence in the pound was thereby payable to his Majesty: and whereas according to the said rate a further subsidy of poundage of twelve pence in the pound on wine lees imported, was granted to his present Majesty for his life (which God long preserve) by an act made in the first year of his Majesty's reign: and whereas by an act made in the second year of her late majesty Queen Anne, another subsidy was granted on the importation of wine lees, in proportion to the said rate, commonly called the one third subsidy; and by an act passed in the third year of her said late Majesty, another subsidy of poundage was granted on the importation of wine lees in proportion to the said rate, commonly called the two third subsidy; and whereas by an act made in the fourth year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, an additional impost of twenty five pounds for every hundred pound value, was laid upon French wine lees imported, according to the said rate; and whereas by an act made in the seventh year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, an additional duty of twenty five pounds per centum was laid upon French wine lees imported; all which acts which granted the said several subsidies, and other duties commonly called the old subsidy, the one third subsidy, and the two third subsidy (except the said further subsidy, which is granted to his Majesty during his life) as also the said additional impost and additional duty, are by several subsequent acts of parliament continued for ever, subject to redemption by parliament: and whereas great quantities of wines have of late been imported, mixed with, and under pretence pretence of lees, which were afterwards drawn off, and sold as wine, to the manifest abuse of the law, and prejudice of the revenue; for remedy whereof, we your faithful commons in parliament assembled; do beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fourth day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty eight; the said several subsidies, additional impost, additional duty, and other duties whatsoever, payable to your Majesty, your heirs and successors, by any law now in force, upon the importation of wine lees, shall cease and determine, and be no longer due and payable for wine lees imported after that time.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in lieu of the said former subsidies, and other duties repealed by this act, all wine lees imported into Great Britain, from and after the said twenty fourth day of August, shall be subject and liable to, and shall pay the same subsidies, impositions, and other duties, as are now payable to your Majesty, your heirs and successors, on the importation of wines into this kingdom, by any act or acts of parliament now in force, according to the several and respective growths thereof.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several subsidies, impositions, and other duties granted by this act, shall be paid or secured, and shall be raised, levied, and collected in such manner and form, and by such ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such discounts and allowances, as are mentioned and expressed in the several acts of parliament which granted or continued the several subsidies, impositions, or other duties upon wines imported respectively; and all powers, penalties, provisions, articles, and clauses therein contained, shall continue in full force and effect during the continuance of the said respective subsidies, impositions, and other duties upon wines, and shall be applied, practised, and executed for the raising, levying, collecting, securing, answering, paying and appropriating the said respective subsidies, impositions, and other duties on wine lees imported, according to the true intent and meaning of this act, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if the said clauses, matters and things, had been again repeated in the body of this present act; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

IV. And be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no drawback shall be allowed for any lees of wine exported; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

V. And whereas by an act passed in the eighth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act giving further encouragement for the importation of naval stores, and for other purposes therein mentioned, liberty is given for any person or persons to import into Great Britain, within the term of one and twenty years, to be reckoned from the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, directly from any of his Majesty's plantations or colonies in America, in any ship or vessel, ships or vessels, which may lawfully trade to and from the said plantations or colonies, and which shall be navigated according to law, any sort of wood, plank or timber whatsoever, wrought or unwrought, or any of the goods called lumber, in the said act enumerated, being of the growth and product of the said plantations or colonies, or some of them (except masts, yards and bowsprits) free from all customs and impositions whatsoever granted to his said Majesty, his heirs or successors: and whereas lignum vitæ being of the growth or product of the British plantations in America, is for the most part made use of by turners in making bowls, cups, and other necessaries, and particularly in making blocks, pulleys, and sheaves for ships, and staves for weavers; and forasmuch

Some doubt has arisen whether lignum vitæ, which is rated in the book of rates to pay duty as a drug, is within the intent and meaning of the said act, though very small quantities thereof are made use of physically: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That such lignum vitæ imported, or to be imported on the conditions mentioned in the said act, after the twenty fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty eight, shall; during the remaining term of the said one and twenty years, be free from all customs and impositions whatsoever, granted to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, as if the same had been mentioned and expressed in the body of the said act; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Lignum vitæ, after 24 June, 1728, free of duty. 24 Geo. 2. c. 57.

VI. And whereas upon the aforesaid doubt, whether lignum vitæ; of the growth and product of the British plantations in America, might be imported into this kingdom free of duty, several bonds and deposits have been taken for answering the duties demanded for the same, the said bonds are hereby declared null and void, and discharged from all prosecutions for the same, and the deposits shall be delivered up.

Bonds for answering the duties discharged.

VII. And whereas great quantities of French wines and other wines, are imported in flasks and bottles and in small casks, which are frequently conveyed on shore without payment of duty, to the manifest loss of the revenue, and the detriment of the fair traders: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty ninth day of November, one thousand seven hundred and twenty eight, no wines (other than such as hereafter are mentioned) shall be imported into this kingdom in flasks or in bottles, or in any vessel or cask which shall contain less than twenty five gallons; upon pain of forfeiting the same, or the value thereof; one moiety of which forfeiture to be for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them who will seize, inform, or sue for the same, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, or any more than one imparlance; or by virtue of any law or laws of excise; for such forfeiture as shall be incurred in that part of Great Britain called England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed; or in the court of exchequer in Scotland, for such forfeiture as shall be incurred in that part of Great Britain called Scotland; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

After 29 Nov, 1728, no wines to be imported in flasks, bottles, or vessels less than 25 gallons.

VIII. Provided always, and be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend or be construed to extend to prohibit the importation of wines of the growth of the dominions of the great duke of Tuscany in open flasks, or wines of the growth of Turkey, or any other parts of the Levant seas, in the same manner as they have heretofore usually been imported.

Exception.

IX. And whereas by an act passed in the eighth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, For encouraging of the silk manufactures of this kingdom, and for other purposes therein mentioned, several allowances are to be made to the exporters of sundry manufactures of silk, and silk mixed with gold or silver, and with gogram, yarn, incle, or worsted, to parts beyond the seas, upon a debenture verified by the searcher, and oath being made and security given by the exporter, not to reland the same in Great Britain; and such securities are to be discharged (except in cases otherwise provided for) upon proper certificates, testifying the landing the said goods in parts beyond the seas; which certificates, in case of any entry for, or landing the said goods in Ireland, or in any other foreign port or place, where any officer or officers of his Majesty's customs shall be resident, are to be signed by the proper officer or officers of his Majesty's customs there; and in case of entry for any other foreign ports or places, such certificates are to be under the common seal of the chief magistrate in such port or place, or under the hands and seals of two known British merchants, then being at such port or place: and whereas it is found impracticable

X. And whereas in and by an act of parliament made in the eighth year of his late majesty King George the First, For encouragement of the silk manufactures of this kingdom, and for other purposes therein mentioned, certain allowances or sums of money are to be paid to the exporters of silk stuffs made in Great Britain, or silk mixed with gold or silver, program, yarn, incl, cotton or worsted, as in the said act is expressed; and provision was made in the said act, that no allowance should be demanded or made for such of the said manufactures, when they are only mixed with silk at the edge or ends of the piece, which not being sufficient to prevent frauds and abuses in making those manufactures, a further provision was made for that purpose by another act made in the ninth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, which by experience has still been found ineffectual, several ill disposed persons having only put a small thread of silk scarce discoverable in the warp (by which is meant the length of the piece) not with intent to benefit the sale of the goods, but with a design to obtain the bounty or allowance on the exportation, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said acts: for remedy whereof, be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the said acts, or either of them, shall not extend or be construed to extend to the making any allowance on the exportation of any of the manufactures of stuffs aforesaid, mixt with silk, except the silk that shall be mixt in the warp shall be obvious and apparent to the view of the proper officers of the customs, and that the silk therein used shall be double the value of the bounty intended to be paid on the exportation of the said manufactures respectively; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

to them shall seem fit, to examine and determine the common market prices of middling English corn and grain, of the respective sorts in the said act mentioned, as the same shall be commonly bought and sold in the said respective counties, into which any foreign corn and grain shall be imported; and to certify the same with two such oaths made as aforesaid in writing annexed, unto his Majesty's chief officer and collector of the customs for the time being, residing in the said respective ports or havens, where the said corn or grain shall be imported, to be hung up in some publick place in the custom-house, to which all persons may resort for their information: and it is thereby further enacted, That the custom and duty of foreign corn and grain imported into any of his Majesty's said dominions of England, Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, appointed by the first mentioned act to be paid, shall be collected and paid according to the prices contained in such respective certificates as aforesaid, and not otherwise; any thing in the said act, or in any other law or statute contained to the contrary notwithstanding: and it is further provided by the said act, That all that by virtue thereof is to be done by the justices of the peace at their quarter-sessions in their several counties, shall be done and performed in like manner in the city of London, in the months of October and April yearly, by the mayor, aldermen, and justices of the peace there, and that the persons making such oaths shall be no corn-chandler, mealman, factor, merchant, or other person interested in such corn so to be imported, but shall be some substantial housekeepers living in Middlesex or Surrey, qualified as aforesaid: and whereas the justices of the peace for some of the counties of this kingdom have, notwithstanding the last mentioned act, omitted or neglected to settle the price of corn at their quarter-sessions after Michaelmas last, and to return certificates thereof to the chief officer and collector of the customs, residing in the respective ports where the said corn or grain has been or may be imported; by means whereof the said officers were at a loss how to charge the custom and duty due for such corn, which has been, and may be a great loss to the revenue, and a detriment to the farmers and fair traders; for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That it shall and may be lawful to and for all and every the justices of the peace for such of the several and respective counties of this kingdom, who have omitted or neglected to settle the prices of corn at the quarter-sessions after Michaelmas last, and they are hereby enjoined and required, at the next respective quarter-sessions, or at any adjournment thereof which shall happen after the passing this act, to examine and determine what the common market-prices of middling British corn and grain, of the respective sorts in the said acts mentioned, were at or about Michaelmas last in the respective counties, upon such oaths, and by such other ways and means, as are directed and prescribed by the said act passed in the first year of King James the Second, and to grant certificates thereof as directed by the said act; and the officers of the customs, and all other persons concerned are to govern themselves according to the prices of corn or grain contained in such certificates, as if the same had been regularly examined, determined and certified at last Michaelmas quarter-sessions as aforesaid; any thing in the said act, or any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. And be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where any of the sorts of corn or grain aforesaid have been imported from beyond the seas, since the first day of Michaelmas quarter-sessions last past, and the importers or proprietors thereof have omitted or neglected or shall omit or neglect to pay the respective duties due or payable for the same, when demanded according to the prices mentioned and expressed in the certificates of the justices of the peace, made or to be made by virtue of the former and this present act, such importers or proprietors shall forfeit and lose all such corn and grain, or the value thereof, and the same shall and may be seized, prosecuted and sued for, by bill, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer in Scotland.

Scotland, one moiety whereof shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the seizor or prosecutor.

III. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the justices of the peace for the several counties of this kingdom shall for the future omit or neglect to examine and determine the prices of corn or grain, at their respective quarter-sessions after Michaelmas and Easter yearly, and to certify the same unto his Majesty's chief officer and collector of the customs for the time being, residing in the respective ports or havens, where foreign corn or grain shall or may be imported, in order to be hung up in some publick place in the custom-house, as directed by the said act passed in the first year of the reign of King James the Second, then and in such case, the collector of his Majesty's customs, at the respective port of importation, is hereby impowered to receive the several duties of the corn so imported, according to the lowest price of the several sorts of corn or grain, mentioned and expressed in the said act passed in the twenty-second year of the reign of King Charles the Second; any law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Justices not determining the price of corn, collector to settle it.

IV. And for the better ascertaining the quantity of corn or grain to be shipped for exportation, which by an act passed in the first year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for the encouraging the exportation of corn, is no otherwise ascertained, than by the certificate of the exporter, attested upon oath; be it enacted, That the proper officers of the customs shall be impowered to admeasure all corn and grain, whereon there is an allowance payable for the exportation thereof; and for greater expedition therein, such admeasurement shall and may be by a tub or measure containing four Winchester bushels; and if such corn or grain intended to be exported, shall be brought to be shipped off in sacks, that then and in such case the said officers are hereby impowered and required to make choice of two of those sacks, out of any number not exceeding twenty sacks, and so in proportion for any greater quantity, before the same shall be put on board for exportation, and thereby compute the quantity of corn so intended to be shipped for exportation; and according to such computation, the allowance or bounty money shall be paid to the exporter for the whole quantity proportionably, upon his producing a certificate from the proper officer or officers of the customs, attesting the quantity and quality of the corn or grain so shipped for exportation.

An act to revive the laws therein mentioned, relating to the importation of foreign brandy, and other waters and spirits; for importation of cochineal; to continue several acts for preventing frauds in the customs; for encouragement of the silk manufactures of this kingdom; for making copper ore of the British plantations an enumerated commodity; for making perpetual an act therein mentioned; for suppressing of piracy; for enabling persons prosecuted upon the Capias, in relation to the running of goods, to defend in Forma Pauperis; for more effectual debarring of unlawful games; for licensing retailers of brandy, and other distilled liquors, and for better regulation of licenses for common inns and alehouses.

WHEREAS the laws herein after mentioned (which have by experience been found useful and beneficial) are expired or near expiring; may it therefore please your Majesty that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the clause in an act made in the fifth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act against clandestine running of uncustomed goods, and for the more effectual preventing frauds relating to the customs, which relates to the importation of foreign brandy, arrack, rum, strong waters or spirits, in any ship, vessel or boat, under the burthen of fifteen tuns, which is expired, shall be and is hereby revived, and shall be in force for the purposes therein mentioned, from the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and twenty nine, until the twenty-ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and thirty four, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament.

Act 5 Geo. 1. c. 11. relating to foreign brandy, &c. revived from 1 May 1729, to 29 Sept. 1734, &c. Farther continued by 20 Geo. 2. c. 47.

13 Geo. 1. c. 25. relating to cochineal revived from 1 May 1729, to 1 May 1730, &c. 20 Geo. 2. c. 47.

5 Geo. 1. c. 11. for preventing frauds in the customs, continued till 29 Sept. 1734, &c. 20 Geo. 2. c. 47.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That an act made in the thirteenth year of his said late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the free importation of cochineal, during the time therein limited, which is expired, shall be and is hereby revived, and shall be in force for the purposes therein mentioned, from the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and twenty nine, until the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and thirty, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament.

III. And whereas several clauses in an act made in the fifth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, intituled, An act against clandestine running of uncustomed goods, and for the more effectual preventing frauds relating to the customs, relating to such foreign goods, wares and merchandizes as shall be taken in at sea, out of any ship or vessel, in order to be landed, or put into any other ship, vessel or boat, and also relating to goods not reported, and found after clearing ships, and whereby further remedies are provided against retarding goods prohibited to be worn in this kingdom, and foreign goods shipped out for parts beyond the seas; and also relating to the opening or altering the package of goods on board ships outward bound; and also relating to hovering ships or vessels of the burthen of fifty tuns or under; and also concerning the bales or package in which coffee shall be exported; and also relating to rum imported in casks or vessels not containing twenty gallons at the least; and also relating to certificate goods entered in order to be exported to Ireland; which said several clauses were to have continuance for the term of three years, from the several times of the commencement thereof, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament respectively (which said several clauses last mentioned mentioned were, by another act passed in the ninth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, for continuing of some laws and reviving others therein mentioned, and against clandestine running of uncustomed goods, and for more effectual preventing frauds relating to the customs, and frauds in mixing silk with stuffs to be exported, further continued from the expiration of the several and respective terms therein mentioned, for the term of five years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament): and whereas the said clauses are near expiring, but in regard it is necessary that the said clauses should be further continued, for preventing frauds in the revenue, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said last mentioned clauses in the said act of the fifth year of the reign of his late Majesty, and so continued by the said act of the ninth year of his said late Majesty, shall be in force and put in practice, for the purposes in the said acts mentioned, from and after the expiration thereof, until the twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and thirty four, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several clauses contained in an act made in the eighth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, intituled, An act for encouragement of the silk manufactures of this kingdom, and for taking off several duties on merchandizes exported, and for reducing the duties on beaver skins, pepper, mace, cloves and nutmegs imported, and for importation of all furs of the product of the British plantations, into this kingdom only, and that the two corporations of assurance on any suits brought on their policies shall be liable only to single damages, relating to the encouragement of the silk manufactures of this kingdom, and for taking off several duties on merchandizes exported, which were to continue in force for three years, from the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and which were by an act made in the eleventh year of the reign of his said late Majesty, to continue several acts therein mentioned, for encouraging of the silk manufactures of this kingdom, and for other purposes therein mentioned, further continued from the expiration thereof for three years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, shall be and are hereby further continued from the expiration thereof, until the twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and thirty four, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament.

V. And be it further enacted, That the two last clauses, for the more effectual preventing frauds and abuses in the said last mentioned manufactures, contained in an act made in the ninth year of his Majesty's reign, for continuing some laws and reviving others, and for other purposes therein mentioned, shall be of full force, and shall be put in execution accordingly, until the said twenty ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and thirty four, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the act made in the eighth year of his late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act to prevent the clandestine running of goods, and the danger of infection thereby, and to prevent ships breaking their quarantine, and to subject copper ore, of the production of the British plantations, to such regulations as other enumerated commodities of the like production are subject, which was to be in force for two years, from the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and twenty two, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, which act (except the clause obliging all ships or vessels to perform quarantine) was by an act made in the eleventh year of his late Majesty's reign, to continue several acts therein mentioned, for encouraging of the silk manufactures of this kingdom, for the preventing the clandestine running of goods, for making copper ore of the British plantations an enumerated commodity, and for explaining and amending a late act for more effectual punishment of such who shall wilfully burn and destroy ships, further continued from the expiration thereof for the

Anno secundo

GEORGE II. Regis.

C A P. XXXV.

An Act for the better preservation of his Majesty's woods in America, and for the encouragement of the importation of naval stores from thence; and to encourage the importation of masts, yards, and bowsprights, from that part of Great Britain called Scotland.

SECT. III. AND whereas by several acts of parliament passed in the third and fourth and in the twelfth years of her late Majesty's reign, great encouragement was given, and large premiums allowed, for the importation of naval stores from the British plantations in America; and it hath been found by experience, that the said plantations are capable of furnishing sufficient quantities of naval stores, but many frauds and abuses have been committed therein, and greater premiums paid, than were necessary for the same: and whereas the said acts, excepting only such parts of them as relate to the premiums on hemp imported, are expired: now for the future encouragement of the planters to send such quantities of good merchantable naval stores to Great Britain, as may be necessary for the service of the royal navy, and for the navigation of this kingdom, and in order to reduce the expence of such premiums for the future, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September next, all and every person or persons that shall import or cause to be imported into this kingdom, directly from any of his Majesty's British colonies or plantations in America, in any ship or ships that may lawfully trade to his Majesty's plantations, manned as by law is required, any of the naval stores hereafter mentioned, shall have and enjoy,

Premium for importing naval stores, viz.

enjoy, as a reward or premium for such importation, after and according to the several rates of such naval stores, as follows, viz.

For all masts, yards, and bowsprights, per tun, allowing forty foot to each For masts, &c. tun, girt measure, according to the customary way of measuring round bodies, one pound.

For clean, good, merchantable, well conditioned tar, clear of dross or Tar, water, and fit in every respect for making cordage, per tun, containing eight barrels, and each barrel to gauge thirty one gallons and one half, to be well hooped and filled up, two pounds four shillings.

For clean, good, merchantable, and well conditioned pitch, not mixt Pitch, with dirt or dross, per tun, containing twenty gross hundreds, net pitch, to be brought in eight barrels of equal size, one pound.

For clean, good, and merchantable turpentine, clear of dross and water, Turpentine, per tun, each tun containing twenty gross hundreds, net turpentine, to be brought in eight barrels of equal size, one pounds ten shillings.

Which said several premiums for each species afore-mentioned, shall be paid and answered by the commissioners or principal officers of his Majesty's navy, who are hereby impowered and required to make out a bill or bills, to be paid in course, for the same, upon certificate of the respective chief officer or officers of the customs, in any port of this kingdom, where such naval stores shall be imported as afore said; such bill or bills to be made out and given to the person or persons importing the same as afore said, within twenty Days after the discharge or unlading of the ship or vessel, ships or vessels, in which such stores shall be imported; upon a certificate or certificates to be produced to the chief officer or officers of the customs, which certificate or certificates shall be under the hand and seal of the governor, or lieutenant governor, or collector of his Majesty's customs, and naval officer, or any two of them, residing and being within any of his Majesty's said colonies or plantations, that before the departure of such ship or vessel, ships or vessels, the person or persons, merchant, trader or factor, loading the same, had made oath before them, that the said naval stores so shipped on board were truly and bona fide of the growth and produce of his Majesty's said colonies and plantations (which oath the said governor, lieutenant governor, collector of his Majesty's customs, and naval officer, or any two of them, are hereby authorised to administer) as likewise upon oath to be made within any port of Great Britain, by the master or masters of such ship or vessel, ships or vessels, importing such naval stores, that the same were shipped on board such ship or vessel, ships or vessels, within some of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, and that he or they know or believe, that the said naval stores were the produce of the said colonies or plantations.

To be paid by the commissioners of the navy, 24 Geo. 2. c. 52.

on certificate of the governor or of the place, and on oath of the master of the ship,

IV. And whereas it is necessary for the better making cool and good tar, fit for cordage, in all the British plantations, that the last half part of every kiln of tar, when drawn, shall be made into pitch free of dross, be it enacted by the authority afore said, That the whole kiln of such tar, or the value thereof, unless the said half part shall be so made into pitch as afore said, shall, from and after the twenty-ninth day of September one thousand seven hundred and twenty-nine, be forfeited for the benefit of any person or persons, who shall sue for the same, to be levied and recovered in the same manner as other penalties and forfeitures are directed by this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

The whole kiln of tar, unless the last half part be made into pitch, forfeited.

V. And to the end a particular benefit may accrue hereby to his Majesty's royal navy, and for the better supply of the same with naval stores, be it further enacted, That upon the importing of any naval stores from his Majesty's said colonies and plantations, for which a reward or premium is hereby granted, the pre-emption or refusal of such naval stores shall be offered and tendered to the commissioners of his Majesty's navy, upon landing the same; and if, within the term of twenty days after such tender, the said commissioners commissioners shall not contract or bargain for the same, it shall and may be lawful to and for the importer or importers, owner or owners, of the said naval stores, otherwise to dispose of the same, for his or their best profit and advantage.

On exportation, the exporter to produce a receipt that he hath repaid the premiums.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any pitch, tar, turpentine, masts, yards, or bowsprights, shall, after the twenty ninth day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty nine, be exported, that then, and in every such case, the person or persons so exporting the same shall, before the entry thereof, produce to the collector of the customs, at the port of exportation, or to the chief officer of the customs there, a receipt from the treasurer of the navy, or his cashire, which he is hereby directed to give without fee or reward, signifying that such exporter or his agent has paid to him the full amount of the premiums that are allowed by this act, for the like quantity of such naval stores respectively, either in lawful money of Great Britain, or by bill or bills made out for premiums, by virtue of this act; which receipt shall likewise be subscribed by the comptroller of such treasurer's accounts, or his chief clerk, without fee or reward, so that proper notice may be taken thereof in his office; and on failure thereof such naval stores shall not be exported; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Treasurer of the navy to charge himself with the money received.

VII. Provided always, That the treasurer of his Majesty's navy shall, on the receiving of such premium or the value thereof from the exporter of such naval stores as aforesaid, charge himself with the money so received, or with the said premium, bill or bills; and the commissioners, and principal officers of his majesty's navy, are to take particular care that the same be duly brought to the account of his Majesty by such treasurer accordingly.

Naval stores exported before premium is repaid, are forfeited, and double their value.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, their agents or assigns, shall be found fraudulently to export such naval stores, without paying such premium to the treasurer of his Majesty's navy or his cashire, in manner aforesaid, such person or persons shall forfeit and lose all such naval stores, and double the value thereof, one moiety whereof shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the informer, or prosecutor, to be prosecuted in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer in Scotland respectively, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed.

Onus probandi to lie on the owner.

IX. Provided always, That if any doubt or dispute shall arise, whether any of the naval stores, or any part thereof, so to be exported, are of the growth, product, or manufacture of his Majesty's plantations in America, or of foreign growth, product, or manufacture, the Onus probandi shall lie on the owner or claimer thereof, and not on the informer or prosecutor; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

5 Geo. I. c. 11.

X. And whereas by an act passed in the fifth year of his late majesty King George the First's reign, intituled, An act against clandestine running of uncustomed goods, and for the more effectual preventing of frauds relating to the customs, several provisions are made, relating to the manner of examining and viewing pitch and tar, and making certificates for the same, in order to obtain the premium granted for such pitch and tar, and for inflicting penalties and forfeitures on any officer of the customs, who shall demand or take any fee, gratuity or reward for the examining, viewing, or delivering such pitch, tar, or other naval stores, with respect to the premium or reward allowed by law, or for the making or signing a certificate in order to the receiving such premium or reward, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several clauses, matters and things, contained in the said act of the fifth year of his said late Majesty, in so far as the same relate to the examining and viewing such pitch and tar of the produce of his Majesty's plantations, and for inflicting penalties and forfeitures upon any officer of the customs, demanding or taking any fee, gratuity, or reward, for examining, viewing, or delivering such pitch, tar, or other naval

naval stores, with respect to the premium, and for the making or signing a certificate in order to the receiving such premium or reward, shall be continued and put in practice during the continuance of this act, as if the several matters, things, and penalties were again repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XI. And whereas by an act passed in the eighth year of his late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act giving further encouragement for the importation of naval stores, and for other purposes therein mentioned, a particular method is prescribed for the making of tar from green trees prepared for that purpose; and, before the importers were intituled to a premium, oath was to be made, that the trees were prepared after the following manner; that is to say, when such trees were fit to bark, the bark thereof was stripped eight foot, or thereabouts, up from the root of each tree, a slip of the bark of about four inches in breadth having been left on one side of each tree; that each tree, after having been so barked, had stood during one year at least, and was not before cut down for the making tar; which method, if the same was followed, there is great reason to apprehend would make the tar of the plantations much cooler, and more fit for the uses of navigation; but the inhabitants of the plantations, not being experienced in that method of making tar, cannot as yet furnish any quantities of tar made according to those directions: as a further encouragement therefore for the making of tar according to the directions of the said act, be it further enacted, That all and every person and persons that shall import, or cause to be imported into this kingdom, any clean, good, merchantable, well conditioned tar, clear of dross or water, and fit in every respect for making cordage, made from trees prepared as aforesaid, according to the directions of the said act of the eighth year of his late Majesty's reign, shall receive, as a premium for the same, four pounds per tun, containing eight barrels, and each barrel to gauge thirty one gallons and one half, to be well hooped and filled up, on the importation thereof: Provided always, That the importer of such tar, before he be intituled to any reward or premium for the same, shall produce to the proper officers of his Majesty's customs (who are to grant certificates upon the importation of tar) such certificate upon oath, that all the said tar was made without mixture of any other tar therewith, according to the directions of the said act, as in the said act for that purpose is particularly mentioned and required. 8 Geo. I. c. 12.

Premium for importing clean tar.

XII. And whereas there are in several parts of North Britain commonly called Scotland, great store of pine and fir trees fit for masts, yards, and bowsprights, but the lands and woods, which may yield such naval stores, are mostly in parts mountainous and remote from navigable rivers; therefore, for the encouragement of the proprietors of such lands and woods, in the making roads, passages, and rivers, in those northern parts useful and commodious to the publick, as well as for conveying such trees fit for masts, yards, and bowsprights to sea ports in North Britain, to be brought by sea, to that part of Great Britain called England: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every person or persons, or bodies corporate, that shall, from and after the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty nine, during the time limited for the granting of premiums to the importers of naval stores from America, by virtue of this act, bring from North Britain aforesaid, into any port of South Britain aforesaid, any trees of twelve inches diameter and upwards, fit for masts, yards, or bowsprights, regularly converted and hewed at least into eight squares, sound, fresh and in good and merchantable condition, shall have and receive as a reward or premium for bringing such naval stores from North Britain to South Britain, for such trees fit for yards, masts, or bowsprights per tun, (allowing forty foot to each tun, girt-measure, according to the customary way of measuring round bodies) the sum of one pound, which said reward and premium shall likewise be paid and answered, in good and lawful money of Great Britain, by the commissioners or principal officers of his Majesty's navy, who are hereby required and impowered to make out a bill or bills to be paid in course for the same, upon certificate of the respective chief officer or officers of the customs in any port of South Britain, where such trees fit for masts, yards, or bowsprights shall be imported as aforesaid; such bill or bills to be made out and given to the person or persons, or bodies corporate, importing the same as aforesaid, within twenty days after the discharge and unlading of the ship or vessel, ships or vessels, in which such trees shall be imported, upon a certificate or certificates to be produced to the chief officer or officers of the customs where such trees shall be imported, which certificate or certificates shall be under the hands and seals of the comptroller and collector of his Majesty's customs, and such naval officer as his Majesty shall think fit to appoint, or any two of them, residing at any such port or ports in North Britain, as his Majesty under the great seal of Great Britain shall think fit to appoint, where such trees shall be embarked or shipped, in order for importing the same into any port of South Britain, that before the departure of such ship or vessel, ships or vessels, the persons, traders, or factors, concerned or employed in cutting down such trees, or any two of them, had made affidavit in writing before such comptroller and collector of his Majesty's customs in North Britain, and such naval officer as his Majesty shall think fit to appoint, or any two of them, that such trees, so brought to such port of North Britain, were truly and bona fide of the growth and produce of North Britain aforesaid; in which affidavit the particular number, quantity, and qualities of such trees, together with the time when such trees were cut down, the names of the proprietors thereof, and the place or places where the same did grow, shall be fully and plainly specified and contained; which affidavits the said comptroller and collector of his Majesty's customs in North Britain, and such naval officer as his Majesty shall think fit to appoint, or any two of them, are hereby impowered to take, and to administer such oath as aforesaid, and the same affidavits to keep in their custody, and in which certificate a true copy of such affidavit shall be inserted; as likewise upon oath to be made within any port of South Britain, by the master or masters of such ship or vessel, ships or vessels importing such trees, that the same were truly laden on board such ship or vessel, ships or vessels within North Britain aforesaid, and that he or they know or believe, that the said trees were of the growth of North Britain aforesaid: provided always, That the pre-emption or refusal of such North British trees be offered and tendred to the commissioners of his Majesty's navy upon landing the same; and if, within the term of twenty days after such tender, the said commissioners shall not contract or bargain for the same, it shall and may be lawful for the importer or importers, owner or owners of the said North British trees, otherwise to dispose thereof.

XIII. And for the better preventing any fraudulent importation of foreign trees for masts, yards, or bowsprights (not being of the growth or produce of North Britain) to South Britain, in order to obtain the reward or premium hereby granted for North British trees: be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall, during the continuance of this act, falsely make affidavit of and swear to the growth of any trees imported as fit for masts, yards, or bowsprights, not being of the produce of North Britain, or shall counterfeit any such affidavit or certificate, as herein is before described, in order to get the premium hereby granted for North British trees, all and every such person and persons shall suffer the like pains and penalties, as are incurred by persons committing wilful and corrupt perjury, and all and every such person and persons committing such offence shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds, one moiety thereof to the king's most excellent Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to any person or persons that will sue for the same in any court of record of Great Britain, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be allowed; and if any comptroller, collector, or naval officer, shall make any false certificate contrary to the true meaning of this act, such comptroller, collector, or naval officer, and every of them so offending, shall incur the same pains and penalties, as any officer of any port for the like offence is for making a false certificate for goods and merchandizes liable to, by an act made in the thirteenth and fourteenth years of the reign of king Charles the Second, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs.

Penalty on comptroller, &c. making false certificate.

13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 11.

XIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the master or owner of any ship or vessel shall clandestinely import or receive in such ship or vessel, to be imported into South Britain, any trees fit for masts, yards, or bowsprights, not being of the growth of North Britain, as trees of the growth of North Britain, knowing the same to be foreign trees, and shall demand or receive for such foreign trees the reward or premium hereby granted for North British trees, such master or owner shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds, to be sued for and recovered in like manner as aforesaid, and the ship or vessel in which such foreign trees shall be so fraudulently imported, with all her guns, tackle, apparel, and furniture, shall be forfeited to the king's Majesty, his heirs and successors.

Clandestinely importing trees of foreign growth, and demanding a premium, forfeits 100 l.

XV. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the exportation of all masts, yards, and bowsprights of the growth of Scotland, from and after the twenty ninth day of September next, shall be under the same restrictions, regulations, payments, and penalties as are directed in this act to be observed, paid, and performed on the exportation of masts, yards, and bowsprights imported from the plantations.

The exportation of masts, &c. from Scotland, to be under the same regulations as masts, &c. from the plantations.

XVI. Provided always, That the importation of the naval stores following, viz. pitch, tar, turpentine, masts, yards, and bowsprights, of the growth or produce of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, shall be subject to the same regulations, restrictions, and limitations, in reference to the shipping and navigating thereof, and such security shall be given for importing the same into Great Britain, and subject to such penalties and forfeitures, as the importation of sugar, tobacco, cotton, wool, indigo, ginger, fustick, and other dying wood, for his Majesty's colonies and plantations in America, are subject unto.

XVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the aforementioned premiums upon masts, yards, and bowsprights, tar, pitch, and turpentine, shall be paid upon the importation of the said naval stores, for and during the term of thirteen years, to commence from the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twenty nine, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer.

XIV. A from and after the said twenty-fourth day of June one thousand seven hundred and thirty, there shall be allowed to maltsters and makers of malt for exportation, for every twenty quarters of barley or other corn or grain that shall be entred and made into malt for exportation, an allowance of thirty quarters, after the same shall be dried and made into malt, and no more, upon the exportation thereof, though by their steeping, wetting, and watering the same, the said twenty quarters shall be run out to any greater quantity, exceeding the said thirty quarters, according to an act of parliament made in the first year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for encouraging the exportation of corn, and in such cases where by the aforesaid act of parliament they are intituled to the same, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity.

XV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty, if any person or persons who shall export any malt into foreign parts, shall produce a certificate or certificates from the officer or officers with whom the entry of the corn or grain intended to be made into malt shall have been made, of the particular sum or sums of money that such person or persons is intituled to receive, according to the aforesaid allowance of thirty quarters of malt for every twenty quarters of corn or grain, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity that shall have been entred to be made into malt for exportation, which certificates the said officers are hereby upon demand required to give gratis; and upon such person or persons giving sufficient security before the shipping thereof for exportation, that the particular quantity of malt which shall be intended to be exported as aforesaid, or any part thereof, shall not be relanded or brought again into any part or parts of Great Britain, which security the customer or collector of the port, where the same is intended to be exported, is hereby directed and authorized to take in his Majesty's name, and to his Majesty's use; then the collector or chief officer of the port where such malt shall be exported, shall give to the exporter thereof a certificate or debenture directed to the proper person or persons, by whom the said allowance by the aforesaid act of parliament is directed to be paid; which certificate or debenture being produced to such person or persons, he is hereby required to pay such allowance to the persons or their agents, so exporting the same. Provided always, That if after the shipping of any such malt to be exported, and the giving such security as aforesaid, in order to obtain the aforesaid allowance, the malt so shipped to be exported or any part thereof, shall be relanded in any part of Great Britain

Britain, that then, and in every such case, over and above the penalty of the bond, which shall be levied and recovered to his Majesty's use, all the malt which shall be relanded, and treble the value thereof shall be forfeited; that is to say, one moiety thereof to the King, and the other moiety thereof to the person or persons that shall seize, inform, or sue for the same.

An act for importing of salt from Europe into the colony of New York in America.

WHEREAS the river, bay, and coast of the colony of New York in America, and the seas adjoining, are very commodiously situated for carrying on of the fishing trade, and they abound with great quantities of shadd, surgeon, bass, sardine, and several other kind of fish, which may be caught and cured, and made fit for foreign markets, whereby the trade of Great Britain, and the inhabitants of the said colony would reap considerable benefit, which would enable the said inhabitants to purchase more of the British manufactures for their use, than at present they are able, by reason of the little trade and produce the said colony affords, were it permitted for his Majesty's subjects to import salt from Europe, into the said colony for the curing of their fish withal, in the like manner as is practised in New England and Newfoundland, by virtue of an act of parliament made in the fifteenth year of the reign of King Charles the Second for that purpose: and whereas formerly the northern parts of America, were comprehended under the general name of New England, but since have been divided into several provinces and colonies, and bear other distinct names, which occasions a doubt whether salt can be imported into them without the further aid of parliament, by which a very considerable and beneficial fishery might be carried on there, to the great benefit of your Majesty's subjects in general: may it therefore please your most excellent Majesty that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty, it shall and may be lawful to and for any of his Majesty's subjects, to carry and import salt from any part of Europe into the colony of New York in America, in British ships and vessels, manned and navigated according to the act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation, and in the same manner as salt may be imported from Europe into New England and Newfoundland, by an act made in the fifteenth year of the reign of the said King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouragement of trade; any law, statute, usage, or custom to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

They shall enjoy all privileges granted by acts or charters.

SECT. IX. AND it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That notwithstanding such redemption of the said yearly fund of one hundred and twenty-eight thousand pounds as aforesaid, the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies shall, subject to the proviso of determination herein after contained in that behalf, have, use, and enjoy, and shall continue to have, use, and enjoy, the whole and sole trade and traffick, and the only liberty, use, and privilege of trading, trafficking, and exercising the trade or business of merchandize in, to, and from the East Indies, and in, to, and from all the islands, ports, havens, coasts, cities, towns, and places between the cape of Good Hope and streights of Magellan, and limits in the said act of the ninth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, or in the said charter of the fifth day of September, in the tenth year of his said Majesty's reign mentioned, in as ample and beneficial manner, as the said company could thereby trade thereto; and the said East Indies, or the islands, havens, coasts, ports, cities, towns, and places within the limits aforesaid, or any of them, shall not from henceforth, at any time before such determination of the said sole and whole trade of the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, as is herein after mentioned, be repaired or sailed to, visited, frequented, or haunted by any other the subjects of his Majesty, his heirs or successors whatsoever; and if any of the said subjects of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, of what degree or quality soever they be, other than the factors, agents, and servants of the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, or such as shall be by them thereunto licensed or authorized, shall, at any time or times hereafter, before such determination of the said company's whole and sole trade as aforesaid, directly or indirectly sail or go to, visit, haunt, frequent, traffick, trade or adventure in, to or from the said East Indies, or other the limits or parts aforesaid, contrary to the true meaning hereof, all and every such offender and offenders shall incur the forfeiture and loss of all the ships and vessels which shall be employed in such voyage, trade, traffick, or adventure, with the guns, tackle, apparel, and furniture thereunto belonging, and also all the goods laden thereupon; or that were or shall be sent to, acquired, traded, trafficked, or adventured within the said East Indies, or parts aforesaid, and all the proceed and effects of the same, and every of them, and double the value thereof; which penalties shall be so sued for, seized, diverted and divertible (a), recovered and recoverable, as in and by the said act, made in the seventh year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, is appointed, directed, and enacted concerning the penalties and forfeitures in that act mentioned or referred to, with respect to the said united company, or their trade to the East Indies.

X. And moreover it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, shall at all times hereafter for ever (subject as aforesaid), have, hold, and enjoy, and be intitled unto, all and every the profits, benefits, advantages, privileges, privileges, franchises, abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, rights, remedies, methods of suit, and all penalties and forfeitures, and disabilities, provisions, matters and things whatsoever, which by any former act or acts of parliament, or by any charter or charters founded thereupon, or by any clause or clauses in the said acts or charters contained, are enacted, given, granted, provided, inflicted, limited, established, or declared to, for, touching, or concerning the said company or body politick and corporate, either by the name of The general society intituled to the advantages given by an act of parliament for advancing a sum not exceeding two millions for the service of the crown of England, or the said body politick and corporate, called by the name of The English company trading to the East Indies, or the said body politick and corporate, now called by the name of The united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, and not by this act altered or intended to be altered, according to the tenor and true meaning of the said acts and charters, freed and discharged from all provisos and conditions of redemption and determination therein contained, and the same and every of them are hereby ratified and confirmed, and shall continue to be held and enjoyed; and be practised and put in execution, by the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, and their successors, for the better and more effectual settling and securing to them, and their successors, the whole, sole, and exclusive trade to the East Indies, and parts aforesaid, and for the preventing all his Majesty's subjects trading thither, and for securing also their possessions, estate and effects, and governing their affairs and business in all respects as fully and effectually as if the same profits, benefits, advantages, trade, privileges, franchises, abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, rights, remedies, methods of suit, penalties and forfeitures, disabilities, provisions, matters and things, were severally repeated and at large re-enacted in the body of this act; subject nevertheless to such restrictions, covenants, and agreements as are contained in the said acts and letters patent now in force, and not herein or hereby varied or altered, and subject also to the proviso following; that is to say:

XI. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That at any time, upon three years notice to be given by parliament, after the twenty-fifth day of March, which shall be in the year one thousand seven hundred and sixty-six, upon the expiration of the said three years and repayment to the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, or their successors, of the said capital stock, debt or sum of three millions two hundred thousand pounds, and all arrears of annuity payable in respect thereof, in case the same shall not have been before repaid, then and from thenceforth the said right, title, and interest of the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies to the whole, sole, and exclusive trade to the East Indies, and parts aforesaid, shall cease and determine.

On three years notice after 1766, and repayment of the whole capital stock, exclusive trade to cease:

XII. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in the above proviso, or in any proviso in the act of the ninth year of the reign of his said majesty King William the Third, or in the said charter of the fifth day of September, in the tenth year of his said Majesty, or in any other act or charter contained, shall extend, or be construed to extend, to determine the corporation of the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, or to hinder, prevent, or exclude the said united company from carrying on at all times, after such determination of the right to the sole, whole, and exclusive trade as aforesaid, a free trade in, to, and from the East Indies, and parts aforesaid with all or any part of their own joint stock in trade, goods, merchandises, estate and effects, in common with other the subjects of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, trading in, to, and from those parts.

Act 3 & 4
Ann. which makes rice an enumerated commodity confirmed; except rice
from Carolina.

WHEREAS by an act made in the third and fourth years of the reign of her late Majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty a further subsidy on wines and merchandizes imported, all rice of the growth or production of the English plantations in America, Asia, or Africa, is obliged to be imported into England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, or to some other of the said plantations, under such securities and penalties as other enumerated goods or commodities of the growth, production, or manufacture of the said plantations are subject to by an act made in the twelfth year of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, An Act for encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation, or by another act made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King, intituled, An act for the encouragement of the Greenland and Eastland trade, and for the better securing the plantation trade: and whereas his Majesty's province of Carolina in America has by experience been found to be a proper soil for producing rice to very great perfection, and for many years last past the produce thereof has increased; and it is reasonable to expect, that not only the produce thereof in those parts, but also the exportation thereof would be greatly increased, for the mutual benefit of this kingdom and the said province, if (notwithstanding the laws relating to navigation and trade to and from the plantations) liberty or licence were granted for ships built in and sailing from Great Britain, to load rice in the said province, and to carry the same directly to any ports of Europe lying southward of cape Finisterre, without bringing the same first to Great Britain, as the said laws now require, whereby the same will arrive at such ports more seasonably and in better condition for the consumption thereof, and prevent their being supplied with the same commodity from other countries: for this end, and for providing proper securities for your Majesty's duties, and for preventing any prejudice or damage to this nation, which might happen thereby from any other unlawful commerce between the plantations and any other foreign countries, as to any other enumerated commodities, or otherwise; may it therefore please your most excellent Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said act, passed in the third and fourth years of the reign of her said late Majesty, so far as the same extends to the making of rice of the growth and produce of his Majesty's plantations in America an enumerated commodity, shall be, and is hereby ratified and confirmed, as to all persons, ships, vessels, or places in all respects whatsoever, except only as to such of the said rice as by the act shall be permitted or allowed to be exported from his Majesty's province of Carolina in America, by such persons, and in such ships and vessels, and to such foreign countries and places, and under such entries, securities, restrictions, regulations, limitations, penalties, and forfeitures, as are herein after particularly described, appointed, limited, and enacted for the purpose.

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty, it shall and may be lawful, notwithstanding any of the acts aforesaid, or any other act of parliament, for any of his Majesty's subjects, in any ship or vessel built in Great Britain, or belonging to any of his Majesty's subjects residing in Great Britain, and navigated according to law, that shall clear outwards in any port of Great Britain for the province of Carolina in America, to ship or load rice in the said province, and to carry the same directly to any part of Europe southward of cape Finisterre, without carrying the same to any other of his Majesty's plantations in America, or to Great Britain, the master or other person having or taking charge of such ship or vessel, before she clears outwards from Great Britain, first taking a licence under the hands of the commissioners of the customs for the time being, or any three of them, for the loading and carrying the same from the said province of Carolina directly to some part of Europe to the southward of cape Finisterre, upon a certificate from the collector and comptroller of the port where such licence shall be desired, certifying that bond has been given, with one or more sufficient security, in the sum of one thousand pounds, if the ship be of less burden than one hundred tons, and the sum of two thousand pounds, if the ship shall be of that or a greater burden, that no tobacco, sugars, cotton, wool, indigo, ginger, fustick, or other dying wood, mellasses, tar, pitch, turpentine, hemp, masts, yards, bowsprits, copper ore, beaver skins or other furs, of the growth, production, or manufacture of any British plantations in America, shall be loaden or taken on board such ship or vessel at Carolina, or any other of his Majesty's plantations in America, unless it be for the necessary provisions of the ship in their voyage; and that such ship or vessel shall proceed directly with all the rice that shall be so loaden on board such ship, by virtue of such licence, to some port of Europe to the southward of cape Finisterre, and there land the said rice, and that such ship, after landing the said rice, shall proceed for Great Britain before she returns to any of his Majesty's plantations in America; and in case the master or other person shall not, within four months after his arrival at such port, produce a certificate of having landed and discharged the said rice so taken on board in the said province of Carolina, at such port, which certificate is to be under the hand and seal of the British consul, or where there is no consul, to be under the hands and seals of two known British merchants residing in the port or place where such rice shall be landed; otherwise such bond shall be forfeited to his Majesty, and shall and may be sued and prosecuted in any of the courts of record in Great Britain.

After 29 Sept' 1730, rice may be carried directly to any part of Europe southward of cape Finisterre, on licence, certificate and bond.

III. And be it further enacted, That before any rice be loaden or put on board any ship or vessel at Carolina, by virtue of the said licence, to be carried to some part of Europe to the southward of cape Finisterre, the master, or other person having or taking charge of such ship or vessel, shall, before his departure out of the said province of Carolina, deliver to the collector of the port where such ship is to take in her lading, the said licence, signed by the said commissioners of the customs, and a certificate of such bond having been given in Great Britain as aforesaid, and shall declare in writing upon oath before the collector, which such collector is hereby empowered to administer, whether he intends to load any rice pursuant to such licence, and to what place bound.

Before rice be put on board at Carolina, master to deliver his licence to collector, &c.

IV. And in order to ascertain the true quantity of rice exported from Carolina pursuant to such licence and the liberty granted by this act, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That before the same shall be shipped or put on board, the merchant, or other person exporting the same, shall make an entry thereof in writing with the collector of his Majesty's customs, and the naval officer, and also with the comptroller, where there is such an officer, and shall take out a cocquet or certificate of such entry, and shall, before the rice be shipped or put on board, indorse on the back of such Merchant to make entry, and to take out a cocquet, and indorse the quantity.

cocquet or certificate the true quantity intended to be shipped, mentioning the marks, numbers, and contents of each cask, and shall deliver the cocquet so indorsed to the searcher, or other officer appointed for the examining and shipping thereof; and if, upon weighing and examining the rice brought or intended to be shipped by virtue of such cocquet or certificate, either before or after the shipping thereof, the quantity shall appear to be greater than is indorsed thereon, or if any rice shall be laden or put on board any ship or vessel having liberty to trade by virtue of this act, or any hoy, lighter, bottom, boat, or other vessel, in order to be put on board such ship or vessel, before such entry or taking out such cocquet, and indorsing and delivery of the same as aforesaid, contrary to the true intent and meaning hereof, all such rice so shipped, or intended to be shipped, shall be forfeited, as also the hoy, lighter, bottom, boat, or other vessel employed in shipping the same; and the owner of such rice, or other person employed in shipping the same, shall also forfeit treble the value thereof, to be recovered in the court of vice admiralty held in any of his Majesty's plantations in America, or in any other court of record in any of his Majesty's plantations in America, at the election of the informer or prosecutor; one third part thereof to be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, one third part to the governor of the said colony, and the other one third to the informer or prosecutor; and before such ship or vessel shall depart from Carolina with the rice laden as aforesaid, the master, or other person having or taking charge thereof, shall receive the said licence from the collector and naval officer, and comptroller, who shall indorse thereon the marks, numbers, and contents of each cask of rice so shipped on board, and the collector and other officer shall make two copies of such licence and indorsement; for all which entries, cocquets, indorsements, or copies, no more shall be taken by the said officers than the accustomed fees; and the master, or other person having or taking charge of such ship, shall, before he receives the said licence, attest the said copies under his hand, which are to be left with the collector and other officers; and the said master, or other person having or taking charge of such ship, shall also, on the return of the said ship or vessel to Great Britain, produce and deliver the said licence to the commissioners of his Majesty's customs, or to the collector or comptroller of the port where bond was given when the said ship or vessel set sail from Great Britain, with the indorsement made thereon by the collector and other officers of the quantity laden on board in Carolina, as also a certificate signed and sealed by the consul, or two known British merchants, at the port or place where the rice was landed, certifying the landing thereof, with the number of casks so landed, and the marks, numbers, and contents of each cask, with the name of the ship and master, and that they verily believe that no sugar, tobacco, or other enumerated goods before-mentioned, except rice, have been there landed out of such ship or vessel.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the collector and other officers in Carolina shall, as soon as conveniently they can, transmit one of the said copies of the said indorsement to the commissioners of the customs in Great Britain, and thereupon there shall be payable to his Majesty so much as the half subsidy of the rice so shipped in Carolina shall amount unto, which would have remained in case the said rice had been first imported into Great Britain and afterwards re-exported; and the said commissioners, or the collector and comptroller of the port in which such ship was entered to sail for Carolina, as soon as they or either of them shall receive the said licence so indorsed, or one of the copies of the indorsement, attested by the master, or other person having or taking charge of such ship or vessel as aforesaid (which shall first come to the hands of the said commissioners, or the collector and comptroller) may and shall demand from any of the person or persons who entered into bond before the ship set sail from Great Britain as aforesaid, the full sum due for the the half subsidy for all the rice mentioned in such indorsement, or the copy thereof attested as aforesaid; and in case the same is not paid within thirty days after such demand made, the bond shall be forfeited, and shall and may be put in suit, and the persons bound therein shall pay treble costs.

VI. And be it enacted, That this act shall continue and be in force five years, to be reckoned from the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament.

An act to continue the duties for encouragement of the coinage of money.

May it please your most excellent Majesty,

WHEREAS great benefit and advantage did accrue to England by one act of parliament, passed in the eighteenth year of the reign of his majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for encouraging of coinage, and continued by another act made in the twenty-fifth year of the reign of his said majesty King Charles, intituled, An act for continuing a former act concerning coinage; both which said acts were revived by an act made in the first year of the reign of his majesty King James the Second, and were continued by an act made in the fourth year of King William and Queen Mary, of blessed memory, and were further continued by an act made in the twelfth year of the reign of the said late King William, and were further continued by an act made in the seventh year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, of blessed memory, and then extended to Scotland; and were further continued by an act made in the first year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, of glorious memory, to be in force for seven years from the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following, and were further continued by another act, made in the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign, for seven years, from the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty-three, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following; so that unless the said act be continued, the encouragement given thereby will cease, and this kingdom be deprived for the future of so great a good as it hath for many years last past enjoyed: now we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do give and grant unto your Majesty the rates, duties, and impositions herein-after mentioned, for and during the term and time herein-after expressed; and do humbly pray that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That such and the like rates, duties, and impositions, as by the said act of parliament of the eighteenth year of King Charles the Second were granted, and by the said subsequent acts were continued, for and upon the importation of wines, vinegar, cyder, beer, brandy, and strong waters imported, during the respective terms or times therein mentioned, shall be further continued, and be paid and payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for and upon all wines, vinegar, cyder, beer, brandy, and strong waters, which shall be imported or brought into Great Britain within or during the space of seven years, to commence from the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following, and no longer;

An act to prevent frauds in the revenue of excise, with respect to starch, coffee, tea, and chocolate.

Officers of excise may seize any suspected starch, and shall within 10 days exhibit an information before commissioners of excise, or two justices. Such starch forfeited, if not made appear that the duty was paid, and 5l. for every c. wt.

SECT. III. AND be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for any officer or officers of excise or customs to seize any quantity of starch or hair powder, together with the horses and package containing the same, that shall be found in any ship or vessel, or shall be carrying in any cart or waggon, or in any other carriage whatsoever, where they shall have good reason to suspect and believe the same hath been made in some private workhouse or other place, or clandestinely imported without payment of any duty, or that the same is starch or hair powder, which hath been exported and reloaded again, after the duty had been repaid and drawn back for the same, at the time of exportation thereof, and that after such seizure shall have been made, the said respective officer or officers of excise or customs are hereby required, within ten days next after such seizure, to exhibit an information before any three or more of his Majesty's commissioners of excise, or any two or more justices of the peace residing near the place where any such seizures shall be made; and if at the hearing of such information, the party in whose possession any such starch or hair powder hath been found, does not make it appear that the duty hath been paid for the same, all the said starch and hair powder so seized for the causes aforesaid, shall be forfeited, together with the horses and package contained in the same; and the person in whose possession such starch or hair powder shall be found, shall likewise forfeit and pay the sum of five pounds for every hundred weight, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity; and the said commissioners or justices of the peace shall then proceed to give judgment for the forfeiture of the said starch or hair powder.

powder, together with the horses and package containing the same, and likewise for the forfeiture of the said sum, in proportion as aforesaid.

IV. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any officer or officers for the duties upon starch, or any officer or officers of the customs, shall have cause to suspect that starch is privately making in any place or places whatsoever, or that any starch is lodged or concealed in any place or places whatsoever, with an intent to defraud his Majesty of his duty; then, and in every such case, upon oath made by such officer or officers before the commissioners for the duties upon starch, or any one or more of them, or before one or more justice or justices of the peace, residing near the place where such officer or officers shall suspect the same to be privately making, or to be lodged or concealed, setting forth the ground of his or their suspicion, it shall and may be lawful to and for the said commissioner or commissioners, justice or justices of the peace respectively, before whom such affidavit or affidavits shall be made, if he or they shall judge it reasonable, by special warrant under his or their respective hands and seals, to authorize and empower such officer or officers, by day or by night, (but if in the night, then in the presence of a constable or other lawful officer of the peace) to enter into all and every such place or places, where he or they shall so suspect that any starch is so privately making, lodged, or concealed, and to seize and carry away all such starch as they shall there find so privately making, together with all the materials that shall be there ready and preparing for the making of starch, and likewise all such starch as they shall find so lodged and concealed in any place or places whatever, as forfeited, for the use of such persons as by this act is hereafter directed, together with all and every the boxes, and all and every other thing or things wherein the same shall be contained, and the person or persons that shall be found so privately making starch as aforesaid, or the person or persons in whose possession any starch shall be found, unless he, she, or they, do make it appear that the duty has been paid for the same as aforesaid, shall respectively forfeit and pay the sum of fifty pounds; and if any person or persons whatever shall let, obstruct, or hinder any of the aforesaid officers from entering any such place or places for the purposes aforesaid, or in seizing and carrying away any starch, or any materials for the making of starch, which is and are before declared to be forfeited for the causes aforesaid, together with all and every the boxes, thing or things wherein the same is contained, the person or persons offending therein shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay the sum of fifty pounds.

Officers by warrant may search for starch concealed.

Penalty for concealing starch.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the penalties and forfeitures incurred by any person or persons, for any offence or offences committed by them contrary to this act, shall be sued for, levied, recovered, and mitigated by such ways and means, as any penalty or forfeiture for any offence or offences committed by any person or persons against any of the laws of excise, or either of them, can or may be sued for, levied, recovered, or mitigated, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed; and that one moiety of every such penalty or forfeiture shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall discover, inform, or sue for the same within six months next after the offence committed.

Penalties to be sued for, as by the laws of excise.

XI. And whereas several ill disposed persons do frequently dye, fabricate, or manufacture very great quantities of sloe leaves, liquorish leaves, and the leaves of tea that have been before used, or the leaves of other trees, shrubs, or plants, in imitation of tea, and do likewise mix, colour, stain, and dye such leaves, and likewise tea, with Terra Japonica, sugar, molasses, clay, logwood, and with other ingredients, and do sell and vend the same as true and real tea, to the prejudice of the health of his Majesty's subjects, the diminution of the revenue, and to the ruin of the fair trader: for remedy of such frauds and abuses for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty one, if any person or persons, who shall be a dealer in or seller of tea, shall dye, fabricate, or manufacture any shoe leaves, liquorish leaves, or the leaves of tea that have been used, or the leaves of any other tree, shrub, or plant, in imitation of tea, or shall mix, colour, stain, or dye such leaves or tea, with Terra Japonica, sugar, molasses, clay, logwood, or with any other ingredients or materials whatsoever, or shall sell and vend, or utter, offer, or expose to sale, or shall have in his, her, or their custody or possession, any such dyed, fabricated, or manufactured leaves in imitation of tea, or any such coloured, stained, or dyed leaves, or tea mixed with any of the ingredients before mentioned, or with any other ingredients whatsoever, such person or persons shall respectively, for every pound of such leaves so dyed, fabricated, or manufactured in imitation of tea, and for every pound of such mixed, coloured, stained, or dyed leaves or tea, forfeit and pay the sum of ten pounds.

Penalty for importing cocoa nutshells or husks without the nuts.

XII. And whereas great quantities of cocoa nutshells and husks have been lately imported, and after such importation are fabricated and worked up, so as to imitate either coffee or chocolate, and then after are vended and sold as such, to the endangering the healths of his Majesty's subjects, and to the great diminution and lessening of the inland duties charged upon those commodities: for preventing whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty one, shall import any cocoa nutshells or husks, without the nuts thereunto belonging, it shall and may be lawful for any of his Majesty's officers of the customs, excise, or the said inland duties, to seize and secure the same, wherever such cocoa nutshells or husks shall be imported or found, together with the bags, boxes, and other package where the same shall be contained, and that after such seizure the said cocoa nutshells or husks, together with the bags and other package, shall be condemned according to due form of law, and after such condemnation, such cocoa nutshells or husks shall be destroyed or otherwise disposed of as his Majesty's commissioners of the customs, excise, or inland duties respectively concerned, or any three or more of them, shall think fit to direct and appoint; and for the encouragement of his Majesty's said officers to discover the importation of such cocoa nutshells and husks, his Majesty's commissioners of the customs, excise, and inland duties respectively concerned, or any three or more of them, are hereby authorized and required to reward any such officer or officers, making seizure of such cocoa nutshells or husks imported as aforesaid, in any sum not exceeding twenty shillings per hundred weight, out of the duties arising upon the importation of cocoa nuts, or by the inland duties upon chocolate, or either of them.

An act for importing from his Majesty's plantations in America directly into Ireland, goods not enumerated in any act of parliament.

WHEREAS by several acts of parliament made in this kingdom, and now in force, it is enacted, That no sugars, tobacco, cotton, wool, indigo, ginger, speckle wood or Jamaica wood, fustick, or other dying wood, rice, molasses, beaver skins, and other furs, copper ore, pitch, tar, turpentine, masts, yards, and bowsprights, of the growth, product, or manufacture of any of his Majesty's Majesty's lands, islands, plantations, or colonies in America, shall be carried, conveyed, or imported from any of the said plantations to any land, territory, dominion, port or place whatsoever, other than to such other plantations as do belong to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, or to the kingdom of Great Britain: and whereas by an act of parliament made in this kingdom in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of King William the Third, intituled, An act for preventing frauds and regulating abuses in the plantation trade: it is (among other things) enacted, That it shall not be lawful, on any pretence whatsoever, to put on shore in the kingdom of Ireland any goods or merchandizes of the growth or product of any of his Majesty's plantations in America, unless the same have been first landed in the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, and paid the rates and duties wherewith they are chargeable by law, under the penalty of the forfeiture of the ship and goods: and whereas the said act of the seventh and eighth years of his said late majesty King William the Third, hath been construed to extend to prohibit the importing from his Majesty's plantations in America into the kingdom of Ireland, as well such goods and merchandize of the growth or product of his Majesty's said plantations as are not enumerated, as those goods and merchandize of the growth, product, or manufacture of the said plantations which are in the several acts for that purpose enumerated, and required to be imported into this kingdom of Great Britain, or to some other of the said plantations, to the great prejudice of the trade and navigation of this his Majesty's kingdom of Great Britain, and his Majesty's said plantations: for remedy whereof be it enacted; and it is hereby enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That it shall and may be lawful to import into the said kingdom of Ireland from his Majesty's plantations in America, and to land and put on shore in the said kingdom of Ireland, all goods and merchandizes of the growth, product, or manufacture of any of his Majesty's said plantations (except sugars, tobacco, cotton, wool, indigo, ginger, speckle wood or Jamaica wood, fustick, or other dying wood, rice, molasses, beaver skins, and other furs, copper-ore, pitch, tar, turpentine, masts, yards, and bowsprights, of the growth, product, or manufacture of the said plantations); any thing in the said recited act of the seventh and eighth years of his said late majesty King William the Third, or in any other act contained, or any law or usage to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Goods not enumerated in any act of parliament, may be imported into Ireland from the plantations, in British ships, &c.

II. Provided always, That the goods and merchandize to be imported into the said kingdom of Ireland from his Majesty's plantations in America, by virtue of this act, shall be imported in British shipping, whereof the master and three fourths of the mariners at least are British.

her heirs and successors, should be deemed, adjudged, and taken to be natural-born subjects of this kingdom to all intents, constructions, and purposes whatsoever: and whereas in the tenth year of her said late Majesty's reign another act was made and passed to repeal the said act (except what related to the children of her Majesty's natural-born subjects, born out of her Majesty's allegiance:) and whereas some doubts have arisen upon the construction of the said recited clause in the said act of the seventh year of her late Majesty's reign: now for the explaining the said recited clause in the said act, relating to children of natural-born subjects, and to prevent any disputes touching the true intent and meaning thereof, may it please your most excellent Majesty that it may be declared and enacted; and be it declared and enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all children born out of the ligeance of the crown of England, or of Great Britain, or which shall hereafter be born out of such ligeance, whose fathers were or shall be natural-born subjects of the crown of England, or of Great Britain, at the time of the birth of such children respectively, shall and may, by virtue of the said recited clause in the said act of the seventh year of the reign of her said late Majesty, and of this present act, be adjudged and taken to be, and all such children are hereby declared to be natural-born subjects of the crown of Great Britain, to all intents, constructions, and purposes whatsoever.

H. Provided always, and be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in the said recited act of the seventh year of her said late Majesty's reign, or in this present act contained, did, doth, or shall extend, or ought to be construed, adjudged, or taken to extend, to make any children born or to be born out of the ligeance of the crown of England, or of the crown of Great Britain, to be natural-born subjects of the crown of England, or of Great Britain, whose fathers at the time of the birth of such children respectively were or shall be attainted of high treason, by judgment, outlawry, or otherwise, either in this kingdom or in Ireland, or whose fathers at the time of the birth of such children respectively, by any law or laws made in this kingdom or in Ireland, were or shall be liable to the penalties of high treason or felony, in case of their returning into this kingdom or into Ireland without the licence of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, or of any of his Majesty's royal predecessors, or whose fathers at the time of the birth of such children respectively were or shall be in the actual service of any foreign prince or state then in enmity with the crown of England, or of Great Britain, but that all such children are, were, and shall be and remain in the same state, plight, and condition, to all intents, constructions, and purposes whatsoever, as they would have been in if the said act of the seventh year of her said late Majesty's reign, or this present act, had never been made; any thing herein, or in the said act of the seventh year of her said late Majesty's reign, contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

III. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any child, whose father at the time of the birth of such child was attainted of high treason, as aforesaid, or was liable to the penalties of high treason or felony, in case of returning into this kingdom or Ireland without licence as aforesaid, or was in the actual service of any foreign prince or state then in enmity with the crown of England, or of Great Britain (other than and excepting always out of this proviso all children of such persons who went out of Ireland in pursuance of the articles of Limerick) hath come into Great Britain or Ireland, or any other of the dominions belonging to the crown of Great Britain, and hath continued to reside within Great Britain or Ireland, or other the dominions aforesaid, for the space of two years, at any time between the sixteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight, and the twenty fifth day of March, in the

the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty one, and during such residence hath professed the protestant religion; or if any child, whose father at the time of his or her birth was within any of the descriptions before mentioned, hath come into Great Britain or Ireland, or any other of the dominions belonging to the crown of Great Britain, and professed the protestant religion, and died within Great Britain or Ireland, or any other of the dominions aforesaid, at any time between the said sixteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight, and the said twenty fifth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty one; or if any child, whose father at the time of his or her birth was within any of the descriptions before mentioned, hath been and continued in the actual possession or receipt of the rents and profits of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments in Great Britain or Ireland, for the space of one whole year, at any time between the said sixteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight, and the said twenty fifth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty one; or hath bona fide, and for good and valuable consideration, sold, conveyed, or settled any lands, tenements, or hereditaments in Great Britain or Ireland, and any person claiming title thereto, under such sale, conveyance, or settlement, hath been and continued in the actual possession or receipt of the rents and profits thereof for the space of six months, between the said sixteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight, and the said twenty fifth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty one, every such child shall be deemed, adjudged, and taken to be and to have been a natural born subject of the crown of England, or of the crown of Great Britain, to all intents, constructions, and purposes whatsoever; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

An act for further encouraging the manufacture of British sail cloth, by taking off the duties and drawbacks therein mentioned; and allowing an additional bounty on British made sail cloth exported; and for stamping British made sail cloth with the name and place of abode of the maker.

WHEREAS the wealth and prosperity of this kingdom does very much depend upon the preservation and improvement of its manufactures, and whereas the manufacture of sail cloth does give a comfortable support and maintenance to many of his Majesty's subjects employed in the same, and there is reason to believe that it would be greatly improved in this kingdom, and the exportation of it to foreign parts considerably increased, if the duties payable upon the importation of rough and undressed flax, and the drawback upon the re-exportation of foreign sail cloth or foreign made sails, were taken off, and an additional bounty allowed on all British made sail cloth exported; therefore may it please your Majesty that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That, from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty one, it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever to import into this kingdom any quantity of rough or undressed flax, without paying any subsidy, custom, imposition, or other duty whatsoever for the same, so as a due entry be first made thereof in the customhouse belonging to the port into which the same shall be imported, in such manner and form, and expressing the quantities of such rough or undrest flax, as were used and practised before the making of this act, and so as the same be landed in the presence of the proper officer appointed for that purpose, and the importation thereof be according to the rules prescribed and enjoined by an act of parliament passed in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation.

II. Provided nevertheless, and be it further enacted, That on failure of the conditions or directions herein last mentioned being performed, or any of them, in manner aforesaid, all such rough or undrest flax shall be liable to the respective duties charged thereon, as the same might or would have been liable to if this act had never been made; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty one, there shall not be allowed or made, on the re-exportation of foreign sail cloth, or any foreign made sails, any drawback or repayment of any of the customs or duties charged and paid on the importation thereof into this kingdom, by any act or acts of parliament; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty one, there shall be allowed, over and above the allowance already given, a further reward or recompence of one penny for every ell of British made sail cloth exported, the same to be given and paid out of the money arising from an additional duty laid on all sail cloth imported into this kingdom, by an act of the twelfth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for the better encouragement of the making of sail cloth in Great Britain, and continued by subsequent acts; which said further reward of one penny per ell shall be subject to the same provisos and penalties as the allowance already given is subject and liable to.

V. And, to the end that no person or persons, body politic or corporate, who is or are intitled to any part, share, or interest in the monies arising by the said duties on rough or undrest flax imported into this kingdom, may be no losers or receive any prejudice, by taking off the said duties, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury now being, the high treasurer, or any three or more of the commissioners of the treasury for the time being, and they are hereby enjoined and required, on or before the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty one, to cause an account to be made up and stated of the monies which shall have arisen by the said duties on rough or undrest flax, for seven years last past.

VI. And it is hereby enacted, That the medium of the monies appearing to have arisen by the said duties within seven years, shall be a certain annual sum to be charged on the fund called The Aggregate Fund, and being so charged, shall from time to time be issued, paid, distributed, and applied, to make good to the several publick creditors or other person or persons, body politic or corporate, having interest or security in the money arising from the same duties on rough or undrest flax, would have been apportioned and applied, in case the said duties had been continued, and not been determined by this act.

VII. And whereas foreign unwrought hemp re-exported does draw back part of the duties payable upon importation thereof, to the great discouragement of manufacturing of cordage within this kingdom, to be exported to America, be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty one, there shall shall not be allowed or made on the re-exportation of hemp unwrought to any of his Majesty's British dominions in America; any drawback or repayment of any of the duties or customs charged and paid on the importation thereof into this kingdom, by any act or acts of parliament; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

VIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid; That every manufacturer or maker of sail cloth in Great Britain shall, after the said twenty fourth day of June, affix at the end of every piece of such sail cloth a stamp containing the name and place of abode of such manufacturer or maker, in plain distinct letters and words at length; and if any manufacturer or maker of sail cloth shall sell or expose to sale any piece or pieces of sail cloth, without being stamped as aforesaid, such manufacturer or maker so offending, and being thereof lawfully convicted, upon the oath of any one or more credible witness or witnesses, before any one or more justice or justices of the peace for the county, city, or town, where the offence shall be committed, (which oath such justice or justices is and are hereby impowered and required to administer) shall forfeit and pay the sum of five pounds for each and every piece of sail cloth by him and them sold or exposed to sale, not being stamped as aforesaid; and if any person or persons whatsoever shall wilfully or maliciously cut off, destroy, or obliterate, any stamp so affixed as aforesaid, or shall affix or make use of any stamp, on which shall be marked the name and place of abode of any other person or persons, and not his or their real name or names, and place or places of abode, such person or persons being convicted of any of the offences aforesaid, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay the sum of ten pounds; both which last mentioned forfeitures shall and may be levied and recovered by distress and sale of the offender's goods and chattels, by warrant or warrants under the hands and seals of two or more justices of the peace for the county, riding, city, or place, where the offence shall be committed, and shall go and be applied to the use of the informer or informers.

An act for granting an allowance upon the exportation of British made gunpowder.

WHEREAS the wealth and prosperity of this kingdom doth very much depend upon the improvement of its manufactures, and the profitable trade carried on by exportation of the same, which trade ought by all proper means to be encouraged, for the enlargement of the commerce of Great Britain: and whereas the exportation of gunpowder to foreign parts has of late years considerably decreased, by reason of the duties payable upon the importation of salt petre and brimstone, the principal ingredients used for making the same: and whereas his Majesty's trading subjects, from the greatness of the price of gunpowder made here, are obliged to furnish themselves at foreign markets, in order to carry on their trade to Africa, and other parts beyond the seas, to the great prejudice and discouragement of the said manufacture; may it therefore please your most excellent Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That there shall be paid to every person or persons, who at any time or times within or during the term of five years, to be reckoned from the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty one, or at any time or times before the end of the then next session of parliament, shall really and truly export out of this kingdom, by way of merchandize, any quantities of gunpowder of the manufacture of Great Britain, an allowance of the sum of four shillings and six pence for every barrel of such gunpowder, containing one hundred pounds net weight, and so in proportion for greater or less quantities; which allowance shall be paid and answered by the customer or collector of the customs, with the privity of the comptroller of the port from whence the same shall be exported, on a debenture to be made forth by the customer or collector, according to the entry of such gunpowder, without fee or reward, and the shipping thereof verified by the searcher, and oath, or being of the people called Quakers, solemn affirmation, made by the exporter, on the entry or debenture, before the customer or collector or comptroller of such port, that the said gunpowder is of British manufacture, as is exported or intended to be exported to parts beyond the seas, by way of merchandize, and not for the use of the ship in her voyage, and not relanded or intended to be relanded in any part of Great Britain, the exporter first giving security to the said customer or collector of the port, in a penalty of five pounds for each barrel, containing one hundred pounds net weight (which security they are hereby empowered to take in the name, and to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors) that the gunpowder so shipped or intended to be shipped, or any part thereof, shall not be relanded or brought on shore again into any port or part of Great Britain, and such securities shall be discharged in the manner hereafter mentioned, (that is to say) for so much of the said gunpowder as shall be entered for or landed in the kingdom of Ireland, the islands of Guernsey and Jersey, Alderney, Sark or Man, or any of his Majesty's colonies or plantations abroad, the condition of the bond shall be to bring certificates in discharge thereof from each place respectively, importing that such gunpowder was there landed, and testifying the landing thereof; which certificate shall be signed by the proper officer or officers of his Majesty's customs as respectively reside there, and for want of such officers residing there, then by the governor of those islands and colonies or plantations, or the deputy governor thereof respectively, who are hereby required to give the same without fee or reward; and for such gunpowder as shall be so entred for any foreign port or place, to bring a certificate under the hand of any of his Majesty's consuls residing in such port or place, or under the hands of two known British merchants then being at such port or place, that such gunpowder was there landed; or such bond or bonds shall be discharged, upon proof in either of the said cases, that the same was taken by enemies, or perished in the seas, the examination and proof thereof, being left to the judgment of the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland respectively for the time being.

II. And whereas gunpowder exported for Africa is sold and delivered in very small parcels, and at places along the coast, where no certificates can be had, therefore be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in every such case upon proof made upon oath, or being of the people called Quakers, upon solemn affirmation of the master, mate, purser, or other person, having the charge of the ship during the voyage, importing that such gunpowder was sold and delivered upon the coast of Africa, and also of the oath or solemn affirmation as aforesaid of the merchant exporter, living, that to the best of his knowledge and belief, the said goods have been disposed of at the places to be mentioned in the respective oaths, affidavits or affirmations of the master, mate, purser, or other person, having charge of the ship during the voyage, and that they have not been relanded or brought on shore again in any port or part of Great Britain, the same shall be taken in lieu of the certificates aforesaid, and be allowed of in full discharge discharge of the bonds to be given in pursuance of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any gunpowder shipped to be exported, for which allowance is hereby made, shall be reloaded or unshipped in any port or place in Great Britain, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, without the licence of one or more of the principal officers of such port or place first had and obtained, or unless it be in case of distress to save the said gunpowder from perishing, which shall be forthwith made known to one or more of the said officers, the said gunpowder, over and above the penalty of the bond to be levied and recovered to his Majesty's use as aforesaid, and treble the value of such gunpowder, shall be forfeited and lost, and shall and may be prosecuted and divided in the manner herein after mentioned.

Penalty for re-loading.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said allowance shall be forthwith paid by the respective customer or collector, out of any money in his hands arising from customs or other duties upon goods imported from parts beyond the seas; and the money so paid shall be accepted of in his or their account, as so much paid to his Majesty, and he and they is, are and shall be discharged thereof accordingly.

Allowance to be paid by the customer.

V. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any of the duties now payable upon the importation of salt petre and brimstone, shall during the continuance of this act be redeemed, or otherwise cease to be payable, so much of the allowance to be made on the exportation of gunpowder shall be abated, as shall bear a proportion to the duties so redeemed, or that shall cease to be payable on the importation of salt petre and brimstone; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

When duties on importation of salt petre and brim-

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the penalties in this act mentioned shall and may be prosecuted and determined by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer at Edinburgh respectively; wherein no essoin, protection, privilege, wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be allowed; and one moiety shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to such person or persons who will sue or prosecute for the same.

Penalties how to be levied.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action or suit shall be commenced against any person or persons, for any thing done in pursuance of this act, the defendant or defendants in such action or suit may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon, and that the same was done in pursuance and by the authority of the said act; and if it shall appear so to have been done, the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants, and if the plaintiff shall be nonsuited or discontinue his action after the defendant or defendants shall have appeared, or if judgment shall be given upon any verdict or demurrer against the plaintiff, the defendant or defendants shall and may recover treble costs, and have the like remedy for the same, as the defendant or defendants hath or have in other cases by law.

An act for reviving the duties on salt for the term therein mentioned.

Preamble reciting 5 & 6 W. & M.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made in the fifth and sixth years of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, of glorious memory, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain rates and duties upon salt, and upon beer, ale, and other liquors, for securing certain recompences and advantages in the said act mentioned, to such persons as shall voluntarily advance the sum of ten hundred thousand pounds towards carrying on the war against France, it was amongst other things enacted, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand six hundred and ninety four, there should be throughout the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, raised, levied, collected, and paid unto their Majesties, their heirs and successors, until the seventeenth day of May, which should be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety seven, for salt, the rates and duties following; that is to say, for every gallon of salt, not being of the product or manufacture of the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, imported, or to be imported into England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, the sum of three pence, of lawful money of England, over and above the then duties payable on salt imported, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; and for every gallon of salt, and rock rock salt made at the salt works, or taken out of any pits within the said kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, the sum of one penny half-penny, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity, with divers provisions and directions in the said act contained, for managing, collecting, paying, and applying the said duties: and whereas by another act made in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for continuing to his Majesty certain duties upon salt, glass wares, stone and earthen wares, and for granting several duties upon tobacco pipes, and other earthen wares, for carrying on the war against France, and for establishing a national land bank, and for taking off the duties upon tonnage of ships and upon coals, the same rates and duties were continued for ever for the purposes of the said act: and whereas by an act of parliament made in the ninth and tenth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions upon a fund for payment of annuities after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East-Indies, it was amongst other things enacted, That there should be raised, levied, collected, and paid unto his Majesty, his heirs, and successors for ever, for salt, the several additional rates and duties following; that is to say, For every gallon of salt from and after the twenty fourth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, imported from foreign parts, the sum of seven pence of lawful money of England, to be paid by the importer or importers thereof, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; and for every gallon of salt, and rock salt, from and after the twenty fourth day of December, one thousand six hundred ninety nine, made at the salt works, or taken out of any pit or pits within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, the sum of three pence half-penny, of like money, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity: and whereas by the articles of union between the kingdoms of England and Scotland, all the said duties on salt were, from the times therein mentioned, to take place in Scotland (except the additional duty on home made salt) with some provisions for preventing salt made in Scotland from being brought into England, without paying the said additional duty on salt made in England: and whereas by an act of parliament made in the third year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for taking off certain duties on salt, and for making good any deficiencies in the funds that may happen thereby, and for charging the reduced annuity payable to the East-India company on the aggregate fund, and for relief of Matthew Lyon executor of Matthew Page, deceased, in respect of the duty for salt lost by the overflowing of the river Mersey, in the year one thousand seven hundred twenty four, it is enacted, That from and after the twenty fifth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty, the duty of one penny half-penny per gallon on salt and rock salt, made in this kingdom, which was granted by the said act of the fifth and sixth years of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, and also all the additional duties on salt, whether imported from foreign parts, or home made, which were granted by the said act of the ninth and tenth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, should cease, determine, and be no longer paid or payable; and then, and from thenceforth, all the powers and authorities given or granted by any act or acts of parliament for the levying, securing, collecting, or recovering the same, and all penalties and forfeitures relating thereto, and all provisions, regulations, or restrictions, relating to the importing or bringing of salt made in Scotland into England, without paying the said additional duty on salt, should cease, determine, and not be put in execution, and then, and from thenceforth, the right or demand of any person or persons in pursuance of the said recited acts, or any of them, on his or their exporting beyond the seas any salt, for which the said duties had been before secured or paid, to have the securities for the same discharged, or the monies paid for the same repaid, should also cease and determine, as to so much of such securities or payments, as were given or made for any of the duties by the said act to be determined;

All the salt duties revived from March 25 for 3 years.

determined; and that no drawbacks, on account of such duties so secured or paid before the said twenty fifth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty, except for the duty of three pence per gallon on foreign salt imposed by the first herein recited act, should be made and allowed on any salt exported beyond the seas after that time, with a proviso in the said act contained, that the same should not extend to determine the said duty of three pence per gallon on salt, not of the product or manufacture of the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, so as aforesaid granted by the said act of the fifth and sixth years of the reign of their said late majesties King William and Queen Mary, nor to determine or make void any of the provisions, rules, or directions made by the said acts, or any of them, and then in force for payment of the same duty by the importers of such foreign salt upon the entry thereof, or for preventing the landing thereof before such entry made, or the securing the same by bond with sufficient sureties, or for allowing the discounts, or paying the said duty in ready money, or for allowances for drawbacks of the duties paid or secured on the re-exporting the same for foreign parts, or for making good any losses or accidents that might happen in such salt after shipping the same for exportation to foreign parts, or to be carried coastwise, or for ascertaining the weight in each bushel, by which the said duty should be computed, or to determine or make void any former act or clause relating to ships or vessels laden with foreign salt, found hovering on the coast, or relating to such salt exported to Ireland and landed there; but the same and every of them should remain and be in as full force and virtue, as they then were, if the said last recited act had not been made: now, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, towards raising the necessary supplies for defraying the expences of your Majesty's government, have freely resolved to revive not only the duty granted by the said first recited act on home made salt, but also all the additional duties on salt; whether foreign, or made in any part of Great Britain, imposed by the said act of the ninth and tenth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, or by the articles of union between the kingdoms of England and Scotland; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, for and during the space of three years, the duty of one penny half-penny per gallon, on all salt and rock salt, made at the salt works, or taken out of any pits within this kingdom, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity, which was granted by the said Act of the fifth and sixth years of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, and since made perpetual; and also all the additional duties on salt, whether imported from foreign parts, or made in any part of Great Britain, which were granted by the said act of the ninth and tenth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, or made payable by the articles of union between the kingdoms of England and Scotland, shall be revived and become payable, and be paid in such manner, and with such allowances for prompt payment, and for waste on salt carried coastwise, or to Ireland, as if the said last recited act had never been made; and that then, and from thenceforth, for the better levying, collecting, recovering, and securing the duties hereby revived, and which shall become due and payable within the time aforesaid, all the powers and authorities given or granted by the said recited acts, or either of them, or any other act or acts of parliament for levying, collecting, recovering, securing, and paying the same into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer at Westminster, for the uses and purposes by this act directed and intended, and all penalties and forfeitures relating thereto, and all provisions for the distribution of such penalties and forfeitures between his Majesty and the informers, when recovered, and the methods of suing for, recovering, receiving, and mitigating the same, and all provisions, regulations, or restrictions relating relating to the importing or bringing of salt made in Scotland into England, without paying the said additional duty on salt; shall be revived, and be in full force and virtue, and have the same effect, and be put in execution in the same manner, as if the said last recited act had never been made, or as if the same powers, authorities, penalties, and forfeitures, provisions, regulations, and restrictions, which were in force before and at the time of making the said last recited act, were here again repeated and re-enacted; and that then and from thenceforth the right or demand of any person or persons in pursuance of the said acts, or any or either of them, for or in respect of his or their exporting, or having exported, beyond the seas any salt, for which the said duties have been, or shall before such exportation be secured or paid to have the securities for the same discharged, or the monies paid for the same repaid, shall also be revived, and such person and persons shall have the full benefit thereof, and all drawbacks on account of such duties so secured or paid, or to be secured or paid, shall be made and allowed for or in respect of the exportation of salt to parts beyond the seas, whether the same be foreign salt, or made within any part of Great Britain, in the same manner as such drawbacks were or ought to have been made, if the said last recited act had not been made; any thing therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. And be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, for and during the said space of three years, the managing, levying, collecting, receiving, recovering, or securing, not only of the duties on salt hereby revived, but also of the duty on foreign salt granted by the said first recited act, and continued as aforesaid, shall be under the care and direction of the commissioners for the receipt, management, and government of the duties on salt, appointed or to be appointed by his Majesty, and of the officers for the said duties on salt for the time being, in the same manner as the said duties were managed, levied, collected, received, or secured before, and at the time of making the said act of the third year of his present Majesty; and that all the bounties or allowances due and payable upon the exportation of fish, from and after the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, shall be allowed and paid in the same manner, as the said allowances and bounties were paid and payable before, and at the time of making the said act, any thing in the said act to the contrary notwithstanding.

To be managed by proper commissioners.

III. And whereas by two several acts of parliament made in the eighth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, for taking off the duty upon all salt used in curing of red herrings, or white herrings, and for laying proportionable duties on such herrings consumed at home, only one duty or rate of one shilling and eight pence per thousand was laid on all red herrings cured promiscuously with red herrings designed for exportation, but afterwards delivered out for home consumption, and another duty or rate of three shillings and four pence per barrel was laid on all white herrings cured promiscuously with white herrings designed for exportation, but afterwards delivered out for home consumption; and in each of the said acts there is a provision, that in case the duties of excise on salt (which then amounted to three shillings and four pence per bushel on home made salt, and six shillings and eight pence per bushel on foreign salt) or any of them, should cease, determine, or be redeemed by parliament, then the respective rates and duties thereby imposed should cease, or be lessened in proportion to the duties on salt that should so cease, determine, or be abated: and whereas in consequence of the said recited act of parliament made in the third year of the reign of his present Majesty, four parts in five of the whole of the said duties on salt, both home made and foreign computed together, did cease, determine, and were abated, from the said twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty, it was therefore by the last mentioned act enacted, That the duties or rates on such red or white herrings should from thenceforth forth be charged only after the rate of four pence for every thousand of such red herrings, and of eight pence for every barrel of such white herrings, and that the said reduced duties should be paid and payable to the proper officers of the customs, in the same manner as the duty on foreign salt is thereby directed to be paid: now be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, for and during the said space of three years, the said rate or duty of one shilling and eight pence per thousand on all red herrings, and of three shillings and four pence per barrel on all white herrings cured promiscuously with red herrings, or white herrings designed for exportation, but afterwards delivered out for home consumption, shall be revived; and that the said rates and duties shall be paid and payable to the said commissioners for the duties on salt, or the officers for the said duties on salt, in the same manner, as the said rates or duties were paid and payable before the last mentioned act was made, any thing therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. And whereas by the eighth article of the treaty of union between the kingdoms of England and Scotland, it was amongst other things concluded and agreed, That from and after the union there should be allowed five shillings sterling for every barrel of beef or pork salted with foreign salt, without mixture of British or Irish salt, and exported for sale from Scotland to parts beyond the sea, alterable by the parliament of Great Britain: and whereas by an act of Parliament made in the fifth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for the ease of her Majesty's subjects in relation to the duties upon salt, and for making the like allowances upon the exportation of white herrings, flesh, oatmeal, and grain called beer, alias bigg, as are made upon exportation of the like from Scotland, it was enacted, That for every barrel of salted beef or pork, which should be exported for sale from any part of the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, to parts beyond the seas, after the first day of May one thousand seven hundred and seven, by any person or persons whatsoever, there should be the like allowances as were to be allowed on such beef and pork exported from Scotland, to be paid out of the duties on salt: and whereas in consequence of the said recited act made in the third year of the reign of his present Majesty, seven parts in ten of the duties on foreign salt were taken off, or abated; it was therefore by the last mentioned act enacted, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of December one thousand seven hundred and thirty, the said allowances of five shillings per barrel on the exportation of salted beef or pork, exported for sale from any part of Great Britain to any parts beyond the seas, should be reduced to an allowance of one shilling and six pence per barrel, and no more, on all beef or pork salted with foreign salt only, without any mixture of British or Irish salt: now be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, as also 5 s. per barrel on salted beef or pork exported.

That from and after the said twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, for and during the said space of three years, the said allowances of five shillings per barrel on the exportation of salted beef or pork, exported for sale from any part of Great Britain to any parts beyond the seas, shall be revived, and shall be paid and payable out of the same duties and revenues, and in the same manner as the same were paid and payable before the last mentioned act was made, any thing therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Allowances on exportation,
or waste.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no person or persons, who from and after the twenty fifth day of March one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, shall export beyond the seas any salt, either foreign or English, or any rock salt, or salt refined from rock salt, for which the duties shall have been paid, shall have any other or greater allowance on prompt payment, and for waste on being carried coastwise, and for waste on being carried to Ireland, and upon exportation of the same by way of debenture or debentures, certificate or certificates, or otherwise in the whole, than what really and bona fide was before paid for the duty of the said salt; and that no person or or persons giving bond or security for the said duty, payable within the time limited by law, shall be intitled to have any other or greater allowance for waste on such salts being carried coastwise, and for waste on such salts being carried to Ireland, and upon exportation of the same by way of debenture or debentures, certificate or certificates, or otherwise in the whole, than what shall discharge and vacate the bond and security given for the payment of the duty of the salt so carried coastwise, and exported.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to carry and bring from any port of that part of Great Britain called Scotland, to any port of that part of Great Britain called England, white herrings cured with salt made in Scotland, the person or persons bringing the said white herrings into England, paying at the port, to which the same shall be brought, two shillings and four pence for every barrel, containing thirty two gallons of such white herrings so brought from Scotland, and in proportion for half barrels.

White herrings cured with salt made in Scotland to pay 2 s. 4 d. per barrel,

VII. Provided always, That the proprietor or proprietors of white herrings shipt aboard any ship or vessel, in any port or place in Scotland, or the islands thereunto belonging, to be transported or carried to any port or place in England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or their respective agents, do, before the said ship or vessel depart from the said port or place in Scotland, make a particular entry with the collector, or other principal officer of the customs there, of the number of barrels of white herrings so shipt, to be delivered and discharged in some port or place in England, and become bound to the King's majesty, his heirs, and successors in the value of the herrings, for delivery and discharge thereof in the port or place, for which the same shall be entered as aforesaid, or some other port or place within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, the danger and accidents of the seas excepted, and to return a certificate within six months after the date of the bond, under the hand and seal of the principal officer of the customs, or his deputy, for the time being, in the respective ports or places where the same shall be landed and discharged, to the officers of the customs, to whom such security hath been granted as aforesaid, that such white herrings were landed and discharged accordingly, upon the penalty of the forfeiture of the bond aforesaid; and further that the said proprietor or proprietors, or their known agents, do make oath, that the herrings so shipt were cured in Scotland with salt made there, whereof the duty payable by this act hath been paid, and that the same are not intended to be exported to any place beyond the seas; which oath the said collector, or other principal officer, is hereby authorized to administer, and is likewise required without delay to grant a certificate gratis, under his hand and seal, that such entry or entries, and oath or oaths were made, and bond or bonds granted as aforesaid; and that the master of every ship or vessel, wherein such white herrings shall be shipt, or put on board to be transported and carried as aforesaid, or the proprietor or proprietors, or their respective agents, do, before landing or putting on shoar the said herrings, or putting them on board any other ship or boat, in any port or place of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, deliver the said certificate to the proper officer of the customs, in the port or place where the same shall be landed or put on shoar, or on board any other ship or boat, under the penalty of the forfeiture of the herrings so landed or put on shoar, or on board any other ship or boat, and forty shillings for each barrel of the said herrings; one moiety to the use of the King's majesty, his heirs, and successors, and the other moiety to be recovered from the importer or proprietor in the same manner as other penalties imposed by the acts above revived; and that if any person or persons do presume to counterfeit, raise, or alter any of the certificates above required, or to use any such certificate knowing the same to be so counterfeited, raised, or altered, such person or persons shall incur the pains which are by law inflicted on persons found guilty of forgery.

and to be entered with the collector of the customs, and security given for landing in England;

On oath made of their being cured with such salt, certificate to be granted.

Penalty on false certificates.

VIII. And whereas there may have been contracts or bargains made for the purchase and sale of home made salt, or rock salt, to be delivered and received at future times, after the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty-two, which contracts or bargains, by reason of the duties on salt and rock salt hereby revived and imposed, cannot be complied with by the sellers without great loss and damage, be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all contracts or bargains made, or to be made, before the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, for the purchase and sale of home made salt, or rock salt, to be delivered and received at any future time or times, which shall not be performed and complied with on or before the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, shall be, and are hereby declared to be null and void, and of no effect; and in case any sum or sums of money shall have been advanced and paid by any purchaser or purchasers, for or on account of any home made salt or rock salt, which shall not be delivered on or before the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, all such sums of money shall be forthwith repaid to the person or persons who shall have advanced and paid the same, together with legal interest for the same, from the time and times that such sum or sums of money shall have been respectively advanced and paid.

An act for the more easy recovery of debts in his Majesty's plantations and colonies in America.

After Sept.
29, plantation debts may be proved here on oath before a chief magistrate.

WHEREAS his Majesty's subjects trading to the British plantations in America lie under great difficulties for want of more easy methods of proving, recovering, and levying of debts due to them, than are now used in some of the said plantations: and whereas it will tend very much to the retrieving of the credit formerly given by the trading subjects of Great Britain to the natives and inhabitants of the said plantations, and to the advancing of the trade of this Kingdom thither, if such inconveniencies were remedied; may it therefore please your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, in any action or suit then depending, or thereafter to be brought in any court of law or equity in any of the said plantations, for or relating to any debt or account, wherein any person residing in Great Britain shall be a party, it shall and may be lawful to and for the plaintiff or defendant, and also to and for any witness to be examined or made use of in such action or suit, to verify or prove any matter or thing by affidavit or affidavits in writing upon oath, or in case the person making such affidavit be one of the people called Quakers, then upon his or her solemn affirmation, made before any mayor or other chief magistrate of the city, borough, or town corporate in Great Britain, where or near to which the person making such affidavit or affirmation shall reside, and certified and transmitted under the common seal of such city, borough, or town corporate, or the seal of the office of such mayor, or other chief magistrate, which oath and solemn affirmation every such mayor and chief magistrate shall be and is hereby authorized and empowered to administer; and every affidavit or affirmation so made, certified and transmitted, shall, in all such actions and suits, be allowed to be of the same force and effect, as if the person or persons making the same upon oath, or solemn affirmation as aforesaid, had appeared and sworn or affirmed the matters contained in such affidavit or affirmation viva voce in open court, or upon a commission issued for the examination of witnesses, or of any party in any such action or suit respectively; provided that in every such affidavit and affirmation there shall be expressed the addition of the party making such affidavit or affirmation, and the particular place of his or her abode.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all suits now depending, or hereafter to be brought in any court of law or equity by or in behalf of his Majesty; his heirs and successors, in any of the said plantations, for or relating to any debt or account, that his Majesty, his heirs and successors, shall and may prove his and their debts and accounts, and examine his or their witness or witnesses by affidavit or affirmation, in like manner as any subject or subjects is or are empowered or may do by this present act.

Debts to his Majesty may be proved in the same manner.

III. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted, That if any person making such affidavit upon oath or solemn affirmation as aforesaid, shall be guilty of falsely and wilfully swearing or affirming any matter or thing in such affidavit or affirmation, which, if the same had been sworn upon an examination in the usual form, would have amounted to wilful and corrupt perjury, every person so offending, being thereof lawfully convicted, shall incur the same penalties and forfeitures as by the laws and statutes of this realm are provided against persons convicted of wilful and corrupt perjury.

Penalty on false oath or affirmation.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, the houses, lands, negroes, and other hereditaments and real estates, situate or being within any of the said plantations belonging to any person indebted, shall be liable to and chargeable with all just debts, duties, and demands, of what nature or kind soever, owing by any such person to his Majesty, or any of his subjects, and shall and may be assets for the satisfaction thereof, in like manner as real estates are by the law of England liable to the satisfaction of debts due by bond or other specialty, and shall be subject to the like remedies, proceedings, and process in any court of law or equity in any of the said plantations respectively, for seizing, extending, selling, or disposing of any such houses, lands, negroes, and other hereditaments and real estates, towards the satisfaction of such debts, duties, and demands, and in like manner as personal estates in any of the said plantations respectively are seized, extended, sold, or disposed of for the satisfaction of debts.

Presentment to be made in open court,

WHEREAS by an act, made in the first year of the reign of his late majesty King James the Second, intituled, An additional act for the improvement of tillage, provision was made for examining and determining the common market prices of middling English corn and grain, which nevertheless hath been found ineffectual; Therefore, for the better ascertaining the common market prices of middling English corn and grain, and for preventing the fraudulent importation of foreign corn and grain, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, it shall and may be lawful to and for all and every the justices of peace for the several and respective counties within that part of Great Britain called England, Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tweed, wherein foreign corn or grain shall or may be hereafter imported, and they are hereby enjoined and required, at every their quarter-sessions, to give in charge in open court to the grand jury there assembled to make inquiry and presentment upon their oaths of the common market prices of middling English corn and grain of the respective sorts and quantities mentioned in an act made in the two and twentieth year of the reign of his majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An Act for improvement of tillage and breed of cattle, as the same shall be commonly bought and sold in every such county, which inquiry and presentment the said grand jury are hereby empowered and required to make.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That such presentment shall be made in open court, and shall be certified by the said justices justices in writing to his Majesty's chief officer and collector of the customs for the time being, residing in every such port or haven where such corn and grain shall be imported, and shall be hung up in some publick place in the custom-house belonging to every such port or haven, to be resorted to by all persons for their information.

certified to collector of customs, and hung up at the custom-houses for publick view.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, the custom and duty of foreign corn and grain imported into that part of Great Britain called England, Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tweed, appointed to be paid by the said act made in the two and twentieth year of the reign of his majesty King Charles the Second, shall be collected and paid according to the prices contained in such respective certificates as aforesaid, and not otherwise; any thing in the said act made in the first year of the reign of his late majesty King James the Second to the contrary notwithstanding.

Duties on foreign corn to be paid according to the prices in the certificates.

IV. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to prejudice or affect the authority given by the said act made in the first year of the reign of his majesty King James the Second, to the mayor, aldermen, and justices of the peace of the city of London; but that the said mayor, aldermen, and justices of the peace may continue to exercise the same at the times and in the manner therein mentioned; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

An additional act for the encouragement of the woollen manufactures of this kingdom, by the more effectual preventing the unlawful exportation of the woollen manufactures of the kingdom of Ireland to foreign parts.

c. 10.

WHEREAS by an act made in the tenth and eleventh years of the reign of King William the Third, intituled, An act to prevent the exportation of wool out of the kingdoms of Ireland and England, and for the encouragement of the woollen manufactures in the kingdom of England, certain ships and sloops are directed to cruize on the coasts of England and Ireland, particularly between the north of Ireland and Scotland, with orders to take and seize all ships, vessels and boats, which shall export any wool, with intent to carry it into foreign parts, but the commanders of such ships and sloops are not thereby authorized to seize ships, vessels and boats, which shall export any woollen manufactures from Ireland into foreign parts, the exportation whereof is nevertheless prohibited by law, and are discouraged by other restrictions in the said act from putting the same in execution; therefore, to render the said act more effectual, be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the lord high admiral of Great Britain, or commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral of Great Britain, for the time being, shall from time to time direct and appoint three ships of the sixth rate, and eight or more armed sloops, constantly to cruize on the coasts of Great Britain and Ireland, in such stations as the said lord high admiral, or commissioners for the time being, shall assign to such ships and sloops respectively, with orders for taking and seizing all ships, vessels, and boats, in which any worsted, bay or woollen yarn, cloth, ferges, bays, kerseys, says, frizes, druggetts, cloth ferges, shalloons or any other drapery stuffs or woollen manufactures whatsoever, made up or mixed with wool or wool-flocks, shall be exported or laden in order to be exported from Ireland into foreign parts; and that the said lord high admiral, or the said commissioners for the time being, shall send a list of such ships and sloops, and the names of the commanders thereof, together with true copies of the several instructions to them given, within ten days after the date of the said orders, to his Majesty's commissioners for the management of the customs in Great Britain, and to the commissioners of his Majesty's revenue in Ireland.

Admiralty to appoint three ships, and eight armed sloops, to cruize on the coasts of Great Britain and Ireland,

Commanders of ships and sloops may search vessels, and on finding the goods prohibited, carry crew and cargo into port.

Ships and goods forfeited,

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the commander of every such ship and sloop in any port, creek or road, or in the open sea, within the limits of the station which shall be assigned to such ship or sloop as aforesaid, to enter and search or cause to be entered and searched, any ship, vessel, or boat; and if upon such search any of the said prohibited commodities shall be found therein and the master or commander of such ship, vessel, or boat, shall not immediately produce to the commander of such ship or sloop a lawful cocket or warrant, licensing the exportation or transportation thereof, to take and seize such ship, vessel or boat, and to carry the same, together with the crew and cargo thereof, into any port in Great Britain or Ireland.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every such ship, vessel, or boat so taken and seized, with all her guns, tackle, furniture, and apparel, and all the said prohibited commodities which shall be found therein, shall be forfeited, and the said prohibited commodities shall be lodged in the King's warehouse in such port into which such ship, vessel, or boat shall be carried as aforesaid, until it shall be condemned according to law, and being so condemned, shall be exposed publickly to sale, after one and twenty days publick notice thereof in writing, being affixed upon the custom-house of the said port, by inch of candle, to the last and best bidder; and that every such ship, vessel, or boat, and all the guns, tackle, furniture, and apparel thereof, shall after condemnation thereof be exposed to sale in like manner; and that one fourth part of the produce of such sale or sales shall be to the commander of the ship or sloop, that shall make such seizure as aforesaid, one other fourth part to the other officers of such ship or sloop, one other fourth part to the mariners thereof, to be equally distributed to the said mariners by the chief officer of the customs in the said port, or by such person or persons as shall be authorized to make such sale or sales as aforesaid, and the other fourth part thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, after a deduction made out of the last fourth part for all the charges of prosecution and condemnation: provided always, That if such seizure shall be made upon the information of any person or persons, such informer or informers shall not only be indemnified from the pains, penalties, and forfeitures, to which exporters of the said prohibited commodities, their aiders and abettors are liable, but shall also receive one fifth part of the produce of such sale or sales, and the residue thereof shall be divided into four equal parts, and distributed in such manner as is herein before directed.

after condemnation to be sold publickly on 21 days notice.

Distribution of forfeitures.

Informers indemnified, and to have a fifth part of the sale.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action shall be commenced against any person for what he shall do in pursuance of this act, such person shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence; and if the plaintiff shall become nonsuit, or discontinue the action, or if a verdict shall pass against him, or judgment be given against him upon a demurrer, the defendant shall recover treble costs.

General issue.

V. And be it further enacted, That no person or persons shall be admitted to claim property in any seizure that shall be made upon any clause in this or any act of parliament for preventing the unlawful exportation of woollen goods from Ireland, till he or they shall first have given sufficient security by recognizance entered into before one of the commissioners of the revenue in Ireland, or one of the barons of the court of exchequer in England, to answer the penalties attending the forfeiture thereof.

Persons claiming shares in seizures to give security to answer the penalties.

VI. And whereas by a clause in an act made in the eleventh and twelfth years of the reign of King William the Third, intituled, An act for continuing several laws therein mentioned, and for explaining the act, intituled, An act to prevent the exportation of wool out of the kingdoms of Ireland and England into foreign parts, and for the encouragement of the woollen manufactures in the kingdom of England, it is enacted and declared, That neither the said act made in the tenth and eleventh years of the reign of King William the Third, nor any thing therein contained, shall be construed to extend to subject any person or persons, or any ship or vessel, to any of the pains, penalties, and forfeitures, in the said act contained, for or touching such woollens, shortlings, or mortlings, as shall be necessary for the use of the gunner or boat-swarman's stores, for the ship or vessel only, and as for so much cloth, serge, bays, kerseys, says, friizes, druggets, cloth serges, shalloons or other drapery stuffs, or other manufactures, as shall be for the proper use for clothes only of any mariner or passenger, for his or her wearing apparel or furniture, on board such ship in the voyage, and shall not exceed in the whole, for any one mariner or passenger, the value of forty shillings: and whereas under pretence of the exemption in the said clause contained, great quantities of woollens, shortlings, and mortlings, and of cloth, serge, bays, says, kerseys, friizes, druggets, cloth serges, shalloons or other drapery stuffs, or other manufactures, have been exported from Ireland

Clause in 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 13. repeated.

Not to make void the penalties of former acts on exportation of wool.

Ireland into foreign parts, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said clause shall from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, be and is hereby repealed.

VII. Provided always, That this act or any thing therein contained shall not extend or be construed to extend to disannul or make void any other penalties or forfeitures inflicted by any former law, upon the exportation of wool and woollen manufactures, or to alter or repeal any clause therein contained, which is not hereby altered or repealed; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

C A P. XXII.

An act to prevent the exportation of hats out of any of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America and to restrain the number of apprentices taken by the hat-makers in the said colonies or plantations, and for the better encouraging the making hats in Great Britain.

After 29 Sept. 1732, no hats, or felts to be transported from British plantations.

WHEREAS the art and mystery of making hats in Great Britain hath arrived to great perfection, and considerable quantities of hats manufactured in this kingdom have heretofore been exported to his Majesty's plantations or colonies in America, who have been wholly supplied with hats from Great Britain; and whereas great quantities of hats have of late years been made, and the said manufacture is daily increasing in the British plantations in America, and is from thence exported to foreign markets, which were heretofore supplied from Great Britain, and the hat-makers in the said plantations take many apprentices for very small terms, to the discouragement of the said trade, and debasing the said manufacture: wherefore for preventing the said ill practices for the future, and for promoting and encouraging the trade of making hats in Great Britain, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, no hats or felts whatsoever, dyed or undyed, finished or unfinished, shall be shipt, loaden or put on board any ship or vessel in any place or parts within any of the British plantations, upon any pretence whatsoever, by any person or persons whatsoever, and also that no hats or felts, either dyed or undyed, finished or unfinished, shall be loaden upon any horse, cart, or other carriage, to the intent or purpose to be exported, transported, shipped off, carried or conveyed out of any of the said British plantations to any other of the British plantations, or to any other place whatsoever, by any person or persons whatsoever.

Hats or felts so transported, forfeited,

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the offender and offenders, offence and offences against this act, shall be subject and liable to the penalties and forfeitures herein after mentioned, that is to say, The said hats or felts dyed or undyed, finished or unfinished, so exported, transported, shipped off, carried, conveyed, or loaden contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, shall be forfeited, and that every of the offender and offenders therein shall likewise forfeit and pay the sum of five hundred pounds, for every such offence committed; and every master, mariner, porter, carter, waggoner, boatman, or other person whatsoever knowing such offence, and wittingly aiding and assisting therein, shall forfeit and pay the sum of forty pounds; which said several penalties penalties and forfeitures shall and may be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record in Great Britain, or in such of the said plantations wherein such offence shall be committed (in which suit no essoin, protection or wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be allowed) and shall go and be applied, one moiety to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him, her, or them, that shall sue for the same.

Penalty on assisting 40 l.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons to seize, take, secure, and convey to his Majesty's next warehouse all such hats and felts dyed or undyed, finished or unfinished, as he or they shall happen to see, find, know, or discover to be laid on board in any ship, vessel, or boat, or to be brought, carried, or laid on shore, at or near the sea, or in any navigable river or water, to the intent or purpose to be exported or conveyed out of the said plantations, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, or to be laden upon any horse, cart, or other carriage, to the intent or purpose to be exported, conveyed or carried into any other of the said plantations, or into any other part or place whatsoever, contrary to the true intent and meaning hereof; and that such person or persons, that shall happen so to seize, take, or secure any of the commodities aforesaid, shall be indemnified for so doing to all intents and purposes.

Prohibited

warehouse.

Seizures indemnified.

IV. And to the intent and purpose that this act may more effectually be put in execution, for preventing the growing mischiefs that daily do or may arise to this kingdom, from the exportation of such goods as aforesaid, or any of them, out of the British plantations, should the same still be suffered to be sent from thence to supply other plantations and foreign markets, that are or have been supplied from Great Britain: be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any commissioner or commissioners, or other officer or officers of the customs of any port or place within the British plantations, or any farmer or farmers of the revenue of the customs arising in the plantations, or any officer or officers employed in the management of the said revenue, shall, from and after the said twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, take or suffer to be taken any entry outward, or sign any cocket, warrant or sufferance for the shipping or exporting any hats or felts dyed or undyed, finished or unfinished, or shall wittingly and willingly permit, contrive or suffer the same to be done, directly or indirectly, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, that then and in every such case, such commissioner or commissioners, farmer or farmers, officer or officers so signing such cocquet, warrant or sufferance, or passing such entry for the same, or any wise conniving thereat, contrary to the true intent and meaning hereof, shall for every such offence or neglect, forfeit his office, and shall moreover for every such offence forfeit the sum of five hundred pounds, to be recovered and applied in manner and form as aforesaid.

Officers of customs, &c. permitting entries of such hats or felts, forfeit office,

and 500 l.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every offence committed against this act shall and may be inquired of, tried, heard, and determined, in the county where any such goods shall be so laden or put on board as aforesaid, or else in the county or place either in Great Britain or the plantations where such offender shall happen to be apprehended or arrested for such offence, or where any of the goods aforesaid shall happen to be seized, taken, or brought in; and that the said trial shall be in such manner and form, and in such effect to all intents and purposes as if the same offence had been wholly done and committed in the same county or place where the same shall be tried by virtue and in pursuance of this act.

Offences where to be tri.d.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action, bill, plaint, or information, shall be commenced or prosecuted against any person for what he shall do in pursuance of this act, such person

An act for encouraging the growth of coffee in his Majesty's plantations in America.

WHEREAS there is great reason to believe that the soil and climate of the island of Jamaica, and of other British plantations in America, are proper for the growth of coffee, and that great quantities of that commodity may be produced in the said plantations, and from thence imported into this kingdom, if encouragement be given for that purpose, to the great advantage not only of the said plantations, but likewise of this kingdom: and whereas by an act of parliament made in the tenth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act for repealing certain duties therein mentioned payable upon coffee, tea, cocoa nuts, chocolate, and cocoa paste imported, and for granting certain inland duties in lieu thereof, and for prohibiting the importation of chocolate ready made, and cocoa paste, and for better ascertaining the duties payable upon coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts imported; and for granting relief to Robert Dalzell, late earl of Carnwath, it was enacted and declared, That the several duties upon coffee then payable by an act of parliament made in the sixth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, and by an act of parliament made in the third year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, and by one other act of parliament made in the tenth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, should cease, determine, and be no longer paid or payable; and that an inland duty should be charged and imposed upon all coffee to be sold in Great Britain, from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, after the rate of two shillings per pound averdupois, and in that proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, over and above all customs, subsidies, and duties which then remained payable to his Majesty for the same upon the importation thereof, which duty was to be managed and collected by persons to be nominated and appointed by virtue of the said act, under certain rules, limitations, forfeitures and penalties, therein mentioned: now for encouraging the growth of coffee in the said plantations, and the importation of the same from thence into this kingdom, be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fifth day of March which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty five, all coffee of the growth and product of any of the British plantations in America, shall, in lieu of the said inland duty of two shillings per pound weight, pay an inland duty of one shilling and six pence, and no more, per pound weight averdupois, and in that proportion proportion for a greater or lesser quantity; and the persons nominated and appointed by virtue of the first mentioned act, to manage and collect the said inland duty arising thereby, shall and are hereby empowered to take and receive the sum of one shilling and six pence per pound and no more, for all coffee of the growth and product of the British plantations above mentioned; any thing in the said act to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. Provided and be it enacted, That the said duty shall be applicable to the uses and purposes contained and declared in the said act of the tenth year of his said late Majesty's reign, and all officers employed in managing and collecting the same, and all persons importing, selling, buying, or dealing in such coffee shall be subject to the rules, limitations, restrictions, forfeitures, and penalties to be prosecuted, received, and divided, in the manner thereby prescribed and directed.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no commander or other person having charge of any ship or vessel, shall take in, or permit or suffer to be taken in, at any of his Majesty's plantations in America, or at sea, or in any creek, harbour, or other place in America, or shall land, suffer or permit to be landed, out of any ship or vessel in any of the said plantations, any coffee of the growth or produce of any foreign country, except such coffee as shall be regularly exported from Great Britain on pain of forfeiting all such coffee, and the sum of two hundred pounds, and likewise shall suffer twelve months imprisonment; such forfeiture to be sued for, recovered, and adjudged in any court of record in any of his Majesty's dominions in Europe, or in any of his Majesty's plantations; and what shall be recovered in pursuance of this act, in any court of record in any of his Majesty's dominions in Europe, shall be paid, one moiety to his Majesty, and the other moiety to the person or persons who shall inform or sue for the same; and what shall be recovered in the plantations, shall be divided, one third to his Majesty, one third to the governor or commander in chief, and the other third to the person or persons who shall inform or sue for the same.

Penalty on false oath or certificate.

V. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person shall falsely make any oath or affirmation by this act directed to be made, and shall thereof be legally convicted in any of his Majesty's courts of record in Great Britain, or in any of the courts of admiralty in any of the said plantations, where such offence was committed, such person so guilty shall forfeit the sum of two hundred pounds, and be imprisoned for the space of twelve months; and if any person shall forge or counterfeit a certificate of the said oath or affirmation, or shall publish such certificate, knowing the same to be forged or counterfeited, and be legally convicted thereof in any of the courts aforesaid, such person shall forfeit the sum of two hundred pounds, and such forfeiture shall be paid, one moiety to his Majesty, and the other moiety to the person or persons who shall inform and sue for the same, to be recovered and divided as is before directed and appointed.

3 VI. And

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act shall continue and be in force from the said twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty five, to the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer.

An act for the free importation and exportation of diamonds, pearls, rubies, emeralds, and all other jewels and precious stones.

WHEREAS this kingdom has now become a great mart for diamonds and other precious stones and jewels, from whence most foreign countries are supplied, and great numbers of rough diamonds are sent from abroad to be cut and polished here, which is a great advantage to this nation, and there is great reason to believe, if the importation thereof was encouraged and made easy, the said trade would increase: and whereas among the rules in the table of fees and allowance allowance due and payable to the officers of the customs, dated the seventeenth day of May, one thousand six hundred and sixty two, signed by Sir Edward Turner, then speaker of the house of commons, and confirmed by the act of tonnage and poundage passed in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and since continued, and now in force, it is declared, That diamonds, precious stones, jewels, and pearls of all sorts shall pass outwards without warrant or fee; may it therefore please your most excellent Majesty that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the tenth day of April, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty three, all diamonds, pearls, rubies, emeralds, and all other precious stones and jewels, shall pass inwards without warrant or fee, in like manner as they now pass outwards, and free from the payment of any duty granted to his Majesty, his heirs or successors; and it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons to import or export the same in any ship or vessel whatsoever; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding; subject nevertheless to the proviso herein after contained.

to the governor or commander in chief of the said colony or plantation, and the other third part to the informer or prosecutor who shall sue for the same.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty three, no sugars, paneles, syrups, or molasses, of the growth, product, and manufacture of any of the colonies or plantations in America, nor any rum or spirits of America, except of the growth or manufacture of his Majesty's sugar colonies there, shall be imported by any person or persons whatsoever into the kingdom of Ireland, but such only as shall be fairly and bona fide laden and shipped in Great Britain in ships navigated according to the several laws now in being in that behalf, under the penalty of forfeiting all such sugar, paneles, syrups or molasses, rum or spirits, or the value thereof, together with the ship or vessel in which the same shall be imported, with all her guns, tackle, furniture, ammunition, and apparel; and if any of the commodities aforementioned shall be imported into Ireland contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, all and every such commodities, with the ship or vessel wherein they shall be imported, and the tackle, ammunition, and furniture thereof, shall and may be seized by the lord lieutenant, lord deputy, or lords justices, for the time being, for the kingdom of Ireland, or any person or persons authorized by him, them, or any of them, or by warrant of any justice of the peace or other magistrate, (which warrant such justice or magistrate is hereby impowered and required to give upon request) or by any customhouse officer, or excise officer, or any person or persons, him, them, or any of them, accompanying, aiding, and assisting; and all and every the said offences, committed against this act, may be prosecuted, and the penalties and forfeitures recovered, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in Dublin, at the election of the informer or prosecutor, by bill, plaint, or information, wherein no effoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed, or any more than one imparlance; and the penalties and forfeitures recovered on such prosecution shall go and be divided and applied in manner following; viz. one moiety to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the use of the informer or prosecutor.

V. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be aiding and assisting in bringing on shore or landing any such sugar, paneles, syrups or molasses, rum or spirits, into the kingdom of Ireland, or into any of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, or shall receive into his, her, or their house or custody, any of the commodities aforementioned, knowing the same to be imported or landed and brought on shore, contrary to this act, every such person so offending shall forfeit treble the value of such goods, to be estimated and computed according to the best price that each respective commodity bears at the place where any such seizures shall be made, to be sued for, recovered, and applied in manner aforementioned.

VI. And be it further enacted, That if any person or persons shall hinder, molest, or resist, any custom-house officer, impost or excise officer, or their or any of their assistants, in the due execution of his or their duty in seizing or securing any of the commodities aforementioned, imported into the kingdom of Ireland, or landed or put on shore in any of the colonies or plantations in America, which now or hereafter may be in the possession or under the dominion of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, contrary to the purport or true meaning of this act, he, she, or they shall forfeit and pay the sum of fifty pounds, to be sued for, recovered, and applied in manner aforementioned, and shall also be liable to be prosecuted for the same, by indictment or otherwise, and being thereof found guilty, shall be imprisoned for three months without bail or mainprize; and if any officer or officers of the customs, impost or excise officer or officers, or their assistants, shall be sued or prosecuted for any thing done in execution of his or their duty for the better and more effectual putting in force this present act, he or they may and shall plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence, and the judges shall allow thereof; and if any officer or officers of the customs or excise, in the kingdom of Ireland, or any officer or officers of the customs, impost or excise office, in any of his Majesty's plantations or colonies in America; shall willingly or knowingly connive at the fraudulent importation, or landing and bringing on shore, of any of the commodities aforementioned, contrary to the purport and true meaning of this act, or such officer or officers shall take upon him or them to seize any of the said commodities, and shall by fraud or collusion desist from or delay the prosecution thereof to condemnation, he or they so conniving, desisting, or delaying, shall forfeit and lose the sum of fifty pounds, to be sued for, recovered, and applied in manner aforesaid, and such officer or officers shall also be incapable of holding any office or employment under his Majesty, his heirs or successors.

50 l. penalty on officer conniving at such fraudulent importation.

VII. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any of his Majesty's subjects, who is or shall be master, or have the charge of any ship or vessel, shall take in, or permit or suffer to be taken in, at sea or in any creek or harbour, or other place, any sugar, paneles, syrups or molasses, rum or spirits, in order to be imported into Ireland, or brought on shore and landed in any of his Majesty's plantations in America, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, every such master or other person so offending, shall forfeit and pay the sum of one hundred pounds, to be sued for, recovered, and applied in manner herein before mentioned.

100 l. penalty on master of ship, &c. permitting such importation.

VIII. And be it further enacted, That, upon all suits and prosecutions for the importation of any of the commodities aforementioned into the kingdom of Ireland, or for the bringing on shore and landing of any of the commodities aforementioned in any of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, contrary to the purport and true meaning of this act, the Onus probandi, that the same and every part thereof were fairly and bona fide, and without fraud, laden and shipped in Great Britain, in ships navigated according to the several laws in being in that behalf, or that the rum or spirits were made of the growth or manufacture of some of his Majesty's sugar colonies in America, or that all and every the commodities aforesaid, which shall be imported into any of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, were of the growth, produce, or manufacture of his Majesty's colonies or plantations there, or were duly entered, and had really and bona fide paid the duties hereby charged and chargeable thereon, before the bringing on shore and landing thereof in any of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, shall lie on the claimer or owner thereof.

The onus probandi in suits to lie on the owners.

IX. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any sugar or paneles of the growth, produce, or manufacture of any of the colonies or plantations belonging to or in the possession of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, which shall have been imported into Great Britain after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty three, shall at any time within one year after the importation thereof, be again exported out of Great Britain, and that due proof be first made, by certificate from the proper officers, of the due entry and payment of the subsidies or duties charged or payable upon the importation thereof, together with the oath of the merchant or his agent importing and exporting the same, or in case such merchant or agent shall be one of the people called Quakers, by his solemn affirmation to the truth thereof, and that all other requisites shall be performed that are by law to be performed in cases where any of the said subsidies or duties are to be paid by any former statute, all the residue and remainder of the subsidy or duty, by any former act or acts of parliament granted and charged on such sugar or paneles as aforesaid, aforesaid, shall without any delay or reward be repaid to such merchant or merchants, who do export the same within one month after demand thereof.

X. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty three, for every hundred weight of sugar refined in Great Britain, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, which shall be exported out of this kingdom, there shall be, by virtue of this act, repaid at the custom-house to the exporter, within one month after the demand thereof, over and above the several sums of three shillings and one shilling per hundred, payable by two former acts of parliament, one of them made in the ninth and tenth years of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, and the other in the second and third years of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, the further sum of two shillings, oath or solemn affirmation as aforesaid, being first made by the refiner, that the said sugar so exported, was produced from brown and muscovado sugar, and that, as he verily believes, the same was imported from some of the colonies or plantations in America belonging to and in the possession of the crown of Great Britain, and that as he verily believes, the duty of the said brown and muscovado sugar was duly paid at the time of the importation thereof, and that the same was duly exported, his Majesty's searcher also certifying the shipping thereof, and all other requisites being duly performed, according to the book of rates.

XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all suits and prosecutions for any offence against this act shall be brought and commenced within two years after such offence committed.

XII. And, for the better and more effectual carrying this act into execution, be it further enacted, That the expence of prosecuting any offence against this act shall be paid and born, in the first place, out of the shares and parts of the penalties and forfeitures hereby given and granted to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, upon any seizure, condemnation and judgment to be had and obtained for or by reason of any fraud or misbehaviour against the true intent or meaning of this act.

XIII. Provided nevertheless, That nothing herein contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to hinder or restrain the importation of any sugars, being of the growth or produce of any of the dominions belonging to the King of Spain, or the King of Portugal, from any part or place from whence such sugars might lawfully have been imported before the making of this act; any thing herein before contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

XIV. And it is hereby declared and enacted, That this present act shall be taken to be a publick act, of which all judges and justices shall take notice, without specially pleading the same; and the same shall continue and be in force for the space of five years, to be computed from the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty three, and to the end of the then next session of parliament.

Anno sexto

GEORGE II. Regis.

C A P. XVII.

An act for repealing an act for laying a duty on compound waters or spirits, and for licensing the retailers thereof, and for determining certain duties on French brandy, and for granting other duties in lieu thereof, and for enforcing the laws for preventing the running of brandies.

SECT. II. AND whereas by an act of parliament, made in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, of glorious memory, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an additional duty upon all French goods and merchandizes, it is amongst other things enacted, That for every tun of French brandy, of single proof, imported after the twenty-eighth day of February, one thousand six hundred and ninety six, for the term of thirty one years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, there should be paid the sum of thirty pounds, and for every tun of French brandy, of double proof, imported as aforesaid, sixty pounds, over and above the duties charged thereupon, without any deduction, and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity, which said several duties have been by several acts of parliament since continued, and are now payable to his Majesty: and whereas the high duties upon French brandies have tempted many of the traders therein to import great quantities thereof from Flemish ports, and as German or Flemish brandy, to the great prejudice of the revenue and the fair trader; for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty three, the said duty of thirty pounds per tun on French brandy of single proof, and sixty pounds per tun on French brandy of double proof, shall cease, determine and be no longer paid or payable.

The duties imposed by 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 20. on French brandy repealed.

III. And to the intent that no failure or deficiency may accrue or happen in the respective funds, to which the duties by this act determined were appropriated and applicable, by the determination of the aforesaid duties; we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, have, in lieu of the said last mentioned duties hereby determined, freely and unanimously resolved to give and grant to your Majesty the duty and imposition herein after mentioned, and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty three, in lieu of the said duties hereby determined, there be raised, levied, collected, and paid unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, the several rates and duties of excise herein after expressed; that is to say,

After 24 June 1733, to be paid, in lieu of the duties of 30 and 60 l. per tun,

For every gallon of single brandy, spirits, or aqua vite imported from beyond the seas, to be paid by the importer before landing, over and above the duties payable for the same, one shilling.

for brandy, &c. imported per gallon 1 s.

For every gallon of brandy, spirits, or aqua vite, above proof, commonly called Double Brandy, imported from beyond the seas, to be paid by the importer before landing, over and above the duties payable for the same, two shillings.

Double brandy 2 s. Appropriated by 9 Geo. 2. c. 23.

IV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said several rates, duties, and impositions, shall be raised, levied, collected, paid, and accounted for unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in the same manner

To be levied as the duties of excise on beer, &c.

her and form, and by such rules, ways, and means, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and with such power of mitigation, and other powers, and with such allowances, as any the duties of excise upon beer, ale, or other liquors, are by any act or acts of parliament or law whatsoever now in force, enacted, appointed, or allowed to be raised, levied, collected, managed, recovered, and paid; and that so much of the said acts as are now in force for the raising, levying, collecting, paying, and answering the said duties of excise, shall be continued, and be practised, put in execution, and observed, in and for the raising, levying, collecting, managing, adjudging, and answering the said duties of excise by this act granted, as fully and effectually as if the same were particularly and at large re-enacted in the body of this present act.

The money arising by these duties to be paid distinct from others, and appropriated to the same uses as the duties hereby determined.

Spirits drawn from British corn, without mixture of other materials, on oath and certificate, &c.

allowed a drawback of 4 l. 18 s. per tun.

1 W. & M. sess. 1. c. 12.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several and respective commissioners of excise shall pay all the monies that they respectively shall receive of the said duties (the necessary charges of receiving, levying, managing, and accounting for the same, excepted) into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer, distinct and apart from all other branches of the publick revenues, for the purposes in this act expressed.

VI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the monies arising by the said duties by this act charged and imposed, shall be appropriated, issued, and applied, and the same are hereby appropriated and made payable to the same uses, intents and purposes, as the said last mentioned duties hereby determined as aforesaid, were appropriated and applicable before the making of this present act, and shall have the same continuance, and shall be also subject and liable to the same redemption by parliament as the said last mentioned duties, hereby determined as aforesaid, were subject and liable unto.

VII. And for the encouragement of the exportation of spirits drawn from corn in Great Britain, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty three, it shall and may be lawful to and for any distiller or distillers, or other person or persons, to export such spirits drawn from corn as aforesaid, upon oath made before any two or more of the commissioners of excise, or justices of the peace for the county or place from whence any such spirits, drawn from corn in Great Britain, are intended to be exported, That the same are drawn from corn in Great Britain without any mixture with any other materials, either native or foreign, and that the duties of the same are duly entered and paid, and that the same are exported for merchandize to be spent beyond the seas; and upon producing a certificate under the hands of the officers of excise for the port or place where such spirits were shipped, of the quantity so shipped, and that the same was shipped in the presence of such officer, that such distiller or distillers, or other person or persons, so exporting the same, shall be allowed or paid back by the commissioners of excise, or their collector for the port or place where such spirits shall be shipped off, the sum of four pounds eighteen shillings for every tun of such spirits so shipped off, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity, in full of all drawbacks and bounty that can be made for the same, except the bounty of one pound ten shillings for every tun of such spirits, which shall be payable at the custom-house in manner herein after directed.

VIII. And whereas by an act made in the first year of the reign of the late King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for encouraging the exportation of corn, an allowance of two shillings and sixpence per quarter is to be paid to the exporter of barley or malt, when the same is sold at twenty four shillings the quarter or under: and whereas in the making of a tun of spirits drawn from barley or malt twelve quarters of barley or malt are made use of, but it is uncertain how much of the said barley is made into malt; for preventing any question or dispute that may arise thereupon, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for every tun of spirits drawn from barley, malt, or other corn corn, there shall be paid to the exporter of the same, by the commissioners of his Majesty's customs, or other proper officers belonging to them, when barley is at twenty-four shillings per quarter or under, upon such proof of the exportation of the same, as by the said act is directed, and out of such duties as are liable to the payment of the bounties on corn exported, the sum of one pound ten shillings, in the same manner as if the like quantity of barley, malt, or other corn had been exported, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity.

When barley is at 24 s. per quarter,

1 l. 10 s. allowed as a drawback for each tun of malt spirits exported.

IX. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing herein contained shall extend, or be construed, deemed, or taken to extend, to alter the duties now paid on rum or spirits that shall be of the growth or manufacture of his Majesty's plantations in America.

Not to alter the duties payable on rum or spirits of the American plantations.

X. And for the more effectual securing the due execution by the inferior officers of his Majesty's customs of the provisions in the several acts for preventing the running of brandies, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when any officer or officers of the customs shall neglect to seize and prosecute any vessel, boat, horses, or other cattle or carriage which shall be forfeited for the causes above mentioned, every such officer and officers being thereof lawfully convicted upon his or their appearance or default, upon the oath or oaths of one or more credible witness or witnesses, or by the confession of the officer or officers, by or before one or more justice or justices of the peace of the county, division, or liberty where such offence shall be committed, or the offender shall be found (which oath such justice or justices of the peace are hereby required to administer) the officer and officers so convicted shall severally forfeit for every such neglect the sum of fifty pounds, one moiety thereof to the use of the King, and the other moiety thereof to the use of the informer or prosecutor, the same to be levied by distress and sale of the offender's goods, by warrant under the hand and seal or hands and seals of such justice or justices of the peace before whom such offender shall be convicted as aforesaid; and for want of such distress, every such offender shall by such justice or justices be committed to prison, there to remain without bail or mainprize for the space of six months.

50 l. penalty on custom-house officer for every neglect of his duty herein.

C A P. XIV.

An act for ascertaining the duties upon arrack, and for giving further time to clerks and apprentices to pay duties omitted to be paid for their indentures and contracts.

WHEREAS arrack, a spirit of the product of his Majesty's colonies and territories in the East Indies, is, on the importation thereof into Great Britain, charged by the laws of excise with the several duties which are paid for brandy and other foreign spirits imported into this kingdom, but by the officers of the customs is rated and charged as a commodity imported from the East Indies, according to the value thereof at the sale at the candle, whereby the several subsidies, duties, and excise, amount to much more than is paid on the importation of brandy and other foreign spirits, to the great discouragement of the importation thereof: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and thirty four, the same subsidies, duties, and excise, now payable upon brandy and foreign spirits imported, and no more, shall be paid for arrack imported from any of his Majesty's colonies and the same allowances only on exportation.

After 1 May, 1734, the same duties only shall be paid for arrack imported from the British colonies as are payable on brandy, &c.

To be paid as the duties on brandy.

The laws in force relating to the duties on arrack continued.

The monies arising by the said duties to be paid distinct from all other branches of the revenue, and appropriated to the same uses as before.

9 Geo. 2. c. 23.

colonies or territories in the East Indies, and that the same allowances shall be made on the exportation thereof, as is made upon foreign brandy or other spirits; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said several subsidies, duties, and excise upon arrack, shall be raised, levied, collected, paid, and accounted for unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in the same manner and form, and by such rules, ways, and means, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and with such power of mitigation, and other powers, and with such allowances, as any the duties on brandy or other foreign spirits are by any act or acts of parliament or law whatsoever now in force, enacted, appointed, or allowed to be raised, levied, collected, managed, recovered, and paid; and that the said several laws now in force for the raising, levying, collecting, paying, and answering the said subsidies, duties, and excise upon arrack, shall be continued, and be practised, put in execution, and observed, in and for the raising, levying, collecting, managing, adjudging, and answering the said subsidies, duties, and excise upon arrack, by this act granted, as fully and effectually, as if the same were particularly and at large re-enacted in the body of this present act.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several and respective commissioners of the customs, and commissioners of excise, shall pay all the monies that they respectively shall receive of the said duties (the necessary charges of receiving, levying, managing, and accounting for the same, excepted) into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer, distinct and apart from all other branches of the publick revenues, for the purposes in this act expressed.

IV. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the monies arising by the said duties by this act imposed and charged, shall be appropriated, issued, and applied, and the same are hereby appropriated and made payable to the same uses, intents, and purposes, as the said subsidies, duties, and excise, as aforesaid, were appropriated and applicable before the making of this present act, and shall have the same continuance, and shall be also subject and liable to the same redemption by parliament, as the said subsidies, duties, and excise, were subject and liable unto.

An act for the revival of an act made in the thirteenth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act for the free importation of cochineal during the time therein limited; and also for the free importation of indico.

13 Car. 2. c. 12.

WHEREAS cochineal and indico are of principal use in dying of cloths and other woollen manufactures of this kingdom, to the great improvement thereof, by which great numbers of his Majesty's subjects are employed in finishing and perfecting such manufactures, and the importation thereof ought therefore to be encouraged in the most extensive manner, that the dyers may at all times be supplied with cochineal and indico on the cheapest terms possible: and whereas the said commodities cannot at present be imported into this kingdom, but according to the rules prescribed and enjoined by an act of parliament passed in the twelfth year of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation, which hath been found inconvenient tending to make them dearer in these kingdoms than they would be, if they could be freely imported from any place where they may be purchased cheapest: and whereas by an act of parliament, passed in the thirteenth year of his late majesty King George, intituled, An act for the free importation of cochineal during the time therein mentioned, liberty was therein granted for the free importation of cochineal, during the continuance of the said act, which is now expired: may it therefore please your most excellent Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said last mentioned act of the thirteenth of his late majesty King George shall, from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty four, be revived, and is hereby revived, and shall remain in full force and virtue.

13 Geo. 1. c. 25.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty four, it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons to import and bring into this kingdom, in any ship or vessel belonging to Great Britain, or to any kingdom or state in amity with his Majesty, his heirs and successors, from any port or place whatsoever, indico of all sorts; any act or acts of parliament to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

The act 13 Geo. 1. for the free importation of cochineal, revived.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said act of the thirteenth year of his late majesty King George, and this present act, shall continue and be in force for seven years, from the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty four, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer.

After 24 June, 1734, indico of all sorts may be imported from any port in British or other ships in amity with Britain. Continued by 27 Geo. 2. c. 18.

bops, before due entry thereof shall have been made, and the duty by the aforesaid acts granted and continued shall have been paid, has been found too small to prevent the clandestine importation of the same: and whereas by the low price that hops have taken and do still bear in foreign markets, great quantities of foreign hops are imported into and vended in Great Britain, and brought into and vended in Ireland, contrary to law; for preventing therefore of a practice so prejudicial to the hop planters of this kingdom, and so detrimental to the revenue; be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of May, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty four, if any foreign hops shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel in Great Britain, before due entry thereof shall be made at the custom-house in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and before the duties charged or chargeable thereon shall be paid, or without a warrant for landing or delivering the same first signed by the commissioners, collector, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively; or if any foreign hops, other than of British growth, shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel in Ireland, all such hops, of what kind soever, as shall be so landed or put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel in Great Britain or Ireland, shall be forfeited and burnt within ten days after the same shall be lawfully condemned, and also the ship or vessel forfeited in which the same were imported, and the person or persons concerned in importing of the same, or that shall have been aiding and assisting in the landing or putting the same on shore, shall forfeit and pay the sum of five shillings for every pound weight thereof; and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity.

II. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons in Great Britain or Ireland shall, from and after the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and thirty four, mix with, or put into any quantity of hops any drug or ingredient, or other thing whatsoever, to alter the colour or scent thereof, every person so offending, and being thereof lawfully convicted by the oath of one or more witnesses or witnesses, before one or more justice or justices of the peace of the county or place where the offence shall be committed, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay the sum of five pounds for every hundred weight thereof.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several fines, penalties, and forfeitures, as well specifick as pecuniary, by this act imposed (the suing for, levying, and recovering of which are not hereby before particularly provided for) shall and may be sued for, levied, and recovered, or mitigated, in Great Britain or Ireland respectively, by such ways, means, and methods, as any fine, penalty, and forfeiture may be sued for, levied, recovered, or mitigated, by the laws now in force relating to hops; and that one moiety of every such fine, penalty, and forfeiture, shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that will discover, inform, or sue for the same.

their heirs, executors, and administrators, and every of them, who before the twenty seventh day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, have incurred any penalty or forfeiture in, by, or for the clandestine running, landing, unshipping, concealing, or receiving, any prohibited goods, wares, or merchandizes, or any foreign goods liable to the payment of the duties of customs and excise, or either of them, and who are or may be subject to any information or other prosecution whatsoever for the duties of such goods, or for the penalties for the running, landing, unshipping, concealing, or receiving thereof, or for the making of any false report or entry of the loading of any ship or vessel inwards or outwards, or for making any report or entry in a wrong name or names, or for not reporting any such ship or vessel, or for breaking bulk before making such report or reports, or for altering the package of any goods on board any ship or vessel, or for landing of any goods without the presence of an officer, or for staving or otherwise destroying or spoiling any goods at or after the seizure thereof by any officer of the customs or excise, or other person duly authorized to make such seizure; and any persons who have beat, abused, obstructed, or hindered, any officer of the customs or excise, in the due execution of their duty, or who have given or offered a bribe to any officer of the customs or excise; and all persons aiding, assisting, and abetting in the committing any of the said offences; shall be and are by the authority of this present act acquitted, indemnified, released, and discharged, against the King's majesty, his heirs, and successors, and against all and every other person and persons, bodies politick and corporate, and any officer or officers of the customs or excise, and every of them, of and from all the said offences (not in this present act hereafter excepted and foreprized) and of and from all penalties, forfeitures, indictments, outlawries, convictions, and judgments, not herein after excepted, incurred, had, or given, or that may or might arise or accrue for or by reason or means of any of the said offences or other matters or things herein before-mentioned and expressed.

II. And be it further enacted, That all and every of his Majesty's subjects may by him, her, or themselves, or by his, her, or their deputy or deputies, attorney or attorneys, according to the laws of this realm, plead and insist on this act of indemnity for his, her, or their discharge, of or for any thing that is by virtue of this act acquitted, released, or discharged, without any fee or payment to any person or persons for the writing or entering of such plea, or the judgments thereupon, but only sixteen pence to the clerk or officer who shall enter such plea or matter for judgment or the party's discharge in that behalf; any law, custom, or usage, to the contrary notwithstanding.

III. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons, who shall take, receive, or be intitled to any benefit or advantage by virtue of this present act of indemnity, either by pleading or insisting on the same in any court of justice or otherwise, and who hath, or before he, she, or they, shall claim the benefit of this present act, shall have brought, commenced, or prosecuted any action, plaint, or information, indictment, or other prosecution whatsoever, against any officer of his Majesty's customs or excise, or against any person or persons who shall or may have been aiding or assisting to any such officer, for or concerning any matter, cause, or thing done or committed by such officer, or by any person or persons aiding or assisting him, on occasion, or for or by reason or means of any of the offences, trespasses, frauds, misdemeanors, or other matters or things by this act intended to be released and discharged, shall, before such time as he, she, or they shall be admitted to make such plea as aforesaid, or to take any benefit or advantage of this act, absolutely release and discharge such action or actions, discontinue and cause all proceedings to be staid in all and every such informations, indictments, ments, and other prosecution and prosecutions brought or commenced as aforesaid.

IV. And be it further enacted, That if any person or persons, who shall claim the benefit of this act, shall after such claim bring or commence, or cause to be brought or commenced, any action, plaint, information, or other prosecution whatsoever, against any officer of his Majesty's customs, or excise, or other person who shall have aided or assisted any such officer, for or concerning any act, matter, or thing done or committed by them, or any of them, on occasion of, or for, or by reason or means of any of the offences, frauds, misdemeanors, or other matters or things intended to be released and discharged by this act, such claim is and shall be deemed to be an absolute discharge and release to such officer or other persons of and from all and every such actions, suits, and prosecutions; and such officer or other persons may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence; and the said officer or other person shall recover his costs of suit against the person or persons so bringing or commencing such action or prosecution.

Officers discharged, and may recover costs against persons claiming the benefit of this act, and afterwards prosecuting them.

V. Provided also, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons, who shall take, receive, or be intitled to the benefit of this present act of indemnity, and shall afterwards be guilty of, or commit any of the offences, trespasses, frauds, or misdemeanors, as are herein before-mentioned, or hereby intended to be acquitted, released, or discharged, or any of the offences hereafter in this act to be mentioned or expressed, shall be subject and liable to be prosecuted, not only for or in respect of such new offence by him, her, or them committed, but shall also for and in respect of the said offences committed before the making of this act, and for and in respect of all bonds and securities by them or any of them given to his Majesty, or to any person or persons for his Majesty's use, commonly called Smuggling Bonds, be subject and liable to all and every the same pains, penalties, forfeitures, and actions, for duties of customs or excise, and actions upon the said bonds and securities, as he, she, or they would have incurred or been subject or liable to, in case this act had never been made; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

Persons having the benefit of this act, being afterwards guilty of the like offences, liable to be prosecuted for both former and new offence, and for smuggling bonds, &c.

VI. Provided also, That this act, or any thing herein contained, shall not extend, or be construed to extend, to acquit, release, or discharge any judgment or judgments, where the monies or other things recovered have been actually levied or taken in execution before the making of this act; nor shall the same extend, or be construed to extend, to acquit, release, or discharge any judgment or judgments, in respect to such part thereof as belongs to the informer, or such person or persons who hath or have joined with his Majesty in such suit or suits, wherein such judgment or judgments hath or have been obtained, unless and until such person or persons who would take the benefit of this act shall pay to such informer or other person or persons the full costs of such suit or suits, in which such judgment or judgments shall have been obtained.

This act not to discharge any judgment for monies actually levied, nor the informer's part of the penalty.

VII. Provided also, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons who hath committed or been guilty of any of the offence or offences herein before mentioned, for which any such person or persons is or are by any law or statute now in being liable to be transported as a felon or felons; shall for any of the said offences take or receive the benefit of this present act, and shall afterwards be guilty of, or commit any of the said offences, for which he, she, or they is or are now liable to be transported as aforesaid; then all and every such person and persons (being duly convicted of or for any of the said offences hereafter to be committed as aforesaid, and upon due proof made that such person or persons had committed any of the said offences before the making of this act, and had taken or received the benefit thereof for his, her, or their discharge) shall be adjudged guilty of felony, and shall suffer death as in cases of felony without benefit of clergy.

Persons now liable to be transported for any such offences, committing the like after claiming the benefit of this act, to suffer death.

Persons neglecting to pay composition money, excluded from the benefit of this act.

Excepted out of this act, all seizures of goods, vessels, &c.

Money due on entry of goods, or bond;

Debentures fraudulently obtained, and actions now depending.

Treasury may compound in cases where judgment was given for his Majesty in suits depending on 11 May, 1736, relating to debentures, &c.

VIII. Provided also, That all persons, who have compounded with or agreed to pay any sum of money by way of composition to his Majesty, or to the lords commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, or to any of the barons of the exchequer, or to the commissioners of the customs or excise respectively for the time being, on his Majesty's behalf, for or in respect of any of the above mentioned offences, or for the forfeitures or penalties arising thereby, shall make good such compositions and agreements as have been by them respectively made, or in default thereof all and every such persons shall be excluded and deprived of and from all benefit and advantage of this act. EXCEPTED and foreprized out of this act, all seizures of prohibited or uncustomed goods and other goods, and all seizures of ships, vessels, boats, horses, or other cattle or carriages, liable to be seized and forfeited by any law in being relating to his Majesty's revenues of custom or excise, for or in respect of the forfeiture and condemnation of such goods only; and also saving and excepted out of this present act unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, all customs, duties, and sums of money due and owing from any person or persons, for or upon the entry or lawful importation of any goods, wares, or merchandizes; and all and every debts and sums of money due to his Majesty from any person or persons upon any bond, obligation, or other contract or agreement whatsoever, touching or concerning the lawful landing or importing any goods, wares, or merchandizes, or the customs or other duties due or payable for the same; and all bonds and obligations given by any officer or officers of the customs or excise to his Majesty, or any of his predecessors, or to any other person or persons for the use of or in trust for his said Majesty or his predecessors; and also saving to his said Majesty, his heirs and successors, all debts, dues, and demands, due or owing to his said Majesty for or in respect of any sum or sums of money by him or any of his royal predecessors at any time paid upon any debenture or debentures, certificate or certificates, where any such debenture or certificate was wrongfully or fraudulently obtained, or where the same debenture afterwards became void by any relanding of the goods therein mentioned, or by any other way or means whatsoever; and all other debts, dues, and demands, for and in respect of the customs, excise, and other duties chargeable on any goods, wares, or merchandizes, concerning which there is any action, information, suit, or prosecution now depending in any of his Majesty's courts at Westminster, or elsewhere.

IX. Provided nevertheless, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any judgment shall be given for his Majesty, his heirs or successors, in any suit or suits depending, in any of his Majesty's courts at Westminster, or elsewhere, on the eleventh day of May, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, for the recovery of any debts, dues, or demands, due or owing to his said Majesty for or in respect of any money paid by him or his royal predecessors upon any debenture or debentures, or certificate or certificates, where any such debenture or certificate was wrongfully or fraudulently obtained, or where the same became void by relanding the goods therein mentioned, or by any other ways or means whatsoever; it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, or any three or more of them, or the lord high treasurer for the time being, in case he or they shall think fit, to compound for, release, or discharge the same, notwithstanding any appropriation thereof by any act or acts of parliament, but so as all such monies which shall arise or be received by virtue of any such composition, shall be applied in such manner, and to such uses, as the original debts, dues, or demands, recovered by such judgments are or would be applicable, if this act had not been made, or in a rateable proportion where the same debts, dues, and demands are applicable to different uses.

X. And

X. And whereas divers dissolute and disorderly persons frequently appear in great gangs near the sea coasts and the shores of navigable rivers, and in and about the towns and villages adjacent thereto, and in divers other parts of this kingdom, carrying fire-arms or other offensive weapons, to the great terror of his Majesty's subjects, and the hindrance of the civil officers, and the officers of the customs and excise, in the execution and discharge of their duty, and during their abode there commit great spoil and devastation to the estates thereabouts, in order to be aiding and assisting in the clandestine running, landing, or carrying away prohibited and uncustomed goods, and to rescue the same after seizure from the officers of the customs or excise, and to watch for proper opportunities for that purpose: and whereas several officers of the revenue and others their assistants have been wounded, maimed, and some of them murdered in the execution of their office, and great quantities of run goods have been rescued after seizure, and sheriffs and other civil officers have been forcibly hindered from the execution of process: for preventing thereof be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty-fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, upon information to be given upon oath before any one or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace in any county, city, or liberty whatsoever, that any persons to the number of three or more are or have been after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, assembled for any of the purposes aforesaid, and are or have been after the said twenty fourth day of June, armed with fire-arms or other offensive arms or weapons; such justice or justices of the peace shall and may grant his or their warrant to the constables, headboroughs, and other peace officers whatsoever, or any of them, requiring such officer and officers respectively, to take to his and their assistance as many of his Majesty's subjects as may be thought necessary for the apprehending all and every person and persons, against whom such information shall be given as aforesaid; and such justice or justices of the peace shall and may (if upon due examination he or they find cause) commit all and every or any of the said person and persons to the next county gaol, there to remain without bail or mainprize, until he, she, or they shall be discharged by due course of law; and all and every such person and persons upon due proof of his, her, or their being assembled and armed as aforesaid, in order to be aiding and assisting in the clandestine running, landing, rescuing, or carrying away prohibited or uncustomed goods, and upon conviction of and for such offence, shall be adjudged guilty of felony, and shall be transported as a felon or felons to some or one of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, there to remain for the space of seven years, in the same manner as felons are appointed to be transported by an act made in the fourth year of the reign of his late Majesty king George the First, of glorious memory, intituled, An act for the further preventing robbery, burglary, and other felonies, and for the more effectual transportation of felons, and unlawful exporters of wooll, and for declaring the law upon some points relating to pirates, and by another act made in the sixth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, intituled, An act for the better preventing robbery, burglary, and other felonies, and for the more effectual transportation of felons; and if any such offender or offenders shall return into Great Britain or Ireland before the expiration of the said term, contrary to the intent and meaning hereof, he or they so returning shall suffer as felons, and have execution awarded against them as persons attainted of felony without benefit of the clergy.

After 24 June, 1736, any justice, on information upon oath, that 3 or more persons are assembled together, armed with fire-arms, &c. may grant warrant for apprehending them, and commit them to the county gaol;

upon conviction of their being assembled to assist in the running of goods, they shall be transported for 7 years, as other felons by the acts 4 & 6 Geo. 1. 4 Geo. 1. c. 11.

Persons returning before the expiration of such term, to suffer death, 50 l. reward for apprehending,

XI. And for the better discovery and apprehending all and every the said offender and offenders, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, all and every person or persons, who shall apprehend and take any person or persons guilty of any of the offences last before-mentioned, shall have and receive for every such offender who shall be convicted

convicted of any such offence, the sum of fifty pounds, to be paid in such manner as herein after is mentioned, immediately after such conviction and demand thereof made by tendering a certificate under the hand or hands of the judge or judges before whom such offender or offenders shall be convicted, certifying the conviction of such offender or offenders, and that he, she, or they were taken by the person or persons claiming the said reward; and that if any person or persons shall happen to lose any limb, or an eye, or be otherwise maimed or dangerously wounded, in the apprehending, or in the endeavouring to apprehend, or making pursuit after, any such offender or offenders, all and every person and persons so maimed or wounded as aforesaid, shall upon such conviction as aforesaid, have and receive the sum of fifty pounds, over and above any other reward that he or they shall be intitled to by virtue of this act; and that in case any person or persons shall happen to be killed in the taking or apprehending, or endeavouring to apprehend, or in making pursuit after, any such offender or offenders, that then the executors or administrators of such person or persons so killed as aforesaid (upon certificate delivered under the hands and seals of the justice or justices of assize for the county where the fact was done, or the two next justices of the peace, of such person or persons being so killed, which certificate the said justice or justices, upon sufficient proof before him or them made, is and are hereby required immediately to give without fee or reward) shall have and receive the sum of fifty pounds, over and above any other reward that the person or persons so killed, his or their executors or administrators, shall or may be intitled to be virtue of this act.

Offenders discovering 2 or more accomplices, three months after the offence to the commissioners of the customs, &c.
to be discharged, and intitled to 50 l.
reward.

XII. And be it further enacted, That if any of the said offender or offenders shall within three months after such his, her, or their offence, and before his, her, or their conviction, discover two or more of his, her, or their accomplices therein to the commissioners of the customs or excise in England or Scotland respectively, so as they or two of them at least be convicted of such offence, the offender or offenders so discovering shall have and receive the sum of fifty pounds for every such offender so discovered and convicted, as a reward for such his, her, or their discovery, and every such person so discovering shall be clearly acquitted and discharged of such his, her, or their offence; all which said rewards shall be paid in such manner as herein after is mentioned.

Two or more persons found passing together, within 5 miles of the sea, or a navigable river, with horse,
cart, &c.
laden with 6 lb. of tea, 5 gallons of brandy or other spirits, &c. not having paid the duty, and bearing offensive arms, or being masked, &c. to be deemed runners of foreign goods.

XIII. And whereas the laws in being have hitherto proved insufficient for preventing the carrying prohibited and uncustomed goods through the country with an armed force; for remedy thereof be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, all persons who to the number of two or more in company shall be found passing within five miles from the sea coasts, or from any navigable river, with one or more horse, or horses, or with any cart or carriage, whereon there shall be laden or put more than six pounds of tea, or brandy or other spirits exceeding the quantity of five gallons, not having paid the duties by law charged thereon, and not having a permit for the same, or any other foreign goods or commodities above the value of thirty pounds sterling landed from any ship or vessel without the due entry and payment of the duties by law charged thereon, and shall carry any offensive arms or weapons, or wear any vizard, mask, or other disguise, when passing with such goods and commodities as aforesaid, or shall forcibly hinder, obstruct, assault, oppose, or resist any of the officers of the customs or excise in the seizing or securing any sort of prohibited, uncustomed, or run goods or commodities, or other the execution of their office, shall be deemed and taken to be runners of foreign goods and commodities within the intent and meaning of one act of parliament made in the eighth year of the reign of his said late majesty King George

George the First, intituled, An act to prevent the clandestine running of goods, and the danger of infection thereby, and to prevent ships breaking their quarantine; and to subject copper ore of the production of the British plantations to such regulations as other enumerated commodities of the like production are subject, although no proof shall be given or made that such tea, brandy, spirits, or other goods or commodities were run, or had not been duly entered and paid the duties chargeable thereon; but the proof of such entry and payment of the duties, and of the manner how the said persons so found with the said goods and commodities came by the same, shall wholly lie on such person and persons; and all and every person and persons being convicted of or for any of the said offences shall be adjudged guilty of felony, and shall for his, her, or their offence, be transported as a felon or felons to some one of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, there to remain for the space of seven years, in such manner as felons are appointed to be transported by the said two acts made for that purpose in the fourth and sixth years of the reign of his majesty King George the First, herein before particularly mentioned; and if any such offender or offenders shall return into Great Britain or Ireland before the expiration of the said seven years, he or they so returning shall suffer as felons, and have execution awarded against him, her, or them, as persons attainted of felony without benefit of clergy.

The proof of entry and payment of duties to lie on the persons found with the goods.

XIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the goods, wares, and merchandizes, so found as aforesaid, and all weapons and arms, as well offensive as defensive, found upon or with such person or persons as aforesaid, and all the furniture of their and every of their horse and horses, and other cattle and carriages, and the chests, boxes, bags, casks, and other package of all goods so found as aforesaid, shall be forfeited and lost.

All goods, weapons, furniture, and package of goods so found, forfeited.

XV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any officer of the customs or excise shall lose any limb or an eye, or be otherwise maimed, or dangerously wounded, by any offender or offenders herein last mentioned, in the execution of the duty of his office, or if any such officer or other person whatsoever shall be so maimed or wounded as aforesaid, in the apprehending, or endeavouring to apprehend, or making pursuit after any such offender or offenders, all and every such officer and officers, person and persons, so maimed and wounded as aforesaid, shall upon the conviction of such offender or offenders have and receive as a reward the sum of fifty pounds, over and above any other reward that he or they shall be intitled to by virtue of this act; and in case any person or persons shall happen to be killed in the taking or apprehending, or endeavouring to apprehend, or in making pursuit after, any such offender or offenders, that then the executors or administrators of such person or persons so killed as aforesaid (upon certificate under the hands and seals of the justice or justices of assize for the county where the fact was done, or the two next justices of the peace, of such person or persons being so killed, which certificate the said justice or justices, upon sufficient proof before him or them made, is and are hereby required immediately to give without fee or reward) shall have and receive the sum of fifty pounds, over and above any other reward that the person or persons so killed, his, her, or their executors or administrators, shall or may be intitled to by virtue of this act.

The 50 l. reward to persons wounded in apprehending, and to the executors of persons killed in apprehending,

XVI. And be it further enacted, That from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, if any person or persons shall, within three months after any of the said offences herein last before mentioned shall have been committed, discover to the commissioners of the customs or excise in England or Scotland respectively, any person or persons who shall have been guilty of any such offence, so as such offender or offenders be convicted thereof, such discoverer or discoverers and to the discoverers of their accomplices, verers shall have and receive the sum of fifty pounds for every such offender so discovered and convicted, over and above any other reward or recompence which he, she, or they may be intitled to by any law or statute now in being.

to be paid by the respective receivers general, by order of commissioners, on certificate of the judge of the offender's conviction.

Commissioners to adjust the shares in case of difference.

Persons lurking within five miles of the sea, or a navigable river, not giving a satisfactory account to the justice, to be sent to the house of correction, whipt, and kept to hard labour.

20s. reward per head to the informer of such offenders, to be paid by the commissioners.

Persons so apprehended, desiring time to clear themselves of the accusation, to be only committed to prison, till satisfaction, or security given, not to be guilty of the like offences.

XVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of the customs and excise in England and Scotland respectively, shall cause the several rewards in this act before respectively mentioned to be paid to the several and respective persons who shall become intitled thereto as aforesaid, by the respective receiver general or cashier, or other proper officer of the customs and excise for the time being, out of any publick money in his or their hands under the management of the said commissioners, upon producing to them a certificate or certificates under the hand or hands of the judge or judges of the court before whom such offender or offenders shall be tried, certifying his, her, or their conviction, or upon producing such certificate of any such persons being so killed as aforesaid, as is herein-before mentioned; and that if any dispute shall arise between the persons so intitled to the said rewards, or any of them, about their respective shares and proportions thereof, the same shall be divided to and amongst such persons as aforesaid, in such shares and proportions as to the said commissioners of the customs or excise respectively, or to the major part of them, shall seem just and reasonable; and the money paid by any receiver general, cashier, or other officer as aforesaid, shall be accepted of, and allowed in his accounts, as so much money paid to his Majesty, and every such officer is and shall be hereby discharged thereof accordingly; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon information to be given upon oath before any one or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace in any county, city, or liberty whatsoever, that any person or persons are or shall be lurking, waiting, or loitering, within five miles from the sea coast, or from any navigable river, and that there is reason to suspect that they wait with intent to be aiding and assisting in the running, landing, or carrying away, any prohibited or uncustomed goods, it shall and may be lawful to and for every such justice or justices to cause all such persons to come and be brought before him or them, and to grant his or their warrant or warrants for the apprehending such offender, and bringing him or them before any of his Majesty's said justices of the peace; and if such persons shall not give a satisfactory account of themselves, and their callings and employments, or otherwise make it appear to the satisfaction of such justice or justices that they are not to be employed or concerned in, or to be aiding or assisting in the carrying on any fraudulent or clandestine trade, or unlawful business or occupation, and are not at such place as aforesaid, with intent to carry on the said clandestine practices, then every person who shall not give such account and satisfaction to such justice or justices shall be committed to the house of correction, there to be whipt and kept to hard labour for any time, which such justice or justices shall in his or their discretion think meet, not exceeding one month, and that the commissioners of the customs or excise respectively shall cause to be paid to the person or persons informing of such offender or offenders a reward of twenty shillings per head for every such offender so taken as aforesaid.

XIX. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any such person so brought before such justice or justices, shall desire time for the making it appear that he or they is or are not concerned in any of the fraudulent or clandestine practices above mentioned, such person or persons shall not be punished by whipping or other correction; but that then, and in every such case, it shall and may be lawful to and for every such justice and justices to commit such person and persons to the common gaol, there to remain and continue until he or they shall give such account of him or themselves, or make proof of the matters aforesaid.

said to the satisfaction of such justice or justices, or until such person or persons shall give and find good and sufficient security to the approbation and satisfaction of the said justice or justices, not to be guilty of any of the said offences, or fraudulent, clandestine, or indirect practices.

XX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, if any person shall offer any tea, brandy, arrack, rum, or other strong waters or spirits to sale, not having a permit for the same, or if any hawker, pedlar, petty chapman, or any other trading person or persons going from town to town, or to other mens houses, and trading either on foot, or with any horse or horses, or other cattle, or otherwise, within the kingdom of Great Britain, shall offer any such tea, brandy, or other spirits to sale, although such hawker, pedlar, or trading person or persons, shall have a permit for the same, it shall and may be lawful to and for every person and persons, to whom the same shall be so offered to sale, to stop, arrest, seize, and detain all such tea, brandy, or spirits, and carry the same to the next warehouse belonging to the customs or excise, and to bring the person and persons so offering the same to sale before any one of his Majesty's justices of the peace, to be by him committed to prison, and prosecuted for the penalties and forfeitures incurred for such offence; and such tea, brandy, or other spirits, shall and may be prosecuted in the name of such person or persons who stopped or seized the same, in like manner as if the said goods had been seized by any officer of the customs or excise; and after condemnation of the goods, and commitment of the persons so offending as aforesaid, the persons so seizing the same as aforesaid, shall be intitled to one third part of the gross produce of the sale of such goods, which the commissioners of the customs and excise respectively are to cause to be paid accordingly; and in case such person or persons, so seizing the said goods, shall desire it, the said commissioners shall in the mean time, till the said goods can be publickly sold, cause one shilling for every pound of tea, and one shilling for every gallon of brandy so seized, to be paid or advanced to such person or persons, upon a certificate under the hand of such justice or justices of such offender or offenders being committed to prison, and after the sale of such goods the monies so paid or advanced shall be replaced out of the produce of such sale; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Tea, brandy, &c. offered to sale, with or without a permit, may be stopped, on suspicion.

The person stopping such goods may prosecute in his own name, and on recovery be intitled to a third part of the produce at sale.

Commissioners to advance 1s. per pound for tea, and 1s. per gallon for brandy, so seized, to the prosecutor till sale.

XXI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, all watermen, carmen, porters, and other persons whatsoever, employed in carrying any goods, wares, or merchandizes prohibited, run, or clandestinely imported, upon whom or in whose custody the same shall be found or seized, knowing the same goods to be prohibited, or to have been clandestinely run or imported without payment of the duties of customs or excise respectively, and who shall be thereof lawfully convicted upon his, her, or their appearance or default upon the oath or oaths of one or more credible witness or witnesses, or by the confession of the party before one or more justice or justices of the peace of the county, division, or liberty where such offence shall be committed or the offender found, (which oath such justice or justices of the peace are hereby authorized and required to administer) shall forfeit treble the value of all such goods so found and seized, one moiety thereof to the informer, the other moiety thereof to the poor of the parish where such offence shall be committed; the same to be levied by distress and sale of the offender's goods or chattels, by warrant under the hand and seal or hands and seals of such justice or justices before whom such offender shall be convicted as aforesaid; and for want of such distress every such offender shall by such justice or justices be committed to the house of correction, there to be whipt and kept to hard labour for any time that such

XXII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, where any ship or vessel whatsoever coming or arriving from foreign parts, and having on board six pounds of tea, or any foreign brandy, arrack, rum, strong waters, or other spirits whatsoever, in casks under sixty gallons, (except only for the use of the seamen then belonging to and on board such ship or vessel, not exceeding two gallons for each seaman) shall be found at anchor, or hovering within the limits of any of the ports of this kingdom, or within two leagues of the shore, or shall be discovered to have been within the limits of any port, and not proceeding on her voyage, wind and weather permitting, unless in case of unavoidable necessity, and distress of weather, of which necessity and distress the master, purser, or other person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel, shall give notice to, and make proof of before the collector or other chief officer of the customs of such port as aforesaid, immediately after the arrival of such ship or vessel into the said port) all such tea, foreign brandy, arrack, rum, strong waters and spirits, together with the chests, boxes, casks, and other package whatsoever, containing the same goods, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited and lost, (whether bulk shall then have been broken or not) and the same goods and package shall and may be seized and prosecuted, or the value thereof sued for by any officer or officers of the customs or excise in such manner and form as herein-after is expressed; any law, statute, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXIII. And whereas foreign goods are frequently taken out of ships at sea without the limits of any port, with intent to be fraudulently landed in this kingdom; for preventing thereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any foreign goods, wares, or merchandizes, shall, after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, by any ship, boat, or vessel whatsoever, be taken in at sea, or put out of any ship or vessel whatsoever, within the distance of four leagues from any of the coasts of this kingdom (whether the same be within or without the limits of any of the ports thereof) without payment of the customs and other duties due and payable for the same, (unless in case of apparent necessity or some other lawful reason, of which the master or other person having charge of such ship, vessel, or boat, so taking in the same, shall give immediate notice to, and make proof before the chief officer or officers of the customs of the first port of this kingdom where he shall arrive) such goods, wares, and merchandizes, shall be forfeited and lost, and the master, or other person having charge of such ship, vessel, or boat so taking in the same, and all such persons who shall be aiding, assisting, or otherwise concerned in the unshipping or receiving of the said goods, wares, or merchandizes, shall forfeit treble the value thereof; and the ships, boats, and vessels, into which the said goods, wares, and merchandizes shall be unshipped and taken in, shall also be forfeited and lost, any ship, boat, or vessel, so to be forfeited and lost, not exceeding the burthen of one hundred tuns; and the master, purser, or other person taking charge of such ship or vessel out of which such goods shall be taken, (unless in case of such apparent necessity, or other lawful reason, whereof notice shall be given by him, and proof be made as aforesaid) shall also forfeit treble the value of the goods so unshipped as aforesaid; which forfeitures shall be divided and recovered in such manner as is herein-after mentioned.

XXIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any person or persons whatsoever shall offer any bribe, recompence, or reward whatsoever, to any officer or officers of the customs or excise, to connive at or permit any customable or prohibited goods to be run on shore, or to connive at any false or short entry of any such goods, or to do any other act where whereby his Majesty might be defrauded in his said revenues, every such person and persons shall, for every offence, (whether the same offer or proposal shall be accepted or not) forfeit the sum of fifty pounds, to be recovered and divided in such manner as herein-after is mentioned.

XXV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That one moiety of the several penalties and forfeitures in this act mentioned shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety shall be to the use of such person and persons as shall inform, prosecute, or sue for the same, (except in such cases where any other appropriation or distribution of the said penalties is made by this act, or by any other act or acts) and that all the same penalties and forfeitures shall and may be prosecuted and sued for, and the causes and controversies arising thereupon, tried, heard, and determined, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer at Edinburgh respectively, (except where any provision to the contrary is made by this or any other law or statute now in force) wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed.

Forfeitures how to be recovered and distributed.

XXVI. And for the better and more impartial trial of any indictment or information which shall be found, commenced, or prosecuted, for any assault made or committed upon any of the officers of the customs or excise; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the said offence and offences shall and may be enquired of, examined, tried, and determined in any county within that part of the kingdom of Great Britain called England, in such manner and form as if the same offence had been therein committed.

Actions of assault upon officers may be tried in any county of England.

XXVII. And whereas in ships from foreign parts goods are often concealed in false bulk heads, between the linings and false knees, or in concealed lockers, or in the ballast or false package, and other places, which the officers of the customs cannot easily find out or discover, in order to their being landed without payment of duties, and such goods are not by any law liable to forfeiture, unless the same be found after clearing the ship by the proper officer or officers of the customs; for remedy whereof be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all goods which shall be found concealed as aforesaid, or concealed in any other place on board any ship or vessel at any time after the master thereof shall have made his report at the custom-house, and which shall not be comprized or mentioned in the said report, shall be forfeited and lost, and shall and may be seized and prosecuted by any officer or officers of the customs, and the master, purser, or other person having the charge or command of such ship or vessel, (in case it can be made appear that he was any ways consenting or privy to such fraud or concealment) shall forfeit treble the value of the goods so found, to be divided and recovered in such manner as herein before is mentioned.

XXVIII. And whereas the punishment to which such persons as shall forcibly obstruct or hinder any officer of the customs or excise, being on board any ship, boat, or vessel within the limits of any of the ports of this kingdom, are liable by law, hath proved insufficient; for preventing the said offences, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, if any officer or officers of the customs or excise, being on board any ship, boat, or vessel within the limits of any of the ports of this kingdom, be forcibly hindered, opposed, obstructed, wounded, or beaten in the due execution of his or their office or duty, by any person or persons whatsoever, either in the day or night, all and every person and persons so forcibly hindering, opposing, obstructing, wounding, or beating the said officer or officers in the execution of his or their office, and all such as shall act in their aid or assistance, being convicted thereof, shall by order of the court before whom such offender or offenders shall be convicted, be transported to some of his Majesty's colonies and plantations in America, for such term as such court shall think

XXIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, it shall and may be lawful to and for any officer or officers of the customs or excise, producing his or their warrant or deputation, warrants or deputations, (if required) to go on board and enter into any coasting ship or vessel, which shall be within the limits of any of the ports of this kingdom, and to rummage and search the cabin, and all other parts of all such coasting ships or vessels, for prohibited and uncustomed goods, and such officer and officers is and are hereby authorized and impowered to stay and remain on board all such ships and vessels, during the whole time that the same shall continue within the limits of any such port as aforesaid; and if any person or persons whatsoever shall obstruct, oppose, molest, let, or hinder, any officer or officers of the customs or excise, in going or remaining on board any such coasting ship or vessel, or in the entering or searching the cabin, or any other part thereof, every such person and persons shall, for every such offence, forfeit and lose the sum of one hundred pounds, to be divided and recovered in such manner as herein before is expressed.

XXX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons who keep or shall keep any tavern, alehouse, victualling-house, or other house where ale, wine, brandy, or other strong liquors shall be sold by retail, shall, after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, knowingly receive, harbour, or entertain any person or persons against whom any Capias or other process of arrest shall have issued, for having beat, abused, or obstructed any officer or officers of the customs or excise in the execution of their office, or for any offence or offences that are or shall be committed against any of the laws now in being for preventing frauds in relation to the revenues of customs or excise, or for any crime or crimes whatsoever that shall be committed or done in prejudice of the said revenue, and to which Capias or other process the Sheriff or other officer having execution of the said process shall have returned, that such person or persons cannot be found, and which person or persons shall not have appeared to the said process, or for any other offence, fraud, or misdemeanor in this act mentioned, or to the prejudice of his Majesty's customs or excise, or shall knowingly harbour, receive, or entertain any person or persons, who having been in prison for any of the said offences shall have escaped, or who shall have been convicted for the same, and shall fly from justice; shall forfeit one hundred pounds, to be recovered and divided in such manner as is herein before expressed, and be rendered incapable of having a licence for keeping or of keeping any tavern, alehouse, or victualling-house, or selling wine, ale, brandy, or other strong liquors by retail, for the future.

XXXI. Provided nevertheless, That no persons shall suffer any penalty or disability for such receiving, harbouring, or entertaining, unless publick notice shall have been first given six days before in two successive Gazettes, of of the absconding of the person or persons who shall be so received, harboured, or entertained, and also by writing to be fixed to the door of the parish church where such person or persons last dwelt before his absconding.

and writing fixed to the door of the church.

XXII. And whereas it hath been found by experience, that the bailiffs and other officers having the execution of process in the several counties, cities, and liberties of this kingdom, often hold correspondence with the persons guilty of the several illegal practices herein before mentioned, and give them notice when any writ or process issues against them, whereby they escape from justice; for remedy thereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, where any writ of Capias, or other process, shall issue out of any court, directed to any sheriff, mayor, bailiff, or other person having the execution of process in any county, city, or liberty, against any person who shall be guilty of, or prosecuted for, any offence whatsoever, contrary to any of the laws or statutes now in being relating to his Majesty's said revenues of customs or excise, every such sheriff, mayor, or bailiff, and other persons having execution of process as aforesaid, and their and every of their under-sheriffs, deputies, and other persons acting for them in the said office and offices respectively, shall, and are hereby enjoined and required, upon the request or application of any one of the known solicitors for the customs or excise, (such request to be in writing indorsed upon the back of the said process, and signed by such solicitor with his name and addition of solicitor for the customs or excise, as the case shall happen to be) to grant a special warrant or warrants to such person or persons as shall be named to them by such solicitor, for the apprehending such offender and offenders, or in default thereof, every such sheriff, mayor, bailiff, under-sheriff, and other person acting in the said office or offices respectively, shall be subject and liable to such process of contempt, fines, amerciaments, penalties, and forfeitures, as they or any of them are now by any law, custom, or usage liable to in case of refusing or neglecting to execute the like process, where the defendant might have been taken thereupon, in the common and usual method of proceeding.

Sheriffs, mayors, &c. on request in writing of a known solicitor for the customs or excise, to grant special warrants for apprehending offenders.

XXXIII. And it is hereby declared and enacted, That all and every such sheriff, mayor, bailiff, under-sheriff, and other persons so granting or making out such special warrant as aforesaid, shall be and they are hereby saved harmless and indemnified against his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and against all and every other person and persons whomsoever, of and from all escapes of any person or persons who shall or may be taken by virtue of any such warrant as aforesaid, which shall or may happen from the time of the taking such offender or offenders, till he, she, or they shall be committed to the proper gaol or prison, or offered and tendered to the gaol keeper or other person having charge of such gaol or prison, (who is hereby enjoined and required to receive every such person or persons so apprehended as aforesaid, and give a receipt for his and their body and bodies) and of and from all actions, prosecutions, process of contempt, and other proceedings whatsoever, for or by reason of any such escape; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Sheriffs, mayors, &c. granting such special warrants, saved harmless from escapes.

XXXIV. And whereas by the present practice of the court of Exchequer, and elsewhere, it is become necessary for all officers of the customs and excise, and other officers of the revenue, upon the trial of any information of seizure, to give proof of the exact method and manner of making the seizure, with an account of the form of words used on that occasion, notwithstanding the defendant in such cause does, on the claiming of such goods, acknowledge that a seizure of them hath been made, whereby there often happens a failure of justice, and his Majesty, and the officer making the seizure, and prosecuting the same, are frequently defeated of their right, without entering into the merits of the cause; for remedy thereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That on all trials of seizures whatsoever in the court of Exchequer, or elsewhere, the

In trials of seizures, judges to prove seizure, seizure, together with the method and form of making it, shall be taken to have been made by the person or persons who shall inform and sue for the same, and to be done in the manner as set forth in the information, without any evidence thereof; and all judges and justices of the peace, before whom any such seizures shall be brought to trial or hearing, are hereby required to proceed to the trial of the merits of the cause, without inquiring into the fact, form, or manner of making the seizure.

Officers and their assistants may oppose force to force, and when carried before a justice for wounding or killing any person in such cases, shall be admitted to bail.

This act not to indemnify any person prosecuted by the East India company.

General issue.

XXXV. And whereas it frequently happens that several evil minded and desperate persons, in order to carry on without controul the wicked practices aforesaid, do in a publick and avowed manner, and with an armed force, pass and repass through several countries with large quantities of tea, brandy, and other prohibited and uncustomed goods, whereby the officers of his Majesty's customs and excise are either deterred from doing their duty, or in doing it are beat, wounded, maimed, and frequently murdered; for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons passing as aforesaid with prohibited or uncustomed goods, and armed with guns, pistols, cutlasses, or other offensive weapons, shall hinder, molest, or resist any officer or officers of the customs or excise, who in the execution of his or their duty shall endeavour or offer to search for, take, or seize any prohibited or uncustomed goods from any person or persons so passing with such goods, and armed as aforesaid, by beating, maiming, or wounding any of the officers above mentioned, or other persons acting in their assistance, that then, and in every such case, it shall and may be lawful for all officers of his Majesty's customs or excise, and all persons by them called to their assistance, who are so resisted, to oppose force to force, and to endeavour by the same methods that are violently used against them, and by which their lives are endangered, to defend themselves, and execute the duty of their office; and if any person so hindering, molesting, or resisting the officers aforesaid, or their assistants, shall in so doing be wounded, maimed, or killed, and the said officers and their assistants shall be sued, molested, or prosecuted for the said beating, maiming, or killing; such officer and officers, and person and persons acting in their assistance, shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter thereof in evidence in his and their defence; and all his Majesty's justices of the peace, and other justices and persons before whom any such officer or officers, or other persons acting in their assistance, shall or may be brought for or on account of any such wounding, maiming, or killing, as aforesaid, are hereby authorized and empowered, enjoined, and required, to admit every such person and persons so brought before him or them as aforesaid to bail; any law, usage, or custom, to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXXVI. Provided always, That nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to indemnify, release, or discharge any person or persons from or against any suit, information, or prosecution, by or on the behalf of the united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, commenced or to be commenced, as well for his Majesty, his heirs or successors, as for themselves, or for themselves only, or from or against any penalty, forfeiture, or demand, or right of suit for the same, which the said united company are by law intitled unto; any thing in this act contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XXXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action or suit shall be commenced against any person or persons for any thing done in pursuance of this act, the defendant or defendants in such action or suit may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon, and that the same was done in pursuance and by authority of this act; and if it shall appear so to have been done, then the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants; and if the plaintiff shall be nonsuited, or discontinue his action, after the defendant or defendants shall have appeared, or if judgment shall be given upon upon any verdict or demurrer against the plaintiff; the defendant or defendants shall and may recover treble costs, and have the like remedy for the same as defendants have in other cases by law. Treble costs.

XXXVIII. Provided always, That nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to restrain his Majesty's court of King's Bench, or any of the judges thereof, or the court of justiciary in Scotland, respectively, from bailing any person committed for felony by virtue of this act, in such manner as they may by law do in other cases of felony. The court of King's Bench, or justiciary in Scotland, not restrained from bailing persons committed on this act.

GEORGE II. Regis.

C A P. XXXVII.

An act for further encouraging and regulating the manufacture of British sail cloth, and for the more effectual securing the duties now payable on foreign sail cloth imported into this kingdom.

WHEREAS the making of sail cloth in Great Britain hath been found of great use and benefit to this nation, by having given a comfortable support and maintenance to many of his Majesty's subjects employed in the manufacturing thereof; and there is reason to believe, that if the duties payable on foreign made sail cloth imported into this kingdom were more effectually secured and enforced, and a further encouragement given to the making of sail cloth therein, this manufacture would be greatly improved, and many more of his Majesty's subjects comfortably supported and maintained by the same; therefore may it please your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, all foreign made sail cloth or canvas usually entered as hollands duck, or vitry canvas, which shall be fit and proper to be made use of for the making of sails for navigating ships and vessels, and which shall be imported into Great Britain by way of merchandize, and for which any duties have been granted, or are made payable, or which ought to be paid to his Majesty, shall be stamped at the time of landing thereof at or in the port or place where the same shall be imported or landed, as here-after mentioned. Preamble.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of the customs in Great Britain shall, on or before the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, provide, or cause to be provided, such or so many stamps, with which all the said imported foreign made sail cloth or canvas, upon or after the duty paid, shall be stamped; and shall for that purpose cause such respective stamps to be distributed to the respective proper officers of the customs of all and every the port and ports where such foreign made sail cloth or canvas shall be imported or landed; which said officers are hereby enjoined and required to stamp every such piece and parcel of foreign made sail cloth or canvas, which said stamp shall express or denote the place or country from whence the said foreign made cloth or canvas was imported; and the said commissioners, in providing the said stamps for the purposes aforesaid, shall take care that they be so contrived, that the impression thereof may be durable, and so as the same may be the least liable to be forged or counterfeited; and that the said stamps shall or may be altered or renewed from time to time as his Majesty, his heirs or successors, shall think fit; and if any person or persons whatso- Commissioners of the customs to provide the stamps.

whatsoever shall at any time or times from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, counterfeit or forge any stamp which shall be provided or made in pursuance of this act for the purposes aforesaid, or shall counterfeit or resemble the impression of the same upon any of the said foreign made sail cloth or canvas, chargeable with any duty by virtue of any act or acts of parliament made on that behalf, thereby to defraud his Majesty, his heirs or successors, of any of the said duties thereby granted; then every such person so offending, and duly convicted thereof, shall forfeit the sum of fifty pounds; and if any person or persons shall at any time or times after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, sell or expose to sale any such foreign made sail cloth or canvas with a counterfeit stamp thereon, knowing the same to be counterfeit, and with an intent to defraud his Majesty, his heirs and successors, all and every such offender and offenders, being duly convicted thereof as aforesaid, shall forfeit the sum of fifty pounds.

III. And, for the better ascertaining and distinguishing the sail cloth of the British manufacture from such foreign sail cloth as aforesaid, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every manufacturer or maker of sail cloth in Great Britain shall, from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, affix or impress, or cause to be affixed or impressed, on every piece of sail cloth by him manufactured or made, a stamp containing the name and place of abode of such manufacturer or maker, in plain distinct letters and words at length; and if any manufacturer or maker of sail cloth, or other person, shall sell or expose to sale, or work up into sails, any piece or bolt of British sail cloth without being stamped as aforesaid, such manufacturer or maker, or other person so offending, and being thereof lawfully convicted upon the oath of one or more credible witness or witnesses, before any one or more justice or justices of the peace for the county, city, or town, where the said offence shall be committed (which oath the said justice or justices is and are hereby impowered and required to administer) shall forfeit the sum of ten pounds for each and every piece of sail cloth by him or them sold or exposed to sale, or worked up into sails, not being stamped as aforesaid; and if any person or persons whatsoever shall wilfully or maliciously cut off, destroy, or obliterate any stamp so affixed or impressed as aforesaid (except in the tarring or working up of the same) or shall affix or impress any stamp, on which shall be stamped the name or place of abode of any other person or persons, and not his or their real name or names and place or places of abode; such person or persons being convicted of any of the offences aforesaid, shall, for every such offence, forfeit the sum of five pounds; which said last mentioned forfeiture shall be levied and recovered by distress and sale of the offender's goods and chattels, by warrant or warrants under the hands and seals of two or more justices of the peace of the county, riding, city, or place where the offence shall be committed, and shall go and be applied to the use of the informer or informers.

IV. And for the better encouraging the use and consumption of the said manufacture of British sail cloth, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty ninth of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, every ship or vessel which shall be built in Great Britain, and from and after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, every ship or vessel which shall be built in any of his Majesty's plantations in America, shall, upon her first setting out or being first navigated at sea, have or be furnished with one full and complete set of sails made up of sail cloth manufactured in Great Britain; and in case such ship or vessel shall not on her first setting out be fitted and furnished as aforesaid, that then, and for every such neglect or default, the master of such ship or vessel shall forfeit the sum of fifty pounds.

V. And

V. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, no sail maker, or other person in this kingdom, shall make or work up into sails or tarpawlins any foreign made sail cloth or canvas, which shall be imported after the said twenty fourth day of June; not stamped according to the directions of this act; and in case any sail maker, or any other person, shall make or work up into sails or tarpawlins any foreign made sail cloth or canvas, other than as aforesaid, such sails and tarpawlins shall be forfeited, and such sail maker, or such other person, shall likewise forfeit the sum of twenty pounds.

20 l. penalty on working up foreign made sail cloth not stamped.

IX. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several penalties and forfeitures herein before enacted and imposed on persons offending contrary to this act (not otherwise directed and applied) shall and may be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record in Great Britain, or in such of his Majesty's plantations wherein such offence shall be committed; in which suit no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be allowed; which said forfeitures shall be applied, one moiety thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to the person who shall sue for the same.

Penalties how to be recovered and distributed.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act shall continue and be in force for the term of five years, to commence from the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer.

Continuance. Farther continued by 24 Geo. 2. c. 52.

C A P. XXVII.

An act for laying a duty upon apples imported from foreign parts; and for continuing an act, passed in the fourth year of the reign of his present majesty, For granting an allowance upon the exportation of British made gunpowder; and for taking off the drawback upon exportation of foreign paper; and for the better securing the payment of the bounty on the exportation of British made sail cloth; and for giving further time for the payment of duties omitted to be paid for the indentures and contracts of clerks and apprentices.

WHEREAS great frauds are and have been committed in the importation of apples from foreign parts to the diminution of his Majesty's revenue, in regard the same are an unrated commodity, and now subject to and paying a duty ad valorem only upon the oath of the importer; we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That there shall be raised, levied, answered, and paid unto and for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for and upon all apples, which at any time or times after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty seven, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain, over and above all customs, subsidies, and duties already imposed thereon, an additional duty, to be reckoned after the rate of two shillings for every bushel, and so proportionably for a greater or less quantity, Preamble.

Additional duty of 2 s. per bushel, to be paid down in ready money by the importers from time to time before the landing of the same respectively.

how to be levied and applied.

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said additional duty upon apples imported shall be raised, levied, recovered, and paid, and be brought into his Majesty's exchequer, and applied (except the necessary charges of management thereof) by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as the other duties upon apples imported, or any of them, are by any act or acts of parliament prescribed or appointed to be raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid and applied.

Act of 4 Geo. 2. c. 29. continued for seven years. Continued by 24 Geo. 2. c. 52.

III. And whereas an act passed in the fourth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for granting an allowance upon the exportation of British made gunpowder, is near expiring, which act hath been found very useful and beneficial to his Majesty's trading subjects; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said last mentioned act, and all and every the authorities, powers, and clauses therein contained, shall be and continue in full force, and shall be executed, from and after the expiration of the term thereby granted, for and during the further term of seven years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, in as full and ample manner as if the same were again repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act.

No drawback on foreign paper exported.

IV. And whereas the drawbacks allowed upon the exportation of foreign paper tend to the great discouragement of the manufacture of paper within the kingdom of Great Britain; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty seven, there shall not be allowed or made on the re-exportation of any foreign paper any drawback or repayment of any of the customs or duties charged and paid on the importation thereof into this kingdom by any act or acts of parliament; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Reward due to exporters of British sail cloth how to be paid, in case the collectors of customs have not sufficient money.

V. And whereas the making of sail cloth in Great Britain is greatly increased, and hath given a comfortable support and maintenance to many of his Majesty's subjects employed therein, from the great encouragements given thereto by parliament; videlicet, by laying an additional duty of one penny per ell upon the importation of foreign made sails and sail cloth, and taking off the drawback on the exportation thereof, and by admitting rough or undrest flax (of which sail cloth is usually made) to be imported free of all duties, and by giving a reward or recompence of two pence for every ell of British made sail cloth or canvas, fit for or made into sails, exported by way of merchandize, payable out of the said additional duty of one penny per ell on foreign made sails and sail cloth imported; and forasmuch as in many ports of this kingdom, from which British made sail cloth is exported, there is not so much money collected and received for the said additional duty of one penny per ell, as is or may be sufficient to pay the said reward or recompence, whereby the exporters at such ports are under great discouragement, and cannot have the benefit of the said reward or recompence as in other ports, where such reward or recompence is duly paid; for remedy thereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the collector of the customs in any port of this kingdom shall not have sufficient money in his hands arising by the said additional duty of one penny per ell, to satisfy and pay such reward or recompence, as is or shall be due to any exporters of British made sail cloth or sails as aforesaid, that then such collector shall give to the person intitled to such reward or recompence a certificate under his hand, attested by the comptroller, of what is due to such person for such British sail cloth or sails so exported, certifying to the commissioners of the customs at London or Edinburgh respectively, that he hath not money in his hands on the branch aforesaid sufficient to pay the same; which certificate being affixed to or wrote upon the debenture for the same, and being produced to the said respective commissioners, they are hereby authorized and required, on demand

mand by the person who shall bring the same, to cause the monies thereby due to be paid in three months by the respective receivers general or cashiers of the customs, out of such monies as are or shall be in their hands, arising by the additional duty of one penny per ell as aforesaid.

An act for repealing the duties payable ad valorem upon foreign oysters imported into this kingdom, and for laying another duty thereon.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WHEREAS the several duties upon oysters imported into this kingdom, Preamble, are now payable according to the value sworn to or affirmed by the importers, which method of ascertaining the value of such oysters by experience has been found to be liable to great frauds, such importers frequently undervaluing the oysters so imported, to the detriment of the publick revenue, and discouragement of the oyster dredgers of this kingdom; for remedying the said abuse, as well as encouraging our own fishery, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the commons of Great Britain, in parliament assembled, do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all provisions and clauses contained in any former act or acts of parliament, so far as they relate to the ascertaining the value of oysters imported from France according to the oaths or affirmations of the importers, shall, from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty seven, be and are hereby repealed and made void.

Former acts relating to the value of French oysters repealed.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in lieu of the said former duties payable ad valorem, and repealed by this act, all oysters which shall at any time or times after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty seven, be imported from France into any port or place within this kingdom, shall, upon the importation thereof, be rated at seven pence per bushel strike measure, according to the Winchester corn bushel, and shall pay the old subsidy granted by the act of tonnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, according to that rate and measure, and not according to the values sworn to, or affirmed by the importers, and in that proportion for a greater or less quantity.

French oysters rated at 7 d. per bushel.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where any of the said oysters are by law subject or liable to the payment of the further subsidy, the one third subsidy, the two thirds subsidy, the additional impost, or the duty payable upon goods imported from France, or any of them, according to the respective values set thereon for the said old subsidy, or in proportion thereto, the same shall, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty seven, be paid proportionably according to the particular value set thereon for the old subsidy aforesaid, and not according to the oath or affirmation of the importer; any thing in the respective acts, which granted the said duties, or in any other act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Old subsidy, &c. to be paid according to the rate.

IV. And be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon the exportation of any of the said oysters so imported, within the time allowed

No drawback on exportation.

Duties how to be levied.

allowed by law, the duties paid or secured for the same at importation as aforesaid, shall not be drawn back or allowed to the exporter.

V. And be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the several subsidies, impositions, and duties upon the said oysters, shall be paid or secured, and shall be raised, levied, and collected in such manner and form, and by such ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such discounts and allowances, as are mentioned and expressed in the several acts of parliament which granted or continued the same respectively; and all powers, penalties, provisions, articles, and clauses therein contained (except in such cases where any alteration is made by this act) shall continue in full force and effect, during the continuance of the said respective subsidies, impositions, and other duties, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for the raising, levying, collecting, securing, answering, paying, and appropriating the said respective subsidies, impositions and other duties, according to the true intent and meaning of this present act, as fully and effectually to all intents and purposes, as if the said clauses, matters, and things had been repeated and enacted in the body of this present act; any law or other matter or thing to the contrary notwithstanding.

An act to empower the court of lord mayor and aldermen of the city of London to set the price upon all coals, commonly called Sea Coals, imported into the port of London from Newcastle and the ports adjacent thereunto, for the space of one year; and to oblige, for the term therein mentioned, fitters, and others vending and loading ships with sea coals at Newcastle, and the ports adjacent thereunto, to deliver such coals to any masters of ships applying for the same; and for further obliging buyers and sellers of sea coals at Billingsgate, or other place of sale within the bills of mortality, to sign their contracts for coals; and for the admeasurement of all carriages whatsoever used in loading ships with coals in the port of Newcastle, and members thereunto belonging. Lord mayor and aldermen to set the price upon all sea coals imported into the port of London, for one year; who have power to call before them all persons, and examine them as witnesses, &c. Persons selling coals at a higher price, to forfeit 36 s. for every chaldron. Persons aggrieved may appeal to the quarter sessions, &c. Fitters, &c. of sea coals, at Newcastle, &c. refusing to deliver to master of ship, a loading of coals, upon his offering money, &c. for them, to forfeit 500l. until 1 May, 1739. EXP.

SECT. VIII. AND whereas by an act made and passed in the sixth and seventh year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for the better admeasurement of keels and keel boats in the port of Newcastle, and the members thereunto belonging, it was enacted, That commissioners should from time to time be appointed by his then Majesty, his heirs and successors, for the admeasuring and marking all and any the keels, pan-keels, and pan-boats, and other boats, and wains, and carts used, or any time thereafter to be used for the carriage of coals in the port of Newcastle upon Tyne, Sunderland, upon the river Wear, Cullercoats, Seaton Sluice, Blythe Nook, and all other places within the counties of Northumberland and Durham, and all and every the members, havens, rivers, creeks, and places whatsoever, to the said port of Newcastle, and counties aforesaid belonging, which

An act to continue the duties for encouragement of the coinage of money.

May it please your most excellent Majesty,

Preamble, reciting the former acts for the encouragement of coinage, 18 Car. 2. c. 5.

WHEREAS great benefit and advantage did accrue to England by one act of parliament passed in the eighteenth year of the reign of his majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for encouraging of coinage, and continued by another act made in the twenty fifth year of the reign of his said majesty King Charles, intituled, An act for continuing a former act concerning coinage; both which said acts were revived by an act made in the first year of the reign of his majesty King James the Second, and were continued by an act made in the fourth year of the reign of King William and Queen Mary of glorious memory, and were further continued by an act made in twelfth year of the reign of the said late King William, and were further continued by an act made in the seventh year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne of blessed memory, and then extended to Scotland, and were further continued by act made in the first year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First of glorious memory, to be in force for seven years, from the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following; and were further continued by another act made in the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign for seven years, from the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following; and were further continued by another act made in the fourth year of the reign of his present Majesty, for seven years, from the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following: so that unless the said act be continued, the encouragement given thereby will cease, and this kingdom be deprived for the future of so great a good as it hath for many years last past enjoyed; now we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do give and grant unto your Majesty the rates, duties, and impositions herein after-mentioned, for and during the term and time herein after expressed, and do humbly pray, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That such and the like rates, duties, and impositions, as by the said act of the eighteenth year of King Charles the Second were granted, and by the said subsequent acts were continued, for and upon the importation of wines, vinegar, cyder, and beer, during the respective terms and times therein mentioned, shall be further continued, and be paid and payable to his Majesty; his heirs and successors, for and upon all wines, vinegar, cyder, and beer, which shall be imported or brought into Great Britain within or during the space of seven years to commence from the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty eight, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following, and no longer; and that all the said former acts, and all other acts of parliament concerning coinage, and every of them, and every clause, article,

An act for taking off the duties upon woollen and bay yarn imported from Ireland to England, and for the more effectual preventing the exportation of wool from Great Britain, and of wool, and wool manufactured, from Ireland to foreign parts.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WHEREAS in the book of rates annexed to the act of tonnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, a particular rate of three pounds, six shillings and eight pence, for every hundred weight, containing one hundred and twelve pounds, was fixed upon woollen or bay yarn imported; according to which rate a subsidy of twelve pence in the pound was thereby payable to his Majesty: and whereas according to the said rate a farther subsidy of poundage of twelve pence in the pound on woollen or bay yarn was granted to your Majesty for your life (which God long preserve) by an act made in the first year of your reign: and whereas by an act made in the second year of her late majesty Queen Anne, another subsidy was granted on the importation of woollen or bay yarn in proportion to the said rate, commonly called, The one third subsidy; and by an act passed in the third year of her said late Majesty, another subsidy was granted on the importation of woollen or bay yarn, commonly called, The two third subsidy; all which acts, which granted the said several subsidies commonly called, The old subsidy, One third subsidy, and Two thirds subsidy (except the act for the said further subsidy; which is granted to your Majesty during your life) are by several subsequent acts of parliament continued for ever, subject to redemption by parliament: and whereas the taking off the duties upon woollen or bay yarn imported from Ireland, may be a means to prevent the exporting wool

Preamble:

Proviso.

Ports of exportation of wool in Ireland,

wool and woollen manufactures from Ireland to foreign parts, and may be of use to the manufactures of Great Britain: we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty, the said several subsidies payable to your Majesty, your heirs and successors, by any law now in force, upon woollen or bay yarn imported from Ireland after that time shall cease and determine, and be no longer payable.

II. And to the end that his sacred Majesty, nor any of the publick creditors, or other person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, who are intituled to any part, share or interest in the monies arising by the said duties on bay yarn and woollen yarn imported into this kingdom from the kingdom of Ireland, as aforesaid, may suffer by the ceasing and determining thereof; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury now being, or the high treasurer or any three or more of the commissioners of the treasury for the time being, and they are hereby enjoined and required, on or before the twenty fifth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, to cause an account to be made up and stated of the monies which shall have arisen by the said duties on bay yarn and woollen yarn for seven years last past.

III. And it is hereby further enacted, That the medium of the monies which have arisen by the said duties within the said seven years, shall be a certain annual sum to be charged on the fund called the Aggregate Fund; and being so charged, shall from time to time be issued, paid, distributed and applied to make good to his Majesty, during his natural life (which God long preserve) and to the several publick creditors, or other person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, having interest or security in the monies arising by the said duties on bay yarn and woollen yarn, the like parts, shares or proportions out of the said annual sum, as the monies arising by the said duties on bay yarn and woollen yarn would have been appropriated and applied, in case the said duties had been continued, and not been determined by this act.

IV. Provided nevertheless, That nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend to take off, or cause to cease and determine the duties upon worsted yarn, being of two or more threads twisted or thrown, or cruel, imported into Great Britain from the kingdom of Ireland.

V. And whereas notwithstanding the several laws made to prevent the exportation of wool unmanufactured from this kingdom and Ireland to foreign parts, such exportation is notoriously continued: now for the better preventing such exportation of wool from thence, and securing the same to be manufactured within this kingdom; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all wool, and woollen and bay yarn, wool-fells, shortlings, mortlings, wool-flocks, worsted yarn, cloth, serge, bays, kerseys, says, frises, druggets, cloth-ferges, shalloons, stuffs, and other draperies and woollen manufactures, or mixed with wool or wool-flocks, which shall from time to time be exported from the said kingdom of Ireland, from and after the first day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty, into the ports of this kingdom, hereafter mentioned, shall be shipped off, and entered at the ports of Dublin, Waterford, Youghall, Kinsale, Cork, Drogheda, New Ross, Newry, Wexford, Wicklow, Sligo, Limerick, Galway, and Dundalk, in the said kingdom of Ireland, and at or from no other port or place within the said kingdom; nor shall the same be imported into any parts of the kingdom kingdom of Great Britain, other than the ports of Biddeford, Barnstaple, Minehead, Bridgewater, Bristol, Milford-haven, Chester and Liverpool, in the same manner as if the said ports of Newry, Wexford, Wicklow, Sligo, Limerick, Galway and Dundalk, had been particularly named for exportation of the said goods, in the act passed in the tenth and eleventh year of the reign of the late King William the Third, intituled, An act to prevent the exportation of wool out of the kingdom of Ireland and England, and for other purposes therein mentioned; any thing in this or any other act to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

10 Will. 3.
c. 10.

VI. And the better to prevent the exportation of wool or woollen yarn, and the other species of wool or woollen manufactures before mentioned, from Ireland into foreign parts; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fifth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, no wool, or any of the said goods, shall be laden or laid on board any ship, vessel, or boat in Ireland, or imported or brought from thence into this kingdom, but in such ships, vessels, or boats, as shall be of the built of Great Britain or Ireland, and which shall be wholly owned and manned by the subjects of this kingdom, or Ireland, and duly registered in such manner and form as herein after mentioned; under the penalty of the forfeiture of the said goods, or the value thereof, as also of the ship, vessel, or boat, in which the same shall be laden or put on board, together with all her guns, ammunition, tackle, apparel and furniture.

Ships how to be qualified for loading wool.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, no ship or vessel whatsoever shall be deemed or pass as a ship of the built of Great Britain or Ireland, so as to be qualified to load or take on board in any of the ports of Ireland, herein appointed for that purpose, any wool, woollen or bay yarn, or other species before mentioned, in order to import or bring the same into the ports of Great Britain in this act mentioned and appointed for that purpose, until the person or persons claiming property in such ship or vessel, shall register the same as followeth (that is to say) proof shall be made upon the oath, or affirmation in case the person be a Quaker, of one or more of the owners of such ship or vessel, before the collector and comptroller of his Majesty's customs in such port of Great Britain or Ireland respectively, to which such ship or vessel shall belong; which oath or affirmation the said officers of the customs respectively are hereby authorized to administer in the tenor following; that is to say,

Wool to be exported in vessels only of the built of Great Britain
or Ireland.

I A. B. do make oath (or, being a Quaker, do solemnly affirm) that the ship of whereof is at present master being built of tons, was built at in the year and that of and of are at present owners thereof; and that no foreigner, directly or indirectly, hath any share, part or interest therein.

a certificate of which oath or affirmation, attested by the collector and comptroller of the customs who administer the same, under their hands and seals, shall, after having been registered by them, be delivered to the master of the ship for the security of her navigation; a duplicate of which register shall be immediately transmitted to the commissioners of his Majesty's customs in the port of London, in order to be entered in the general register, to be there kept by them for this purpose.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no ship's name registered shall be afterwards changed, without registering such ship again, which is hereby required likewise to be done upon any transfer of property to another port, and delivering up the former certificate to be cancelled, under the same penalties, and in the like method, as is herein before

ed, without registering the same again.

and alteration of property to be indorsed.

before directed: and that in case any alteration of property in the same port, by the sale of one or more shares in any ship, after registering thereof, such sale shall always be acknowledged by indorsement of the certificate of the register, before two witnesses, in order to prove that the intire property in such ship remains to some of the subjects of Great Britain or Ireland, if any dispute arises concerning the same.

Penalty on exporting wool slightly wrought.

IX. And whereas great quantities of wool have been clandestinely exported under the denomination of coverlids, waddings, and other manufactures made of wool, whereas the same was only wool slightly wrought, or stitched together, and may be reduced to wool again, by which practice the unfair traders have evaded the good laws made to prevent the exportation of wool; for preventing the like practices for the future, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, no coverlids, waddings, or other manufactures, or pretended manufactures, made of wool slightly stitched, worked, or otherwise put together, so as the same may be reduced to, and made use of as wool again, or matrasles, or beds stuffed with combed wool, or wool fit for combing, shall be exported from Great Britain or Ireland to parts beyond the seas, under the like penalties and forfeitures which are by any law in being inflicted on persons concerned in the exportation of wool.

Wool in what to be packed up.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, no wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shortlings, wool-flocks, worsted, bay or woollen yarn, shall be packed up in Great Britain or Ireland, in any box, barrel, cask, case, chest, or any other package, but in packs or trusses of leather or canvas commonly called pack-cloth; and all such packs or trusses of leather or canvas shall be stamped or marked on the outside thereof with the respective words Wool or yarn, in large letters, not less than three inches in length, under the penalty and forfeiture of all such wool, or other the goods aforesaid, with the package thereof, and three shillings for every pound weight thereof, to be paid by the owner or packer of such wool or yarn.

No wool to be exported but upon notice given to the commissioners of the customs, &c.

XI. And for preventing any fraudulent transportation of wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shortlings, combed wool, woollen or bay yarn, worsted yarn, cruels, or wool slightly manufactured, under pretence of carrying the same coast-wise in Great Britain or Ireland, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shortlings, combed wool, woollen or bay yarn, worsted yarn, cruel, or wool slightly manufactured as aforesaid, shall, from and after the said twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, be put or laden on board any ship, vessel, or boat, bound to parts beyond the seas, or shall be carried or laden in order to be carried in any ship, vessel, bottom, or boat coastwise, or from one port of Great Britain or Ireland to another, unless notice be first given to the commissioners or chief managers of the customs, or to the customer or collector and comptroller of the port from which the same is intended to be sent or exported, of the quantity, quality, and package, together with the marks and numbers thereof, with the name of the ship and master or commander on which the said goods are to be laden, as likewise the name or names of the owner or owners of the said goods, and the place of his or their abode or habitation, and the place and port into which the same are intended to be imported, and to whom consigned; and unless bond be first entered into to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, with one or more sufficient securities, in treble the value of the goods so intended to be carried coastwise, that the same shall (the danger of the seas excepted) be landed accordingly; due notice whereof shall be forthwith transmitted by the customer or collector and comptroller of the port, from whence the same shall be exported, to the customer or collector and comptroller of the port into which the same is intended intended to be imported, and entry made, in the manner required by this or any other act; and unless a licence be also first taken under the hands of the commissioners or chief managers of the customs for the time being, or any three of them; or from the customer or collector and comptroller where such bond is given for the landing and carrying thereof, as aforesaid; which licence they are hereby required to grant without any fee or reward, or any other charge to the person demanding the same; any law, statute, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding: and all such bonds so entered into for the carrying such goods coastwise in Great Britain or Ireland, shall not be discharged, but by producing a certificate under the hand and seal of the customer or collector and comptroller of the port or place in Great Britain or Ireland where such goods were landed, setting forth the quantity, quality, and package, together with the marks and numbers thereof, with the name of the ship and master out of which such goods were landed; and that all such bonds as shall remain undischarged by such certificate after six months, shall be transmitted to the commissioners of the customs in Great Britain, or the commissioners of the revenue in Ireland, who are hereby required to put them in suit immediately: and if any wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shortlings, combed wool, woollen or bay yarn, worsted yarn, cruels, or wool slightly manufactured, shall be carried or laden on board any ship, vessel, bottom, or boat; in order to be carried coastwise, or from one port to another port, before such bond entered into, and such licence taken out as aforesaid, and before all the directions of this and every other act made to prevent the transportation of any of the goods aforesaid shall be fully and duly complied with, so far as the same relate to the exporter or proprietor of such goods; or, if any of the said goods shall be laden on board any ship, vessel, or boat, bound to parts beyond the seas; then all such goods as shall be so carried and laden, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited and lost, together with the ship, vessel, bottom, or boat, on which such goods shall be so laden or put on board, with all her guns, ammunition, tackle, apparel, and furniture.

Bonds not to be discharged but upon producing a certificate.

Forfeiture on default.

XII. Provided nevertheless, That nothing herein contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to alter or lessen any other security now required by law for goods carried coastwise, or to repeal or make void any law now in force in Great Britain or Ireland made to prevent the exportation of wool, or any the goods or commodities aforesaid.

No other security hereby lessened, or law avoided.

XIII. And for the better preventing frauds that may be practised in the collusive landing any wool or woollen yarn from Ireland, or in the shipping or landing any of the said goods carried coastwise, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, none of the said goods imported into this kingdom from Ireland, nor any of the said goods carried coastwise within this kingdom or Ireland, shall be landed or shipped, but in the presence of the proper officers appointed to attend the same, nor at any other place or places, than the lawful quays set out in the manner prescribed by the act of frauds, passed in the fourteenth year of King Charles the Second, for England, Wales, and Berwick upon Tweed, and by the act passed in the sixth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, for settling a court of Exchequer in Scotland, for that part of the united kingdom, without special sufferance and leave had from the commissioners and officers of the customs, or at such quays in Ireland, as are or shall be appointed according to the laws of that kingdom, on pain of forfeiting the said goods, or the value thereof, and three shillings for every pound weight of such goods, to be paid by the owner or proprietor thereof, or any person concerned in such unlawful shipping or landing, to be prosecuted and recovered as hereafter is directed; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Penalties for collusive seizures, on officer,

to go to the informer.

XIV. And in order to prevent any fraudulent practices by officers or other persons in making collusive seizures, or by entering informations, and making private or secret agreements, whereby may be evaded any of the forfeitures or penalties inflicted by law to prevent the transporting out of this kingdom any wool, wool-fells, wool-flocks, mortlings, shortlings, worsted, bay or woollen yarn, fullers-earth, fulling-clay, tobacco-pipe-clay, or any other scouring clay or earth, or to prevent the illegal transporting out of Ireland any of the said goods, or of cloth, serge, bays, kerseys, says, frizes, druggets, cloth-serges, shalloons, or any other drapery stuffs, or woollen manufactures whatsoever, made up or mixed with wool or wool-flocks; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall not be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever, other than the officers of some or one of the revenues of customs or excise or salt-duties, to enter any information of seizure of any wool, wool-fells, or other species of goods before enumerated, as forfeited by virtue of this or any other act; nor shall it be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever, to enter, or cause or procure to be entered, filed, or prosecuted, any information or informations against any person or persons for the recovery of any penalty or forfeiture aforesaid, unless such information or informations be filed and prosecuted in the name of his Majesty's attorney general, or in the name or names of some officer or officers of some or one of the aforesaid revenues of customs, excise, or salt-duties in Great Britain or Ireland; and if any information of seizure of any of the goods before mentioned shall be made or prosecuted by any person or persons whatsoever, other than in the name of the attorney-general, or in the name of some officer of his Majesty's revenue as aforesaid; the same and all the proceedings thereupon had, are hereby declared to be null and void; as is also every other information or informations, with all the proceedings thereon, which shall be filed or entered for any of the penalties aforesaid, in the name or names of any other person or persons than as herein before-mentioned; any law, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

XV. Provided nevertheless, That nothing in this act contained, shall extend, or be construed to extend, to take away the power given to the commanders and officers of his Majesty's ships of war, or the armed sloops appointed or to be appointed by the lords commissioners of the admiralty, or the lord high admiral for the time being, to guard against the transportation of wool out of the kingdom of Great Britain or Ireland, pursuant to an act made in the tenth and eleventh year of King William the Third, intituled, An act to prevent the exportation of wool out of the kingdoms of Ireland and England, and for the encouragement of the woollen manufactures of the kingdom of England; and another act passed in the fifth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An additional act for encouragement of the woollen manufactures of this kingdom, by the more effectual preventing the unlawful exportation of the woollen manufactures of the kingdom of Ireland to foreign parts, or by any other act.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any officer of the revenue shall directly or indirectly make any collusive seizure or information of any of the said goods, or any fraudulent or collusive agreement whatsoever, whereby the owner or claimer thereof, their agents or servants, may avoid the forfeitures and penalties, or any part thereof, incurred by this or any other act made to prevent the transportation of wool, or any of the other species of goods before mentioned; he shall, for such offence, forfeit the sum of two hundred pounds, and also be rendered incapable of serving his Majesty in any office or employment in the revenue; and also the exporters, importers, and owners of the goods so collusively seized, or with whom such collusive agreement shall be made, shall forfeit treble the value thereof; and all such penalties and forfeitures shall be to the use of him or them who shall inform or sue for the same, by action of debt, bill, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland, or in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Dublin; wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, or any more than one imparlance shall be allowed.

XVII. Provided nevertheless, That any person whatsoever concerned in any such collusive or fraudulent seizure or agreement, who shall first discover such his offence to the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland for the time being, or the commissioners of the revenue in Ireland, for the time being respectively, shall be clearly acquitted and discharged thereof, provided he make such discovery within the space of three months after the offence shall have been committed, and so as any one or more of his accomplices therein be convicted thereof; and if such person first making such discovery as aforesaid, within the time aforesaid, be not an officer of the revenue, or owner of the goods, he shall, as a further encouragement for making such discovery, have and receive to his own use and benefit the whole money which on the conviction or convictions of such offender or offenders shall be recovered from him, her, or them, and be levied on his, her, or their estate or effects, the charges of prosecution being first thereout deducted.

Encouragement to offenders to discover their accomplices.

XVIII. And be it further enacted, That all actions, suits, and informations, to be had and commenced upon this, or any other acts for preventing the exportation of wool, wool-fells, wool-flocks, mortlings, shortlings, worsted, bay, or woollen yarn, cruels, or wool slightly manufactured, or matresses, or beds stuffed with combed wool, or wool fit for combing, fullers-earth, fulling-clay, tobacco-pipe-clay, or any other scowring earth or clay from Great Britain or Ireland; or for preventing the exportation from Ireland into foreign parts, of cloth, serges, bays, kerseys, frizes, druggets, shalloons, stuffs, cloth-serges, or any other drapery made of or mixed with wool manufactured in Ireland, may be entered and prosecuted (except where it is in this act otherwise directed) in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland, or at the quarter sessions of the peace, or before any two justices of the peace for any county, city, or place in this kingdom, in a summary way, at the election of the seizer or informer, or by any law relating to the revenue of Ireland, in that kingdom; wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, or any more than one imparlance; and if the property thereof be claimed by any person or persons, in such case the onus probandi shall lie upon the owner or claimer thereof, and not on the officer or seizer; any thing in this or any other act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Informations and actions where to be entered and prosecuted.

Onus probandi to lie upon the owner.

XIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the forfeitures and penalties before in this act mentioned and appointed, except where the same is otherwise directed by this act, shall be to the use of such person or persons as shall seize, inform, or sue for the same, in the manner herein before directed.

XX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That on the condemnation of any wool, or any other of the species of goods before enumerated, the said respective commissioners shall and may cause all such goods to be publickly sold to the best bidder, at such places as the said commissioners shall think proper; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding, and out of the produce of such sale, they shall cause to be paid all charges of condemnation and sale, and the remainder to such person or persons who shall seize, inform, or sue for the same as aforesaid.

XXI. Provided always, and be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, In case any officer of the customs, excise, or salt-duty, shall receive any information from any other person or persons, whereby any seizure of the said goods shall be made, or any prosecution shall be commenced and carried on to effect; such person or persons shall have and receive to his own benefit one half of what shall be recovered, levied, and received by any such officer, officer, as a reward for his information or discovery; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Officer making seizure upon information, the informer to have half.

Provision where the offender is unable to pay the 3s. penalty.

XXII. And be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, offender or offenders, shall, by conviction, judgement, or otherwise, become liable to the payment of the penalty of three shillings per pound weight, inflicted by this or any former act made to prevent the exportation of wool, for such wool, or other the species before-mentioned, and shall not be of sufficient ability to pay the same, by which means the informer or prosecutor will lose the benefit of such his information and prosecution, then and in such case it shall and may be lawful for the respective commissioners to cause one shilling per pound weight for all such of the said goods, for which such offender or offenders shall be convicted, to be paid by the receiver general of the revenue under the management of the respective commissioners, out of any publick money in his hands; and the money paid by any receiver general, cashier, or other officer as aforesaid, shall be accepted of and allowed in his accounts, as so much money paid to his Majesty; and every such officer is and shall be hereby discharged thereof accordingly; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Encouragement to masters or mariners of ships, employed in clandestine exporting of wool, to make discovery thereof.

XXIII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, if the master of any ship or vessel employed in the clandestine exporting to parts beyond the seas, from Great Britain or Ireland, any wool, wool-fells, wool-flocks, mortlings, shortlings, worsted, bay or woollen yarn, cruels, or wool slightly manufactured, or mattresses, or beds-stuff with combed wool, or wool fit for combing, or any fullers-earth, fulling-clay, tobacco-pipe-clay, or any other scouring earth or clay, or in the clandestine importing from Ireland any woollen cloth, serges, bays, kerseys, says, frizes, druggets, cloth-serges, shallons, or any other drapery stuffs, or woollen manufacture, made and manufactured in Ireland; or if the mate or any of the mariners of such ship or vessel shall give an account in six months after such shipping or exporting any of the goods before-mentioned, to the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland, or to the commissioners of the revenues in Ireland respectively, of the name of the ship or vessel, and the species and quantities of such goods so clandestinely exported or shipped for exportation to parts beyond the seas, together with the name of the owner or owners, exporter or exporters of such goods, or the name of the person or persons who act in his or their aid and assistance, so as he or they may be prosecuted and convicted for such his or their offence or offences committed against this or any other act made to prevent the illegal exportation of wool, or any the species or goods before-mentioned; such master, mate, or mariner, shall not only be indemnified for so doing, but shall be clearly acquitted and discharged from any the pains, penalties, and forfeitures, he or they are by law subject to for such his or their offence or offences; and shall also have and receive three fourth parts of the penalties or forfeitures, clear of charges, that shall be recovered and received by means of such their discovery; which the respective commissioners aforesaid, are to cause to be paid and distributed in such manner and proportion as they shall think proper, and the other fourth part to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, after deducting the charges of prosecution and condemnation; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Persons qualified to put this act in execution.

XXIV. And to prevent any dispute relating to the authority of any person or persons acting as an officer or as officers of the customs, excise, or salt-duties in Great Britain or Ireland, for the putting in execution this act, or any other act or acts of parliament relating to those revenues, or made against the transportation of wool; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every person, who by deputation, commission, or other instrument, instrument, under the hands and seals of the commissioners of the customs, excise, or salt, in Great Britain or Ireland respectively, shall be appointed to act as an officer or servant under them, for putting this or any of the said acts in execution, shall be esteemed an officer of the customs, excise, or salt respectively, to all intents and purposes in the law whatsoever.

XXV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons whatsoever shall offer or promise to give any bribe, recompence, or reward whatsoever, to any officer or officers of the customs, excise, or salt in Great Britain or Ireland, to connive at or permit the transportation or the concealment of any wool, wool-flocks, wool-fells, mortlings, shortlings, yarn made of wool, cruels, or wool slightly manufactured, or mattresses, or beds stuffed with combed wool, or wool fit for combing, fullers-earth, fullers-clay, and tobacco-pipe-clay, or any other scouring earth or clay; or to the removing thereof, contrary to this or any other act made against the transportation thereof; or to do, conceal, or connive, at any other act, whereby any of the provisions made by this or any other law as aforesaid may be evaded or broken; every such person and persons shall for every such offence (whether the same offer, proposal, or promise be accepted, or performed or not) forfeit the sum of three hundred pounds, to be recovered and applied to the use of him or them who shall inform or sue for the same by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer in Scotland, or in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Dublin; wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, or any more than one imparlance shall be allowed.

300l. penalty on offering to bribe an officer.

XXVI. And for the more effectual putting this act in execution, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any officer or officers of the customs, excise, or salt, or any other person or persons that shall act in aid or assistance of any officer or officers of the customs, excise, or salt, in putting this act in execution, shall be hindered, opposed, obstructed, molested, wounded, or beaten, in seizing any wool, wool-fells, wool-flocks, mortlings, shortlings, woollen or bay yarn, or any other species of goods before enumerated, by any person or persons whatsoever, either in the day or night, by land or water; the person or persons that shall so hinder, oppose, obstruct, molest, wound, or beat any such officer or officers, or any person or persons who shall act in his or their aid or assistance in the making such seizures as aforesaid; or any other persons or persons whatsoever, being armed with offensive arms or weapons, or wearing any vizard, mask, or other disguise, who shall rescue, or attempt to rescue any wool, or other the goods aforesaid, which shall be seized by any officer or officers of the customs, excise, or salt; every such person or persons that shall be convicted of any of the said offences, shall, by order of the court before whom such offender or offenders shall be convicted, be transported to some of his Majesty's colonies and plantations in America, for such term as such court shall think fit, not exceeding seven years, in the same manner as by an act made in the fourth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, of glorious memory, intituled, An act for the further preventing robbery, burglary, and other felonies, and for the more effectual transportation of felons, and unlawful exporters of wool; and for declaring the law upon some points relating to pirates; and by one other act made in the sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty, intituled, An act for the preventing robbery and other felonies, and for the more effectual transportation of felons, the offenders therein mentioned are to be transported to the said colonies and plantations; and if any such offender or offenders shall return into Great Britain or Ireland, before the expiration of the time for which such person shall be transported, contrary to the intent and meaning hereof, he or they so returning shall suffer as felons, and have execution awarded against them as persons attainted of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Persons opposing officers in their duty, deemed felons.

4 Geo. 1. c. 11.

XXVII. And whereas by an act passed in the fourth year of his late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act for the further preventing robbery, burglary, and other felonies, and for the more effectual transportation of felons, and unlawful exporters of wool, and for declaring the law upon some points relating to pirates, it is enabled, That if any person or persons shall be in prison for want of sufficient bail, for unlawful exportation of wool or wool-fells, and shall refuse to appear or plead to a declaration or information to be delivered to such person or persons, or to the gaoler, keeper, or turnkey of the prison, at the said prison, for the said offence, by the space of one term, judgment shall be entered against him by default; and in case judgment shall be obtained against any such person or persons by default, verdict, or otherwise, and such person or persons shall not pay the sum recovered against him or them for the said offence within the space of three months after entering up of such judgment, the court before whom such judgment shall be obtained, shall by order of court cause such offender or offenders to be transported, in the same manner as felons aforesaid, for the term of seven years; and if such offender or offenders shall return into Great Britain or Ireland, before the expiration of the said seven years, he or they shall suffer as felons, and have execution awarded against them as persons attainted of felony, without benefit of clergy: and whereas the said act extended only to the person or persons who actually exported the wool or wool-fells, but not to their aiders or abettors; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said act, and every thing therein contained, so far as the same concerns the exporters of wool or wool-fells, shall extend, or be construed to extend to all and every person and persons who act as aiders or abettors to such exporters of wool or wool-fells, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if the same was repeated and re-enacted in the body of this act.

Act 4 Geo. I. c. 11. to extend to the abettors of exporters of wool.

Bonds not chargeable with the stamp-duties.

XXVIII. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That all bonds taken or to be taken pursuant to this act, shall not be chargeable with any the duties upon stamp vellum, parchment, or paper; any law or statute made or to be made to the contrary notwithstanding.

500l. penalty on insuring or procuring wool to be landed in foreign parts.

XXIX. And whereas it is found by experience that great quantities of wool, wool-fells, wool-flocks, mortlings, shortlings, cruels, worsted, woollen and bay yarn, mattrasses, and beds stufed with combed wool, or wool fit for combing, are frequently exported from Great Britain or Ireland in foreign parts, and of woollen manufactures from Ireland into foreign parts, to the great prejudice of the woollen manufacture of this kingdom; which practice hath of late been much increased and promoted by evil-disposed persons, who notwithstanding the laws already made, do undertake as insurers or otherwise, that such goods shall be delivered in parts beyond the seas: for preventing so great a mischief for the future, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, all and every person or persons whatsoever, who by way of insurance or otherwise shall undertake or agree, that any of the goods or merchandizes before-mentioned shall be carried or conveyed to any parts beyond the seas from any port or place whatsoever within this kingdom or Ireland, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act; or in pursuance of such insurance, undertaking, or agreement, shall deliver or cause or procure to be delivered any of the said goods in any parts beyond the seas, such person or persons, and all and every their aiders, abettors, and assistants, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and lose the sum of five hundred pounds, to the use of the informer or prosecutor, over and above all other forfeitures and penalties to which they are liable by any act now in force.

The like penalty on the insured.

XXX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person or persons whatsoever, who shall pay, or agree to pay, any sum or sums of money for the insuring, conveying, or exporting out of this kingdom or Ireland, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, any of the goods or merchandizes aforesaid; shall, for every such offence, forfeit and lose the sum of five hundred pounds to the use of the informer, or such person or persons as shall sue for the same.

XXXI. And

XXXI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the insurer, conveyer, or manager, of or in such fraud; or the person or persons agreeing to insure, convey, or manage therein; do or shall within the space of six months after such transaction or agreement first give notice thereof to the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland for the time being, or to the commissioners of the revenue in Ireland for the time being, so as the person or persons concerned with him, her, or them, in such offence be convicted thereof; he, she, or they, so first discovering, shall not only be clearly acquitted and discharged of such offence, and from the penalties to which he, she, or they, is or are liable by reason thereof, but shall also have to his, her, and their own use, the whole forfeiture hereby imposed upon the party or parties making such insurance or agreement, after the charges of prosecution are deducted; and shall likewise retain and enjoy to his, her, or their own use the insurance-money or reward given or paid to him, her, or them, by the person or persons concerned with him, her, or them therein; and in case the party or parties insured shall, within the like space of six months first make discovery thereof to the commissioners of the customs in England or Scotland for the time being, or to the commissioners of the revenue in Ireland for the time being, so as the person or persons concerned with him, her, or them in such offence, be convicted thereof; he, she, or they so first discovering, shall recover and receive back such insurance-money or premium, as he, she, or they hath or have paid upon such insurance or agreement; and in case the said insurance-money or premium shall not at the time of such discovery be actually paid, then the person or persons so first discovering, is and are hereby saved harmless, and indemnified from paying the same, or any part thereof; and all and every agreement and agreements entered into for paying such monies, is and are hereby declared to be null and void; and such person or persons so first discovering shall also have to his, her, and their own use the whole forfeiture imposed upon such insurer, conveyer, or manager as aforesaid, after charges of prosecution are deducted; and shall also be clearly acquitted and discharged of the forfeitures hereby imposed upon him, her, or them.

Encouragement to persons insuring and insured, to make discovery.

XXXII. And be it further enacted, That all the said penalties and forfeitures incurred by the persons concerned in the fraudulent and illegal insurances, or agreements to insure, or be insured, as before-mentioned, shall be sued for, prosecuted and recovered in any court of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer in Scotland or Ireland, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in the name of his Majesty's attorney general, or in the name of any officer of his Majesty's customs, excise, or salt duties; wherein no effoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, or any more than one imparlance.

The said penalties how to be recovered.

XXXIII. And whereas policies of insurance are commonly made on goods and merchandizes, as well as on ships or vessels, wherein the insurer undertakes, in consideration of a premium given him by the assured, to bear all the risques and hazards of the voyage; and it is generally unknown to the insurers what sorts of goods and merchandizes are loaded on board any ship or vessel, whereby it frequently happens that insurances are made on wool or woollen yarn to be carried from Great Britain or Ireland, to foreign parts beyond the seas, or on woollen manufactures to be carried from Ireland to foreign parts beyond the seas, as well as on ships or vessels having on board such wool or woollen yarn, or woollen manufactures from Ireland: and whereas the discouraging all such insurances may be a means to prevent the fraudulent exportation of wool and woollen yarn, and woollen manufactures from Ireland; be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all policies of insurance which, from and after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, shall be made on goods and merchandizes laden, or to be laden, on any ship or vessel bound from Great Britain or Ireland to foreign parts beyond the seas, which shall afterwards appear to be wool or woollen yarn, or any other other species of wool before-mentioned, or woollen manufactures from Ireland, and all policies of insurance, which, from and after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, shall be made on any ship or vessel bound from Great Britain or Ireland to foreign parts beyond the seas, which shall have on board any wool or woollen yarn or any other species of wool before-mentioned, or woollen manufactures from Ireland, shall be deemed and taken to be null and void, notwithstanding any words or agreement whatsoever, which shall be inserted in any such policy of insurance; and nothing shall be recovered by the assured in either case from the insurer for loss or damage, or for the premium which shall have been given as the consideration for insuring such goods and merchandizes, ship or vessel; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

General Issue.

XXXIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action or suit shall be commenced against any person or persons, for any thing done in pursuance of this act; the defendant or defendants in such action or suit may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon, and that the same was done in pursuance, and by the authority of this act; and if it shall appear so to have been done, the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants; and if the plaintiff shall be nonsuited, or discontinue his action after the defendant or defendants shall have appeared; or if judgment shall be given upon any verdict or demurrer against the plaintiff; the defendant or defendants shall and may recover treble costs, and have the like remedy for the same, as any defendant or defendants have in other cases by law.

Treble costs.

Anno duodecimo

GEORGE II. Regis.

C A P. XXII.

An act to rectify a mistake in an act made in the sixth year of the reign of his late majesty King George, for preventing frauds and abuses in the publick revenues of excise, customs, stamp duties, post-office, and house-money, relating to the condition of bonds taken from masters of ships; and to indemnify persons who have acted under the said mistake; and also to obviate a doubt which has arisen upon an act made in the seventh year of his said late Majesty's reign, for the further preventing his Majesty's subjects from trading to the East Indies under foreign commissions; and for encouraging and further securing the lawful trade thereto, with regard to prosecutions in Ireland in a summary way, for the fraudulent importation of East India goods into that kingdom.

Preamble, reciting the act
6 Geo. I. c. 21.

WHEREAS in the record of an act passed in the sixth year of the reign of King George the First, intituled, An act for preventing frauds and abuses in the publick revenues of excise, customs, stamp duties, post-office, and house-money, is a clause which recites, That whereas divers ships and vessels of the burthen of fifty tons, or under, laden with tobacco, brandy, spirits, and other customable or prohibited goods, pretending to be bound for foreign parts, do frequently lie hovering on the coast of Ireland, with intention to run the same privately on shore, as opportunity offers, to the great diminution of his Majesty's revenue, and ruin of fair traders; and ships or vessels of the burthen of fifty tons, or under, do frequently lie hovering on that coast to take in wool not lawfully licensed, to be brought into England, and other staple commodities of Ireland prohibited to be exported; for the better preventing whereof it was declared and enacted by the said act, That from and after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, where any ship or vessel of the burthen of fifty tons, or under, laden with customable or prohibited goods, should be found at anchor, anchor, or hovering on the coasts of Ireland, within two leagues of the shore, and not proceeding on her voyage, wind and weather permitting, it should and might be lawful to and for any officer or officers of his Majesty's customs of that kingdom, to go on board every such ship or vessel, and to take an account of the lading, and to demand and take security from the master, or other person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel in that voyage, by his own bond, by him to be entered into, unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in such sum or sums of money as should be treble the value of such goods then on board, with condition that such ship or vessel, as soon as wind and weather, and the state and condition of such ship or vessel did permit, should and would proceed regularly on such voyage, and should not land such goods (except wool lawfully licensed as aforesaid) in and at some foreign port or ports; and if such master or other person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel should upon such demand refuse to enter into such bond, or having entered into such bond, should not depart or proceed regularly on such voyage, as soon as wind and weather and the state and condition of such ship or vessel should permit, unless otherwise suffered to make a longer stay by the collector, or other principal officer in his absence, of such port where such ship or vessel should be, not exceeding twenty days; then and in either of the said cases all the goods so on board such ship or vessel should and might by any officer or officers of the customs, by direction of the collector or other principal officer as aforesaid, be taken out of and from such ship or vessel, and forthwith brought on shore and secured, and in case the said goods were customable, the customs and other duties should be paid for the same; and as concerning wool or any prohibited goods, or other goods liable to forfeiture, which might be found on board such ships or vessels at the time of their unlading, as aforesaid, the same are thereby declared to be subject to forfeiture, and the officers of the customs should and might prosecute the same, as also the ship or vessel, in case she should be liable to condemnation: and whereas there appears to be a mistake in the said recited clause in the act aforesaid, by the word [not] being inserted in the record thereof, between the word [shall] and the word [land] contrary to the meaning and intention of the said act; now for remedying the said mistake, be it enacted and declared by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the passing of this act, the herein before mentioned bonds to be entered into by the masters of ships or vessels, or the persons having or taking charge or command thereof according to the direction and provision before recited of the said act, shall be with condition, that such ship or vessel, as soon as wind and weather and the condition of such ship or vessel will permit, shall and will proceed regularly on such voyage, and shall land such goods (except wool lawfully licensed), in and at some foreign port or ports; and if such master or other person having or taking the charge or command of such ship or vessel shall upon such demand refuse to enter into such bond, or having entered into such bond shall not depart or proceed regularly on such voyage as soon as wind and weather and the state and condition of such ship or vessel shall permit, unless otherwise suffered to make a longer stay by the collector, or other principal officer in his absence, of such port where such ship or vessel shall be, not exceeding twenty days; then and in either of the said cases all the goods so on board such ship or vessel, shall and may by any officer or officers of the customs, by direction of the collector or other principal officer as aforesaid, be taken out of and from such ship or vessel, and forthwith brought on shore and secured; and in case the said goods are customable, the customs and other duties shall be paid for the same; and as concerning wool, or any prohibited goods, or other goods liable to forfeiture, which may be found on board such ships or vessels at the time of their unlading as aforesaid, the same are hereby declared to be subject to forfeiture, and the officers of the customs shall and may prosecute the same, as also the ship or vessel, in case she shall be liable to condemnation.

The amendment.

Persons indemnified who have acted according to the intent of the act.

Act 7 Geo. 1.
c. 21.

II. And whereas some officers of his Majesty's customs in the kingdom of Ireland, and other persons assisting them, may have gone on board, and demanded and taken security from the masters or persons having the charge of such ships or vessels as aforesaid, and have otherwise acted under the said act according to the intention of the said act, though not according to the letter thereof, whereby such officers and persons may be liable to prosecutions for the same: therefore, to indemnify and save harmless such officers and persons, their heirs, executors, and administrators, for taking such securities, and acting as aforesaid; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such officers and persons as have taken any such securities, or acted as aforesaid, their heirs, executors, and administrators, shall, and each and every of them are hereby respectively acquitted, indemnified, released, and discharged of and from all actions, prosecutions, penalties, forfeitures, outlawries, convictions, and judgments incurred, obtained, had, or to be incurred, obtained, or had, on account, or by reason of the same.

III. And whereas by a clause in an act of parliament, made in the seventh year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act for the further preventing his Majesty's subjects from trading to the East Indies under foreign commissions, and for encouraging and further securing the lawful trade thereto, and for further regulating the pilots of Dover, Deal, and the isle of Thanet; it is amongst other things enacted, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty one, no commodity of the growth, product, or manufacture of the East Indies, or other the places in the said act before mentioned, shall be imported or carried into the kingdom of Ireland, the islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, Sark, or Man, or into any land, island, plantation, colony, territory, or place, to his Majesty, or to the crown of Great Britain belonging, or which shall hereafter belong to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in Africa or America, but such only as shall be bona fide, and without fraud, laden and shipped in Great Britain, in ships navigated according to the several and respective laws now in being, as to the several places to which the said goods shall be imported or carried, under the penalty of forfeiting all such goods, or the value thereof, together with the ship or vessel in which they shall be imported, with all her guns, tackle, furniture, ammunition, and apparel; and such ship and goods shall and may be seized, and the same, or the value thereof, shall and may be prosecuted in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in Dublin, or in any of his Majesty's courts in such land, island, colony, territory, or place where the offence shall be committed, or in the royal courts of Jersey and Guernsey respectively, by bill, plaint, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, or any more than one imparlance; one moiety of which forfeiture shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them who shall seize or sue for the same; except such offence shall be committed in any of his Majesty's plantations in Africa or America; in which case one third part of the said forfeiture shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, one other third part to the governor of such land, island, colony, or place where the offence shall be committed, and the other third part, to the informer or prosecutor; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding: and if any officer or officers of the customs in the said kingdom of Ireland, or in the lands, islands, colonies, plantations, territories, or places aforesaid, shall willingly or knowingly connive at the fraudulent importation of any such commodities as is before mentioned, contrary to the true meaning of the said last mentioned act; or if any such officer or officers shall take upon him or them to seize any of the said commodities, and shall by fraud or collusion desist or delay the prosecution thereof to condemnation; he or they so conniving, desisting, or delaying, shall forfeit and lose the sum of five hundred pounds, to be sued for and recovered in manner aforesaid; one moiety of which forfeiture to be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to him or them who will inform and sue for the same; and such officer or officers shall also for the future be incapable of holding any office or employment under his Majesty, his heirs and successors: and whereas a doubt hath arisen, whether by reason of the said last mentioned act the penalties and forfeitures incurred by the laws now in force in the said kingdom of Ireland against running, or intending to run goods into that kingdom, or for landing or carrying the same away without due entry being made thereof, or paying or giving security for the payment of the duties thereout due and payable to his Majesty, can (as to commodities of the growth, production, or manufacture of the East Indies, mentioned in the said recited act) be sued for, and recovered in a summary way, in any other manner than by bill, plaint, or information, in some of his Majesty's courts of record in Dublin; and whereas divers evil-disposed persons have of late been encouraged to run great quantities of India goods into the kingdom of Ireland, which were not laden or shipped in or from any part of Great Britain, whereby the payment of any duty for the same hath been avoided, to the great diminution of his Majesty's revenue in the kingdom of Ireland, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said act; for remedy whereof, and for obviating and taking away all such doubts, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of excise in the kingdom of Ireland for the time being, or any three of them, or the sub-commissioners of excise for the time being, or the major part of them respectively, in their respective limits and districts in the kingdom of Ireland, shall, from and after the passing of this act, and they are hereby authorized and required to hear and determine all offences against any clause or article contained in any act of parliament now in force in the kingdom of Ireland, made for preventing the running, or intending to run into the said kingdom, any commodity of the growth, product, or manufacture of the East Indies, or other places beyond the Cape of good hope; and the said commissioners and sub-commissioners shall and may, and they are hereby empowered to proceed in a summary way, and hear, determine, and give judgment or sentence thereupon, and order and direct the fines, penalties, and forfeitures, to be recovered and levied, in such or the like manner as they the said commissioners and sub-commissioners are enabled to proceed to hear, determine, give judgment, and levy the fines, penalties, and forfeitures in cases of excise in the kingdom of Ireland by any law, act or acts of parliament, now in force in that kingdom; any thing in the said act passed in the seventh year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First to the contrary notwithstanding.

Commissioners, or sub-commissioners of excise in Ireland, to try offences against any acts for prohibiting the running of India goods, in a summary way.

VIII. And be it further enacted, That from and after the said twenty eighth day of May, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, if any goldsmith or silversmith, or other person whatsoever, shall cast, forge, or counterfeit, or cause or procure to be cast, forged, or counterfeited, any of the marks or stamps of the said company of goldsmiths in London, or any of the marks or stamps appointed to be used for marking wrought plate at York, Exeter, Bristol, Chester, Norwich, or Newcastle upon Tyne, or any of them ; or shall cast, forge, or counterfeit, or cause or procure to be cast, forged, or counterfeited, any mark, stamp, or impression, to resemble any mark, stamp, or impression, to be made with any mark or stamp to be used by the said company of goldsmiths in London, or by the wardens or assayers at York, Exeter, Bristol, Chester, Norwich, or Newcastle upon Tyne, or any of them, in pursuance of this act or any other acts of parliament now in force ; or shall mark or stamp, or cause or procure to be marked or stamped, with any such counterfeit mark or stamp, any wrought plate of gold or silver whatsoever, or any wares of brass, or other base metal silvered or gilt over, and resembling plate of gold or silver ; or shall transpose or remove, or cause or procure to be transposed or removed, from one piece of wrought plate to another, or to any vessel of such base metal as aforesaid, any of the marks, stamps, or impressions made, or to be made, by or with any of the marks or stamps of the said company of goldsmiths in London, or of the wardens or assayors at York, Exeter, Bristol, Chester, Norwich, or Newcastle upon Tyne, or any of them, used or to be used for the purposes aforesaid, in pursuance of this or any other act of parliament now in force; or shall sell, exchange, or expose to sale, any manufacture of gold or silver, or export the same out of this kingdom, with any such forged or counterfeit mark, stamp, or impression thereon, or any mark, stamp, or impression so transposed or removed from another piece of plate as aforesaid, knowing such mark, stamp, or impression to be forged, counterfeited, or transposed or removed as aforesaid; then such goldsmith, silversmith, or other person, shall, for every or any of the said offences, forfeit and pay the sum of one hundred pounds, to be recovered and disposed of as in this act is mentioned; and for default of payment thereof, or any part thereof, shall be committed by the court in which judgment shall be given thereon to the house of correction for the county, city, or liberty where convicted, there to remain and be kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding the space of two years, or until payment be made of the said forfeiture.

X. And whereas by a clause contained in the said act of the sixth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, it is enacted, That any person or persons exporting by way of merchandize for any foreign parts any wrought plate or manufactures of silver charged by the said act with the said duty of six pence per ounce, which was made or marked after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and giving sufficient security before the shipping thereof for exportation, that such plate or manufactures of silver shall not be re-landed or brought again into Great Britain, and making oath or affirmation that the same was actually made or marked after the said first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twenty; every such person shall be paid a drawback or allowance of six pence for every ounce of such plate or manufactures of silver so exported, by the collector or receiver, or by the commissioners of the said duty on plate in manner by the said act directed: and whereas by virtue or under colour of the said clause for giving the said drawback or allowance, great frauds and abuses have been committed in the said duty, by frequent exportations of very old silver plate out of this kingdom, not fit for any use but to be melted down, and by drawing back the said duty of six pence per ounce thereupon: now, for the preventing of such frauds and abuses for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty eighth day of May, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, no debenture shall be granted, nor any drawback or allowance whatsoever shall be paid, on the exportation of such plate or manufactures of silver out of this kingdom, in case the same shall have been made seven years or more before the day of the entering of the same for exportation; any thing in the said last mentioned act, or any other act of parliament to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding.

No drawback on the exportation of silver plate above 7 years old.

XXII. And for the better recovery of the several penalties and forfeitures imposed by this act, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said penalties and forfeitures, and every of them, shall and may be recovered, with full costs of suit, by action, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, in which actions or suits the defendants shall give or put in special bail; and wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, nor more than one imparlance shall be allowed; and one moiety of the said penalties and forfeitures, and every of them, shall go to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the person who shall sue for the same.

Forfeitures how to be recovered.

nies to foreign parts, that such ship or vessel shall proceed from Great Britain to the laid sugar colonies, and shall deliver the said licence to the collector, comptroller, and naval officer there, in case he intends to make use of the liberty granted by such licence, which he shall declare in writing to the collector, comptroller, and naval officer, before he takes any goods on board, and that in such case, no tobacco, molasses, ginger, cotton, wool, indigo, fustick, or other dying-wood, tar, pitch, turpentine, hemp, masts, yards, bowsprits, copper ore, beaver skins, or other furs, of the growth, production, or manufacture of any British plantation in America shall be taken on board any such ship or vessel, unless it be for the necessary provisions in her voyage; and that such ship or vessel, before she proceeds to any foreign port or place, shall touch at some port in Great Britain; and that the master or person having the command of such ship shall deliver to the customer or collector, and comptroller of such port, a true and exact manifest attested upon oath, or if a Quaker by affirmation, of the whole lading, mentioning the marks, numbers, package, and contents of all the goods on board; and shall also bring back and produce to them the licence granted for such ship or vessel to carry such sugars to foreign parts, with a certificate indorsed on such licence, or affixed thereto, containing an account of the marks, numbers, package, contents, and sorts of all the sugars laden on board such ship or vessel in the manner directed by this act, as is herein after mentioned; and that when such ship or vessel hath discharged her lading so taken on board in some foreign part (the danger of the seas and enemies excepted) she shall proceed for, and return to, Great Britain, within eight months after she shall have delivered her lading in any foreign part, and before she returns to any of his Majesty's plantations in America; and that in case such ship or vessel shall take on board any goods or merchandizes before her return to Great Britain, all such goods and merchandizes that shall remain on board the said ship on her arrival in Great Britain, shall be entered and landed on the return of such ship or vessel to Great Britain, in like manner as all other ships and vessels importing goods into this kingdom are obliged to do by the laws of the customs; or otherwise such bond shall be forfeited.

Oath to be taken that the ship belongs to British subjects, before licence given.

III. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon such bond being entered into, and other requisites before mentioned being duly complied with, a licence shall be granted accordingly, giving liberty for that voyage only, to load and carry sugars of the growth and production of his Majesty's sugar colonies to any foreign part, in the manner, and according to the purport and intention of this act: provided nevertheless, That no ship or vessel shall have licence to carry sugar to foreign parts by virtue of this act, unless it shall first appear by oath, or in case of a Quaker by affirmation, of the master or person taking charge of such ship or vessel, that the property thereof is in his Majesty's subjects, of which the major part are residing in Great Britain, and the residue residing either in Great Britain, or in some of his Majesty's sugar colonies in America, and not elsewhere; such oath or affirmation to be in the form, and according to the directions herein after mentioned; that is to say,

Officers of the customs impowered to examine suspected ships.

VI. And, in order to discover whether any goods before mentioned, and herein before enumerated, besides sugars, have contrary to this act been taken or laden on board any ship or vessel as shall lade sugars by virtue of such licence, and shall touch at some port of Great Britain, in order to proceed to foreign parts; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the commissioners of his Majesty's customs in Great Britain respectively, or the customer, or collector and comptroller of the port where such ship or vessel shall touch, shall upon information on oath have sufficient cause to suspect that some enumerated goods, other than sugars are on board such ship or vessel, and shall thereupon judge it necessary to take out or unlade the goods from any such ship or vessel, or any part thereof; in such case it shall and may be lawful for any officer or officers of his Majesty's customs, or any person or persons employed by them, to enter and remain on board such ship or vessel, and to unlade the same, or any part thereof, as they shall judge necessary, to enable them to examine any part of such ship or vessel, and all the goods on board, and to detain her so long as shall be necessary for that purpose; and also to open and examine any cabins, lockers, false bulk-bulk-head, or any concealments, or other places in the sides of such ship or vessel, or any other part thereof, or to open and examine any chest, trunk box, cask, case, or package whatsoever, to discover whether any more or other goods are on board, other than such as are mentioned in the manifest delivered by the master, and to seize and bring on shore all goods or merchandizes not mentioned therein; and all such goods shall be forfeited and lost, and shall and may be prosecuted and divided in the manner hereafter mentioned: provided, that in case no goods be found on board such ship or vessel, but what are mentioned in the manifest delivered by the master, that then the officer or officers who shall land or take any goods out of such ship or vessel, or open any part of such ship or vessel, or unpack any goods, shall reload and repack the same, and repair such damage as shall be done by landing, unloading, or unpacking thereof, without being liable to any other costs or damages for demurrage, or on any other account whatsoever; but if any other goods are found on board, besides such as are mentioned in the master's manifest, (except the necessary provisions of the ship for the voyage) then the master, or other person having charge thereof, shall be at the charge of reloading and repacking all the goods unladen or opened, and of repairing all other damages whatsoever occasioned thereby, or in opening or examining the sides of the ship, or otherwise, in the execution of this act; and the officer or officers concerned shall not be at any expence, or incur or be liable to any costs or damages whatsoever.

VII. And be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That if any ship or vessel shall have on board any sugar, for which licence shall have been granted as aforesaid, or any other goods that are not enumerated in the acts before mentioned; and the owner or owners thereof, his or their factor or agent, shall, on the arrival of such ship or vessel in any port of Great Britain, be desirous to enter and pay his Majesty's duty, and land the said goods, or any part thereof; he or they shall have liberty so to do; the master of the ship first making a report of his whole lading, with the proper officers of the customs, in like manner as he was required by law to do before the making of this act.

VIII. Provided nevertheless, and be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That if the said master, or other person having or taking charge of such ship or vessel, for which a licence shall have been granted as aforesaid, shall on his arrival in any of his Majesty's said sugar colonies have delivered to the collector, comptroller, and naval officer, the said licence, with a certificate of bond being given in Great Britain as aforesaid; and shall, before he lades any goods, declare in writing, upon oath, or if a Quaker on his affirmation, before them or any two of them, (which oath or affirmation they are hereby impowered to administer, and to indorse the same on the back of such licence, where it shall be attested by them) that the sugars he intends to load pursuant to such licence, are to be carried to some port or ports, place or places, to the southward of Cape Finisterre; then the said master or other person may, in case he has in all respects complied with the several directions in this act, proceed thither directly with such ship or vessel and her lading accordingly, taking with him such licence, and oath or affirmation endorsed thereon as aforesaid, together with an account of the marks, numbers, package, contents, and sorts of sugars laden by virtue of such licence, likewise endorsed thereon, or contained in a certificate annexed thereto, in the manner before directed, and may there land the same, without first touching at any port in Great Britain; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding: but in such case the master, or other person taking charge of such ship or vessel, shall within eight months after landing the said sugars at such port or place, ports or places, and before such ship or vessel shall go again to any of his Majesty's plantations in America, return to some port of Great Britain, and on his arrival there deliver his said licence to the commissioners of the customs respectively.

tively, or the customer, or collector, and comptroller of such port, with such oath or affirmation endorsed thereon, and an account of the lading endorsed likewise thereon, or contained in a certificate annexed thereto as aforesaid, together with a certificate from the consul, or two known British merchants of good credit residing at the ports or places where such sugars were landed, testifying the landing thereof as aforesaid; and the master, or other person taking charge of such ship or vessel, shall likewise make oath, or if a Quaker, make a solemn affirmation before the customer, or collector and comptroller, to the truth of such certificate; and that none of the goods before enumerated, except sugar, were taken on board at any of the said colonies, or landed at the port or place mentioned in the said certificate; and the master, or other person taking charge of such ship or vessel, shall likewise make an entry or entries with such customer, or collector and comptroller, of the quantity and sorts of all the sugars laden on board the said ship or vessel at any of the said colonies as aforesaid, and landed at any port or place to the southward of Cape Finisterre; which entry or entries the customer, or collector and comptroller are to pass, without demanding or receiving any custom or duties for the same, mentioning in their accounts that such entries were passed by virtue of this act; and in case the master, or other person taking charge of such ship or vessel, shall neglect or refuse to make an entry or entries of such sugars so landed as aforesaid, with the customer, or collector and comptroller of the port where he shall arrive, on his returning to Great Britain; he shall forfeit and lose one hundred pounds, whereof one moiety shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to such person or persons as will sue for and recover the same.

Oath and entry to be made.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon the return to Great Britain of any ship or vessel which shall, pursuant to the liberty given by this act, carry sugars from his Majesty's sugar colonies to any foreign parts, the master, or other person taking charge of such ship or vessel, shall in either case before mentioned bring back and deliver to the commissioners of the customs respectively, or to the customer, or collector and comptroller of the port in Great Britain, where such ship or vessel shall arrive, the said licence, together with a certificate signed and sealed by the consul, or two known British merchants of good credit at the port or place where such sugar was landed, certifying the landing thereof, with the number of casks of sugar so landed, and the mark, number, and contents of each cask, with the name of the ship and master; and that they verily believe that no tobacco or other goods before enumerated (except sugar) have been there landed out of such ship or vessel; and upon such licence being returned, with the oath or affirmation of the master, and an account of the lading endorsed thereon or annexed thereto as aforesaid, and also upon such certificate of the consul, or two known British merchants of good credit, being produced, and oath or affirmation made as aforesaid, and the several other matters and things required by this act being duly complied with, the bond given before granting such licence shall be discharged and delivered up; any thing in the said bond or in this act contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding; otherwise such bond shall be forfeited, and shall and may be prosecuted in the manner directed by this act.

On performing the requisites, bond to be discharged, or otherwise forfeited.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any such ship or vessel shall, after the unloading such sugars, or any part thereof, take on board any goods or merchandize before her return to Great Britain, all such of the said goods and merchandize as shall remain on board at her arrival in Great Britain, shall be entered and landed on the return of such ship or vessel to Great Britain, and before her departure from thence; and shall be subject to such entries, rules, regulations, prohibitions, penalties, and forfeitures, as the like goods and merchandize imported in any return home.

XII. And, for prevention of seamen or mariners deserting such ships or vessels, or expending their wages abroad, which may be of great detriment to trade and navigation, and is often occasioned by the owner or owners of ships or vessels paying wages to the seamen or mariners when abroad; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no master or owner of any ship or vessel carrying sugars as aforesaid, shall pay or advance, or cause to be paid or advanced to any seaman or mariner, during the time he shall be in parts beyond the seas, any money or effects upon account of wages, exceeding one moiety of the whole wages which shall be due from the time of his departure from Great Britain, until such ship or vessel shall return to Great Britain; and if any such master or owner of such ship or vessel shall pay or advance, or cause to be paid or advanced any wages to any seaman or mariner above the said moiety, such master or owner shall forfeit and pay double the money he shall so pay or advance, or cause to be paid or advanced, to be recovered in the high court of admiralty by any person who shall first discover and inform of the same.

Forfeitures
how to be recovered.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all penalties and forfeitures incurred by this act, (except where it is otherwise hereby provided) shall and may be prosecuted in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or the court of exchequer in Scotland; one moiety whereof to be for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them who will sue for, prosecute, and recover the same; wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance.

Persons sued may plead the
general issue.

XIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be sued or prosecuted for any thing done or to be done in pursuance of this act, such person or persons may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence; and if the plaintiff or plaintiffs, prosecutor or prosecutors, shall become nonsuit, or forbear prosecution, or discontinue his, her, or their action, or if a verdict pass against him, her, or them, the defendant or defendants shall have treble costs, and shall have the like remedy for the same as in cases where costs are by law given to defendants.

Treble costs.

Penalty of granting false
and forgeries.

XV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall grant any false certificate, or counterfeit, erase, or alter any licence, oath, or certificate, made or given pursuant to this act, or shall knowingly or wittingly publish or make use thereof, such person or persons shall forfeit five hundred pounds, to be recovered and disposed of in the manner directed by this act; and such licence, oath, or certificate, so falsified, counterfeited, erased, or altered, shall be invalid, and of no effect.

CAP. XXXVI.

An act for prohibiting the importation of books reprinted abroad, and first composed or written, and printed in Great Britain; and for repealing so much of an act made in the eighth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, as impowers the limiting the prices of books.

WHEREAS the duties payable upon paper imported into this kingdom, to be made use of in printing, greatly exceed the duties payable upon the importation of printed books, whereby foreigners and others are encouraged to bring in great numbers of books, originally printed and published in this kingdom, and reprinted abroad, to the diminution of his Majesty's revenue, and the discouragement of the trade and manufacture of this kingdom; for the preventing thereof for the future, may it please your most excellent Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, it shall not be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever, to import or bring into this kingdom for sale, any book or books first composed or written and printed and published in this kingdom, and reprinted in any other place or country whatsoever; and if any person or persons shall import or bring into this kingdom for sale any printed book or books, so first composed or written and printed in this kingdom, and reprinted in any other place or country as aforesaid; or knowing the same to be so reprinted or imported, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, shall sell, publish, or expose to sale any such book or books; then every such person or persons so doing or offending, shall forfeit the said book or books, and all and every sheet or sheets thereof; and the same shall be forthwith damasked, and made waste paper; and further, that every such offender or offenders shall forfeit the sum of five pounds, and double the value of every book which he or they shall so import or bring into this kingdom, or shall knowingly sell, publish, or expose to sale, or cause to be sold, published, or exposed to sale, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act; the one moiety thereof to the King's most excellent majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to any person or persons that shall sue for the same; to be recovered with costs of suit in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information; in which no wager of law, effoin, or protection, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed; and if the offence be committed in Scotland, to be recovered before the court of session there, by summary action: provided that this action shall not extend to any book that has not been printed or reprinted in this kingdom within twenty years before the same shall be imported.

Preamble.

Penalty on importing or selling books first written and printed in this kingdom, and reprinted abroad.

Exceptions.

II. Provided always, That nothing in this act contained shall extend to prevent or hinder the importation of any book first composed or written, and printed in this kingdom, which shall or may be reprinted abroad, and inserted among other books or tracts, and to be sold therewith, in any collection, where the greatest part of such collection shall have been first composed or written, and printed abroad; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

An act for the better supply of mariners and seamen to serve in his Majesty's ships of war, and on board merchant ships, and other trading ships, and privateers.

Preamble.

FOR the better supply of mariners and seamen to serve in his Majesty's ships of war, and on board merchant ships, and other trading vessels, and privateers, and for the better carrying on the present or any future war, and the trade of Great Britain during the continuance thereof; may it please your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That, during the continuance of this present war, and no longer, (except in respect to such merchant ships, and other trading ships or vessels, and privateers, which shall be on their voyage before the determination of the war, who shall be, and are hereby allowed the liberty and benefit of returning home navigated in the manner as herein-after is provided) it shall and may be lawful for any merchant ship, or other trading ship or vessel, or privateer, to be navigated by foreign seamen or mariners, not being natives of Great Britain, or any of the colonies or plantations thereto belonging, or his Majesty's natural or naturalized subjects, so as the number of such foreign seamen or mariners do not exceed three fourths of the mariners at any one time employed to navigate such merchant ship, or other trading ship or vessel, or privateer; and that one fourth at least of the mariners or seamen so employed be at all times natives or his Majesty's naturalized subjects of Great Britain, (sudden death, and a hazard and casualties of war, and the seas, saved and excepted) one act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation, or any other statute or law to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. And, for the better encouraging of foreign mariners and seamen to come and serve on board ships belonging to this kingdom of Great Britain, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every such foreign mariner or seaman who shall, from and after the first day of January, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, have faithfully served during the time of war on board any of his Majesty's ships of war, or any merchant or other trading ship or ships, vessel or vessels, or privateers, (which at the time of such service shall belong to any of his Majesty's subjects of Great Britain) for the space of two years, shall to all intents and purposes be deemed and taken to be a natural born subject of his Majesty's kingdom of Great Britain, and have and enjoy all the privileges, powers, rights, and capacities, which such foreign mariner or seaman could, should, or ought to have had and enjoyed, in case he had been a natural born subject of his Majesty, and actually a native within the kingdom of Great Britain.

III. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby further enacted and declared, Proviso. That no person, who shall be naturalized by virtue of this act, shall thereby be enabled to be of the privy council, or a member of either house of parliament, or to take any office or place of trust, either civil or military, or to have any grant of lands, tenements, or hereditaments from the crown to himself, or any other person or persons in trust for him; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for his Majesty, his heirs and successors, at all times when it shall be found necessary to declare war against any foreign power, to publish a royal proclamation, if he or they shall judge it requisite, to permit all merchant ships, and other trading vessels, and privateers, to be manned with foreign mariners and seamen during such war, in the manner as by this act is provided; and that upon the publishing of such proclamation, this act, and every thing therein contained, shall be deemed to be in full force and virtue, and have continuance for and during the time of any such war, and no longer, except in respect to such merchant ships, and other trading ships or vessels, and privateers, which shall be on their voyage before the determination of such war, who shall be and are hereby allowed the liberty and benefit of returning home navigated in the manner as herein before is provided. The same may be practised in any future war.

C A P. VII.

An act for naturalizing such foreign protestants, and others therein mentioned, as are settled, or shall settle, in any of his Majesty's colonies in America.

WHEREAS the increase of people is a means of advancing the wealth Preamble. and strength of any nation or country: and whereas many foreigners and strangers, from the lenity of our government, the purity of our religion, the benefit of our laws, the advantages of our trade, and the security of our property, might be induced to come and settle in some of his Majesty's colonies in America, if they were made partakers of the advantages and privileges which the natural born subjects of this realm do enjoy; be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of June, Foreigners living 7 years in any of our colonies, to be deemed natives, on taking the oaths, &c. in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty, all persons born out of the ligeance of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, who have inhabited and resided, or shall inhabit or reside, for the space of seven years or more, in any of his Majesty's colonies in America, and shall not have been absent out of some of the said colonies for a longer space than two months at any one time during the said seven years, and shall take and subscribe the oaths, and make, repeat, and subscribe the declaration appointed by an act made in the first year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act for the further security of his Majesty's person and government, and the succession of the crown in the heirs of the late Princess Sophia, being protestants; and for extinguishing the hopes of the pretended prince of Wales, his open and secret abettors; or being of the people called Quakers, Quakers to subscribe the declaration of fidelity, &c. shall make and subscribe the declaration of fidelity, and take and affirm the effect of the abjuration oath, appointed and prescribed by an act made in the eighth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, intituled, An act for granting the people called Quakers, such forms of affirmation or declaration, as may may remove the difficulties which many of them lie under; and also make and subscribe the profession of his christian belief, appointed and prescribed by an act made in the first year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for exempting their Majesties protestant subjects from the penalties of certain laws; before the chief judge, or other judge of the colony wherein such persons respectively have so inhabited and resided, or shall so inhabit and reside, shall be deemed, adjudged, and taken to be his Majesty's natural born subjects of this kingdom, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as if they, and every of them, had been or were born within this kingdom; which said oath or affirmation, and subscription of the said declarations respectively, the chief judge, or other judge of every of the said respective colonies, is hereby enabled and empowered to administer and take; and the taking and subscribing of every such oaths or affirmation, and the making, repeating, and subscribing of every such declaration, shall be before such chief judge or other judge, in open court, between the hours of nine and twelve in the forenoon; and shall be entered in the same court, and also in the secretary's office of the colony wherein such person shall so inhabit and reside: and every chief judge, or other judges of every respective colony, before whom such oaths or affirmation shall be taken, and every such declaration shall be made, repeated, and subscribed as aforesaid, is hereby required to make a due and proper entry thereof in a book to be kept for that purpose in the said court; for the doing whereof two shillings, and no more, shall be paid at each respective place, under the penalty and forfeiture of ten pounds of lawful money of Great Britain for every neglect or omission: and in like manner every secretary of the colony wherein any person shall so take the said oaths or affirmation, and make, repeat, and subscribe the said declarations respectively, as aforesaid, is hereby required to make a due and proper entry thereof in a book to be kept for that purpose in his office, upon notification thereof to him by the chief judge or other judge of the same colony, under the like penalty and forfeiture for every such neglect or omission.

II. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no person, of what quality, condition, or place soever, other than and except such of the people called Quakers as shall qualify themselves and be naturalized by the ways and means herein before-mentioned, or such who profess the Jewish religion, shall be naturalized by virtue of this act, unless such person shall have received the sacrament of the Lord's supper in some protestant and reformed congregation within this kingdom of Great Britain, or within some of the said colonies in America, within three months next before his taking and subscribing the said oaths, and making, repeating, and subscribing the said declaration, and shall at the time of his taking and subscribing the said oaths, and making, repeating, and subscribing the said declaration, produce a certificate signed by the person administering the said sacrament, and attested by two credible witnesses, whereof an entry shall be made in the secretary's office of the colony wherein such person shall so inhabit and reside, as also in the court where the said oaths shall be so taken as aforesaid, without any fee or reward.

III. And whereas the following words are contained in the latter part of the oath of abjuration, videlicet, (upon the true faith of a christian): and whereas the people professing the Jewish religion may thereby be prevented from receiving the benefit of this act; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That whenever any person professing the Jewish religion shall present himself to take the said oath or abjuration in pursuance of this act, the said words (upon the true faith of a christian) shall be omitted out of the said oath in administering the same to such person, and the taking and subscribing the said oath by such person professing the Jewish religion, without the words aforesaid, and the other oaths appointed by the said act in like manner as Jews were permitted to take the oath of abjuration, by an act made in the tenth year year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act for explaining and amending an act of the last session of parliament, intituled, An act to oblige all persons, being papists, in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, and all persons in Great Britain, refusing or neglecting to take the oaths appointed for the security of his Majesty's person and government, by several acts herein mentioned, to register their names and real estates; and for enlarging the time for taking the said oaths, and making such registers, and for allowing further time for the inrolment of deeds or wills made by papists, which have been omitted to be inrolled pursuant to an act of the third year of his Majesty's reign; and also for giving relief to protestant lessees, shall be deemed a sufficient taking of the said oaths, in order to intitle such person to the benefit of being naturalized by virtue of this act.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That a testimonial or certificate, under the seal of any of the said colonies, of any persons having resided and inhabited for the space of seven years or more as aforesaid within the said colonies, or some of them, to be specified in such certificate, together with the particular time of residence in each of such respective colonies (whereof the colony under the seal of which such certificate shall be given to be one) and of his having taken and subscribed the said oaths, and of his having made, repeated, and subscribed the said declaration, and in case of a Quaker, of his having made and subscribed the declaration of fidelity, and of his having taken and affirmed the effect of the abjuration oath as aforesaid, and in the case of a person professing the Jewish religion, of his having taken the oath of abjuration as aforesaid, within the same colony, under the seal whereof such certificate shall be given as aforesaid, shall be deemed and taken to be a sufficient testimony and proof thereof, and of his being a natural born subject of Great Britain, to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and as such shall be allowed in every court within the kingdoms of Great Britain and Ireland, and also in the said colonies in America.

Certificates given by the colony of residence, taking the oaths, &c. to be allowed proper evidence in all the courts of Great Britain and Ireland.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every secretary of the said respective colonies for the time being, shall, and is hereby directed and required, at the end of every year, to be computed from the said first day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty, to transmit and send over to the office of the commissioners for trade and plantations, kept in the city of London or Westminster, a true and perfect list of the names of all and every person and persons who have in that year intitled themselves to the benefit of this act, under the penalty and forfeiture of fifty pounds of lawful money of Great Britain for every neglect or omission: all which said lists so transmitted and sent over, shall, from year to year, be duly and regularly entered by the said commissioners, in a book or books to be had and kept for that purpose in the said office, for public view and inspection as occasion shall require.

Secretary of the colony to send over to the commissioners of trade lists yearly, to be registred in England; on penalty of 50 l.

VI. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted, That no person who shall become a natural born subject of this kingdom by virtue of this act, shall be of the privy council, or a member of either house of parliament, or capable of taking, having, or enjoying any office or place of trust within the kingdoms of Great Britain or Ireland, either civil or military, or of having, accepting, or taking any grant from the crown to himself, or to any other in trust for him, of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments within the kingdoms of Great Britain or Ireland; any thing herein before contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

An act for licensing the importation of victual from Ireland; and other parts beyond the seas, into Scotland, in time of dearth and scarcity.

WHEREAS by the ninth act passed in the parliament of Scotland, holden by her late majesty Queen Anne, in the year one thousand seven hundred and three, intituled, *An act discharging importation of Irish victual, beef, and cattle, the importation of victual from Ireland or any other places beyond the seas into Scotland, and the buying, selling, and retailing the same, were restrained and prohibited under several penalties mentioned and contained in the said act, and in several former acts of the parliament of Scotland therein mentioned and referred to, and thereby ratified and approved, with this proviso, that when by reason of dearth the prices of victual should exceed the following rates, viz. Wheat twelve pounds the boyle, bear, barley, malt, and meal, eight pounds per boyle, and oats and peas, six pounds the boyle; the lords of her Majesty's privy council should have power, after due trial by them taken, to suspend and discharge the execution of the said prohibitory acts for such space and time as the exigence of the said dearth should require, and no longer; and whereas by the sixth article of the treaty of union it is stipulated, agreed, and provided, That the prohibition as then in force by the laws of Scotland against importation of victual from Ireland, or any other place beyond sea into Scotland, should, after the union, remain in the same force as it then was, until more proper and effectual ways should be provided by the parliament of Great Britain, for discouraging the importation of the said victual from beyond the seas; and whereas by an act, made and passed in the first parliament of Great Britain, in the sixth year of the reign of her said late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, *An act for rendering the union of the two kingdoms more entire and compleat, it was enacted, That from and after the first day of May, in that year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight, the Queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, shall have but one privy council in it was not usual to bring to this kingdom raw silk, and other goods and commodities of the growth, produce or manufacture of Persia, through the dominions and territories of the emperor of Russia: and whereas it may be of great advantage to this kingdom, to open a trade to and from Persia through Russia, by promoting the consumption of the woollen and other manufactures, goods, and commodities thereof, if raw silk, and other the goods and commodities of the growth, produce, and manufacture of Persia be permitted to be imported into this kingdom from Russia, in return for such woollen and other manufactures as shall be exported from hence into Russia, and from thence carried into Persia, and not otherwise; be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty one, it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons free or to be free of the said fellowship of English merchants for discovery of new trades, commonly called The Russia company, exclusive of all others, to bring and import into this kingdom, in British built shipping navigated according to law, from any port or place of or belonging to the Czar or Emperor of Russia, raw silk, or any other goods or commodities of the growth, produce, or manufacture of Persia (provided such manufacture be made of the growth or produce of Persia) being purchased by barter with woollen or other manufactures, goods, or commodities, exported from Great Britain to Russia, and from thence carried into Persia (gold and silver in coin or bullion excepted) or with the produce arising from the sales of such manufactures, goods or commodities, so exported to Russia and carried into Persia as aforesaid, and not otherwise, upon paying or securing the customs and other duties now payable for the same by any law now in force, according to such rules, methods, and directions, and in the same manner and form, and with such allowances, abatements, discounts, and drawbacks, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are by law prescribed and practised on the importation of the like goods of the growth, produce, or manufacture of Persia, imported into this kingdom from any port or place in the Levant Seas, by any person or persons free of the Levant or Turkey company; any thing in the said recited act made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no silk, or other produce, commodities, or manufactures of Persia, shall be imported into Great Britain through Russia by virtue of this act, unless the importer or importers thereof do take an oath, or being of the people called Quakers, a solemn affirmation, before the collector, customer, or comptroller of his Majesty's customs (who are hereby empowered to administer the same) at the port or place of importation, that to the best of his or their knowledge and belief, the silk, and other the produce, commodities, and manufactures of Persia, contained in his or their entry or entries, was or were really and truly purchased by barter with woollen or other manufactures, goods, or commodities, exported from Great Britain to Russia, and from thence carried into Persia (not being gold or silver in coin or bullion) or with the produce arising from the sales of such woollen or other manufactures, goods, or commodities, so exported as aforesaid, and not otherwise; and in default of taking such oath or affirmation, all such silk, or other the produce, commodities, or manufactures of Persia, so imported from Russia, shall be liable to be seized and forfeited, in like manner as if the same had been imported contrary to the said act made in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation.

III. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to the permitting the using or wearing in this kingdom any wrought silks, or other the goods or commodities of the manufacture of Persia, mentioned in the act passed in the eleventh year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, *An act for the more effectual em-be imported by virtue hereof through Russia; but the same act, and every clause therein contained, so far as the same relates to the importing the said goods into the port of London only, and to the entry thereof, and payment of the duties, and putting the same into proper warehouses, and exporting them on security, and to the seizing and prosecuting those goods and dividing the produce of such seizures, and keeping proper accounts thereof, and subjecting the persons concerned to penalties and disabilities for action or suit may plead the general issue, and give this act, and the special matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon, and that the same was done in pursuance and by authority of this act; and if it shall appear so to have been done, then the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants; and if the plaintiff shall be nonsuited, or discontinue his action, after the defendant or defendants shall have appeared, or if judgment shall be given upon any verdict or demurrer against the plaintiff, the defendant or defendants shall and may recover treble costs, and have the like remedy for the same, as defendants have in other cases by law.

An act for granting to his Majesty the sum of one million out of the sinking fund, and for applying other sums therein mentioned, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and forty one; and for allowing a drawback of the duties upon coals used in fire engines for draining tin and copper mines in the county of Cornwall; and for appropriating the supplies granted in this session of parliament; and for making forth duplicates of exchequer bills, lottery tickets, and orders, lost, burnt, or otherwise destroyed; and for giving further time for the payment of duties omitted to be paid for the indentures and contracts of clerks and apprentices.

SECT. III. AND whereas for many years past there have been no considerable new loads or veins of tin and copper discovered, and the greatest and most considerable mines of tin and copper within the county of Cornwall are become so deep, that all means for the draining water out of them have already proved ineffectual; and it hath been found by experience, that under the present duties upon coals the application of fire engines to the draining the waters out of the mines in the said county of Cornwall hath been impracticable, from the great expence attending the same; Therefore for the encouragement of such valuable works, wherein a great number of tinnors, labourers, and adventurers are employed, and subsist thereby; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty one, for all coals which shall be used in fire engines, for the draining water out of the mines of tin and copper, within the said county of Cornwall, and for which duties have been first answered and paid, a drawback shall be allowed and made of all such duties, upon proof by oath made before the customer or collector of the said duties (which oath he is hereby impowered and required to administer) that such coals have been so used and applied, which drawback of all the said duties shall be returned and paid by the collector of the said duties to such person so making proof as aforesaid.

Coals used in the tin works in Cornwall shall be allowed a drawback of all the duties

An act to prevent the counterfeiting of gold and silver lace; and for settling and adjusting the proportions of fine silver and silk; and for the better making of gold and silver thread.

Penalty on importing gold, silver, or works, of baser metal.

SECT. VII. AND be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said first day of July, no gold or silver thread, lace, fringe, or any other work made thereof, or any thread, lace, fringe, or other work, made of copper, brass, or any other inferior metal, or gold or silver wire or plate, shall be imported or brought into Great Britain, upon pain of being forfeited and burnt, and upon the penalty of one hundred pounds to be paid by the importer thereof, for each and every parcel so imported.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That of the several penalties and forfeitures made and inflicted by this act, one moiety shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall inform, sue, or prosecute for the same, and may be sued for and recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster; wherein no essoin, protection, privilege, or wager of law, nor more than one imparlance, shall be allowed.

Forfeitures,

GEORGE II. Regis.

C A P. XXV.

An act to empower the importers or proprietors of rum or spirits of the British sugar plantations to land the same before payment of the duties of excise charged thereon, and to lodge the same in warehouses at their own expence; and for the relief of Ralph Barrow; in respect to the duty on some rock salt, lost by the overflowing of the rivers Weaver and Dane.

WHEREAS the several rates, duties, and charges of excise upon all strong waters, brandy, spirits, or Aqua vitæ, imported from beyond the seas, are, by the several and respective acts charging and imposing the same, directed and required to be from time to time satisfied and paid by the merchant or merchants, importer or importers of the same, in ready money, upon his or their entry or entries made, and before the landing thereof: and whereas the permitting rum or spirits of the growth or manufacture of his Majesty's plantations in America, to be landed before payment of the several rates, duties, and charges of excise now imposed thereon, and to be put into warehouses, upon the proprietor or proprietors, importer or importers of such rum or spirits, first giving good and sufficient security for the payment of the same, will be an ease and convenience to the proprietor and proprietors, importer and importers thereof, and may cause and promote a larger and greater importation thereof, be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and forty two, all such rum or spirits of the growth, produce, or manufacture of the British sugar plantations, as shall be imported into the kingdom of Great Britain, directly from the said sugar plantations, or any of them, upon the entry thereof may forthwith, and before payment of all or any part of the said duty of excise, be landed from on board the ship or vessel in which the same shall be so imported, and carried or put into such warehouse or warehouses, as shall be for that purpose provided at the charge of the respective proprietor or proprietors, importer or importers of such rum or spirits, and shall be approved of by the commissioners of excise, or the major part of them for the time being, upon the proprietor or proprietors, importer or importers of such rum or spirits, that shall be so landed, first giving (at his or their charge and expence) his or their bond, or other good and sufficient security, which the commissioners or other proper officers of the excise are hereby required and empowered to take, for payment of all and every the duties of excise, which such rum or spirits is charged with, and liable to pay, as soon as the same shall be sold, in case the same be sold within six months from and after the time the same shall be so landed and put into warehouses, as aforesaid; and in case the same shall not be sold within the said six months, then to pay the same at the end of such six months; such duty of excise to be computed according to the gauge of such rum or spirits, to be taken at the time the same shall be so landed and lodged in warehouses, as aforesaid.

Rum, &c. imported from the British colonies, may be landed, on security given.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That such rum or spirits as shall be so brought into such warehouse or warehouses, shall not be taken or carried out thence, on any account whatsoever, other than is herein after mentioned.

Rums, &c. landed without warrant, forfeited;

one half to the King, &c.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any such rum or spirits shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel, before due entry be made thereof at the custom-house, and with the collector of excise at the port or place where the same shall be imported, and the said duties of excise secured, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering the same, first signed by the said collector or other proper officer of excise, or without the presence of an excise officer, that all such imported rum or spirits as shall be so landed or put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel contrary to the true meaning thereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited, and shall or may be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof, videlicet, one moiety of the same to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, the other moiety to the use of such person or persons as will seize the said rum or spirits, or inform or sue for the same, or the value thereof, to be sued for, levied, recovered, or mitigated, by such ways, means, and methods, as any fine, penalty, or forfeiture is or may be recovered or mitigated by any law or laws relating to his Majesty's revenues of excise, or any of them, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, for that part of Great Britain called England, or the court of exchequer at Edinburgh, for that part of Great Britain called Scotland.

The casks to lodged in their warehouses;

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That before such rum or spirits of the British sugar plantations shall be landed and lodged in such warehouse or warehouses, a mark shall be set on every cask or vessel of such rum or spirits, mentioning the particular quantity of rum or spirits of the British sugar plantations which is contained therein, according to the gauge thereof to be then taken, and who is or are the respective proprietor or importer thereof; and the keeper or keepers of such warehouse or warehouses, and the person or persons who shall be appointed by the commissioners of his Majesty's excise to attend the said respective warehouses, shall each of them keep one or more book or books, wherein they shall respectively and separately, fairly enter in writing, an exact, particular, and true account of all such rum or spirits of the British plantations, as shall from time to time be brought into, and carried out of the respective warehouse or warehouses to which he or they shall respectively belong, and the days and times when the same shall be brought in, and carried out, and the name of the respective person or persons to whom, or for whose use the same was delivered out, and shall at the end of every six months, or oftner if required, transmit in writing an account thereof upon oath to the commissioners of the said duties of excise for the time being, together with an exact account of how much is then remaining in the respective warehouse or warehouses, to which they respectively belong; and the commissioners for the said duties of excise are hereby required and enjoined, within one month after the same shall be respectively transmitted to them as aforesaid, to inspect and examine the said accounts; and if, upon such examination it shall appear, that any of the said rum or spirits were delivered out of the said warehouses, otherwise than as herein is mentioned, or before payment of his Majesty's said inland duties of excise, for such the said rum and spirits as shall have been so delivered out of the said warehouses, then the said warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, and officer and officers respectively offending therein, shall not only be disabled to hold or enjoy any publick office or employment, but shall also forfeit and lose for every such offence the sum of one hundred pounds, to be sued for, levied, and recovered, or mitigated, by such ways, and means, and methods, as any fine, penalty, and forfeiture, is or may be recovered or mitigated, by any law or laws relating to his Majesty's revenues of excise, or any of them, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, for that part of Great Britain called England, or the court of exchequer at Edinburgh, for that part of Great Britain called Scotland.

and render account on oath.

Penalty.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said rum or spirits so lodged in warehouses as aforesaid, shall and may from time to time be delivered out of such warehouse or warehouses respectively, upon payment of his Majesty's duties of excise thereon, and upon the proprietor or importer, or such person or persons as shall be appointed by him or them for that purpose, producing to the respective warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, and the officer appointed by the commissioners of excise to attend these warehouses, a warrant or warrants, certificate or certificates, signed by the collector, receiver, or other proper officer of excise, appointed to receive the duties payable thereon, certifying that he has received all and every the said duties of excise, to which the said rum or spirits so desired to be delivered out of such warehouse, was liable and subject to pay, such warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, and officers of excise, attending such warehouse or warehouses, shall deliver out of such warehouse or warehouses, so much rum or spirits, as shall be mentioned or expressed in such warrant or warrants, certificate or certificates respectively, to have paid the said excise duties; and the respective warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers are thereupon to give such importer, or proprietor, or person so employed to take care of the delivery thereof, a permit or certificate, to accompany such rum or spirits so delivered out, which permit or certificate shall be also signed by the excise officer attending the said warehouse or warehouses, who shall be appointed by the commissioners for the said excise duties, or the major part of them, to prevent the seizing thereof.

Conditions of delivery out of the warehouses.

VI. Provided always, That no proprietor, importer, or buyer of the said rum or spirits, or other person or persons, to be by him or them appointed, shall receive out of any such warehouses aforesaid, any less quantity of rum or spirits at one time, than one puncheon, hoghead, or other cask, containing not less than twenty gallons, unless such rum was for the use of the mariners and seamen in the voyage.

What quantities to be delivered at once.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the proprietor, or importer of such rum or spirits, so to be lodged in any such warehouse or warehouses as aforesaid, to affix one lock to every such warehouse, the key of which shall remain in the custody of such proprietor or importer; and to and for the officer or officers to be appointed by the said commissioners for the said excise duties, to attend such warehouse or warehouses, to affix one other lock upon every such warehouse or warehouses, the key whereof to remain in the custody of the said officer for for the said excise duties; and the said proprietor or importer shall and may in the presence of the said warehouse-keeper, or excise officer (who are hereby obliged to attend at all reasonable times for that purpose) view, examine, shew, and receive out of the said warehouse or warehouses, the said rum or spirits, or any part thereof; not less than the quantity herein before for that purpose mentioned; upon paying the said duty of excise, for the same; and upon producing such certificate or receipt from the collector or receiver of the said inland duties of excise, of the same being paid in manner as is herein before for that purpose particularly prescribed.

Rum in warehouses, subject to the laws of excise and customs.

VIII. Provided always, and be it enacted, That all and every such rum or spirits of the British sugar plantations, as shall be so lodged in any warehouse or warehouses, shall be subject and liable to the same duties; both of excise and customs, to be applied to the same uses and purposes, and to be managed and collected by the same persons; and in the same manner, subject and liable to all and every the same rules, entries; restrictions, regulations, limitations, penalties, and forfeitures; as are in and by the several acts of parliament, by which the said duties are granted, or any of them, for that purpose particularly described, appointed, limited, and enacted, save and except in the particular instances hereby mentioned and provided for, and to be applied to the same.

Rums, &c. remaining in the warehouses above six months,

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case such rum or spirits shall after landed; be permitted or suffered to remain in such warehouse or warehouses, in which the same shall be so lodged for the purposes aforesaid, for any time exceeding the space of six months, after the same shall be so landed and lodged in such warehouse as aforesaid, and the importer or proprietor, or other person or persons by him or them appointed, shall not within the said six months pay, or cause to be paid to the collector or receiver of the excise duties appointed to receive the same, all and every the duties of excise, to which the same are subject and liable; and shall omit to procure or bring such certificate herein before directed to be had and made, from such collector or receiver to such warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, and to the officer of excise attending the same, of the payment of the said duties of excise, within the time aforesaid; that then it shall and may be lawful to and for the said commissioners of excise, or the major part of them for the time being, to direct and order such rum or spirits so lodged in such warehouse or warehouses, for which the said duties shall not be paid within the time aforesaid, to be put up to sale by publick cant or auction to the best bidder or bidders for the same; and the money arising by such sale, shall be in the first place applied in discharge of the said duty so payable thereon, and the charges attending such warehouse or warehouses, and also the expence of such sale; and the surplus of the monies so arising by such sale (if any) after payment of the said duties and charges, shall go and be paid to the proprietor or importer of the said rum and spirits, who so landed and lodged the same in the said warehouse.

shall be sold by auction to pay the duties, &c.

Continuance of this act. Continued by 23 Geo. 2. c. 26.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act shall continue and be in force from the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and forty two, to the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and forty nine, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer.

Anno decimo quinto

GEORGE II. Regis.

C A P. XXXI.

An act for further regulating the plantation trade; and for relief of merchants importing prize goods from America, and for preventing collusive captures there; and for obliging the claimers of vessels seized for exportation of wool, or any unlawful importation, to give security for costs; and for allowing East India goods to be taken out of warehouses, in order to be cleaned and refreshed.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made and passed in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, ^{7 & 8 W. 3^d c. 22.} for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses, in the plantation trade, and by another act of the fifth year of her late majesty Queen Anne, for the union of the two kingdoms of England and Scotland, no ship or vessel whatsoever shall be ^{and 5 Ann. c. 8.} deemed or pass as a ship of the built and property of Great Britain, Ireland, Guernsey, Jersey, or any of his Majesty's plantations in America, or a prize ship made free, so as to be qualified to trade to, from, or in, any of the said plantations, until the person or persons claiming property in such ship or vessel shall make oath, and register the same in the manner therein directed; and in case any ship's name so registered shall be altered, or any transfer of property to another port, such ship is thereby directed to be registered de novo, upon delivering up the former certificate of the register to the proper officers to be cancelled; and in case of any alteration of property in the same port, by the sale of one or more shares in any ship, after registering thereof, such sale is to be acknowledged by indorsement on the certificate of the register before two witnesses; notwithstanding which, the certificates of the register of several ships have been frequently sold to foreigners, and such certificates delivered to the purchasers, and the ships of foreigners, under colour thereof, have been admitted to trade from and to the said plantations (though of foreign property) contrary to law, to the prejudice of the navigation of Great Britain, and the plantations; for the prevention thereof for the future, may it please your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and forty two, no ship or vessel required by the said recited acts to be registered, and carrying any goods, wares, or merchandizes, to or from any of his Majesty's said plantations in America, or to or from one plantation to another, shall be permitted to trade, or be deemed qualified for that purpose, within the intent of the said recited acts, until the master or person having charge of the said ship or vessel, shall upon oath (or in case of a Quaker, upon his solemn affirmation) before the governor or collector of the customs of every of his Majesty's said plantations where the same shall arrive, give a just and true account of the name and burthen thereof, and of the place from whence she came, and of the other particulars according to the form following; that is to say,

Masters of vessels registered, shall give account upon oath, &c.

A. B. maketh oath (or if a Quaker, solemnly affirms) that the ship or vessel ^{The oath:} called the _____, whereof he this deponent (or affirmant) is master, or hath the charge or command during this present voyage, being of the burthen of _____ tons, came last from _____, and that she is, as he verily believes, the same ship ship or vessel described, meant, and intended, in and by the certificate now produced by him; and that the same does now, as he believes, belong wholly to his Majesty's British subjects, and that no foreigner has directly or indirectly any share, property, or interest therein, to his knowledge or belief.

Loading or unloading goods, before proof of English owners, the ship to be forfeited.

And in case any ship or vessel shall load or unload any goods, wares, or merchandizes, in any of his Majesty's plantations in America, before such proof shall be made; that every such ship and vessel shall be forfeited and lost, and shall and may be prosecuted, recovered and divided in like manner as if she had not been registered in pursuance of the said act of the seventh and eighth of King William the Third.

Oath to be made of certificate lost or mislaid.

II. And whereas by the said act of the seventh and eighth years of his said late Majesty King William the Third, it is enacted, That no ship's name registered, shall afterwards be changed without registering the same de novo, which is by the said act required to be done upon any transfer of property to another port, and delivering up the certificate of the first registry to be cancelled: and whereas masters of ships have frequently lost or mislaid certificates, to the great prejudice of the owners, who have thereby lost their voyages, and been deprived of the benefit of registering their ships de novo, and such losses have happened at great distances from the port proper for the registering the ship de novo; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and forty two, if any ship or vessel duly qualified to trade to, from and in his Majesty's said plantations, shall happen to be in any of the said plantations, and the certificate of the register thereof shall be lost or mislaid, the master or other person having charge of the said ship or vessel, may make oath, or being a Quaker, a solemn affirmation, before the governor or collector of the customs, in the port where the ship or vessel shall happen to be, in the following form;

The oath.

A. B. being master (or having the charge) of the ship or vessel called the _____, does swear (or solemnly affirm) that the said ship or vessel has been, as he verily believes, registered according to law, to qualify her to trade to, from, and in his Majesty's plantations in America, and that he had a certificate thereof granted at the port of _____ but that the same is lost or mislaid, and that he cannot find the same; and does not know where the same is, or what is become thereof, and that the same hath not been, nor shall be, with his privity or knowledge, sold or disposed of to any person or persons whatsoever; and that he this deponent (or affirmant) and three fourths of the mariners navigating the said ship or vessel are his Majesty's British subjects, and the said ship or vessel does now, as he believes, belong wholly to his Majesty's British subjects, and that no foreigner has to his knowledge or belief any share, property, or interest therein.

Security to be given, that no illegal use shall be made of the register if found.

And the said master, or other person navigating the said ship or vessel, shall also give good and sufficient security in the penalty of five hundred pounds, if the ship or vessel be of the burthen of one hundred tons, or under, and so in proportion for every ship or vessel of a greater burthen, to the collector of the port where the said ship shall be, in his Majesty's name, and to his Majesty's use, with condition that the said ship or vessel was duly registered according to law, for qualifying the same to trade to, from, and in his Majesty's plantations in America, and that the certificate of the said register, if found, shall be delivered up to the commissioners of the customs to be cancelled, and no illegal use has been or shall be made thereof, and that the same has not been or shall be fraudulently disposed of, and that the said ship or vessel does wholly belong to his Majesty's British subjects, and that no foreigner has any share, property, or interest therein; and upon making such oath or affirmation, and giving such bond as aforesaid, the governor and collector of his Majesty's customs shall freely, and without fee or reward, give give the said master, or other person having the charge of the said ship or vessel, a certificate under their hands and seals, of his having given such bond, and made such oath or affirmation, and thereupon the said ship or vessel shall have liberty to trade for that voyage only, in the same manner, as if the original certificate had been produced, and the first herein before mentioned oath or affirmation had been taken, and no otherwise; and the said certificate so to be given, shall have the same force and effect during the said voyage only, as the original certificate of the register if produced, and taking the said first mentioned oath or affirmation would have had, and no other; and the officers taking the said oath and bond, shall transmit an account thereof to the commissioners of his Majesty's customs.

Liberty to trade for one voyage after the register is lost.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the certificate of the register of any ship or vessel shall be lost, and the master or person having charge of the said ship or vessel, and one or more of the owners shall make proof to the satisfaction of the commissioners of his Majesty's customs, in case the owner or owners, or any of them, shall reside in Great Britain or Ireland, Guernsey or Fersey, or of the governor or collector of the customs, residing in any of his Majesty's plantations in America, in case she was registered in such plantation; and none of the owners shall reside in Great Britain or Ireland, Guernsey or Fersey, upon oath, or in case of a Quaker, upon solemn affirmation of the loss of such certificate, and likewise of the name; burthen, built, property, and other particulars required by the said act of the seventh and eighth of King William the Third, in the same manner, and before the same persons, as by that act are required upon original registers; and shall likewise give good and sufficient security, in the penalty of five hundred pounds, if the ship or vessel be of the burthen of one hundred tons, and so in proportion for every ship or vessel of a greater burthen, to the collector of the port, to which such ship or vessel shall belong; and that the original certificate hath not been, nor shall be fraudulently disposed of, or used contrary to law; and that the same when found, shall be delivered up to the commissioners of the customs to be cancelled; in such case it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners of his Majesty's customs, and the governor and collector of the customs, residing at the plantations respectively; and the said commissioners, governor, and collector, are hereby required to permit the said ship or vessel to be registered de novo; and the proper officers shall deliver a certificate thereof to the owner or owners registering the same, in the manner directed by the said act of the seventh and eighth of King William the Third, and therein mention the name by which the ship or vessel was formerly registered, and that such certificate of a new register is granted in pursuance of this act, instead of a former certificate, which appears, by such proof as this act requires, to be lost; and that such new register and certificate shall have the same force and effect as if the same were an original register and certificate, and no other; and a duplicate thereof shall be transmitted by the officers who shall grant the same to the commissioners of his Majesty's customs.

Directions for registering a ship de novo after the loss of the first certificate.

IV. And whereas by the before recited act of parliament made in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of King William the Third, for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in the plantation trade, it is enacted among other things, That in all bonds (commonly called Plantation Bonds) that are given in the plantations, in pursuance of an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, for encouraging and encreasing of shipping and navigation, and another act made in the twenty second year of his said Majesty's reign, to prevent planting tobacco in England, and regulating the plantation trade, the governors of the plantations, before they permit any ship, that by law is to trade there, to load on board any of the commodities enumerated in the said act last mentioned, are to take bond in the manner, and to the value expressed and directed by the said act, that such ships or vessels shall carry all the aforesaid enumerated to pay costs.

VII. And whereas by an act of parliament passed in the eighth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, for granting to her Majesty new duties on excise, and upon several imported commodities, it is enacted, That every person upon entry of any claim in the court where prohibited and uncustomed goods are prosecuted, shall be obliged to give security, in the penalty of thirty pounds, to answer and pay the costs occasioned by such claim; and in default of giving such security within the time limited by the course of the court, for entering claims, such goods shall be recovered. And forasmuch as no provision is made by the said recited act, with respect to seizures of ships, vessels, and boats, by reason whereof groundless and vexatious claims are frequently entered thereto, and the officers of the customs put to great charges in the condemning thereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty two, where any ship, vessel, or boat whatsoever, shall be seized by virtue of any law now in force, made for the more effectual preventing the exportation of wool, and where any ship, vessel, or boat, of the burthen of one hundred tons, or under, shall be seized for the unlawful importation of tea, brandy, arrack, rum, strong waters, or spirits, or for being used in the relanding any goods whereon there is a drawback or bounty, or in the removing, carriage, or conveyance of prohibited or uncustomed goods after the unshipping thereof, or for any other cause of forfeiture, every person upon entry of any claim in the court where any such ship, vessel, or boat shall be prosecuted, shall be obliged to give security in the penalty of thirty pounds, to answer and pay the costs occasioned by such claim, and in default of giving such security within the time limited by the course of that court for entering claims, such ship, vessel, or boat, shall be recovered.

VIII. And

VIII. And whereas by an act passed in the eleventh and twelfth years of 11 W. 3. c. 103 King William the Third, it is, among other things, enacted, That all wrought silks, bengals, and stuffs, mixed with silk or herba, of the manufacture of Persia, China, or East India, and all callicoes painted, dyed, printed or stained there, which are or shall be imported into this kingdom, shall not be worn or otherwise used within this kingdom but under such limitations as are therein mentioned and expressed; and that all such goods which shall be imported into this kingdom, shall, after entry thereof, be forthwith carried and put into such warehouse or warehouses as shall for that purpose be approved of by the commissioners of his Majesty's customs for the time being, so as none of them shall be taken or carried out thence upon any account whatsoever, other than in order for exportation, and not until sufficient security be first given to the King's majesty, his heirs and successors (which the said commissioners are thereby required and impowered to take) that the same and every part thereof shall be exported, and not landed again in any part of this kingdom; and that the warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers shall keep one or more book or books, wherein he or they shall fairly enter or write an exact, particular, and true account of all and every chest, bale, and number of pieces therein contained, of such of the aforesaid goods only which shall be brought into, and carried out of his or their said warehouse or warehouses, and the days and times when the same shall be brought in and carried out; and if upon examination it shall appear that any of the aforesaid goods were carried out, unless for exportation, or before sufficient security given for their exportation, as aforesaid, that then the warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers so offending therein, shall not only forfeit and lose the value of the said goods so carried out, as aforesaid, and be for ever disabled from any publick employment for the future, but shall also forfeit the sum of five hundred pounds for every such offence: and whereas the goods before mentioned, upon opening thereof, are frequently found to be spotted or stained with salt water, or otherwise damaged in the voyage, and unless permitted to be taken out of the warehouse or warehouses, to be refreshed and cleaned, they may totally perish, and the said goods in several other respects, in the condition they come over, are entirely unfit for many markets, to which they are now sent, and thereby give other nations the sole vent of those goods, and render the value of them here much less, which in both cases would be of very great loss to this kingdom; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty two, if any wrought silks, bengals, and stuffs mixed with silk or herba, of the manufacture of Persia, China, or East India, or any callicoes painted, dyed, printed, or stained there, which shall be imported into this kingdom, and secured in a warehouse or warehouses as aforesaid, shall, upon examination by the proper officers, appear to be spotted or stained with salt water, or otherwise damaged in the voyage, or to be unfit for foreign markets, unless cleaned and refreshed, dyed, glazed, or calendered, then it shall and may be lawful, upon bond being first given to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, which the said commissioners are hereby impowered to take, with two or more sufficient sureties, in the penalty of double the value of the goods, with condition that all and every part of the goods delivered out, shall be again returned into the same warehouses within a certain time to be limited in the said bond, which time shall be such as the said commissioners shall judge reasonable, then, and in such case, it shall and may be lawful to and for the warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, of the said warehouses, by leave of the said commissioners, to suffer any of the said goods in the condition aforesaid, to be taken out of the said warehouses, or any of them, under the care, and in the custody of such officer or officers, as the said commissioners shall direct and appoint, to be cleaned, dyed, pressed, glazed, calendered, or refreshed, in order to make them the more merchantable, and fit for foreign markets; provided, and it is hereby enacted, That the officer or officers who shall be appointed to have the charge and custody of the said goods, while they are out of the warehouse or warehouses for the purposes aforesaid, be paid for his or their attendance and trouble therein, by the person or persons at whose request the goods shall be delivered out; and in case of any dispute, as to the allowance to be made such officer or officers for his or their attendance and trouble therein, the same shall be adjudged and determined by the said commissioners.

IX. And whereas by the said act of the eleventh and twelfth of William the Third it is provided, That the warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers shall keep an account, in the manner therein directed, of all the said goods brought in and carried out of the said warehouses, and transmit to the said commissioners an exact account thereof, upon oath, every six months, together with an exact account how much shall be remaining in his or their said warehouse or warehouses respectively; which accounts the said commissioners are by the said act impowered and enjoined, within one month after the same shall be transmitted to them, to cause to be examined in the manner therein directed, and to lay a true account of the same before the parliament, within the first week of every sessions thereof; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all the accounts to be kept, prepared, transmitted, or delivered as aforesaid, a true and exact account shall be therein inserted and expressed, of all such of the said goods as shall have been delivered out to be cleaned, dyed, pressed, glazed, calendered, or refreshed, by virtue or in pursuance of the directions of this act, and which shall be returned again into such warehouses, mentioning the days and time when the same shall have been so delivered out or brought back, together with an exact account how much shall be remaining in the care and custody of the officer or officers appointed to have the charge and custody thereof, while they are out of the warehouse or warehouses, for the purposes aforesaid.

Account to parliament of all foreign goods taken out of the warehouses to be refreshed and returned.

Penalty on officers offending against this act.

X. And it is hereby further enacted, That if the officer or officers who shall be intrusted with the care and custody of any of the said goods delivered out of any of the said warehouses for the purposes aforesaid, shall not return all such goods into the warehouse or warehouses from whence they were taken, agreeable to the intention of this act, the officer or officers offending therein, shall not only forfeit and lose the value of the said goods so carried out as aforesaid, and be for ever disabled from any publick employment for the future, but shall also forfeit the sum of five hundred pounds for every such offence, and all penalties and forfeitures herein-before mentioned, shall and may be recovered and divided in like manner as is provided by the said act of the eleventh and twelfth of William the Third, for recovery of the penalties and forfeitures arising thereon.

C A P. XXXIII.

An act to revive several acts for the punishment of persons destroying turnpikes or locks, or other works erected by authority of parliament, and for other purposes therein mentioned; and to continue several acts relating to rice, to frauds in the customs, to the clandestine running of goods, and to copper ore of the British plantations; and for extending the liberty given by the act of the twelfth year of the reign of his present Majesty, for carrying sugar of the growth of the British sugar colonies in America, to ships belonging to any of his Majesty's subjects residing in Great Britain, and navigated according to law; and for the more effectual preventing the cutting of star or bent.

SECT. AND be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That
 II. an act made in the third year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for granting liberty to carry rice from his Majesty's province of Carolina in America, directly to any part of Europe, southward of Cape Finisterre, in ships built in, and belonging to Great Britain, and navigated according to law; which was to be in force for five years, from the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament; and also an act made in the eighth year of the reign of his present Majesty, to continue the said act, from the expiration thereof, until the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and forty two, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and to extend that liberty to his Majesty's province of Georgia in America, shall be, and are hereby further continued from the expiration thereof, until the said first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty seven, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament.

Act 3 Geo. 2. c. 28. relating to the trade of rice, and another 8 Geo. 2. c. 10. for continuing the same till Sept. 29, 1742, is extended to Georgia, and continued till June 1, 1747. Continued by 27 Geo. 2. c. 18.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several clauses in an act made in the fifth year of the reign of his late Majesty, intituled, An act against clandestine running of uncustomed goods; and for the more effectual preventing of frauds relating to the customs, relating to such foreign goods, wares, and merchandizes, as shall be taken in at sea, out of any ship or vessel, in order to be landed, or put into any other ship, vessel, or boat; and also relating to goods not reported, and found after clearing ships; and whereby further remedies are provided against relanding goods prohibited to be worn in this kingdom, and foreign goods shipped out for parts beyond the seas; and also relating to the opening or altering the package of goods, on board ships outward bound; and also relating to hovering ships or vessels of the burthen of fifty tons or under; and also concerning the bales or package, in which coffee shall be exported; and also relating to rum imported in casks or vessels, not containing twenty gallons at the least; and also relating to certificate goods entered in order to be exported to Ireland; which said several clauses were to have continuance for the term of three years, from the several times of the commencement thereof, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament respectively; and by another act passed in the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign, were continued from the expiration of the several and respective terms therein mentioned, for the term of five years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament; and which said clauses, by an act made in the second year of the reign of his present Majesty, were further continued, until the

VI. And whereas by an act made in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of King William the Third, for encouraging the linen manufacture of Ireland, and bringing flax and hemp into, and the making of sail cloth in this kingdom, it is amongst other things enacted, That it shall be lawful to import into England directly from Ireland, all sorts of hemp or flax, and all the production thereof, as thread, yarn, and linen of the growth and manufacture of Ireland, free from all manner of customs, duties, and impositions, the master or other chief officer of the vessel importing the same, bringing with him or them a certificate or certificates from the chief officer or officers of the port or ports in Ireland, where such goods shall be put on board, expressing amongst other things the name or names, place or places of abode of such person or persons, that shall have sworn the goods therein mentioned, to be bona fide of the growth and manufacture of the kingdom of Ireland, without fraud or covin: and whereas the manufactures of thread, yarn, and linen are greatly increased, and there is not a sufficient growth of hemp and flax in Ireland to make the same, so that the obliging persons to swear, that such manufactures are made of the growth of the said kingdom of Ireland, will prevent the importation thereof into England, and be a great discouragement to the said manufactures; therefore be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the certificate directed by the said recited act of the seventh and eighth years of the reign of King William the Third, to be brought by the master or chief officer of any ship or vessel importing from Ireland any of the manufactures made there of hemp or flax into England, shall express the name or names, place or places of abode of the person or persons who shall have bona fide sworn the same to be of the manufacture of Ireland, without fraud or covin, and the other directions in the said recited act of the seventh and eighth years of the reign of King William the Third (excepting the exporter or other person swearing such goods were of the growth of Ireland) shall be pursued; it shall and may be lawful, from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty three, to import directly from Ireland into England, any manufactures made of

SECT. II. AND whereas in and by one act of parliament, made and passed in the third year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for reducing the annuity or fund of the united East India company, and for ascertaining their right of trade to the East Indies, and the continuance of their corporation for that purpose upon the terms therein mentioned, it was, amongst other things, enacted, That the united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, should advance and pay into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer, on or before the twenty fourth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and thirty, the sum of two hundred thousand pounds, to be applied towards the supplies granted to his Majesty for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and thirty, for which no interest should be ever payable, nor any addition to be made to their then capital stock, or debt from the publick on account of the same, nor the same or any part thereof be repayable to the said united company: and it was thereby also enacted, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September, which should be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty, and not before, the annuity or yearly fund of one hundred and sixty thousand pounds, payable to the said united company, should be reduced to an annuity or yearly fund of one hundred and twenty eight thousand pounds, in respect of their then capital stock, or debt of three millions two hundred thousand pounds, which reduced annuity or yearly fund should be and remain charged upon, and paid and payable from time to time out of the same duties and revenues, in the same manner, and by the like weekly or quarterly payments, and with the same provisions for making good any deficiencies in the said reduced fund, as their then annuity was charged on or provided for, to be paid, until some new or other provision should be made by parliament, with consent of the said united company for the same, subject to redemption upon one year's notice to be given by parliament, after the twenty fifth day of March, which should be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, upon the expiration of the said year, and upon repayment by parliament of the said whole capital stock, or debt of three million two hundred thousand pounds unto the said united company, by payments not less than five hundred thousand pounds at a time, and also of all arrears of their said reduced annuity or yearly fund of one hundred and twenty eight thousand pounds, which should be due at the end of the said year, from which time their said annuity or yearly fund should cease, determine, and be no longer paid or payable to them, as therein is more particularly mentioned: and it was also thereby enacted, That, notwithstanding such redemption, the said united company and their successors should continue to be a body politick and corporate, by the name of The united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, and by that name should have perpetual succession, succession, and have, hold, and enjoy all benefits, privileges, franchises, and rights, which by any former act or acts, or any charter or charters founded thereupon, the said united company might hold and enjoy, not altered or varied by the said act, as therein is more particularly mentioned; and the said united company were thereby also impowered, after redemption of their said yearly fund, or a moiety thereof or more by parliament, to declare by by-laws or orders in their general courts, what part or share in their remaining capital stock or yearly fund, or stock in trade, shall qualify any members of the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, to be directors for the affairs of the said company, or to give any vote or votes in any general courts; and for the electing the directors, and for their continuance or removal, incapacity or avoidance: and it was also further enacted, That, notwithstanding such redemption of the said yearly fund of one hundred and twenty eight thousand pounds, the said united company should (subject to the proviso of determination therein and herein-after mentioned) have, use, and enjoy the whole and sole trade and traffick, and the only liberty, use, and privilege of trading, trafficking, and exercising the trade or business of merchandize into and from the East Indies, and into and from all the islands, ports, havens, coasts, cities, towns, and places, between the cape of Good Hope and the streights of Magellan, and limits in an act of the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the third, or in a charter of the fifth day of September, in the tenth year of his said Majesty's reign mentioned, in as ample and beneficial manner as the said company could thereby trade thereto, with such prohibitions to all other his Majesty's subjects to trade thereto, and under such penalties and forfeitures as in the said act of the third year of his present Majesty's reign is more particularly mentioned: and it was thereby further enacted, That the said united company should at all times thereafter for ever (subject as aforesaid) have, hold, and enjoy, and be intitled unto all and every the profits, benefits, advantages, privileges, franchises, abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, rights, remedies, methods of suit, and all penalties and forfeitures, and disabilities, provisions, matters, and things whatsoever, which by any former act or acts of parliament, or by any charter or charters founded thereupon, or by any clause or clauses in the said acts or charters contained, were enacted, given, granted, provided, inflicted, limited, established, or declared to, for, touching, or concerning the said company or body politick and corporate, either by the name of The general society, intitled to the advantages given by an act of parliament for advancing a sum not exceeding two millions of pounds for the service of the crown of England; or the said body politick and corporate, called by the name of The English company trading to the East Indies; or the said body politick and corporate, called by the name of The united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, (not altered or intended to be altered by the said act) according to the tenor and true meaning of the said acts and charters, freed and discharged from all provisos and conditions of redemption and determination therein contained; and the same were thereby ratified and confirmed; and should continue to be held, enjoyed, and be practised and put in execution by the said united company, and their successors, for the better and more effectual settling and securing to them and their successors, the whole, sole, and exclusive trade to the East Indies, and parts aforesaid; and for the preventing all his Majesty's subjects trading thither, and for securing also their possessions, estates, and effects, and governing their affairs and business, in all respects, as fully and effectually as if the same were repeated and re-enacted in the said act, subject to such restrictions, covenants, and agreements, as are contained in the said acts and letters patent then in force, and not thereby varied or altered, and subject also to the proviso following; that is to say, That at any time upon three years notice to be given by parliament, after the twenty fifth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixty six, upon the expiration of the said three years, and repayment to the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, or their successors, of the said capital stock, debt, or sum of three millions and two hundred thousand pounds, and all arrears of annuity, annuity, payable in respect thereof, in case the same shall not have been before repaid; then, and from thenceforth, the said right, title, and interest of the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies; to the whole, sole, and exclusive trade to the East Indies and parts aforesaid, shall cease and determine; and it was thereby also provided, That nothing in the above proviso, or in any proviso in the act of the ninth year of the reign of his said Majesty King William the Third, or in the said charter of the fifth day of September, in the tenth year of his said Majesty, or in any other act or charter contained, should extend, or be construed to extend to determine the corporation of the said united company, or to hinder the said united company from carrying on at all times; after such determination of the right to the sole, whole, and exclusive trade as aforesaid, a free trade in, to, and from the East Indies; and parts aforesaid, with all or any part of their own joint stock in trade, goods, merchandize, estate, and effects, in common with other his Majesty's subjects; as by the same act, relation being thereunto had, may more fully appear: and whereas in and by one other act of parliament made and passed in the said third year of his present Majesty's reign, intitled, An act for taking off certain duties on salt, and for making good any deficiencies in the funds that may happen thereby; and for charging the reduced annuity payable to the East India company on the aggregate fund; and for relief of Matthew Lyon, executor of Matthew Page, deceased, in respect of the duty for salt lost by the overflowing of the river Morcy, in the year one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, for the preventing or remedying any injury or damage which might happen to the said united company, in respect of the diminution that might happen in the produce of the duties and revenues charged with their then annuity or fund of one hundred and sixty thousand pounds per annum, by the ceasing and determining the therein before mentioned additional duties on salt, before or until the said intended reduction of their said then annuity or yearly fund should take place, and their reduced annuity or yearly fund should be charged upon new duties and revenues, with their consent it was enacted, That in case at the end of any one quarter of a year, to be computed from the feast of the annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary, in the year one thousand seven hundred and thirty, until such intended reduction should take place, and such new security be provided for the said reduced annuity or yearly fund, the produce into the exchequer of the monies arising from the said additional duties on salt, and the additional duties on stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, particularly charged with the then annuity or fund of one hundred and sixty thousand pounds, payable to the said united company, should not be sufficient, together with the then provisions by parliament for making good the deficiencies therein, to discharge the quarters annuity that should be then due to them, then, and in every such case, and as often as the same should happen, such quarterly deficiencies should from time to time be made good out of any monies, which at the respective times of such deficiencies should be and remain in the exchequer, of the monies arisen or to arise for the said duties and revenues, commonly called The aggregate fund, which should be more than sufficient to answer, pay, and satisfy what would then be due or demandable for any prior charges or incumbrances on the said aggregate fund: and it was also enacted, That, from and after the twenty ninth day of September, which should be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty, in case the said intended reduction of the said annuity or fund of one hundred and sixty thousand pounds, should then take place, then, and from thenceforth, such reduced annuity or yearly fund of one hundred and twenty eight thousand pounds, should be transferred from the several duties and revenues then charged with the said then annuity or yearly fund of one hundred and sixty thousand pounds, and be charged upon, and payable out of the monies arisen or to arise into the exchequer from time to time, for the said several duties and revenues composing the aggregate fund, to be paid and payable to the said united company, or their successors, by such and the like quarterly payments, as their then annuity or yearly fund was then payable, subject nevertheless to such redemption by parliament, as was or should be enacted by any other act of the then session of parliament, and subject to such prior charges and incumbrances, as were or should be made by parliament on the growing produce of the said aggregate fund, before the taking place of such reduction: and whereas the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies are willing and contented to advance and pay into the receipt of your Majesty's exchequer, towards the supply granted to your Majesty for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and forty four, the sum of one million of pounds Sterling, for the purchase of an annuity of thirty thousand pounds well secured to the said united company, and repayable on the same terms with the company's present capital, with an addition of fourteen years to their present term, which will, with such addition, extend to Lady-day, one thousand seven hundred and eighty, besides the three years allowed them after the expiration of their present term, for bringing home and disposing of their effects, and other purposes; with power to the said united company to issue out bonds from time to time for any part, or the whole amount of the said one million of pounds Sterling, and upon such other terms, conditions, grants, confirmations, articles, and provisions, as are hereafter made, granted, provided, declared, and enacted; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, in pursuance of their before recited agreement, shall advance and pay into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer, for his Majesty's use, the full sum of one million on or before the twenty ninth day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty four, at such times, and in such proportions, as the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, or any three or more of them, or the high treasurer for the time being, shall think fit to direct and appoint, so as the said united company be not obliged to pay more than two hundred and fifty thousand pounds at any one time, nor without having one month's notice before each respective time of payment, and so as the said company be not obliged to make any such payment before the twenty fifth day of May, one thousand seven hundred and forty four.

One million to be paid into the exchequer.

III. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, out of the said sum of one million, the said united company shall have and receive back, by way of discount, so much as the interest at the rate of three pounds per centum per annum for each sum of money which shall be actually advanced and paid, for or upon account of the said sum of one million, shall amount unto, from the day of the actual payment thereof, until the said twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and forty four; and in case the said united company shall make failure in any of the said payments so by this act appointed to be made into his Majesty's exchequer as aforesaid, at or before the respective days or times to be directed and appointed as aforesaid, the money whereof such failure in payment shall be made, shall and may be recovered to his Majesty's use, by action of debt, or upon the case, bill, suit, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, privilege, or wager of law shall be allowed, or any more than one imparlance; in which action, bill, suit, or information, it shall be lawful to declare, that the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, are indebted to his Majesty the monies of which they shall have made default in payment according to the form of this statute, and have not paid the same, which shall be sufficient; and in or upon such action, bill, suit, or information, there shall be further recovered to his Majesty's use against the said united company, damages after the rate of twelve pounds per centum per annum for the monies so unpaid contrary to this act, besides full costs of suit; and the said united company and their successors, and their said stock and funds, shall be and are hereby made subject and liable thereunto.

3 per cent; discount.

To be sued in case of failure in the payments.

Damages for nonpayment.

Company to have an exclusive trade to the East Indies.

XI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, notwithstanding such redemption of the said annuities or yearly funds of one hundred and twenty eight thousand pounds, and thirty thousand pounds as

as aforesaid, the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, shall (subject to the proviso of determination herein-after contained) have, use, and enjoy, and shall continue to have, use, and enjoy the whole, sole, and exclusive trade and traffick, and the only liberty, use, and privilege of trading, trafficking, and exercising the trade or business of merchandize, in, to, and from the East Indies, and in, to, and from all the islands, ports, havens, coasts, cities, towns, and places between the cape of Good Hope and streights of Magellan, and limits in the said act of the ninth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, or in the said charter of the fifth day of September, in the tenth year of his said Majesty's reign mentioned, in as ample and beneficial manner as the said company could thereby or otherwise lawfully trade thereto; and the said East Indies, or the islands, havens, coasts, ports, cities, towns, and places, within the limits aforesaid, or any of them, shall not from henceforth at any time before such determination of the said sole and whole trade of the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, as is herein-after mentioned, be repaired or sailed to, visited, frequented, or haunted by any other the subjects of his Majesty, his heirs or successors whatsoever; and if any of the said subjects of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, of what degree or quality soever they be, other than the factors, agents, and servants of the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, or such as shall be by them thereunto licensed or authorised, shall at any time or times hereafter, before such determination of the said company's whole and sole trade as aforesaid, directly or indirectly sail or go to, visit, haunt, frequent, traffick, trade, or adventure in, to, or from the said East Indies, or other the limits or parts aforesaid, contrary to the true meaning hereof, all and every such offender and offenders shall incur the forfeiture and loss of all the ships and vessels which shall be employed in such voyage, trade, traffick, or adventure, with the guns, tackle, apparel, and furniture thereunto belonging, and also all the goods laden thereupon, or that were or shall be sent to, acquired, traded, trafficked, or adventured within the said East Indies, or parts aforesaid, and all the proceed and effects of the same, and every of them, and double the value thereof; which penalties and forfeitures shall be so sued for, seized, distributed and distributable, recovered and recoverable, as in and by an act made in the seventh year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act for the further preventing his Majesty's subjects from trading to the East Indies under foreign commissions, and for encouraging and further securing the lawful trade thereto; and for further regulating the pilots of Dover, Deal, and the isle of Thanet; is appointed, directed, and enacted, concerning the penalties and forfeitures in that act mentioned or referred to, with respect to the said united company, or their trade to the East Indies.

XII. And moreover it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, shall at all times hereafter for ever (subject as aforesaid) have, hold, and enjoy, and be intituled unto, all and every the profits, benefits, advantages, privileges, franchises, abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, rights, remedies, methods of suit, and all penalties and forfeitures, and disabilities, provisions, matters, and things whatsoever, which by any former act or acts of parliament, or by any charter or charters founded thereupon, or by any clause or clauses in the said acts or charters contained, are enacted, given, granted, provided, inflicted, limited, established, or declared to, for, touching, or concerning the said company, or body politick and corporate, either by the name of The general society, intituled to the advantages given by an act of parliament for advancing a sum not exceeding two millions, for the service of the crown of England, or the said body politick and corporate, called by the name of The English company trading to the East Indies, or the said body politick and corporate, now called by the name of The united company of mer- chants of England trading to the East Indies, and not by this act altered, or intended to be altered, according to the tenor and true meaning of the said acts and charters, freed and discharged from all provisos and conditions of redemption and determination therein contained; and the same, and every of them, are hereby ratified and confirmed, and shall continue to be held and enjoyed, and be practised, and put in execution by the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, and their successors, for the better and more effectual settling and securing to them and their successors, the whole, sole, and exclusive trade to the East Indies, and parts aforesaid; and for the preventing all other his Majesty's subjects trading thither, and for securing also their possessions, estate, and effects, and governing their affairs and business in all respects, as fully and effectually, as if the same profits, benefits, advantages, trade, privileges, franchises, abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, rights, remedies, methods of suit, penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, provisions, matters, and things, were severally repeated, and at large re-enacted in the body of this act; subject nevertheless to such restrictions, covenants, and agreements, as are contained in the said acts and letters patent now in force, and not herein or hereby varied or altered, and subject also to the proviso following; that is to say, and not altered by this act.

XIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by authority aforesaid, That at any time upon three years notice to be given by parliament, after the twenty fifth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty, upon the expiration of the said three years, and repayment to the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, or their successors, of the said capital stock, debt, or sum of four million two hundred thousand pounds, and all arrears of annuity payable in respect thereof, in case the same shall not have been before repaid, then, and from thenceforth, and not before or sooner, the said right, title, and interest, of the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, to the whole, sole, and exclusive trade to the East Indies, and parts aforesaid, shall cease and determine.

Proviso of redemption.

XIV. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted, That nothing in the above proviso, or in any proviso in the said act of the ninth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, or in the said charter of the fifth day of September, in the tenth year of his said late Majesty's reign, or in any other act or charter contained, shall extend, or be construed to extend, to determine the corporation of the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, or to hinder, prevent, or exclude, the said united company from carrying on at all times after such determination of the right, to the sole, whole, and exclusive trade as aforesaid, a free trade in, to, and from the East Indies, and parts aforesaid, with all or any part of their own joint stock in trade, goods, merchandizes, estate, and effects, in common with other the subjects of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, trading in, to, or from those parts.

Corporation to have a common right of trade with others, after their exclusive rights is determined.

C A P. XXXI.

An act for repealing the duties payable upon glass beads, and for granting other duties in lieu thereof; and for allowing the same drawbacks on the exportation of refined borax and camphire, which are allowed on the exportation of unrefined borax and camphire; and for preventing the fraudulent exportation of British and Irish linnens, for the sake of the bounty allowed by an act made in fifteenth and sixteenth years of his present Majesty's reign; and for explaining and amending the said act, as to the persons who are to receive the said bounty.

The old duty on glass beads repealed, and the new duty to be the same as is paid for great bugles;

and to be applied to the same uses.

Duties on seed bugle not to be altered.

Borax and camphire refined in Great Britain, shall be intitled to the drawback on exportation.

WHEREAS by several acts of parliament now in force, several duties are payable upon the importation of great bugle, and glass beads: and whereas it is very difficult for the officers of his Majesty's customs, and dealers in the said commodities, to distinguish the difference between great bugle and glass beads, on the importation thereof: and whereas the duties on glass beads are much lower than the duties on great bugle, which is a great temptation to unfair traders to deceive the officers, to the great disadvantage of the revenue, and discouragement of the fair merchants: and whereas such evil practice enables the unfair traders to undersell, not only the fair merchants, but likewise to undersell such of the poor inhabitants of this kingdom, who are now employed in the making, colouring, and manufacturing of glass beads; for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said duties on glass beads, which shall be imported from and after the twenty fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty four, shall cease and determine; and in lieu thereof there shall, from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, be paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for all glass beads imported into Great Britain, whether plain or manufactured, mixed or coloured, the same subsidies, impositions, and duties, as are now payable for great bugles imported; and that the same be raised, levied, recovered, and paid by such rates, means and methods, with the like discounts and allowances on importation, and the same drawbacks on exportation, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and be applicable to the same uses and purposes, as the duties on great bugles are now raised, levied, recovered, paid, and applied.

II. Provided nevertheless, and it is hereby declared, That this act, or any thing herein contained, shall not in any wise be construed or understood to extend to lessen or alter the rates or duties on small or seed bugle, which are to remain and be in the same manner as they are now rated and paid.

III. And whereas large quantities of borax unrefined, commonly called Tincall, and of camphire unrefined, are frequently imported, both which are generally shipped in the same unrefined condition, and a drawback paid on exportation thereof: and whereas the said commodities, when refined in Great Britain, are not entitled, by the laws in being, to any drawback, although they are subject to waste and loss of weight in refining them here, and are therefore exported abroad, and refined in foreign countries, to the prejudice of the revenue and the commerce of this kingdom: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty four, all borax, and all camphire which shall be refined in Great Britain, upon oath being first made by the refiner or refiners thereof, that the said borax and camphire entered for exportation, were produced solely from from the very same borax and camphire which had been imported into Great Britain unrefined, and for which his Majesty's customs and duties had been duly paid at the time of the importation thereof, and that the same were duly exported, his Majesty's searcher also certifying the shipping thereof, and all such other requisites being duly performed, as are necessary to be done and performed, with regard to borax and camphire unrefined, and shipt for exportation, shall be entitled unto and have the same drawback of all the several duties in all respects, as a like quantity of unrefined borax and of unrefined camphire, are now by law entitled unto; any statute, law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

An act for permitting certain goods therein enumerated, to be imported during the war in British built shipping, the property of foreigners; and for relief of William Ord, and others, and for obviating a doubt which hath arisen upon the act of the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation, as to the importation on the account of aliens, of goods of the growth or production of the plantations of Spain and Portugal, in English ships duly navigated.

SECT. IV. AND whereas by two other clauses in the aforesaid act, passed in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, it is (amongst other things) enacted, That no goods or commodities whatsoever, of the growth, production, or manufacture of Africa, Asia, or America, or any part thereof, or which are described or laid down in the usual maps or charts of those places, be imported into England, Ireland, or Wales, islands of Guernsey or Jersey, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, from any other place or places, country or countries, but only from those of the said growth, production, or manufacture, or from those ports where the said goods and commodities can only, or are or usually have been first shipped for transportation, and from none other places or countries, under the penalty of the forfeiture of all such the aforesaid goods, as shall be imported from any other place or country, contrary to the true intent and meaning thereof, as also of the ship in which they were imported, with all her guns, furniture, ammunition, tackle, and apparel: And whereas there is a proviso in the said act, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any of the people of England, Ireland, Wales, islands of Guernsey or Jersey, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, in vessels or ships to them belonging, and whereof the master and three fourths of the mariners at least are English, to load and bring in from any of the ports of Spain and Portugal, or western islands, commonly called Azores, or Madeira, or Canary islands, all sorts of goods or commodities of the growth, production, or manufacture of the plantations or dominions of either of them respectively: And whereas disputes have arose on the construction of the said proviso, whether goods of the growth, production, or manufacture of the plantations of Spain or Portugal, may be imported for account of aliens, from the places, and in the manner expressed in the said proviso, and whether such goods belonging to aliens, so imported, are not liable to be forfeited, together with the ship, which tends to the prejudice of the British navigation, as likewise detrimental to the publick revenue; be it therefore further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons to import the goods mentioned in the said proviso, and in such ships so navigated, as in the said proviso is expressed, although such goods belong to and are the property of aliens.

EXP.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament, made in the fifth and sixth years of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, of glorious memory, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain rates and duties upon salt, and upon beer, ale, and other liquors, for securing certain recompences and advantages in the said act mentioned, to such persons sons as shall voluntarily advance the sum of ten hundred thousand pounds, towards carrying on the war against France; it was, amongst other things, enacted, That from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand six hundred and ninety four, there should be throughout the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, raised, levied, collected, and paid unto their Majesties, their heirs and successors, until the seventeenth day of May, which should be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and ninety seven, for salt, the rates and duties following; that is to say, For every gallon of salt, not being of the product or manufacture of the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, imported, or to be imported into England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, the sum of three pence of lawful money of England, over and above the then duties payable on salt imported, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; and for every gallon of salt, and rock salt, made at the salt works, or taken out of any pits within the said kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, the sum of one penny halfpenny, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity, with divers provisions and directions in the said act contained for managing, collecting, paying, and applying the said duties: and whereas by another act, made in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for continuing to his Majesty certain duties upon salt, glass wares, stone and earthen wares, and for granting several duties upon tobacco pipes, and other earthen wares, for carrying on the war against France, and for establishing a national land bank, and for taking off the duties upon tonnage of ships, and upon coals; the same rates and duties were continued for ever for the purposes of the said act: and whereas by an act of parliament, made in the ninth and tenth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities, after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies; it was, amongst other things, enacted, That there should be raised, levied, collected, and paid unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever, for salt, the several additional rates and duties following; that is to say, For every gallon of salt, from and after the twenty fourth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and ninety nine, imported from foreign parts, the sum of seven pence, of lawful money of England, to be paid by the importer or importers thereof, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; and for every gallon of salt, and rock salt, from and after the twenty fourth day of December, one thousand six hundred and ninety nine, made at the salt works, or taken out of any pit or pits within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, the sum of three pence halfpenny of like money, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity: and whereas by the articles of union between the kingdoms of England and Scotland, all the said duties on salt were, from the times therein mentioned, to take place in Scotland (except the additional duty on home-made salt) with some provisions for preventing salt made in Scotland from being brought into England, without paying the said additional duty on salt made in England: and whereas by an act of parliament made in the third year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for taking off certain duties upon salt; and for making good any deficiencies in the funds that may happen thereby; and for charging the reduced annuity payable to the East India company on the aggregate fund; and for relief of Matthew Lyon, executor of Matthew Page deceased, in respect of the duty for salt lost by the overflowing of the river Mercy, in the year one thousand seven hundred and twenty four, it is enacted, That from and after the twenty fifth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty, the duty of one penny halfpenny per gallon on salt and rock salt made in this kingdom, which was granted by the said act of the fifth and sixth years of the reign of their late Majesties King William and Queen Mary; and also all the additional duties on salt, whether imported from foreign parts or home-

home-made, which were granted by the said act of the ninth and tenth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, should cease, determine, and be no longer paid or payable; and then, and from thenceforth, all the powers and authorities given or granted by any act or acts of parliament for the levying, securing, collecting, or recovering the same; and all penalties and forfeitures relating thereto; and all provisions, regulations, or restrictions relating to the importing or bringing of salt made in Scotland into England, without paying the said additional duty on salt, should cease, determine, and not be put in execution; and then and from thenceforth the right or demand of any person or persons in pursuance of the said recited acts, or any of them, on his or their exporting beyond the seas, any salt, for which the said duties had been before secured or paid, to have the securities for the same discharged, or the monies paid for the same repaid, should cease and determine, as to so much of such securities or payments as were given or made for any of the duties by the said act to be determined; and that no drawback on account of such duties so secured or paid, before the said twenty fifth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty (except for the duty of three pence per gallon on foreign salt, imposed by the first herein recited act) should be made and allowed on any salt exported beyond the seas after that time, with a proviso in the said act contained, that the same should not extend to determine the said duty of three pence per gallon on salt, not of the product or manufacture of the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, so as aforesaid, granted by the said act of the fifth and sixth years of the reign of their said late majesties King William and Queen Mary, nor to determine or make void any of the provisions, rules, or directions made by the said acts, or any of them, and then in force for payment of the said duties by the importers of such foreign salt upon the entry thereof, or for preventing the landing thereof before such entry made, or the securing the same by bond, with sufficient sureties, or for allowing the discounts for paying the said duty in ready money, or for allowances for drawbacks of the duties paid or secured on the re-exporting the same to foreign parts, or making good any accidents or losses that might happen in such salt, after shipping the same for exportation to foreign parts, or to be carried coastwise, or for ascertaining the weight in each bushel by which the said duty should be computed, or to determine or make void any former act or clause relating to the ships or vessels laden with foreign salt, found hovering on the coast, or relating to such salt exported to Ireland, and landed there; but the same, and every of them, should remain and be in as full force and virtue, as they then were, if the said last recited act had not been made: and whereas by an act of parliament made in

5 Geo. 2. c. 6. fifth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for reviving the duties on salt for the term therein mentioned, it was enacted, That from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, for and during the space of three years, the duty of one penny halfpenny per gallon on all salt and rock salt made at the salt works, or taken out of any pits in this kingdom, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity, which was granted by the said act of the fifth and sixth years of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, and since made perpetual; and also all the additional duties on salt (whether imported from foreign parts, or made in any part of Great Britain) which were granted by the said act of the ninth and tenth years of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, or made payable by the articles of union between the kingdoms of England and Scotland, should be revived, and be payable and paid in such manner, and with such allowances for prompt payment, and for waste on salt carried coastwise, or to Ireland, as if the said last recited act of the third year of the reign of his present Majesty had never been made; and that all the powers and authorities given by the said recited acts, or either of them, or by any other act or acts of parliament, for levying, collecting, recovering, securing, and paying the said duties, and all penalties and forfeitures relating thereto, and all provisions for the distribution of such penalties and forfeitures between his Majesty and the informers, when recovered, recovered, and the methods of suing for, recovering, receiving, and mitigating the same, and all provisions, regulations, or restrictions relating to the importing or bringing of salt made in Scotland into England, without paying the said additional duty on salt, should be revived, and be in full force and virtue; and that the right or demand of any person or persons, in pursuance of the said acts, for or in respect of his or their exporting beyond the seas any salt for which the said duties should be paid, or secured to be paid, to have the securities for the same discharged, or the monies paid for the same repaid, should be also revived, and all drawbacks on account of such duties, so secured or paid, shall be made or allowed for or in respect of the exportation of salt to parts beyond the seas (whether the same should be foreign salt, or made within any part of Great Britain) in the same manner as such drawbacks ought to have been made, if the said last recited act had not been made: and whereas the rates or duties of one shilling and eight pence per thousand on all red herrings, and of three shillings and four pence per barrel on all white herrings cured promiscuously with red herrings, or white herrings designed for exportation, but afterwards delivered out for home consumption, which were imposed by two several acts made in the eighth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First; and which, in consequence of the said recited act of the third year of his present Majesty, were reduced to the rate of four pence for every thousand of such red herrings, and of eight pence for every barrel of such white herrings, were likewise revived by the said late act of the fifth year of his present Majesty: and whereas the allowance of five shillings per barrel on the exportation of salted beef and pork exported for sale from any part of Great Britain to any parts beyond the seas, which was given by the eighth article of the treaty of union between the kingdoms of England and Scotland, and by an act made in the fifth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, and which, in consequence of the said recited act of the third year of his present Majesty, was reduced to an allowance of one shilling and six pence per barrel, was also revived by the said last recited act of the fifth year of his present Majesty: and whereas by an act of parliament, made and passed in the seventh year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting and continuing the duties upon salt, and upon red and white herrings, for the further term of seven years; and for licensing the erecting new refineries of rock salt in the counties of Essex and Suffolk, it was enacted, That from and after the determination of the said term of three years, in the said last recited act of the fifth year of his Majesty's reign mentioned, the several and respective rates and duties upon salt, and upon red and white herrings, which by the said act were revived, should be further continued for and during the space of seven years; and that the same should be managed, raised, levied, collected, secured, and paid, in such manner and form, and by and under such powers, authorities, penalties, forfeitures, provisions, restrictions, and regulations, for managing, raising, levying, collecting, securing, and paying the same, and with such allowances for prompt payment, and for waste or salt carried coastwise, or to Ireland, and for fish, beef, and pork exported to parts beyond the seas, and with such drawbacks and debentures on account of duties paid, or secured to be paid, for salt exported to parts beyond the seas, as were particularly mentioned in the said last recited act; and that the said last recited act, and every article, rule, clause, matter, and thing therein contained, or thereby referred unto, and then being in force (not otherwise altered by the said act) should be and continue in full force, for and during the said further term of seven years, as fully and amply, to all intents and purposes, as if the same had been particularly recited, expressed, and enacted in the body of the said act: and whereas by an act of parliament, made and passed in the eighth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting and continuing the duties upon salt, and upon red and white herrings, for the further term of four years; and for giving further time for the payment of duties omitted to be paid for the indentures and contracts of clerks and apprentices, it was enacted, That from and after the determination of the said term of seven years in the said last recited act of the seventh year of his Majesty's reign reign mentioned, the several and respective rates and duties upon salt, and upon red and white herrings, which by the said last recited act were continued, should be further continued for and during the space of four years; and that the same should be managed, raised, levied, collected, secured, and paid in such manner and form, and by and under such powers, authorities, penalties, forfeitures, provisions, restrictions, and regulations, for managing, raising, levying, collecting, securing, and paying the same, and with such allowances for prompt payment, and for waste on salt carried coastwise, or to Ireland, and for fish, beef, and pork exported to parts beyond the seas, and with such drawbacks or debentures on account of duties paid, or secured to be paid, for salt exported to parts beyond the seas, as were particularly mentioned in the said last-recited act; and that the said last recited act, and every article, rule, clause, matter, and thing therein contained, or thereby referred unto, and then being in force, not otherwise altered by the said act, should be and continue in full force and effect, for and during the said further term of four years, as fully and amply, to all intents and purposes, as if the same had been particularly recited, expressed, and enacted in the body of the said act: and whereas by one other act of parliament, made and passed in the fourteenth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting and continuing the duties upon salt, and upon red and white herrings, for the further term of seven years; and for allowing rock salt to be used in making salt from sea water, at the salt works at Neath, in the county of Glamorgan, it was enacted, That from and after the determination of the said term of four years, in the last recited act of the eighth year of his Majesty's reign mentioned, the several and respective rates and duties upon salt, and upon red and white herrings, which by the said last recited act were continued, should be further continued, for and during the space of seven years; and that the same should be managed, raised, levied, collected, secured, and paid, in such manner and form, and by and under such powers, authorities, penalties, forfeitures, provisions, restrictions, and regulations for managing, raising, levying, collecting, securing, and paying the same, and with such allowances for prompt payment, and for waste on salt carried coastwise, or to Ireland, and for fish, beef, and pork exported to parts beyond the seas, and with such drawbacks or debentures on account of duties paid, or secured to be paid, for salt exported to parts beyond the seas, as were particularly mentioned in the said before recited acts; and that the said before recited acts, and every article, rule, clause, matter and thing therein contained, or thereby referred unto, and now being in force, and not otherwise altered by the said act, should be and continue in full force and effect, for and during the said further term of seven years, as fully and amply, to all intents and purposes, as if the same had been particularly recited, expressed, and enacted in the body of the said act: now, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, towards raising the necessary supplies for defraying the expences of your Majesty's government, and for carrying on the present war with success, have freely resolved to grant and continue to your Majesty all and every the rates and duties upon salt, and upon red and white herrings, by the said last recited act continued; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the determination of the said term of seven years, in the said last recited act mentioned, the several and respective rates and duties upon salt, and upon red and white herrings, which by the said last recited act were continued, shall be and are hereby further continued, for and during the space of six years; and that the same shall be managed, raised, levied, collected, secured, and paid in such manner and form, and by and under such powers, authorities, penalties, forfeitures, provisions, restrictions, and regulations for managing, raising, levying, collecting, securing, and paying the same, and with such allowances for prompt payment, and

and for waste on salt carried coastwise, or to Ireland, and for fish, beef, and pork exported to parts beyond the seas, and with such drawbacks or debentures on account of duties paid, or secured to be paid, for salt exported to parts beyond the seas, as are particularly mentioned in the said before recited acts; and that the said before recited acts, and every article, rule, clause, matter, and thing therein contained, or thereby referred unto, and now being in force, and not otherwise altered by this act, shall be and continue in full force and effect, for and during the said further term of six years, as fully and amply, to all intents and purposes, as if the same were particularly recited, exprest, and enacted in the body of this present act.

An act for granting to his Majesty several duties upon all wines imported into Great Britain; and for raising a certain sum of money by annuities, and a lottery, in manner therein mentioned, to be charged on the said additional duties.

Most gracious sovereign;

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, towards raising a supply to enable your Majesty to carry on the present war with vigour, and for answering other your Majesty's weighty and important occasions, and with an humble and thankful acknowledgment of your Majesty's favourable and tender regard of us your faithful commons, have cheerfully and unanimously given and granted unto your Majesty an aid or assistance to be raised and levied upon all wines and vinegar to be imported into Great Britain, according to such rates, and in such manner and form, as is herein mentioned; and we do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and forty five, over and above all subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and all other subsidies, additional duties, and impositions whatsoever, due or payable for all wines and vinegar imported into Great Britain, by any act or acts of parliament now in force, there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors (before landing thereof) the additional impositions, rates, or duties following, without any discount or deduction inwards, or drawback on re-exportation afterwards; that is to say, For every ton of French wine and French vinegar, which shall be imported into this kingdom, the sum of eight pounds, and so after that rate for any greater or lesser quantity; and also for every ton of all other wines and vinegar imported into this kingdom, the sum of four pounds, and so after that rate for any greater or lesser quantity; the same to be raised, levied, collected, paid, and recovered in such manner and form, and by such ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures (except as to discounts and drawbacks aforesaid) as are mentioned and exprest in the act of parliament made and passed in the first year of the reign of his late majesty King James the Second, intituled, An act for granting his Majesty an imposition upon all wines and vinegar imported between the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred and eighty five, and the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred and ninety three, or in any other act

II. Provided always, That nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to lay any further duties upon wines damaged, corrupt, or unmerchantable, and for which the merchants or importers thereof shall refuse to pay or secure the duties, and which, by an act passed in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act for the improvement of his Majesty's revenues of customs, excise, and inland duties, are on such refusal directed to be received into the custody of proper officers of the customs, to be publicly sold, in order to be distilled into brandy, or to be made into vinegar.

III. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said impositions, rates, and duties by this act granted, shall, from time to time, be under the management and direction of the respective commissioners of his Majesty's customs, and their officers for the time being, and shall be paid into the hands of the receiver general of the customs in England for the time being; and such receiver general shall weekly, to wit, on Wednesday in every week, if it be not an holy day; and if it be, then on the next day after that is not an holy day, answer and pay all the monies arising by the said additional impositions, rates, and duties (the necessary charges of raising, collecting, and answering the same only excepted) into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer, distinct and apart from all other monies which such receiver general shall receive for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for the uses and purposes in this act mentioned.

An act for granting to his Majesty the sum of eight hundred thousand pounds out of the sinking fund; and for granting a sum remaining in the exchequer, arisen by the surplus of the duties upon malt, mum, cyder, and perry, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and forty five; and for the further appropriating the supplies granted in this session of parliament; and for giving further time for the payment of duties omitted to be paid for the indentures or contracts of clerks and apprentices, and for the further enforcing the payment of the said duties.

Duties for soapers waste to cease,

after June 24,

SECT. AND whereas it hath been found by experience, that soapers waste is of great use and service for improvement of lands, for which purpose great quantities thereof would be used, if the same were permitted to be brought into this kingdom freed and discharged from payment of the duties, to which the same is now liable upon importation; for the encouragement therefore of such improvements, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and

and forty five, all the duties now payable for soapers waste, imported into this kingdom, shall cease and determine; and from thenceforth it shall be lawful to import into this kingdom soapers waste, without paying any subsidy, custom, imposition, or other duty for the same; any law, statute, usage, or provision to the contrary notwithstanding.

An act for effectually preventing the exportation of foreign linens, under the denomination of British or Irish linens.

WHEREAS by reason of the bounty or allowances granted on the exportation of British and Irish linens, evil-minded persons may fraudulently endeavour to export linens of foreign fabrick and manufacture, and to receive the said bounties or allowances for the same, as if the same were of the manufacture of Great Britain and Ireland: and whereas certain stamps are required by law to be put upon linens, made in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, and in Ireland, which may have been put on foreign linens, in order to vend them as linens of the manufacture of that part of Great Britain called Scotland, or of Ireland; for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and forty five, no stamp master or lapper in Scotland or Ireland, shall any way mark, stamp, or seal any linens whatsoever, until such stamp master or lapper shall have taken an oath for the true and faithful execution of his office, before one or more justice or justices of the peace in Scotland and Ireland respectively (which oath the said justice or justices is and are hereby authorized and required to administer) nor until after the owner or manufacturer of any linen brought to be marked or stamped, shall, before the stamp master of the place next adjoining to the place of abode of the owner or maker of such linen, take an oath (which oath the said stamp masters, severally and respectively, are hereby authorized and required to administer) that such linens desired to be marked or stamped, and every part thereof, is and are really and truly of the manufacture of Scotland or Ireland, and of no other place.

Stamp masters to take an oath for the true execution of their office.

Linens to be stamped must be sworn to be of the manufacture of Scotland or Ireland.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no bounty shall be paid or allowed on the exportation of any British or Irish linens, but on such only at both ends of every piece whereof the name and place of abode of the manufacturer or maker thereof, together with the year of our Lord, wherein the said piece was manufactured or made; and also a number, denoting the order in which such piece was so manufactured or made in such year, beginning with N^o I. and proceeding progressively according to the number of pieces made by such manufacturer or maker in each year; and also the name and place of abode of the exporter or seller thereof for exportation, shall be severally marked or stamped in plain, distinct, and legible letters, figures, and words at length; and unless at the ends of every piece of such linen, there shall be marked or stamped in plain, distinct, and legible letters, words, and figures, the month and year when, and the name of the port at which such linens shall be entered for exportation, claiming the bounty; and unless (except in the instance herein after mentioned) the ends of every such piece of linen, near which such marks or stamps shall be made, shall be whole and entire, as the same were when it

III. And whereas it is a frequent practice in Scotland, to cut a piece of linen after it is taken out of the loom into two or more pieces, for the purpose of bleaching or whitening the same, whereby one or more of such pieces may not have the maker's or manufacturer's name made or set thereon, as is herein before directed; for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every piece of cloth intended to be cut for the purpose of bleaching or whitening, shall be so cut in the presence of the stamp master of the place next adjoining to the place of abode of the owner of such cloth, and each piece cut off, not having the manufacturer's or maker's name and place of abode stamped thereon, shall be stamped with the name and place of abode of the said stamp master, and with the name and place of abode of the manufacturer and maker thereof, together with the year of our Lord wherein the same was so bleached or whitened, which the stamp-master is hereby empowered and directed to stamp thereon; and no bounty shall be paid or allowed on exportation of any such cut piece of cloth that shall not have the said stamps thereon: and if any person or persons shall, from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty five, stamp or mark any linens, or cause or procure any linens to be stamped or marked, contrary to all or any of the directions of this act, or shall mark or stamp, or cause or procure the same to be marked or stamped, with a mark or stamp expressing the name or place of abode of any person or persons, other than that of the real and true manufacturer or maker thereof, or expressing an untrue description of the real and true manufacturer's or maker's place of abode, or of the year of our Lord in which such linen was manufactured, or of the order in which the same was manufactured or made, or shall wilfully mark or set on any such linens any false or counterfeit stamp, in imitation of the mark or stamp used by any manufacturer or maker of British or Irish linens, or shall wilfully or maliciously cut off, obliterate, wash, take out, or destroy, or cause or procure to be cut off, obliterated, washed, or taken out, or destroyed, any stamp or mark marked or stamped on linen, such person or persons shall forfeit the sum of five pounds for every piece of linen so stamped as aforesaid, to be sued for and recovered by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, the court of session, court of justiciary, or court of exchequer in Scotland, or in any of his Majesty's courts of record in Dublin respectively, wherein no essoin, privilege, wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be allowed; and one moiety of the said penalties shall be to the use of the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to such person or persons as will sue or prosecute for the same.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person shall make or affix, or cause or procure to be made or affixed, on any linens of foreign manufacture or fabrick, imported into Great Britain or Ireland, any of the marks or stamps required by law to be put on linens of the manufacture of Scotland or Ireland, or shall make or affix, or cause or procure to be made or affixed, on any such foreign linens, any of the marks or stamps hereby required to be marked or stamped upon linens of the manufacture of Great Britain or Ireland, or shall make or affix, or cause or procure to be made or affixed, on any such foreign linens, any mark or stamp, marks or stamps, in imitation of any of the said marks or stamps hereby, or by any other law or laws now in force, required to be marked or stamped on British or Irish linens; such person so offending, and being thereof convicted, shall stand on the pillory during the space of one hour in the forenoon, and also be punished by fine not exceeding fifty pounds, or by imprisonment for any time not exceeding twelve months, at the discretion of the court before whom such offender shall be convicted: and if any person shall, after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty five, sell, or expose to sale, or pack up for sale, or enter for exportation, any foreign linens marked or stamped with all or any of the marks or stamps hereby, or by any other law now in force, required to be marked or stamped upon linens of the manufacture of Great Britain or Ireland, knowing such linen to be foreign, every person so offending, and being thereof convicted, shall forfeit the said linens, and the sum of five pounds for each piece thereof so sold, exposed to sale, or packed up for sale, or entered for exportation, as aforesaid, to be sued for and recovered, by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, the court of session, court of justiciary, or court of exchequer in Scotland, or in any of his Majesty's courts of record in Dublin respectively, wherein no essoin, privilege, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed; and one moiety of the said penalties shall be to the use of the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to such person or persons as will sue or prosecute for the same: and in case it shall be made a question, Whether such linens are of the manufacture or fabrick of Great Britain or Ireland, or of any foreign country; in such case the onus probandi thereof shall lie upon the claimer of such linen, or the defendant in such action or suit.

Penalty on exporting foreign linens stamped as British or Irish, to forfeit the linens, and 5*l*. per piece:

In case of a question, Whether linens be foreign; the onus probandi to lie on the defendant.

Method of stamping not to be altered,

V. Provided always, and it is hereby declared, That nothing herein contained shall extend to vary or alter the method of stamping of linens of the manufacture of Ireland or Scotland, by virtue of any law or laws now in force relating thereto; but that, besides the marks or stamps herein before mentioned, all such linens shall be marked and stamped in the same manner as the same ought to have been if this act had not been made.

C A P. XXVI.

An act for repealing the present inland duty of four shillings per pound weight upon all tea sold in Great Britain, and for granting to his Majesty certain other inland duties in lieu thereof; and for better securing the duty upon tea, and other duties of excise; and for pursuing offenders out of one county into another.

SECT. AND whereas by several acts of parliament now in force, several drawbacks or allowances are directed to be paid upon the exportation of tea, which have tempted many exporters thereof to commit great frauds and abuses, to the prejudice of his Majesty's revenue, and the fair traders: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no drawback whatsoever shall be allowed or paid for any tea which shall be exported, or shipped to be exported at any time or times after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty five, and that no debenture or certificate shall be granted or made forth, for or in order to the repayment or drawing back of the duties upon any such tea so exported, or shipped to be exported, after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty five, but such drawback or repayment shall from thenceforth cease, determine, and be no longer paid; any law, statute, or provision, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

No drawback for tea exported.

X. And whereas it may happen, that the tea imported by the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, may not always be sufficient to answer the consumption thereof in Great Britain, and to keep the price of tea in this kingdom upon an equality with the price thereof in other the neighbouring countries of Europe; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in every such case, it shall and may be lawful for the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, and their successors, to import into Great Britain, in British ships navigated according to law, such quantities of tea as they shall think necessary from any parts of Europe, subject to the several duties payable for tea consumed in Great Britain, and also to the same rules, methods, and directions, as are prescribed and given with respect to tea imported by them from the East Indies, so as notice be first given to the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, or the high treasurer for the time being, of the quantity of tea so intended to be imported, with the name of the ship and master, or commander, in which the same is to be laden, and taking a licence under the hands of the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the said high treasurer for the time being, for the lading and importing thereof as aforesaid, which licences they are hereby authorized and empowered to grant to the said company without any fee or reward, or any other charge; any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

XI. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, shall at any time neglect to keep this market supplied with a sufficient quantity of tea, at reasonable prices, to answer the consumption thereof in Great Britain, it shall and may be lawful to and for the said commissioners of the treasury, or any three or more of them, or the said high treasurer for the time being, to grant licences to any other person or persons, body or bodies politick or corporate, to import tea into Great Britain, from any parts of Europe, in such and the like manner, and subject to such duties, and under such restrictions and limitations, and upon such notices, and with such licences, as are herein before prescribed and directed, with respect to tea to be imported from any parts of Europe, by the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies; any thing in this or any former act or acts of parliament to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

XII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty five, all tea imported into Great Britain, from any parts of Europe, by the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, or by any other person or persons, bodies politick or corporate (to be licensed as aforesaid) shall be entered at the custom-house, and shall pay or secure the several subsidies, and additional impositions, now chargeable upon all tea imported by the said company from the East Indies; and all tea so to be imported by the said united company, from any parts of Europe as aforesaid, shall be forthwith carried and put into such warehouse or warehouses, as are now made use of by the said united company, for the receiving tea imported by them from the East Indies, or such others, as they shall provide for that purpose, to be approved by the commissioners of his Majesty's customs, or the major part of them for the time being, and shall not be taken out of such warehouse or warehouses, until such tea shall be sold at the publick sales of the said united company, and the several duties charged thereupon by this act shall be paid; and all tea imported from any parts of Europe, by any other person or persons, bodies politick or corporate (to be licensed as aforesaid) shall also be forthwith carried or put into such warehouse or warehouses, as shall be provided for that purpose, at the charge of the respective importer or importers of such tea, to be also approved by the said commissioners of his Majesty's customs, or the major part of them for the time being, and shall not be taken out thence upon any account whatsoever, until the same shall be publickly sold by such person or persons, or bodies politick or corporate (of which sale or sales, six days notice shall be given in the London Gazette) and the inland duties charged thereupon by this act, shall be paid as aforesaid; any thing in this or any former act to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Six days notice of sales of tea to be given in the London Gazette.

C A P. XII.

An act for granting to his Majesty several rates and duties upon glass, and upon spirituous liquors; and for raising a certain sum of money by annuities, and a lottery, to be charged on the said rates and duties; and for obviating some doubts about making out orders at the exchequer for the monies advanced upon the credit of the salt duties, granted and continued to his Majesty by an act of the last session of parliament.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being desirous to raise the necessary supplies which we have granted to your Majesty in this session of parliament, in the most safe, easy, and expeditious manner we are able, have unanimously resolved to give and grant unto your Majesty the several and respective new and additional rates and duties herein after expressed, and to that end and purpose do most humbly beseech your Majesty, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and forty six, there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid unto and for the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for and upon all crown, plate, flint, and other glass, and all bottles and flasks, as shall at any time or times hereafter be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain (over and above all other customs, subsidies, and duties, by any act or acts of parliament, or law whatsoever imposed upon or payable for the same) the several and respective additional rates or new duties herein after expressed; that is to say;

For and upon all crown, plate, and flint glass, which shall be imported and brought into Great Britain as aforesaid, the sum of eight pence for every pound weight, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; and for and upon all green glass or other glass which shall be imported and brought into Great Britain as aforesaid, the sum of two pence for every pound weight, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; and for and upon all bottles and flasks, containing the quantity of a quart respectively, which shall be imported and brought into Great Britain as aforesaid, the sum of two shillings per dozen; and for and upon all bottles and flasks, containing more or less than a quart, which shall be imported and brought in as aforesaid, the sum of two shillings for every dozen quarts, be the quantity of bottles, containing the same, greater or lesser.

Duty upon crown, plate, and flint glass; upon green and other glass; and bottles, &c. imported.

The said several and respective rates and duties, for and upon all such glass of bottles, or flasks, to be imported or brought in as aforesaid, to be paid by the importer or importers thereof respectively.

Glass imported, and landed before entry, &c.

forfeited.

Duties how recoverable.

2 W. & M. stat. 2. c. 4.

Officers in England to manage the duties of glass imported there; and in Scotland officers there;

Exportation on glass.

Glass shipped for exportation, and re-landed;

III. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any such crown, plate, flint, or other glass, or such bottles or flasks so imported as aforesaid, shall be landed, or put on shore out of any ship or vessel, before due entry be made thereof at the custom-house, in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and the duties hereby imposed shall be paid or secured, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering of the same, first signed by the commissioners, collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively, that all such imported goods as shall be so landed, or put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited, and shall or may be seized or recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof (to wit) one moiety of the same to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the use of such person or persons, as will seize, inform, or sue for the said goods so imported and forfeited, or the value thereof, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in his Majesty's court of Exchequer in Scotland, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties upon imported glass, by this act granted, shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid in the same manner and form, and by such ways, rules, and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as the present duties upon imported manufactures of glass are in and by an act passed in the second year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, to be raised, levied, collected, and paid; and that such of the said duties imposed by this act upon imported glass, as shall arise in England, Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in England for the time being; and such of the duties imposed by this act upon imported glass, as shall arise in Scotland, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in Scotland for the time being; and all monies arising by the said duties (the necessary charges of raising and accounting for the same excepted) shall from time to time be paid into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer at Westminster, distinctly and apart from all other branches of the publick revenues, for the purposes herein after mentioned.

XVI. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons who shall have actually paid his Majesty's duties by this act payable for any quantity of glass whatsoever, made from any of the materials charged as aforesaid, and to and for any other person or persons who shall buy, or be lawfully entitled to any such quantity of glass, from the said person or persons who actually paid his Majesty's duties for the same, to export such glass for any foreign parts by way of merchandize, giving sufficient security before the shipping thereof for exportation, that the particular quantity of glass, which shall be intended to be exported as aforesaid, and every part thereof, shall be shipped and exported, and that the same or any part thereof, shall not be re-landed, or brought again into any part or parts of Great Britain; which security the customer or collector of the respective port for such exportation, is hereby directed and authorized to take in his Majesty's name, and to his use.

XVII. Provided always, That if after the shipping of any such glass to be exported as aforesaid, and the giving or tendering such security as aforesaid, in order to obtain the allowances or drawbacks herein after mentioned, the glass so shipped to be exported, or any of it, shall be re-landed in any part part of Great Britain; that then, and in every such case, over and above the penalty of the bond, which shall be levied and recovered to his Majesty's use, all the glass which shall be landed, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited. Penalty.

XVIII. And it is also hereby enacted, That any person or persons, who shall export any glass to any foreign parts, shall or may make proof upon oath, or by such affirmation as aforesaid, that the duty of such glass hath been paid according to this act (which oath or affirmation the collector who received the said duty is hereby required and impowered to administer) and thereupon the said collector for the said duty upon glass shall give to such person or persons gratis a certificate or certificates, expressing the kinds and weight of such glass, and the duties paid for the same, pursuant to this act; which certificate being produced to the customer or collector of the port where the said glass shall be exported, and oath or affirmation, as aforesaid, being also made by the exporter, before the said customer or collector of the port (who is hereby also authorized and required to administer the same without fee or charge) that the said glass so exported is the same mentioned in the said certificate, then the said customer or collector of the port where such glass shall be exported, shall give to the exporter thereof a debenture, expressing the true weight of the glass so exported; which debenture being produced to the collector appointed to receive the said duties upon glass, in such county or place where the said glass was exported, he shall forthwith pay to the persons or agents so exporting the same, a drawback or allowance of nine shillings and four pence per hundred weight for all crown, plate, flint, or white glass; and two shillings and four pence per hundred weight for all green glass made in Great Britain; and if such collector shall not have money in his hands to pay the same, then the said respective commissioners of the excise in Great Britain are required to pay the said debenture out of the duties upon glass arising by this act; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding. Debenture and drawback on glass exported.
Exporter to make oath.
Debenture.
Allowance.

XIX. And whereas the importation of glass into Ireland from foreign parts, and the exportation of glass from Ireland, may be of great prejudice to the manufacture of glass in Great Britain; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and forty six, no person or persons whatsoever shall import, or cause to be imported into the kingdom of Ireland, any crown, plate, or flint glass, or white glass, by what name soever it is, or hereafter may be called or known, or any common bottles, or other green glass, or any glass of any kind or denomination whatsoever, other than the manufacture of Great Britain. And if any crown, plate, or flint glass, or white glass, or any common bottles, or other green glass, or any glass of any kind or denomination whatsoever, other than the manufacture of Great Britain, shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel in Ireland; all such glass, of what kind soever, as shall be so landed, or put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel in Ireland, shall be forfeited and destroyed within ten days after the same shall be lawfully condemned; and also the ship or vessel in which the same was imported, be forfeited, with her tackle, apparel, and furniture; and the master of such ship or vessel, and every other person or persons concerned in importing of the same, or that shall have been aiding or assisting in the landing or putting the same on shore, shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten shillings for every pound weight thereof; and so in proportion for any greater or less quantity. No foreign glass to be imported into Ireland.
Penalty.

XX. And for the more effectually preventing of such importation of foreign glass into Ireland, it is hereby further enacted, That the master of every ship or vessel which shall carry any crown, plate, or flint glass, or white glass, or any common bottles, or other green glass, or any glass of any kind or denomination whatsoever, to Ireland, shall take from the collector or comptroller of the port of Great Britain, where he shall lade any such Masters of ships carrying glass, to take a duplicate of contents.

such glass; a duplicate of his contents in writing of all the glass taken or laden on board his ship or vessel, before he be permitted to sail out of the port, under the hand and seal of such collector or comptroller of the said port of Great Britain; which said duplicate shall be delivered to the master of every such ship or vessel without fee or reward; and that every such master of every such ship or vessel shall deliver upon oath such duplicate to the collector, comptroller, or other officer of the customs in such port in Ireland, where such ship or vessel shall arrive, and intends to unlade, before he be permitted to land any such glass. And that in case any glass of any kind or denomination whatsoever, shall be unladen or landed in any part of Ireland, before such duplicate is produced to the collector, comptroller, or officer as aforesaid, all such glass shall be forfeited and destroyed within ten days after the same shall be lawfully condemned; and also the ship or vessel in which the same was imported, be forfeited, with her tackle, apparel, and furniture; and the master of such ship or vessel, and every other person or persons concerned in importing of such glass, or that shall have been aiding or assisting in the landing or putting the same on shore, shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten shillings for every pound weight thereof; and so in proportion for every greater or less quantity.

XXI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and forty six, any person or persons whatsoever shall directly or indirectly export, transport, ship off, carry, or convey, or cause or procure to be exported, transported, shipped off, carried, or conveyed, or shall be any ways aiding or assisting in the exporting, transporting, shipping off, carrying, or conveying out of the kingdom of Ireland, any crown, plate, or flint glass, or white glass, by what name soever it is, or hereafter may be called or known, or any common bottles, or other green glass, or any glass of any kind or denomination whatsoever, or shall directly or indirectly load, or cause to be laden upon any horse, cart, or other carriage, or load or lay on board, or cause to be laden or laid on board, in any ship or vessel, in any place or port, within or belonging to the kingdom of Ireland, any such glass as aforesaid, with intent or purpose to export, transport, ship off, carry, or convey the same, or cause the same to be exported, transported, shipped off, carried, or conveyed out of the kingdom of Ireland, or out of any port or place belonging to the same, or with intent or purpose that any person or persons whatsoever should so export, transport, ship off, carry, or convey the same out of the kingdom of Ireland, every person so offending, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay the sum of ten shillings for every pound weight of glass, of any kind or denomination whatsoever, so exported, transported, shipped off, or carried, conveyed, or laden, as aforesaid, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act; and all the glass of any kind or denomination whatsoever, so exported, transported, shipped off, or carried, conveyed, or laden, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, shall be forfeited and destroyed within ten days after the same shall be lawfully condemned: and all and every ship or vessel, barge, boat, or other bottom whatsoever, wherein any such glass shall be shipped or laid on board, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, shall likewise be forfeited, with her tackle, apparel, and furniture.

XXII. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners and sub-commissioners of excise respectively, in their respective limits and districts in Ireland, or the major part of them, are hereby authorized and required to hear and determine all offences against this act, relating to the exportation or importation of glass; which commissioners or sub-commissioners shall and may proceed in a summary way, and give judgement or sentence, and levy the penalties and forfeitures by this act inflicted on such offenders, in such or the like manner as they are enabled to proceed, give judgement, and levy the penalties and forfeitures in cases of of excise in Ireland, by any act or acts of parliament now in force in that kingdom; one moiety of which penalties and forfeitures shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors; the other moiety to the officer or officers, or any other person or persons, who shall seize, discover, inform, or sue for the same.

Forfeitures disposed.

XXIX. And be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all fines, penalties, and forfeitures by this act imposed, shall be sued for, levied, recovered, or mitigated by such ways, means, and methods, as any fine, penalty, or forfeiture, is or may be recovered or mitigated by any law or laws of excise, or by this act, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer in Scotland: and that one moiety of every such fine, penalty, or forfeiture, shall be to his Majesty, his heirs, and successors, and the other moiety to him or them who shall discover, inform, or sue for the same.

Fines, &c. how to be levied, &c.

An act to continue the duties for encouragement of the coinage of money.

May it please your most excellent Majesty:

WHEREAS great benefit and advantage did accrue to England, by one act of parliament passed in the eighteenth year of the reign of his Majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for encouraging of coinage; and continued by another act made in the twenty fifth year of the reign of his said Majesty King Charles, intituled, An act for continuing a former act concerning coinage; both which said acts were revived by an act made in the first year of the reign of his Majesty King James the Second; and were continued by an act made in the fourth year of the reign of King William and Queen Mary of glorious memory; and were further continued by an act made in the twelfth year of the reign of the said late King William; and were further continued by an act made in the seventh year of the reign of her late Majesty Queen Anne of blessed memory, and then extended to Scotland; and were further continued by an act made in the first year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the First of glorious memory, to be in force for seven years from the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following; and were further continued by another act made in the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign, for seven years, from the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and twenty three, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following; and were further continued by another act made in the fourth year of the reign of his present Majesty, for seven years, from the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following; and were further continued by another act made in the twelfth year of the reign of his present Majesty, for seven years, from the first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty eight, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following: so that unless the said act be continued, the encouragement given thereby will cease, and this kingdom be deprived for the future of so great a good as it hath for many years last past enjoyed: now we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do give and grant unto your Majesty, the rates, duties, and impositions herein after mentioned,

An act to continue two acts of parliament; one for encouraging the growth of coffee, in his Majesty's plantations in America, and the other for the better securing and encouraging the trade of his Majesty's sugar colonies in America.

5 Geo. 2. c. 24.

WHEREAS an act passed in the fifth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for encouraging the growth of coffee in his Majesty's plantations in America; and to continue and be in force from the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty five, to the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirty nine, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament: and whereas another act passed in the sixth year of the reign of his said present Majesty, intituled,

An act for the better securing and encouraging the trade of his Majesty's sugar colonies in America, to continue and be in force for the term of five years, to be computed from the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty three, and to the end of the then next session of parliament: and whereas by another act passed in the eleventh year of the reign of his said present Majesty, the several terms granted by the two before mentioned acts were enlarged and continued, from the expiration of the said terms, for the further term of seven years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament: and forasmuch as the said recited acts have, by experience, been found beneficial, and are fit to be further continued; be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same; That the before mentioned acts, and each of them, and all the powers and clauses therein contained, shall be, and are hereby continued to be in full force and effect from and after the expiration of the respective terms by the said acts severally granted, enlarged, and continued, for and during the further term of seven years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament.

An act for the more effectual securing the duties now payable on foreign-made sail cloth imported into this kingdom; and for charging all foreign-made sails with a duty; and for explaining a doubt concerning ships being obliged at their first setting out to sea, to be furnished with one compleat set of sails made of British sail cloth.

WHEREAS by an act made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for further encouraging and regulating the manufacture of British sail cloth; and for the more effectual securing the duties now payable on foreign sail cloth imported into this kingdom; and which, by an act made in the thirteenth year of his present Majesty, was continued to the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and fifty, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament; it was enacted, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and thirty six, all foreign-made sail cloth or canvas, usually entered as Hollands Duck, or Vitry Canvas, which should be fit and proper to be made use of for the making of sails for navigating ships or vessels, and which should be imported into Great Britain by way of merchandize, and for which any duties had been granted, or were made payable, or ought to be paid to his Majesty, should be stamped at the time of landing thereof, at or in the port or place where the same should be imported or landed; and that the commissioners of the customs of Great Britain should provide, or cause to be provided, and to be distributed to the proper officers of the customs of the ports where such foreign-made sail cloth or canvas should be imported, a sufficient number of stamps, with which the said officers were thereby required to stamp every such piece or parcel of foreign-made sail cloth or canvas; and which stamps should express or denote the place or country from whence the same sail cloth or canvas was imported; and the said commissioners were thereby required to take care that the said stamps should be so contrived, that the impression thereof might be durable, and so as the same might be the least liable to be counterfeited; and divers penalties and forfeitures were by the said act directed to be levied and inflicted, in order to prevent the counterfeiting of such stamps, and selling foreign made sail cloth or canvas with counterfeit stamps, and the working up the same unstamped, in such manner as is therein mentioned: and whereas not only great numbers of sails made up in foreign parts, made of foreign canvas, are used by masters of ships and vessels for navigating such ships and vessels into this kingdom, but also great quantities of foreign-made sail cloth and canvas, fit for making sails, are imported into, and made and wrought up into sails in this kingdom, without paying the duty, or being stamped as by the former laws is directed, to the great prejudice of his Majesty's subjects, and the diminution of the publick revenue; for the remedying and preventing whereof for the future, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty six, every master of any ship or vessel belonging to any of his Majesty's subjects, navigated with any foreign-made sail or sails, or who shall have any foreign-made sail or sails on board his ship or vessel, shall at the time of making his entry or report of such ship or vessel at the custom-house where such ship or vessel shall be entered, also make an entry and report upon oath of all and every foreign-made sail and sails used in, or being on board every such ship or vessel; and the master of such ship or vessel shall, before such ship or vessel shall be cleared by the officers of the customs inwards, where such ship or vessel makes any discharge of her lading, pay to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, the like and the same duties as are charged upon, and made payable by an act of the twelfth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for the better encouragement of the making of sail cloth in Great Britain, for all foreign-made sails imported by way of merchandize.

Masters of ships to make entry upon oath of all foreign-made sails on board; and before clearing, pay the duties charged by 12 Annæ, st. 1. c. 16.

Sails to be stamped at the place of entry; on non-entry, &c. the sails to be forfeited:

The master to forfeit 50 l.

Masters not choosing to pay the duty, and delivering the sails to the officer of the port, the sails to be forfeited.

Sails brought from the East Indies, exempted from duty.

Foreign-made sail cloth imported,

II. And it is hereby further enacted, That every such sail shall be stamped at the port or place where such ship or vessel shall make her entry as aforesaid, in manner herein after mentioned; and in case the master of such ship or vessel shall not make such entry, and pay the said duty, before the ship or vessel shall be cleared by the officers of the customs inwards, all and every such sail and sails shall be forfeited to his Majesty, his heirs and successors; and such master shall, for every such offence, also forfeit the sum of fifty pounds, which said sum of fifty pounds shall be applied, one moiety thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to the person or persons who shall sue for the same.

III. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared, That if the master of such ship or vessel shall, after his report and entry made, and before the ship or vessel is cleared by the officers of the customs inwards, declared his intention of not choosing to pay the said duty, and shall deliver to the officers of the customs of the port or place where he makes such entry and report as aforesaid, such sail or sails for which he has declared his intention of not paying the said duty; that then, and in such case, such sail and sails is and are hereby declared to be forfeited to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and such master shall not be subject or liable to pay the said duty or penalty of fifty pounds; any thing herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

IV. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted and declared, That nothing herein contained shall be deemed, construed, adjudged, or taken to charge or make liable any captain or master of any ship or vessel coming from the East Indies, with any of the duties or forfeitures aforesaid, for or upon account of such ship or vessel being navigated with, or having on board any foreign-made sail or sails, which shall be by such captain or master, bona fide, brought from the East Indies; any thing in this act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

V. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty six, fix, all foreign-made sail cloth or canvas, usually entered as Hollands Ducks, or Vitry Canvas, fit and proper to be made use of for the making of sails for navigating of ships or vessels, which shall be imported into Great Britain by way of merchandize, and upon the importation whereof any duties have been granted, or are made payable, or which ought to be paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, shall be stamped at the time of landing thereof, at or in the port or place where the same shall be imported or landed, as hereafter mentioned.

to be stamped at the landing thereof.

VI. And whereas the stamps now used at the custom-house, in pursuance of the said former act, are of too small dimensions, and as the same are now used and applied, make a very obscure mark and impression, and which is liable to be soon defaced, and become undistinguishable; it is therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of the customs of Great Britain shall, on or before the said twenty fourth day of June, provide or cause to be provided, such and so many stamps of eight inches diameter each, as shall be sufficient for that purpose, for the stamping of all foreign-made sails, and foreign-made sail cloth or canvas, and shall for that purpose cause a proper number of the said stamps to be sent to, and distributed amongst the respective proper officers of the customs of all and every the port and ports within the kingdom of Great Britain; and the officers of every such port are hereby enjoined and required to stamp all such foreign-made sails, and foreign-made sail cloth or canvas, which shall be imported and entered at the several ports where they respectively reside; and which said stamps shall, in order to make the impression durable, be dipped in a liquor made of red lead well mixed with linseed oil well boiled; and the said stamp or impression therewith to be made, shall express and denote the place and port in which such sails, and foreign-made sail cloth or canvas are entered; and the said commissioners, in providing the said stamps for the purposes aforesaid, shall take care that they be so contrived, that the impression thereof may be plain and durable, so as the same may be least liable to be forged or counterfeited; and if any person or persons whatsoever shall, at any time or times from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, counterfeit or forge any stamp, which shall be provided or made in pursuance of this act for the purposes aforesaid, or shall counterfeit or resemble the impression of the same, upon any of the said foreign-made sail cloth or canvas, or foreign-made sails, chargeable with any duty by virtue of this act, or of any former act or acts of parliament made in that behalf; or shall sell such sail cloth or canvas with such counterfeit or forged stamps, knowing the same to be counterfeited or forged, thereby to defraud his Majesty, his heirs or successors, of any of the duties thereby and hereby granted; then every such person so offending, and duly convicted thereof, shall forfeit the sum of fifty pounds.

Stamps of 8 inches diameter to be made, &c.

Stamps to be dipped in red lead and oil; and to denote the place of entry of the sail cloth.

Forging the stamps, &c.

to forfeit 50l.

VII. And it is hereby further enacted, That from and after the said twenty fourth day of June, no master sail-maker, journeyman sail-maker, or other person or persons whatsoever, within Great Britain, and from and after the twenty ninth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and forty six, no master sail-maker, journeyman sail-maker, or other person or persons whatsoever, in his Majesty's plantations in America, shall make or work up into sails or tarpawlins, or cause to be made or worked up into sails or tarpawlins, any foreign-made sail cloth or canvas not stamped according to this act; and in case any master or journeyman sail-maker, or other person or persons whatsoever, shall make or work up, or cause to be made or worked up, into sails or tarpawlins, any foreign sail cloth or canvas, other than as aforesaid, such sails and tarpawlins shall be forfeited, and every such master or journeyman sail-maker, or such other person or persons so offending, and being thereof lawfully convicted upon the oath of one or more credible witness or witnesses, before any one or more justice or justices of the peace for the county, riding, division, city, town, or place where the said offence shall be committed (which oath such justice

VIII. And be it further enacted, That every sail-maker, or other person, who shall make up into sails any foreign-made sail cloth or canvas, shall place the stamps affixed or impressed on such foreign sail cloth or canvas, in the most conspicuous part of such sails (that is to say) on the after side of such sails, and in such manner, that the number of stamps in every sail may appear proportionably to the number of bolts or pieces contained in the said sail; and in case any sail-maker, or other person, shall make up any foreign-made sail cloth or canvas into sails, in any other manner than aforesaid, such sails, shall be forfeited, and such sail-maker, or such other person, shall, for every such offence, forfeit the sum of ten pounds.

IX. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no master sail-maker, journeyman sail-maker, or other person whatsoever, shall, after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty seven, alter, repair, or mend any sail or sails made of foreign-made sail cloth or canvas, not stamped according to this act; and in case any master or journeyman sail-maker, or other person, shall alter, repair, or mend any sail or sails not stamped as aforesaid, every such master and journeyman sail-maker, or other person, shall, for every sail so altered, repaired, or mended, forfeit the sum of twenty pounds.

X. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty six, every sail-maker in Great Britain, and from and after the twenty ninth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and forty six, every sail-maker in his Majesty's plantations in America, shall affix or impress or cause to be affixed or impressed, on every new sail by him so made, a stamp of eight inches diameter, containing the name and place of abode of such sail-maker, in plain distinct letters and words at length; and which said stamp, in order to make the impression durable, shall be dipped in a liquor made with lamp black well mixed with linseed oil well boiled, and in case any sail-maker, or other person, shall make any new sail or sails, and shall deliver the same to any captain or master of any ship or vessel, not being stampd with his name and place of abode as aforesaid, every such sail shall be forfeited, and every sail-maker, or other person, shall, for every sail by him or them so delivered, not stamped as aforesaid, forfeit the sum of ten pounds.

XI. And whereas doubts have arisen about the meaning of a clause in the said act of the ninth year of his present Majesty's reign, by which ships or vessels are obliged, at their first setting out, or being first navigated at sea, to be furnished with one full and complete set of sails made of sail cloth manufactured in Great Britain: to obviate such doubts for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty six, every ship or vessel which shall be built in Great Britain, and from and after the twenty ninth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and forty six, every ship or vessel which shall be built in his Majesty's plantations in America, shall, upon her first setting out, out, or being first navigated, have or be furnished with one full and complete set of new sails (bona fide, belonging to such ship or vessel) made of sail cloth manufactured in Great Britain; and in case such ship or vessel shall not, on her first setting out, be fitted or furnished with a new set of sails, properly belonging to such ship or vessel, made of sail cloth of the manufacture of Great Britain as aforesaid; that then, and for every such neglect or default, the master of such ship or vessel shall forfeit the sum of fifty pounds.

on first setting out, to be furnished with a set of new sails, manufactured in Great Britain, Penalty 50 l.

XII. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several pecuniary penalties and forfeitures herein before imposed on persons offending against this act (not otherwise directed and applied) shall and may be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record in Great Britain, or in such of his Majesty's plantations wherein such offence shall be committed; in which suit no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be allowed; which said forfeitures shall be applied, one moiety thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to the person or persons who shall sue for the same.

Penalties how to be recovered, and disposed.

XIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act shall continue and be in force for the term of seven years, to commence from the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty six, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer.

This act to continue for 7 years. Farther continued by 26 Geo. 2. c. 32.

Anno decimo nono

G E O R G I I II. Regis.

C A P. XXXIV.

An act for the further punishment of persons going armed or disguised, in defiance of the laws of customs or excise; and for indemnifying offenders against those laws, upon the terms in this act mentioned; and for relief of officers of the customs in informations upon seizures.

WHEREAS divers dissolute persons have associated themselves, and entered into confederacies to support one another, and have appeared in great gangs in several parts of this kingdom, carrying fire-arms, or other offensive weapons; and when so assembled, have been aiding and assisting in running, landing, or carrying away prohibited or uncustomed goods, or goods liable to duties of excise, or in the illegal relanding of any goods or merchandizes, which have been shipped or exported upon debenture or certificate, or in rescuing the same after seizure, or in obstructing the officers of the revenue in the execution of their office, to the great discouragement of the fair trader, and the loss of the publick revenue: and whereas several officers of the customs and excise, and their assistants, have been wounded, maimed, and some of them killed, when in the execution of their office, or otherwise, by the said dissolute persons, so associated and assembled as aforesaid, to the great terror of his Majesty's peaceable subjects in defiance of the laws, and to the utter subversion of all civil authority and power whatsoever: for remedy of which many and great inconveniencies, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if any persons, to the number of three or more, armed with fire-arms, or other offensive weapons, shall, from and after the twenty fourth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty six, be assembled, in order to be aiding and assisting in the illegal exportation of wool, or other goods prohibited to be exported, ported, or the carrying of wool, or other such goods, in order to such exportation, or in the running, landing, or carrying away prohibited or uncustomed goods, or goods liable to pay any duties; which have not been paid or secured; or in the illegal relanding of any goods whatsoever, which have been shipped or exported upon debenture or certificate; or in rescuing or taking away the same, after seizure, from any officer or officers of the customs or excise, or other his Majesty's revenue, or other person or persons employed by him or them, or assisting him or them, or from the place where they shall be lodged by him or them; or in rescuing any person who shall be apprehended for any of the offences made felony by this or any other act, relating to the revenues of customs or excise; or in preventing the apprehending any person, who shall be guilty of any such offence; or in case any persons, to the number of three or more, so armed as aforesaid, shall, after the said twenty fourth day of July, be so aiding or assisting, or if any person shall, from and after the said twenty fourth day of July aforesaid, have his face blacked, or wear any vizard mask, or other disguise, when passing with such goods, or shall forcibly hinder, obstruct, assault, oppose, or resist any of the officers of the customs or excise, or other his Majesty's revenue, in the seizing or securing any such goods; or if any person or persons, from and after the said twenty fourth day of July, in the year aforesaid, shall maim, or dangerously wound any officer of the customs or excise, or any other his Majesty's revenue, in his attempting to go on board any ship or vessel, within the limits of any of the ports of this kingdom, or shoot at, maim, or dangerously wound him when on board such ship or vessel, and in the due execution of his office or duty, then every person so offending, being thereof lawfully convicted, shall be adjudged guilty of felony, and shall suffer death as in cases of felony, without benefit of clergy; and that all and every person and persons who shall at any time be convicted of any the offences aforementioned, within that part of Great Britain called Scotland, shall, for every such offence, incur and suffer the pains of death, and confiscation of moveables.

II. And, for the more easy and speedy bringing the offenders against this act to justice, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be charged with being guilty of any of the offences aforesaid, before any one or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace, or before one of his Majesty's justices of the court of King's Bench, if the offence be committed in England; or before the lord justice general, or one of the lords of justiciary, or any one or more of his Majesty's justices of the peace in Scotland, if the offence be committed in Scotland; by information of one or more credible person or persons, upon oath, by him or them to be subscribed, such justice of the peace, or justice of the King's Bench, or lord justice general, lord justice clerk, or lord of justiciary respectively, before whom such information shall be made as aforesaid, shall forthwith certify under his hand and seal, and return such information to one of the principal secretaries of state of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, who is hereby required to lay the same, as soon as conveniently may be, before his Majesty, his heirs or successors, in his or their privy council; whereupon it shall and may be lawful for his Majesty, his heirs or successors, to make his or their order, in his or their said privy council, thereby requiring and commanding such offender or offenders to surrender him or themselves, within the space of forty days after the first publication thereof in the London Gazette, to the lord chief justice, or any other of his Majesty's justices of the court of King's Bench, or to any one of his Majesty's justices of the peace, if the offence be committed in England, or to any of the lords of justiciary, or to any one of his Majesty's justices of the peace in Scotland, if the offence be committed in Scotland; who is hereby required, upon such offender or offenders surrendering him or themselves, to commit him or them, without bail or mainprize, to the county gaol, or to the gaol or prison of the place where he or they shall so surrender, to the end that that he or they may be forthcoming to answer the offence or offences where- with he or they shall stand charged according to due course of law; which order the clerks of his Majesty's privy council shall cause to be forthwith printed and published in the two successive London Gazettes, and to be forth- with transmitted to the sheriff of the county where the offence shall be com- mitted, who shall, within fourteen days after the receipt thereof, cause the same to be proclaimed within the hours of ten in the morning and two in the afternoon, in the market places, upon the respective market days, of two market towns in the same county, near to the place where such offence shall have been committed; and a true copy of such order shall be affixed upon some publick place in such market towns: and in case such offender or offenders shall not surrender him or themselves, pursuant to such order of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, to be made in council as aforesaid, he or they so neg- lecting or refusing to surrender him or themselves as aforesaid, or escaping after such surrender, shall, from the day appointed for his or their surrender as aforesaid, be adjudged, deemed, and taken to be convicted and attainted of felony, and shall suffer pains of death, as in cases of a person convicted and attainted by verdict and judgment of felony, without benefit of clergy, if the offence be charged to have been committed in England; and shall be adjudged, deemed, and taken to be convicted of a capital crime, and shall suffer the pains of death, and confiscation of moveables, as in case of a person found guilty of a capital crime, and under sentence for the same, if the offence be charged to have been committed in Scotland; and that it shall be lawful to and for the court of King's Bench, or the justices of Oyer and Terminer, or general gaol delivery for the county or place where such person shall be, to award execution against such offender and offenders, in such man- ner as if he or they had been convicted and attainted in the said court of King's Bench, or before such justices of Oyer and Terminer, or general gaol delivery respectively, if the offence be charged to have been committed in England; and that it shall be lawful for the court of justiciary, or the lords of justiciary, in their circuits, to award execution against such offender and offenders, in such manner as if he or they had been found guilty and con- demned in the said court of justiciary, or in the circuit respectively.

Order to be published in two successive Gazettes, and transmitted to the sheriff, who shall pro- claim the same.

Copy to be affixed in the market towns. Offenders not surrendering, &c.

to be convict- ed of felony without cler- gy.

V. And, for the better and more impartial trial of any indictment or information which shall be found, commenced, or prosecuted, for any of the offences made felony by this or any other act relating to the revenues of customs or excise, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every such offence shall and may be enquired of, examined, tried, and determined, in any county within that part of the kingdom of Great Britain called England, in such manner and form as if the fact had been therein committed: provided, that no attainder for any of the offences made felony by virtue of this act, shall make or work any corruption of blood, loss of dower, or forfeiture of lands or tenements.

VI. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any officer or officers of his Majesty's revenue, or other persons being employed in the seizing, conveying, or securing any wool, or other goods forfeited, on account of their being prohibited or uncustomed goods, or on account of the duties chargeable thereon not having been paid or secured, or by virtue of any law made to prevent the exportation of wool, or other goods, or in endeavouring to apprehend any offender against this act, shall be beat, wounded, maimed, or killed, by any offender against this act, or the said wool, or other goods so seized, shall be rescued by persons so armed as aforesaid; in all such cases respectively, the inhabitants of every rape or lath, in such counties as are divided into rapes or laths, and in every other county the inhabitants of every hundred where such facts shall be committed, within that part of Great Britain called England, shall make full satisfaction and amends for all the damages which such officers or persons shall respectively suffer by such beating, wounding, and maiming respectively, and by the loss of such goods so seized and rescued, and shall also pay the sum of one hundred pounds for each person so killed, to the executors or administrators of such officers, or other persons so killed as aforesaid; and that such respective officers and other persons, and their said executors and administrators, shall be and are hereby enabled to sue for and recover such their damages, so as the sum to be recovered for any such beating, wounding, or maiming, shall not exceed forty pounds, nor for the loss of the goods two hundred pounds, against the inhabitants of the said rape or lath, in such counties as are divided into rapes or laths; and in every other county the inhabitants of every hundred, who by this act shall be made liable to answer all or any part thereof; and that if such person or persons shall recover in such action, all the inhabitants of the rape or lath in such counties as are divided into rapes or laths, and in every other county the inhabitants of every hundred, who by this act shall be made liable to all or any part of the said damage or sum, shall be rateable and proportionably taxed and assessed for and towards payment of the damages and costs to be recovered by the plaintiff or plaintiffs in any action to be brought upon this act, and also of all just and necessary expences in defending such action;

action; which taxation and assessment shall be made, levied, and paid by the ways and mean, and in the manner and form prescribed for the levying and paying the damages and costs recovered against inhabitants of hundreds in cases of robberies, and for the levying and paying the just and necessary expences in defending any action to be brought for such damages, in and by an act (intituled, An act for the amendment of the law relating to actions on the statute of hue and cry) made in the eighth year of the reign of his present Majesty, and by so much of any former law relating to actions against hundreds, in case of robberies, as is not repealed or altered by the said act; and that if any plaintiff or plaintiffs, in any action to be brought upon this act, shall be nonsuited, or shall discontinue his, her, or their action; or if in such action, judgment on demurrer, or verdict shall be given against him, her, or them, the charges necessarily expended in defending such action, over and above the costs in those cases to be taxed, and also the taxed costs, in case the plaintiff or plaintiffs be insolvent, shall be levied by such taxation and assessment, and shall be paid in such manner, as in the like cases such charges and costs in actions brought upon the said act are thereby directed to be levied and paid; and that every action to be brought upon this act shall be prosecuted in like manner as actions upon the said act of the eighth year of the reign of his present Majesty are directed to be prosecuted.

and levied as by 8 Geo. 2. c. 16.

If the plaintiff be nonsuited, the charges of the defence, &c. to be levied as the act directs.

VII. Provided nevertheless, That no person or persons shall recover any damages by virtue of this act for any such beating, wounding, maiming, or loss of goods, unless he or they shall, within four days after such damage or injury, cause notice to be given of such offence being committed, unto two or more of the inhabitants of some town, village, or hamlet, near to the place where such fact shall have been committed, and shall, within eight days after such fact, declare, by examination upon oath, before some justice of the peace for the county, liberty, or division, where the same was committed, which examination every such justice shall be obliged to take, whether he or they so examined, do know the person or persons who committed such fact, or any of them; and if upon such examination it be declared that he or they knew the person or persons who committed the same, or any of them, then he or they shall be bound by recognizance to prosecute such offender or offenders according to law; and that no such person or persons shall recover any damages by virtue of this act, unless he or they shall, over and besides the said notice and recognizance herein before required, give such notice, and enter into such recognizance, as persons robbed are, by the said act of the eighth year of the reign of his present Majesty, directed to give and enter into, in order to enable them to maintain actions upon the said act.

Notice to be given within four days of the injury received, and examination within eight days.

Recognizance, &c. to prosecute.

VIII. Provided also, That where any offender shall be apprehended and convicted of such offence, within the space of six calendar months after the offence committed, no hundred, rape, or lath, or any inhabitant thereof, shall be in any wise subject to make any satisfaction for such damages, or to pay the said one hundred pounds to the executors or administrators of such killed person.

No satisfaction to be made if the offender be convicted in six months.

IX. Provided also, That no person shall be entitled to bring any action against the inhabitants of any hundred, rape, or lath, for any the matters aforesaid, unless the same shall be commenced within one year after the offence committed.

Actions to be brought within one year.

X. And, for the better discovering and apprehending the said offender or offenders in that part of Great Britain called England, who shall have been advertized as aforesaid, and shall not have surrendered him or themselves within forty days as afore directed, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the twenty fourth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty six, all and every person and persons who shall apprehend and take, or discover, so that he may be taken, any person in that part of Great Britain called England, so advertized as aforesaid, who shall have not surrendered himself within forty days as aforesaid, and cause him to be brought before the lord chief justice of the court of King's Bench, or before any one of the justices of the said court, or any one of his Majesty's justices of the peace for London or Middlesex, (who is hereby required to commit such person to the prison of Newgate for such felony) shall have and receive, for every such person who shall be so apprehended, the sum of five hundred pounds, to be paid within one month after execution shall be awarded against such offender so apprehended and committed as aforesaid, by the commissioners of the customs or excise respectively, who are hereby required to receive the applications of all such who are concerned in such discovering or apprehending such offender, and determine who are entitled to the said reward, and their respective shares and proportions thereof; and the same shall be divided amongst such persons as aforesaid, in such shares and proportions, as to the said commissioners of the customs or excise respectively, or to the major part of them shall seem reasonable; and if any such offender, against whom no such order of council shall have been made, shall himself so discover or apprehend any other offender against whom such order shall have been made, he shall be discharged and acquitted of such his own offence, and all other the like offences then before committed, and for which no prosecution shall have been then commenced, and shall also have his share of the reward; and if any person or persons shall happen to lose a limb, or an eye, or be otherwise grievously maimed or wounded in the apprehending, or endeavouring to apprehend, or making pursuit after such offender or offenders; all and every person or persons so wounded and maimed as aforesaid shall, upon application to the commissioners of the customs or excise respectively, as aforesaid, have and receive the sum of fifty pounds, over and above any other reward that he or they may be intitled to as an apprehender by virtue of this act; and in case any person or persons shall happen to be killed in the taking or apprehending, or endeavouring to apprehend, or in making pursuit after any such offender or offenders, that then the executors or administrators of such person or persons so killed as aforesaid, upon application to the commissioners of the customs or excise respectively as aforesaid, and laying sufficient proof before them of such person being killed as aforesaid, shall have and receive the sum of one hundred pounds; all which rewards before mentioned shall be paid to the several and respective persons, who shall become intitled thereto as aforesaid, by the receiver general of the customs, or cashier of the excise respectively, upon an order directed to them for that purpose by the commissioners of the customs or excise; and the money paid by such receiver general or cashier, as aforesaid, shall be accepted of and allowed in his accounts as so much money paid to his Majesty; and every such officer shall be hereby discharged thereof accordingly; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XI. And be it further enacted, That if any of the said offender or offenders in that part of Great Britain called England, at any time before his Majesty's order in council shall be made, requiring him or them to surrender him or themselves within the space of forty days as aforesaid, shall discover two or more of his, her, or their accomplices therein, to the commissioners of the customs or excise in England respectively, and apprehend them, or cause them to be apprehended, so as they, or two of them at least, be brought to justice, and convicted of such offence, the offender or offenders so discovering, shall have and receive the sum of fifty pounds for every such offender so discovered and convicted; as a reward for such his, her, or their discovery; and every such person so discovering shall be clearly acquitted and discharged of such his, her, or their offence, and all other the like offences then before committed, for which no prosecution shall have been then commenced: which said reward shall be paid in such manner as herein before is mentioned, with respect to the reward for apprehending.

XII. Provided always, That nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to restrain his Majesty's court of King's Bench, or any any of the judges thereof, or the court of justiciary in Scotland, or any of the judges thereof respectively, from bailing any person committed for felony by virtue of this act, and not convicted or attainted thereof as aforesaid, in such manner as they may by law do in other cases of felony.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any information shall be commenced and brought to trial, on account of the seizure of any ship as forfeited for illegally carrying goods, or of any wool, goods, wares, or merchandizes, as prohibited or uncustomed, or illegally carried or exported, or intended or attempted to be exported, or as illegally relanded after having been shipped or exported upon debenture or certificate, wherein a verdict shall be found for the claimer thereof, and it shall appear to the judge or court before whom the same shall be tried, that there was a probable cause of seizure, the judge or court before whom the said information shall be tried, shall certify on the record, that there was a probable cause for the prosecutor's seizing the said ship or goods; and in such case, the defendant shall not be entitled to any costs of suit whatsoever, nor shall the persons who seized the said ship or goods be liable to any action, indictment, or other suit or prosecution on account of such seizure; and that in case any action, indictment, or other prosecution, shall be commenced and brought to trial against any person or persons whatsoever, on account of the seizure of any such ship, or of any wool, goods, wares, or merchandizes, as prohibited or uncustomed, or as illegally carried or exported, or intended or attempted to be exported, or illegally relanded as aforesaid, wherein a verdict shall be given against the defendant or defendants, if the court or judge, before whom such action or prosecution shall be tried, shall certify on the said record, that there was a probable cause for such seizure, then the plaintiff, besides his ship or goods so seized, or the value thereof, shall not be entitled to above two pence damages, nor to any costs of suit, nor shall the defendant in such prosecution be fined above one shilling.

Costs, &c. not to be given to defendant, where there was a probable cause of seizure.

The judge shall certify.

Damages 2d. fine 1s. This act to be in force for seven years. Continued by 26 Geo. 2. c. 32.

XVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act shall continue in force for the space of seven years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament.

An act to extend the provisions of an act made in the thirteenth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for naturalizing such foreign protestants, and others therein mentioned, as are settled, or shall settle in any of his Majesty's colonies in America, to other foreign protestants who conscientiously scruple the taking of an oath.

13 Geo. 2. c.

WHEREAS by an act made in the thirteenth year of his present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for naturalizing such foreign protestants, and others therein mentioned, as are settled, or shall settle in any of his Majesty's colonies in America; it was enacted, That from and after the first day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty, all persons born out of the ligeance of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, who had inhabited and resided, or should inhabit and reside for the space of seven years, or more, in any of his Majesty's colonies in America, and should not have been absent out of some of the said colonies for a longer space than two months, at any one time during the said seven years, and should take and subscribe the oaths, and make, repeat, and subscribe the declaration appointed by an act made in the first year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled, An act for the further security of his Majesty's person and government, and the succession of the crown in the heirs of the late prince's Sophia, being protestants, and for extinguishing the hopes of the pretended prince of Wales, his open and secret abettors; or being of the people called Quakers, should make and subscribe the declaration of fidelity, and take and affirm the effect of the abjuration oath, appointed and prescribed by an act made in the eighth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, intituled, An act for granting the people called Quakers, such forms of affirmation or declaration, as may remove the difficulties which many of them lie under; and also make and subscribe the profession of his christian belief, appointed and prescribed by an act made in the first year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for exempting their Majesties protestant subjects from the penalties of certain laws, before the chief judge, or other judge of the colony wherein such persons respectively had so inhabited and resided, or should so inhabit and reside, should be deemed, adjudged, and taken to be his Majesty's natural-born subjects of this kingdom, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as if they, and every one of them, had been or were born within this kingdom: and whereas many of the people of the congregation called the Moravian brethren, and other foreign protestants, not Quakers, who conscientiously scruple the taking of an oath, are settled in his Majesty's colonies in America, and demean themselves there as a sober, quiet, and industrious people, and many others of the like persuasion are desirous to transport themselves thither; and if the benefit of the said act, made in the thirteenth year of his present Majesty's reign, were extended to them, they who are now there would thereby be encouraged to continue their residence in his Majesty's colonies, and others would resort thither in great numbers, whereby the said colonies would be improved, their strength increased, and their trade extended; be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and forty seven, all foreign protestants, who conscientiously scruple the taking of an oath, and who are born out of the ligeance of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, who have inhabited and resided, or shall inhabit and reside, for the space of seven years or more, in any of his Majesty's colonies in America, and shall not have been absent out of some of the said colonies for a longer space than two months at any one time during the said seven years, and shall make and subscribe the declaration of fidelity, and take and affirm the effect of the abjuration oath, appointed and prescribed by the said recited act, made in the eighth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First; and also make and subscribe the profession of his christian belief, appointed and prescribed by the said recited act, made in the first year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, before the chief judge or other judge of the colony, wherein such persons respectively have so inhabited and resided, or shall so inhabit and reside, shall be deemed, adjudged, and taken to be his Majesty's natural-born subjects of this kingdom, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, as if they and every of them had been or were born within this kingdom; which said affirmation and subscription of the said declaration, the said chief or other judge of every of the said respective colonies, is hereby enabled and impowered to administer and take: and the taking of every such affirmation, and the making and subscribing of every such declaration, shall be in such manner and place, and at such times and hours, and such entries made thereof; and for the same fees, and under the same penalties, as in the said recited act of the thirteenth year of his Majesty's reign are mentioned; and lists of the persons who shall take the benefit of this act, shall be transmitted to the commissioners of trade and plantations, in like manner, and under the same penalties, as lists of the Foreign protestants residents in America 7 years, who scruple an oath, upon making and subscribing the affirmation of fidelity and declaration; to be deemed natural born subjects.

Lists of persons taking the benefit to be transmitted to the commissioners of trade.

persons taking the benefit of the said act are thereby directed to be transmitted.

Persons to qualify themselves by taking the sacrament.

Certificate and entry thereof to be made.

Provisions of act 13 Geo. 2. with regard to certificates, &c. extended to such foreign protestants.

Privileges of natural-born subjects, &c.

Restrictions.

Persons excluded from this or 13 Geo. 2.

4 Geo. 2 c. 21.

II. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no person shall be naturalized by virtue of this act, unless such person shall have received the sacrament of the Lord's supper, in some protestant or reformed congregation, within some of the said colonies in America, within three months next before his taking such affirmation, and making and subscribing such declaration, and shall at the time of his taking such affirmation, and making and subscribing such declaration, produce a certificate, signed by the person administering the said sacrament, and attested by two credible witnesses, whereof an entry shall be made in the secretary's office of the colony wherein such person shall so inhabit and reside, as also in the court where the said affirmation shall be so taken as aforesaid, without any fee or reward.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the provisions contained in the said act, made in the thirteenth year of his present Majesty's reign, with regard to certificates of residence, and of having made and subscribed the said declaration, and taken the said affirmation, and as to such certificates being made evidence in the courts of Great Britain and Ireland, and also in the said colonies, and all other the benefits of the said act, shall extend to foreign protestants, who conscientiously scruple the taking of an oath, and who shall be qualified as aforesaid.

IV. Provided always, That the said foreign protestants shall enjoy the privileges of natural born subjects, and all the benefits of this act, and the said act of the thirteenth year of his Majesty's reign.

V. Provided always, and be it hereby further enacted, That no person who shall become a natural born subject of this kingdom by virtue of this act, shall be of the privy council, or a member of either house of parliament, or capable of taking, having, or enjoying any office or place of trust within the kingdoms of Great Britain or Ireland, either civil or military, or of having, accepting, or taking any grant from the crown to himself, or to any other in trust for him, of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments within the kingdoms of Great Britain or Ireland, any thing herein before contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

VI. Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this act, or in the said recited act of the thirteenth year of his Majesty's reign contained, shall extend, or be construed to extend to naturalize any person or persons whatsoever, who by virtue of an act made in the fourth year of his Majesty's reign, (intituled; An act to explain a clause in an act made in the seventh year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, for naturalizing foreign protestants, which relates to the children of natural born subjects of the crown of England, or of Great Britain) are declared and enacted not to be intitled to the benefit of the said act of the seventh year of her said late Majesty's reign, but that all persons shall be and remain in the same state, plight, and condition, to all intents, constructions, and purposes whatsoever, as they would have been in, if the said recited act of the thirteenth year of his Majesty's reign, or this act, had never been made; any thing in this act, or in the said recited act of the thirteenth year of his Majesty's reign contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

An act for granting to his Majesty a subsidy of poundage upon all goods and merchandizes to be imported into this kingdom: and for raising a certain sum of money by annuities and a lottery, to be charged on the said subsidy; and for repealing so much of an act made in the twentieth year of his present Majesty's reign, as enacts, That prize goods and merchandize may be exported without paying any duty of custom or excise for the same.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, for the better enabling your Majesty to defray the charge of this present war, and for other your Majesty's most necessary and important occasions, have given and granted unto your Majesty the further subsidies, rates, duties, and sums of money hereafter mentioned; and do humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That over and above all subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and over and above all additional duties, impositions, and other duties whatsoever, by any other act or acts of parliament, or otherwise howsoever already due and payable, or which ought to be paid to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, for or upon any goods or merchandizes, which from and after the first day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty-seven, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain, one further subsidy of poundage of twelve pence in the pound shall be paid to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, upon all manner of goods or merchandises to be imported or brought into this realm, or any his Majesty's dominions to the same belonging, at any time or times after the said first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and forty seven, by the importer of such goods or merchandises, before the landing thereof, according to the several particular rates and values of the same goods and merchandises, as the same are now particularly and respectively rated and valued, in the respective book of rates referred to by the acts of the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and the eleventh year of his late Majesty, or by any other act or acts of parliament; and so after that rate or value, or which do now pay any duty ad valorem.

Unrated East India goods to pay 5l. per cent on the gross price.

II. And whereas it may happen, that several goods and merchandizes may be imported by the East India company which are not rated by any act of parliament; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such unrated goods and merchandises shall pay the said subsidy of five per centum granted by this act on the gross price for which the goods shall be sold at the candle, without any allowance or deduction whatsoever; and that nothing in this act shall any ways alter the present method of computing the reduced value and duties at present payable upon unrated East India goods, but the same shall be computed as if this present act had never been made; and the subsidy hereby granted shall be paid by the said united East India company, at the same times as the other subsidies on East India goods imported by the said company are now due and payable; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the subsidy of poundage hereby granted; shall be raised, levied, and collected by the respective officers of his Majesty's customs in this kingdom, under the management and direction of the respective commissioners of the customs for the time being; and shall be brought and paid, or answered, into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer, for the purposes in this act mentioned (such additional charge as shall be necessary for the management of this revenue only excepted) and that all and every the clauses, powers, directions, penalties, forfeitures, matters, and things whatsoever, contained in the said act of the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, or in any other laws or statutes whatsoever now in force, for raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the subsidy of tonnage and poundage thereby granted, shall be applied, practised, and put into execution, for the raising, levying, securing, collecting, answering, and paying the subsidy of poundage by this act granted, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if all and every the said clauses, powers, directions, penalties, and forfeitures were particularly repeated and again enacted in the body of this present act.

Duties how to be levied, &c.

IV. Provided always, That nothing herein contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to any goods or merchandizes which were or are now allowed by the said act of the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, or any other act or acts of parliament to be imported duty free, nor to any prohibited goods or merchandizes which may be imported by the united East India company.

Not to extend to goods imported free, nor to prohibited goods imported by the India company.

V. Provided also, and it is the true intent and meaning of this act, That the importers of tobacco shall, upon paying down the subsidy hereby granted, have the same allowance with respect to this subsidy; as they are intitled to by any law now in force upon tobacco imported; but in case the said subsidy hereby granted shall not be paid down as aforesaid; then the said importers shall become bound to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, with one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved of by the collector of the port where the tobacco shall be imported, with the consent of the comptroller of such port; in one or more bond or bonds, at the election of the importer, for payment of the said subsidy within eighteen months, to commence at the end of thirty days after the master's report of the ship, or to commence from the merchant's entry of the goods within those thirty days, which shall first happen; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Allowance to the importer of tobacco.

Bond to be given on non-payment of the duty.

VI. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where any goods or merchandizes, that have paid the subsidy hereby granted; shall at any time or times be again exported by any merchant or merchants, within three years from the importation thereof, the subsidy by this act granted, and which shall have been actually paid for such goods, wares, or merchandizes, shall without any delay or reward, be repaid unto such merchant or merchants, who shall export the same, or the security vacated; except for such goods or merchandizes, as by any former act or acts of parliament it is declared no drawback shall be paid or allowed upon exportation, and except as is herein after excepted in relation to prize goods.

Drawback allowed upon exportation within 3 years.

Exception.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid; That for every hundred weight of sugar imported into Great Britain, after the said first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and forty seven, and refined there (and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity) that shall be exported out of this kingdom, after the said first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and forty seven, during the continuance of this act, there shall be repaid at the custom house to the exporter, within thirty days after the demand thereof, the sum of three shillings, over and above the present bounties;

Drawback on 3 s. per hundred weight on sugar refined in Great Britain, and exported, &c.

bounties; oath being first made by the refiner, that the sugar so exported, was produced from brown and muscovada sugar, charged by this act, and that as he verily believes the same was imported from his Majesty's plantations in America, and the duty duly paid at the time of the importation thereof, the exporter making oath, that the same was duly exported, and his Majesty's searcher also certifying the shipping thereof, and all other requisites being performed according to the respective books of rates.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be provided and kept in the office of the auditor of the receipt of exchequer at Westminster, a book or books, in which all the monies hereby appointed to be paid into the said receipt as aforesaid, shall be entered separate and apart from all other monies paid or payable there to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, upon any account whatsoever; and the said money so appointed to be paid into the said receipt of exchequer as aforesaid, shall be the yearly fund for the several purposes herein after mentioned.

Appropriation of the duties.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the annuities which by this act shall be granted and made payable, in respect of the principal sum of six millions three hundred thousand pounds, to be raised in manner and form as is herein after directed; as also the additional capital of ten pounds in lottery tickets, herein after directed to be added to every one hundred pounds, advanced towards raising the said sum of six millions three hundred thousand pounds, until redemption thereof by parliament, shall be charged and chargeable upon, and payable out of the several subsidies, rates, and duties by this act granted to his Majesty; and the said several subsidies, rates, and duties shall be, and are hereby appropriated for that purpose accordingly.

General issue.

XLIII. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be sued, molested, and prosecuted for any thing done by virtue or in pursuance of this act, or any the clauses therein contained, such person or persons shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act, and the special matter in evidence for his or their defence; and if afterwards

An act for permitting tea to be exported to Ireland, and his Majesty's plantations in America, without paying the inland duties charged thereupon by an act of the eighteenth year of his present Majesty's reign; and for enlarging the time for some of the payments to be made on the subscription of six millions three hundred thousand pounds, by virtue of an act of this session of parliament.

WHEREAS in and by an act passed in the eighteenth year of the reign of his present Majesty, (intituled, An act for repealing the present inland duty of four shillings per pound weight upon all tea sold in Great Britain, and for granting to his Majesty certain other inland duties in lieu thereof; and for better securing the duty upon tea, and other duties of excise; and for pursuing offenders out of one country into another) an inland duty of one shilling per pound weight avoirdupois, and in that proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, is charged upon all tea which should be sold in Great Britain from and after the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty five, and also a further duty of twenty five pounds for every one hundred pounds, of the gross price at which such tea should be sold at the publick sales of the united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, and proportionably for a greater or lesser sum, over and above all customs, subsidies, and duties payable to his Majesty for the same upon the importation thereof; which said several duties of one shilling per pound weight, and twenty five pounds per centum, it is thereby enacted should be paid down in ready money by the proprietor or proprietors of such tea, or such person or persons as should be appointed by him, her, or them, to the receiver or collector of the said inland duties, before such proprietor or proprietors, or other person or persons, should receive or take out for any purpose whatsoever such tea, from the warehouse or warehouses wherein the same was appointed to be lodged, by an act made in the tenth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the First, according to the directions of the said act: and whereas the importation of tea into this kingdom, by the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, may be greatly increased, if the same be permitted to be exported to Ireland, and his Majesty's plantations in America, without paying the duties charged thereupon by the said act; we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and forty eight, all such tea as shall then have been, or hereafter shall be imported into the kingdom of Great Britain from any foreign parts, and which shall be afterwards exported to the kingdom of Ireland, or to his Majesty's plantations in America, and which shall have been duly entered, and for which the several subsidies

the kingdom of Ireland, or to his Majesty's plantations in America; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the keeper or keepers of the said warehouse or warehouses, who shall be appointed by the commissioners of his Majesty's customs and inland duties, shall keep one or more book or books, wherein they shall fairly enter in writing, an exact, particular, and true account of all such tea which shall, from time to time, be delivered out of the said warehouse or warehouses for exportation to Ireland, or the plantations in America, and the names of the respective person or persons to whom, or for whose use, the same was delivered out, and the particular days and times when the same was so delivered out; and shall, at the end of every three months, or oftener if required, transmit in writing an account thereof, upon oath, to the said commissioners of the customs and inland duties respectively for the time being; and the said commissioners are hereby required and enjoined, within one month after the same shall have been transmitted to them, as aforesaid, to appoint one or more person or persons to inspect and examine the same accounts; and if, upon examination, it shall appear that any tea has been delivered out for exportation to Ireland, or the plantations, otherwise than and under such terms, forms, and conditions performed as herein are before directed, appointed, and required for the doing thereof; then the warehouse-keeper and warehouse-keepers offending therein shall not only be disabled to hold and enjoy any publick office or employment, but shall also forfeit and lose for every such offence the sum of one hundred pounds.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That one moiety of the several penalties and forfeitures in this act before-mentioned shall be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety shall be to the use of such person or persons as shall inform, prosecute, or sue for the same (except in such cases where any other appropriation or distribution is made by any other act or acts) and that all the same penalties and forfeitures shall and may be prosecuted and sued for, and the causes and controversies arising thereupon tried, heard, and determined in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer at Edinburgh respectively (except where any provision to the contrary is made by any other law or statute now in force) wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action or suit shall be commenced against any person or persons for any thing done in pursuance of this act, the defendant or defendants in such action or suit may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon, and that the same was done in pursuance and by the authority of this act; and if it shall appear so to have been done, then the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants; and if the plaintiff shall be nonsuited, or discontinue his action after the defendant or defendants shall have appeared, or if judgment shall be given upon any verdict or demurrer against the plaintiff, the defendant or defendants shall and may recover treble costs, and have the like remedy for the same as defendants have in other cases by law.

An act for encouraging the making of indico in the British plantations in America.

WHEREAS the making of indico in the British plantations in America would be advantageous to the trade of this nation, as great quantities are used in dying the manufactures of this kingdom; which at present being furnished from foreign parts, the supply of that necessary commodity is become at all times uncertain, and the price frequently exorbitant: and whereas the culture thereof has been found to succeed so well in the provinces of South and North Carolina, that there is reason to hope, by a proper encouragement, the same may be increased and improved to such a degree, as not only to answer all the demands of his Majesty's British subjects, but furnish considerable quantities to foreign markets; be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and forty nine, all and every person or persons who shall import, or cause to be imported into this kingdom, directly from any of the British colonies or plantations in America, in any ship or vessel, ships or vessels, that may lawfully trade to his Majesty's plantations, manned as by law is required, any good and merchantable indico, free from any false mixtures, and fit for dyers use, being the growth or product of the colony or plantation from whence the same is imported, shall have, and be intitled to, a reward or premium for such importation, after the rate of sixpence for every pound weight of such indico so imported as aforesaid, under such regulations as are herein after-mentioned, to be paid upon demand to the importer of such indico, by the collector of the port where the same shall be imported, out of the customs; and in case the collector of the port where the same shall be imported, shall not have money sufficient in his hands, he is hereby required to certify the same to the commissioners of the customs, who shall cause the same to be paid by the receiver general of his Majesty's customs (the bounty of the indico imported into England, to be paid by the receiver general of the customs in England, and of that imported into Scotland to be paid by the receiver general there.

6d. per pound premium allowed on the importation of indico, of the growth of the British plantations.

II. And, in order to intitle the importer of the aforesaid indico to such premium, as well as to prevent frauds by importing foreign plantation-made indico, or any false mixtures in what is made in the British plantations, with a view of recovering the premium; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person or persons, merchant, trader, or factor, loading any indico on board any ship or vessel, in any of the British colonies or plantations in America, shall, before the clearing out of the said ship for any port of Great Britain, produce to the governor, lieutenant governor, collector, and comptroller of the customs, and naval officer, or any two of them, a certificate or certificates, signed and sworn to before any justice of the peace in the said British colonies or plantations, by the planter or planters of the said indico, or his or their known agent or factor, that a quantity of indico, expressing the weight thereof, had been sent from the said planters indico work or plantation, where the same was made, in order to be shipped off, or sold by him to the person or persons therein named, and was of the growth and produce of the said planter's plantation, plantation, situate in the district, division, or parish of _____ within the island or colony of _____ which said certificate or certificates shall be attested by the said justice of the peace to have been signed and sworn to in his presence, who is hereby required to do the same without any fee or reward.

Persons loading indico, to produce a certificate from the planter, of the growth and quantity.

and also to sign a certificate that the indico shipped is the same mentioned in the said certificate.

Officer to certify such certificates.

Certificates to be given by the master of the vessel and by the officers of the customs.

Penalty of making entry of foreign-made indico, or any false mixture.

Officers of the customs to examine the indico.

III. And be it further enacted, That the person or persons, merchant, trader, or factor shall, at the time of his producing such certificate, sign also a certificate before the said governor, lieutenant governor, collector, and comptroller of the customs, and naval officer, or any two of them, that the indico which he or they have shipped on board the said ship or vessel, is the same mentioned in the said certificate or certificates; and thereupon the said governor, lieutenant governor, collector, and comptroller of the customs, and naval officer, or any two of them, are hereby authorized and required to deliver to such person or persons a certificate, under their hands and seal of office, of his or their having received such certificate or certificates; and that at the same time one or more certificate or certificates of the several planter or planters, their known agent or factor, had been produced to, and left with them, pursuant to the directions of this act; and no person or persons whatsoever, importing indico into Great Britain, shall be intitled to the premium or reward by this act granted, unless such person or persons shall produce such certificate to the chief officer of the customs at the port in Great Britain, where the same shall be imported.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That on the importation of any indico into Great Britain, a certificate shall be given by the master or commanding officer of such ship or vessel importing such indico, that the same was shipped on board such ship or vessel, within such British colony or plantation in America, as is mentioned in the said certificate; and also a certificate signed by the surveyors, land waiters, or searchers, or any two of them, officers of the customs of the port where the same is entered and landed in Great Britain, specifying the weight thereof, and that the said indico is good and merchantable, free from false mixtures, and of such quality as to be intitled to the said premium or reward; which certificate the said officers are hereby required to grant within ten days next after the landing thereof, unless they can assign sufficient cause for their refusal; upon producing which several certificates to the proper officer as aforesaid, such officer shall be, and is hereby required to pay the premium to the importer of the said indico.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall make, or cause to be made, an entry or entries of foreign-made indico, under the name of British plantation-made indico, or shall mix, or cause to be mixed, any foreign indico, or other false mixture or matter, with that made in the British plantations, in order to claim or recover the premium, as before mentioned, every person or persons so making, or causing to be made, such entry or entries, or mixing, or causing such mixtures to be made, shall forfeit all such indico so entered; and in case of such mixture, the quantity so mixed, both foreign and British plantation-made, and likewise double the value thereof, shall be forfeited by the person or persons who shall make or cause such mixture or mixtures to be made.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no certificate shall be made out to allow the premium for such indico to be made in, and imported from the British plantations, that is not good and merchantable, and free from any false mixture.

VII. And that the officers of the customs may be the better able to discover any frauds intended for the receiving the aforesaid premium, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the said officers, and they are hereby required, before they make out any such certificate, to examine the said indico, by opening each package, and shifting shifting the same, in such manner as to see the whole contents, or by such other means as they shall think proper, to find out and discover whether the indico is good and merchantable, and free from any false mixture.

VIII. And in order to fix the standard of such indico as shall be intitled to the premium aforesaid, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no certificate shall be granted by any surveyor, or other officer of his Majesty's customs, for any indico which is not worth three shillings the pound weight, when the best French, or other indico, of equal goodness with the best French, is worth four shillings the pound weight; and so in the same proportion, in case the price of the best French, or other indico of equal goodness, shall be at a higher or lower price.

Standard of indico intitled to the premium.

IX. Provided always, That in case any doubt or dispute shall arise between the surveyors, or officers of the customs, and the owners or importers of such indico as is imported into the port of London, as to the quality of the same, it shall and may be lawful for the commissioners of his Majesty's customs, to call two or more dyers, dry salters, brokers, or others, well skilled in that commodity, who shall declare upon oath, if required, their opinion, as to the quality of the same, and according to the best of their judgment determine whether the said indico is intitled to the premium hereby granted or not; and if any doubt or dispute shall arise, as to the quality of the indico imported as aforesaid, into the out-ports in England, samples thereof shall be taken and sent up to the commissioners of the customs at London, and into the out-ports in Scotland, to the commissioners of the customs at Edinburgh, in such manner as the respective commissioners shall direct, in order to be inspected and adjudged there as before mentioned.

Method of settling disputes about the quality.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no fee, gratuity, or reward shall be demanded, taken, or received by any officer of his Majesty's customs, for the examining, viewing, or delivering such indico, with respect to the premium or reward allowed by this act, or for the signing of any of the certificates, in order to the receiving such premium or reward, or for paying the same; and any such officer demanding or taking such fee or reward, shall, for such offence, forfeit his office, and such officer shall also be incapable of serving his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds.

No fee to be paid to the officers.

XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all certificates made, or debentures made out pursuant to this act, shall not be chargeable with any of the stamp duties; any law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

Certificates not chargeable with stamp-duties.

XII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any indico, made in the British colonies or plantations in America, shall, after the twenty fifth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty nine, be exported from Great Britain, that then and in every such case the person or persons so exporting the same, shall, before the entry thereof, pay unto the collector of the customs at the port where the same shall be exported, or to the chief officer of the customs there, the full sum of sixpence for every pound weight, which is allowed as a premium by this act on all such indico as he intends to export, over and above any duty the same is now by law subject to pay at exportation by any former act.

Exporters to repay the premium.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, his or their agent or agents, assignee or assigns, shall be found fraudulently to export such indico, without paying such premium to the collector or chief officer of the customs as aforesaid, such person or persons shall forfeit and lose all such indico, and double the value thereof.

Penalty of exporting indico without paying the premium.

XIV. Provided always, That if any doubt or dispute shall arise, whether any of the said indico, or any part thereof so to be exported, is of the growth, product, and manufacture of the British plantations in America, or of foreign growth, product, or manufacture, the onus probandi shall lie on the Owner to prove the growth.

the owner or claimer thereof, and not on the informer or prosecutor; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Penalty of
certificates.

XV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any governor, lieutenant governor, collector, or comptroller of the customs, naval officer, merchant, trader, or factor, or master or commander of any ship or vessel, or any other person or persons, shall, during the continuance of this act, falsely make a certificate of the produce and manufacture of any indico, not being the produce and manufacture of the British plantations in America, or shall counterfeit any such certificate as herein before is directed to be made, in order to obtain the premium hereby granted for indico made in the British plantations in America, all and every such person and persons shall forfeit the sum of two hundred pounds; and if such person or persons so offending, shall be a collector, comptroller, or naval officer, or any other officer of the customs, he shall also forfeit and lose his office, and be incapable of serving his Majesty, his heirs and successors.

Penalties how to be recovered.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several penalties and forfeitures by this act inflicted, shall and may be prosecuted, determined, and recovered by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer in Scotland, or in any of the courts of admiralty in his Majesty's plantations in America respectively, wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed.

Application of the forfei-tures.

XVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all penalties and forfeitures by this act imposed shall, if in Great Britain, be applied, one moiety to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to such person or persons as shall sue for the same; and all such penalties and forfeitures as shall be incurred in his Majesty's plantations in America, shall be applied, one third part thereof to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, one other third part thereof to the use of the governor of the plantation where the forfeiture shall be incurred, and the remaining third part to such person or persons who shall sue for the same.

Limitation of actions.

XVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action or suit shall be commenced against any person or persons, for any thing done in pursuance of this act, every such action or suit, if in Great Britain, shall be commenced within six Months next after the fact committed; and if in the British colonies or plantations in America, within eighteen months next after the fact committed; and not afterwards; and the defendant or defendants, in any such action or suit, may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon; and that the same was done in pursuance and by the authority of this act; and if it shall appear so to have been done, the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants; and if the plaintiff shall be nonsuited, or discontinue his action, after the defendant or defendants shall have appeared, or if judgment shall be given upon any verdict or demurrer against the plaintiff, the defendant or defendants shall and may recover treble costs, and have the like remedy for the same, as any defendant or defendants have in other cases by law.

Treble costs.

Act to be in force for 7 years.

XIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act, and all the powers and authorities therein contained, shall continue and be in force for and during the term of seven years, to commence from the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and forty nine, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer.

GEORGIN II. Regis.

C A P. XXXVI.

An act for the more effectual preventing the importation and wear of foreign embroidery and brocade, and of gold and silver thread, lace, or other work made of gold or silver wire manufactured in foreign parts.

WHEREAS great quantities of foreign embroidery, gold and silver thread, lace, fringe, and brocade, continue to be daily brought into, and sold within this kingdom, and great sums of money are daily exported out of this kingdom for the buying and fetching in of those commodities, the importation whereof is contrary to several acts of parliament made for prohibiting the same: for redress whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of July, one thousand seven hundred and forty nine, no foreign embroidery, or gold, or silver brocade, shall be imported or brought into Great Britain, upon pain of being forfeited and burnt, and upon the further penalty of one hundred pounds of lawful money of Great Britain, to be paid by the importer thereof for each piece or parcel so imported.

Penalty on importing foreign embroidery, or gold or silver brocade.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said first day of July, one thousand seven hundred and forty nine, no mercer, laceman, haberdasher, upholder, milliner, taylor, or other person or persons whatsoever, shall vend, utter, sell, or expose to sale, or exchange, barter, truck, or otherwise dispose of, any foreign embroidery, gold or silver thread, lace, fringe, brocade, or any other work made thereof, or of gold or silver wire, or plate, wove, wrought, fabricated, or manufactured in foreign parts, or sew, work, or make up the same, for, in, or upon, any garment or wearing apparel whatsoever, upon pain that all and every such foreign embroidery, gold or silver thread, lace, fringe, brocade, or other work made thereof, or of gold or silver wire, or plate, so sold or exposed to sale, exchanged, bartered, trucked, or disposed of, or sewed, worked, or made up, for, in, or upon any garment or wearing apparel, and the garment, wearing apparel, or other materials, in, with, or upon which the same shall be so sewed, wrought, or made up, shall be forfeited and burnt; and all and every person or persons who shall vend, utter, sell, or expose to sale, exchange, barter, truck, or dispose of, or knowingly sew, work, or make up, or cause or procure to be worked or made up, for, in, or upon any garment or wearing apparel, any such foreign embroidery, gold or silver thread, lace, fringe, brocade, or other work, wove, wrought, fabricated, or manufactured in foreign parts, shall, for every such offence, forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds of lawful money of Great Britain.

Venders or makers up of foreign embroidery, &c. to forfeit 100l. and the garment to be burnt.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all foreign embroidery, and gold or silver thread, lace, fringe, brocade, or other work made thereof, or of gold or silver wire or plate, wove, wrought, fabricated, or manufactured in foreign parts, which, after the said first day of July, one thousand seven hundred and forty nine, shall be seized within this kingdom, whether the same shall be mixed with, sewed on, or made up, together with any other goods or materials, or otherwise, and the apparel, garment or other materials, in, with, or upon which the same shall be mixed, sewed, or made up, shall be forfeited, and after condemnation shall be burnt; and the mercer, laceman, haberdasher, upholder, milliner, taylor,

Foreign embroidery, &c. which shall be seized after 1 July, 1749; to be burnt, and the dealer,

&c. to forfeit
100l.

or other dealer in, or vender or maker up of, any of the said manufactures, in whose house, warehouse, custody, or possession the same shall be so found and seized, being thereof convicted, shall, for each piece or parcel of such foreign embroidery, gold or silver thread, lace, fringe, brocade, or other work made thereof, or of gold or silver wire or plate, that shall be seized and found in his, her, or their house, shop, warehouse, custody, or possession as aforesaid, and which shall have been brought, placed, or continued there, with his, her, or their knowledge, privity, or consent, forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds of lawful money of Great Britain.

The embroidery, &c. with the garments to be burnt.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all foreign embroidery, gold or silver thread, lace, fringe, brocade, or other work made thereof, or of gold or silver wire or plate seized by virtue of this or any other act, shall, after condemnation, be together with the garment, wearing apparel, or other materials, in, with, or upon which the same shall be mixed, sewed, wrought, or made up, publickly burnt at such places as the commissioners of his Majesty's customs in England or Scotland respectively shall direct.

Prosecution of penalties, and application.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several penalties and forfeitures in this act mentioned, shall and may be prosecuted and determined by bill, plaint, or information in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of exchequer in Scotland respectively, wherein no essoin, protection, privilege, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed; and one moiety of the said penalties and forfeitures shall be to the use of the King's majesty, and the other moiety to such person or persons as will sue for or prosecute the same.

The proof to lie upon the claimer.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any question or doubt shall arise, where the said goods were manufactured, the proof shall lie upon the owner or claimer of such goods, or the person prosecuted for being guilty of an offence against this act, and not upon the prosecutor; any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

The wearer to incur no penalty.

VII. Provided always, That nothing in this act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to inflict any penalty on the wearer of any foreign embroidery, gold or silver thread, lace, fringe, brocade, or other work made thereof, or of gold or silver wire or plate; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Limitation of
actions.

VIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared, That all informations, bills, actions, and suits, that shall be had, brought, commenced, sued, or exhibited, for any forfeiture or offence committed against this or any of the former acts of parliament, which prohibit the importation or sale of foreign embroidery, gold or silver thread, lace, fringe, brocade, or other work made thereof, or of gold or silver wire or plate, or any of them, shall and may be had, brought, commenced, sued, and exhibited within twelve calendar months after the discovery of such offence, and in case of seizure, within three months after such seizure shall be made; any former act or law to the contrary notwithstanding.

General issue.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be sued or prosecuted for what either he or they shall do in the execution of this act, he or they may plead the general issue, and give this act, and the special matter in evidence; and if the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall become nonsuit, or discontinue his, her, or their action or actions; or if a verdict shall pass against him, her, or them, the defendant or defendants shall recover treble costs, for which they shall have the like remedy, as in other cases where costs are allowed to defendants.

Treble costs.
